Turner, one of last year's outfielders, was tried out at third and if he continues as he performed on Saturday will in all probability hold down the red light corner during the season.

McMann started in the box for Cobourg and for the first three innings held the home team at his mercy, but in the fourth he weakened and after six runs had been scored on him he was relieved by Markey, who succeeded in retiring the side without further scoring. Baker started in the box in the fifth but he was wild and after he had filled the bases with a single and two charities, Markey again took up the work and retired the side after two runs had scored. In the seventh he held the homesters scoreless. Manager Thackeray of Roseneath tried out eleven players and it looks as if he will have a good line up to face Brighton in the opening game next Wednesday.

The line-up:

Roseneath—Shearer, Davey, A. Zufelt, Thackeray, Turner, Dawson, Wilson, Keagan, Baker, Collins, Leach.

Cobourg — O'Grady, Moore, Drumn, Markey, Russel, Baker, Newton, McMann, Bell.

Score by innings:

Cobourg.. .. .. ..3 2 0 3 0 0 0—8
Roseneath .. .. ..0 0 0 6 2 1 0—9

DELORO GIRLS ARE READY SOFT BALL

Sunnyside Club is Looking For Games With Outside Teams.

MARMORA, June 2—The Sunnyside Club of Deloro, in organizing its soft ball team elected Miss Mary Murphy as captain. Miss Jean Reynolds holds the secretaryship. Miss Sara Scott of the post office staff is acting as manageress of the team. The girls have been given sufficient financial support to be able to purchase attractive uniforms. They will be glad to hear of near by teams wishing to try conclusions with them.

Schultz Captain.

At a meeting of the Deloro Baseball team at the Hub Dining Rooms on Friday evening, Walter Schultz was elected as captain for the ensuing season.

Good Play.

Members of St. John's A.Y.P.A. of Havelock excelled themselves in their production of "Back to the Country Store" at the Town Hall last Friday evening. Proceeds were devoted to the church funds of Holy Trinity, North Marmora. The attendance was good.

ONE-SIDED GAME TO CENTRAL SCHOOL

Defeated Queen Alexandra 22-2 at the Oval—Other Game Postponed.

A fast game of baseball was played at the Oval on Monday afternoon between Central Public school and Queen Alexandra Public school. The game was a little one-sided as the final score, 22-2 for Central, shows. The line-ups were as follows:

Central — c, Delehay; p, Graham; 1b, Coleman, 2b, Miller; s.s., Weir; 3b, Nisbett; r.f., Mahood; c.f., Sage; l.f., Levine.

Queen Alexandra—c, Kingdon; p, Sturgeon; 1b, Clarke; 2b, Pullybank; s.s, Dorrington; 3b., Outram; l.f., Peryer; r.f., Lee; c.f., Northey.

Game Postponed.

The game which was scheduled between Prince of Wales and King George Public school for last night at Prince of Wales' school grounds was postponed, partly on account of the intense heat of yesterday.

BERLENBACH NOT A GREAT FIGHTER

Slattery Picked to Win the Heavyweight Crown in Three Years.

NEW YORK, June 2—"You're a fine boy and I hope you'll hold it a long time," Mike McTigue said to Paul Berlenbach Saturday night after the judges had transferred the world's light-heavyweight championship to the former Olympic wrestler.

The descent of McTigue from the throne did not cause any national mourning, and the elevation of Berlenbach did not prompt any outbursts of enthusiasm. It is the general opinion that the new champion will not be much better than his predecessor and that it will take more than the good wishes of McTigue to keep him in office.

McTigue remained the champion for a long time by refusing to fight any formidable opponent in a decision fight. Berlenbach can reign as long as McTigue did, or longer, if he follows the same safety-first tactics. But he is a frugal young man and he'll take chances for the money.

Not Great Fighter

Berlenbach is not a great fighter. He knows absolutely nothing about boxing and he can do nothing but hit. He is the hardest puncher in the game, but McTigue wasn't particularly hurt by any blows that landed on him. It was McTigue's age more than anything else that beat him.

Dan Hickey, the veteran handler of Berlenbach, said he was threatened with an attack of diphtheria, and had been able to train only four days for the fight. "If the fight had been staged Friday night (when it rained), I don't believe Paul could have gone more than ten rounds," Hickey said.

Berlenbach has agreed to defend his title against Jack Delaney, the Bridgeport Frenchman, who knocked him out some time ago. Tex Rickard is to stage the bout in the Yankee stadium late in August. Delaney is one of the worst in-and-outers in the game, but smart boxing men feel that he is the particular type of a fighter who can beat Berlenbach every time out.

If he does get over the Delaney threat without losing the title, Berlenbach will find plenty of annoyance in Young Jim Slattery, of Buffalo, the biggest boxing sensation of the last ten years. Veteran boxing writers, who saw Slattery stop Jack Burke in less than two rounds Saturday night, went into raptures over him and predicted that he was a sure shot for the heavyweight championship in three years.

Seldom has such a combination of dazzling speed, clever boxing and terrific punching been seen as Slattery showed. Fighting the way he did, Slattery could have licked Berlenbach, McTigue, Delaney and Marulin one after another in the same ring.

Puzzle Plays in Baseball

The Play.

There are runners on first and second base and one out.

The batsman hits a drive that travels to a remote corner of the playing field. It is a home run, scoring the two men on the bases at the time.

The runner originally on second fails to touch third on his way to the plate. The ball is thrown to that base and he is declared out.

Does the act of the runner who failed to touch third in any way affect the status of the succeeding runners?

The Answer.

The runs scored by the runner originally on first and the batsman ho hitH the home run count.

The failure of the runner on second to touch third in no way affects the status of a succeeding runner who touches each base in its proper order.

Therefore no consideration should be given the claim that the runner on first should be declared out for technically passing a base runner, since he actually touched third base ahead of the player on secMnd when the hit was made.

Section four of rule 52 fully covers this play.

FAIR OFFICIALS MISS FOUNDER OF ASSOCIATION

Dr. G. S. Cameron, Secretary of Peterborough Health Association, Is Ill.

MUCH REGRETTED.

Fifteen Years Ago Dr. Cameron Was First President of the Society.

Officials in charge of the direction of affairs at the Made-In-Peterboro Fair are regretting the enforced absence of the popular secretary of the Peterboro Health Association, Dr. G. S. Cameron, who is confined to this home with an attack of influenza. Dr. Cameron was the founder, some fifteen years ago, of the Peterboro Health Association, and its first president. He has always taken an active and energetic interest in its advancement and feels keenly his inability to take a part in this, the most ambitious and what bids fair to be one of the most successful events ever undertaken in the interests of the organization, whose welfare he has so much at heart.

GUARD AGAINST MOTHS

Sure protection against moth damage is provided by using Parke's mothbane. It mothproofs fabrics and prevents the attacks of the larvae, the eating stage of the moth. Can with sprayer $1.00. Refill cans 50c and $1.00. Bond's Drug Store, corner George and Hunter streets.

bear as a beckoning front figure; Comstock's have a "No Mar" furniture exhibit, in a handsome walnut dining room set, backed by purple and white hangings; Messrs. Barrie's, Limited, have a splendid display of furs, their large overhead sign rimmed by a line of pelts; Adam Hall, Limited, show stoves against a backing of flags; and the Canadian Packing Company tempt the appetite with their very appetizing showing of "ready to eat" meats, in a white show case under a blue roof with red walls.

The Brinton Carpet Company show beautiful rugs in another blue and white section; and the Peterboro Milk Products has chosen a catchy combination of lavender and pale yellow for the display of its cheeses and butter and condensed milk cans. The Colonial Weaving Company use yards of dark blue silk labels as a striking bit of decoration for their orange and white interior, where labels are displayed, and the hand-weaving loom of the Women's Art Association, with samples of homespun, is also on view.

One of the most attractively displayed exhibits is that of the posters and descriptive literature and views, in connection with Y.W.C.A. activities. Cerulean blue signs of 'Y' works on crinkled yellow paper and smiling girl attendants in 'Y' middies make this an attractive section. The Public Schools of Peterboro, just next door, have a booth exhibiting examples of the pupils' proficiency in drawings and pen and ink work; and the Major Bennett Chapter of the I.O.D.E. in charge of their regent, Gladys White, sell popcorn and peanuts in a section done with yellow friled paper adornments.

The popular hues of yellow and white are repeated in one of the prettiest booths of the Fair, that devoted to the sale of ice cream by the Thursday Club, with Mrs. G. S. Cameron as president. Here decorations of real and artificial flowers in profusion, with ever greens, make a very attractive setting for the ice cream cones.

Mr. A. Hagerman is in charge of the section devoted to the display of manual training work by the Peterboro Collegiate Institute classes, in some very cever little models of clowns, wth a red and black bell hop as a central figure.

Under the music stand in the centre of the hall, is the booth in charge of the Catholic Women's League, in yellow and white paper, where homemade cooking and soft drinks are sold. Mrs. E. H. Hickey and Mrs. E. G. Hiland are convenors of this refreshment centre, with the following assistants for the week: Misses Ernestine McManus, Florence Giroux, Geraldine Delaire, Alma Archambault, May Grady, Mamie McCarthy, Kathryn McDonald and Margaret O'Brien.

A gay centre of activity, from which radiated all last evening young ladies in white with yellow caps on their heads, was the raffle booth, decorated with orange and black paper frills. Such things as canoe paddles, fur neckpieces, eversharp pencils, motor and hearth rugs, bags of flour, silk stockings and clocks may be secured at this section, in charge of Mrs. C. G. Graham and Mrs. A. W. Turner.

The Business Girls' Club has an exceptionally bright and colorful booth for the sale of home made candy under the supervision of the president, Miss Aleitha Davidson. The bright gold of artificial California poppies in quantities make distinctive decoration here, with small replicas of the blooms on the baskets of home made candy.

The same bright and effective orange tint that adds so much to the general bright atmosphere of the whole Fair is repeated in the secretive-looking little bags which form the fish pond prizes on the evergreen trees in the next door booth of the King's Daughters, with the president in Mrs. G. S. Cameron.

The 57th Regimental Chapter of the I.O.D.E. has the sale of flowers, with girls in gypsy costumes circulating through the crowd with their baskets of fragrant wares. Orange decorations and orange artificial flower fringes make a background for the roses in tall vases. Mrs. J. S. Fanning is convenor of this booth, with an assisting committee in Mrs. B. H. Poole and the Misses Rubidge and Collins.

The Peterborough Health Association has a double section, showing X-ray views of deformities which it aims to correct in young children and slides of the Jackson Park Camp, also descriptive literature. Mrs. H. H. Cameron is general convenor, and was last night assisted by nurses of the Peterborough Chapter of the Graduate Nurses Association, garbed in their white uniforms. These nurses will assist also on other nights of the week, with the exception of Tuesday evening, when members of the Nicholls Hospital staff will assist, and Thursday evening, with nurses from St. Joseph's Hospital helping. Artificial yellow flowers, with big baskets of white paper, topped by yellow pompons, with yellow handles, decorate this corner.

Flanking the left of the main entrance is the green and white paper wall booth of Mr. J. Brownlee, showing samples of his skill in reed work, and near by is the tiny stand of the Sanitary Ice Supply Company, with fringes of crystal-sprinkled elderdown to simulate real polar conditions.

At the right of the entrance, in the big room, has been contrived one of the most effective bits of the entire Fair. This is the Cafe Chantant, done in original Egyptian effect, wth a rich and luxurious interior where a musical programme goes on through the evening, and where one may partake of fruit punch or coffee and doughnuts. Handsome rugs and furniture and soft-shaded piano lamps make a cosy setting. There is a canopy ceiling formed of double rows of red and gold paper, with some very effective Egyptian lanterns in black and red and gold. Lighted lanterns of the same style with long silk tassels are in the simulated windows. Altogether, this very effectively arranged retreat makes a delightful and out of the ordinary attraction. Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, senior, Mrs. A. H. Stratton and Mrs. R. R. Hall have charge of the Cafe Chantant, with Mrs. Gerald McClelland supervisor of the musical programme. Last evening, enjoyable selections were played by the Peterborough Juvenile Orchestra, there was a piano duet by the Misses Alma Blanchard and Musa Cox, and a vocal solo by Leslie Dyer, with accompaniment by Miss Marjorie Turner.

Stepping out of this room, one confronts the corner section of the Duffus Motor Sales, done in dark blue and yellow paper fringes, and showing automobile tires and accessories. Nearby is the black-bordered booth of the Peterborough Lock Company, displaying locks and door handles, and the yellow and red checked patterns of the interior of the Canadan Nashua Paper Company's booth, with fruits and candies wrapped up in the company's wares.

The Otonabee Mills, Limited, have their name picked out in blue yarns with white labels, and a border of blue and yellow yarn balls; and the Canadian Woollens have a double section, showing the cloth products of the Auburn Mills and the brightly colored yarns of the McDonnel street factory, all under an effective dark blue and white

Another double section is that of the Richard Hall Company, a portion of it devoted to demonstrations of embroideries and their accessories, the other showing a rich dining-room suite in walnut. In this section, a rug, several piano lamps and chintz hangings carry out the interior effect in striking style.

In a red, white and blue setting, the Western Clock Company shows their products, with bright-faced Big Bens and little clocks as attractive exhibits. Their neighbor is the double section of the J. J. Turner & Sons Company, with a khaki top to its counter and fringes of flags. Bunting in wonderful colorings and life preservers and flags may be seen here.

The Peterboro Examiner has a delicate setting for a very business-like machine, an envelope press, turning out last evening sixty envelopes to the minute. A dainty effect in lavender and white, with a profusion of lilac and apple blossom floral decorations, surrounds the big automatic press.

The Canadian Raybestos Company have an exhibit of brake linings and their interior constructive bits in a red and white designed interior, with the motto, "Say it with brakes and save the flowers"; the Maple Leaf Milling Company's blue and white booth shows Monarch flours and a table tastily set with an appetizing looking array of goodies made from them; the William Hamilton Company's section is another example of the effective way in which such things as lath mills and sand pumps may be displayed to advantage, with a green and white latticed interior, and Parker's Dye Works use dyed draperies as a very effective bit of frontal decoration for their section, done in orange and black fringed papers.

The Post Office educational section, draped with flags, is in charge of Mr. C. Stewart, and shows various slides descriptive of post-office routine work and a miniature red mail-box.

The Stock Bread Company's booth is backed by a circle of lighted electric lamps, and fringed with wreaths and tiny elephants done in bread. Breads and biscuits are on view here. Next door is the J. M. Green Music Company's section, with a display of band instruments, radio sets and phonographs, against a blue and white background, with pale blue walls.

Mr. Frank H. Dawson shows special egg mashes and feeds and flours in a dark blue and red enclosure, and next door the Miller-Powell Company have electric washers and fireless cookers, surrounded by yellow and lavender papers. Mr. E. V. Warne counters the general decorative effect with a contrast in plain pale yellow walls, that make an effective background for his display of Heintzman pianos and phonographs, and Curtis Brothers show what can be done with bricks in a very attractive little interior, showing a lighted brick fireplace, with a couple of Windsor chairs, bricked walls in various pale colors and ferns at the entrance. Messrs. Huffman & Sons have woodwork samples in a mauve and white enclosure; the A. McDonald Lumber Company show doors and sashes, with a decoration of black and maroon fluted paper. Next door to them is the extremely interesting and beautifully-arranged Y.M.C.A. section. A central huge bright red 'Y' letter is the heart of red streamers and red and white fancies decorate the walls, where Y literature is displayed.

The final booth in the list, but not at all the least, is the lovely pale green section devoted to the Peterboro Floral Company's wares, with pretty lights, a canary in a gilded cage, and many sorts of flowers and ferns.

In the upper band room in the western gallery the Peter Robinson Chapter conducts a dance, with a committee in charge; Miss C. Patterson, convenor. Mrs. F. C. Webber, Mrs. N. Birks, Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. J. McNab, Mrs. J. K. Hughes; and in the Recreation room at the other side of the gallery a very enjoyable concert, much appreciated by those who attended, went on last evening. The Catholic Women's League, with Mrs. F. Hodgson and Mrs. H. Owen in charge, supervised the programme last evening. To Mrs. Hodgson belongs much of the credit for the entertainment, for which she acted as musical accompanist throughout.

The programme, which will be repeated this evening and to-morrow evening, includes a song and dance in old-fashioned costume by Miss Jessie Hodgson and Jack Roach, singing "The Sweet Long Ago" in tuneful fashion; a comic song, with action, "When a Servant Learns a Secret," in which Mrs. J. Dwyer, Miss Minnie Allen, and Messrs. Brady, Grey and Guerin tal part; a string trio, composed of Messrs. G. H. Clark, banjo, Gerhard Loescher, guitar and Frank Clarke, banjo, which played "The Bells of St. Mary's," "Down Dixie Way," and also provided the accompaniment for a unique number in an old-time cake walk, done in blackface and appropriate costume by Miss Jesie Hodgson and Norman Laing, in a manner that brought down the house. Enthusiastic applause greeted every number on a fine programme.

The piano in this room has been kindly loaned by the Peterboro Rangers, its owners, for the musical performances of the week.

An attraction that proved quite a drawing card last evening on the lower floor, in one of the side alcoves, was the fortune telling booth maintained by by the Ashburnham Womens' Patriotic League. This was was a mysterious interior, with Roman stripe hangings, shaded lamps and a real witch's cauldron at the entrance. The ladies, gypsy costumes, with bangles and red kerchiefs, were mesdames R. H. Parsons, H. Dodds, T. Glover, C. Perry, F. Sedgewick, F. Rathbone, Mrs. Gringras, and Miss Forester Parsons. Mrs. W. E. Laing will also tell fortunes by the tea cups in this section.

During the evening, members of the Symphony Orchestra, led by Professor R. Gliddon, played several much-enjoyed selections, with a well applauded cornet selection, "Love's Old Sweet Song," given by Mr. J. Minicolo.

Three bands of the city which paraded to the armouries last evening, playing for the opening were the band of the Peterborough Rangers, the Melody Concert Band, and the Caledonian Pipe Band. In suits of Scotch tartan, with swinging kilts, and flying cap ribbons, the Scotch pipers enlivened the evening at the Fair, by marching about the big hall, blowing their skirling pipes, little Joe Leith at the head.

An added attraction to the programme will be the serving of supper for the remaining days of the week by the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., and the bridge parties in the afternoons, supervised by various ladies' organizations of the city.

Mayor Turner, accompanied by the president of the Health Association, Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, and the chairman of the Made-in-Peterboro Fair, Mr. George A. Macdonald, officially opened the big Fair last evening. He said:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I am delighted to see the community interest manifested by the extensive exhibits contained in this building as well as the interest shown by the public in the purchase of tickets, as indicated by the competition and rivalry existing between the number of young ladies who undertook to make the Made-in-Peterborough Fair a success by selling strips of tickets to the public.

The Health Association, of which you are the President, and those associated with you, are to be commended for the work they are doing among the children of the city in endeavoring to build up their bodies physically, that they may grow into robust men and women. On looking over the daily press one notices the frequent reference to the youth of the present day being the men and women of to-morrow; who will have control of affairs in the political, commercial and indusrial activities of the country. Surely any work undertaken in the community for the development of body and mind is to be commended, and I am glad such keen interest has been manifested:

First—This building full of exhibits.

Second—By the large number of tickets sold, which means a large attendance of visitors.

The manufacturers of the city have shown a conservatism in the past, not exhibiting extensively the manufacture for which we have a proud and honored name. I am glad, however, we have aroused a civic consciousness which has resulted in this splendid exhibition.

If it were possible for manufacturers to invite all their out of town customers to take in this exhibition during the week, Peterborough would receive an impetus of advertising for very small expense.

I congratulate the Health Association on the work they are doing, on the vision shown in putting together the thought which made this exhibition possible.

I congratulate the ladies who have charge of the sale of the tickets and the manufacturers who accepted invitations to exhibit.

I have no doubt the Made-in-Peterborough Exhibition in the year 1925 will be an unqualified success.

I have great pleasure in declaring the Exhibition open. To the public I commend it, asking for support, knowing full well the money obtained will be spent in the best interests of the younger citizens of Peterborough.

WILD SCENES ON ELECTION NIGHT

Last Day of Saskatchewan Campaign Featured By Near Riots.

MEETING RAIDED.

SASKATOON, Sask., June 2—The Saskatchewan election campaign closed amid scenes of wild excitement here last night when Dr. J. T. M. Anderson and George A. Cruise, Conservative candidates, attempted to gain entry to a Liberal mass meeting which was being addressed by Hon. A. P. McNab and Gilbert H. Yule, Liberal candidate. They were followed by a crowd of their supporters and when they were refused the platform pandemonium broke loose. A few of the more excited Tory admirers were forcibly ejected, with chairs "draped about" their necks. Dr. Anderson and Mr. Cruise retired to the street where, although it was raining hard and the mud was ankle deep, they held a rally followed by a parade through the streets.

THUNDERY OLD WORLD.

LONDON, June 2.— Every day there are 44,000 thunder storms in the world," says C. E. P. Brooks, British scientist, in a new book.

Lightning flashes average 100 a second. He estimates the number of thunder storms in a year at 16,000,000.

Java, he says, is probably the most thundery region of the earth, while thunder is rarely heard in the arctic regions.

AT THE CAPITOL

GLORIA SWANSON IN "MADAME SANS GENE."

The gorgeous Gloria is at the Capitol Theatre today and tomorrow in "Madame Sans Gene." (Freely translated, this might be said to mean, "the lady who didn't give a darn.") Anyone who has enjoyed Gloria, who recently returned from France with a bran new title, as the Marquise de la Falaise de la Coudray, as the vamp type, with sticking-plaster clothes and splendid hair-do, will like her just as well in "Madame Sans Gene," in which she proves conclusively that she has brains as well as appearance.

As the vivandiere of the victorious French army, as the pal of Napoleon in his submerged era as well as in his palmy days, Catherine Hubscher, the washerwoman of Paris who afterwards became the Duchess of Dantzig, maintains throughout the role of a breezy companion to men, rather than the pose of a conquering beauty. Gloria understands her role and she never departs from it. She is splendid as the devil-may-care madcap.

Madame Sans Gene is one of those interesting historical productions that make a very satisfying evening's entertainment. It has action and life, romance and a dramatic theme, and it includes in its characterizations that most striking of history's men, Napoleon Bonaparte.

In a setting of Parisian scenes that runs the gamut from the attic room where Napoleon bargained with his wash-lady for another day's grace in payment of his bill to the dazzling court where he held sway as Emperor, Madame Sans Gene plays the part of a minor actor in his life drama. She was the buxom laundress who helped the little Corporal in his dark moments. We see her bewitching the tall Lefebvre, who later became the Marshal of the French armies, then Duke of Dantzig. They marry, and the girl goes with her husband into the trenches. Later, at court, brought into competition with fine ladies who dislike her, she has a terrible time with court costumes and tantalizing tongues. We see her again tossing off a shoe that pinches, at a court ball, pursuing a servant and recapturing from him, with rough force, a valuable ring, and making a companion of her old washwoman companion, La Rousotte. There is a fine bit of characterization in the scene where the Emperor's sisters, the Queen of Naples and the Princess Bacchiochhi, taunt the newly-made Duchess at her first reception, and rouse her furious temper to royal rage. Summoned later by the Emperor, to answer complaints about her conduct, the skilful lady finds herself enmeshed in the intrigue between the Empress and the Count von Neipperg, which is brought in, with a light touch, to round out the story. The intrigues and plots of the court have no terrors, however, for the quick brain and the agile tongue of the erstwhile washerwoman, and she uses the old unpaid laundrybill of the Corporal Napoleon to force agreement with her plans.

It is an interesting picture, beautifully screened, with the vivid figure of Gloria Swanson as its central theme. She makes the men and women of the troublous days of 1794 live again on the screen, and the audience sympathizes with her in her efforts to wheedle Napoleon and prevent him from divorcing her from her beloved husband. The picture gives an opportunity of seeing this actress in a new role and one that she fills to perfection. —Jeannette.

AT THE GRAND.

"OH, YES!" TOPS THEM ALL

Someone should write a new song for Captain Plunkett, a sort of parody on "Yes, We Have No Bananas!" and call it "Oh, Yes!—We Have a Great Show." His latest Dumbells' revue, entitled, "Oh, Yes!" seems to have everything that makes for success. They say its' even better than "Ace High" and what more commendation could any producer ask?

As the show moves eastward toward the rising sun we gather from the western papers these pertinent facts:

"'Oh, Yes!' is the best revue Captain Plunkett has staged in Canada."

"'Oh Yes!' is the animate reincarnation of the spirit of Spring-time."

"'Oh, Yes!' is entirely new from the overture to the finale."

The outstanding hits appear to be Al Plunkett's song, "The Worst Looking Men Get the Best Looking Girls" and "My Mothers' Lullaby"; Ross Hamilton's "I Love Them All' "Lips I Have Kissed" and "Sunrise and You"; "Red" Newman's "Let's Keep the Money in the Country" and "How does the Milk get into Cocoanuts?" Stan Bennet's "Colonel Lipstick of the Coldcream Guards" and "Never as Long as I Live"; Pat Rafferty's "Lips that Touch Kippers shall Never touch Mine"; Jock Holland's "Where are The Girls of the Old Brigade?" and Glen Allan's dancing.

Captain Plunkett and his orchestra are playing a bit of all composers from Irving Berlin to Verdi, and stopping the show for more at every performance.

The three or four comedy sketches seem to have caught on like wildfire.

The Dumbells are headed this way now, and will offer "Oh, Yes!" at the Grand Theatre for two nights, commencing Monday, June 8th.

DARING, BUT DEFTLY DONE IS "WIFE OF THE CENTAUR."

King Vidor Production Fine Version of Cyril Hume's Novel.

A daring subject, delicately and deftly handled, is "Wife of the Centaur," King Vidor's production which opened last night at the Regent Theatre for an engagement of 3 days.

Cyril Hume's novel of the same name created something of a sensation when it was published a season or two ago, and Vidor's picture is likely to start another.

The story voices the theory that man is made up of two natures, which are always at war within him, and to illustrate it, the character of Jeffrey Dwyer is made the central one of the story.

Torn By Self Conflict.

A poet and writer, and a tremendously handsome and attractive person, Jeffrey is forever being torn by the conflict of his idealistic half with the sensual side of his nature.

He falls in love with a sweet, innocent girl and holds for her a highly idealistic love, but forgets her temporarily when he meets a more sophisticated, and materially alluring woman.

Jeffrey's struggle over his animal emotions, and his final conquering of them, is the basic plot in the picture. His character is likened to that of the fabled centaur, half man and half beast.

John Gilbert Plays Centaur.

John Gilbert gives a striking performance in the role of Jeffrey Dwyer, and adds many new laurels to the collection he began with his work in Elinor Glyn's "His Hour."

Eleanor Boardman's work as the "centaur's" wife is most convincing, and Aileen Pringle provides excellent contrast as the more sophisticated woman who almost wins Jeffrey from his wife.

The supporting cast includes William Haines, Kate Lester, Philo McCullough, Betty Francisco, Jacqueline Gadsdon, Kate Price and others.

"Wife of the Centaur" is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, adapted to the screen by Douglas Doty.

AT THE ROYAL

"MANHATTAN," DIX'S FIRST STAR FILM, A KNOCKOUT

"Not a star in name only."

That's the impression one comes away with after seeing Richard Dix's first Paramount starring vehicle, "Manhattan," which was shown for the first time in Peterboro at the Royal Theatre last night.

The story is an adaptation by Paul Sloane and Frank Tuttle of Jeffery Farnol's novel, "The Definite Object," R. H. Burnside directed the picture, his first screen work.

"Manhattan" telis of a well-to-do young bachelor who suffers strangely from a malady which, to put it mildly, is almost driving him batty—inactivity. Peter Minuit, that's the star's role in the production, wants to be up and doing. And then one night adventure comes stalking in through his library window and the lid is off and genuine excitement and thrills are the order of the evening.

"Manhattan" is advertised as Dix's first star picture. If it's any example of whats' coming after, we say, hustle 'em along!

Jacqueline Logan is leading woman opposite the star. Gregory Kelly, prominent on the legitimate stage, George Seigmann and Gunboat Smith heads the strong supporting cast.

The "FILM of PROTECTION" means— more power when you need it most

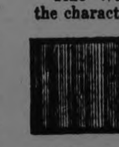
IN the swirl of city traffic or on the open road there comes that critical moment when you must have more power—in a hurry. Do you get it or not? The answer often depends upon the oil you use.

The power that drives your car is the tremendous force of the explosion in the combustion chamber thrusting down on the piston-head. But between the piston and piston rings and the cylinder walls there is a minute space. This space must be sealed by a film of oil so that unused power cannot blow past the piston and waste itself.

And the oil must hold that piston-seal in spite of the thrust of the explosion, in spite of the constant menace of friction—in spite of the lash of scorching heat. Ordinary oil quits under this punishment. The film burns and curls up. The piston-seal is broken. Power is wasted.

Tide Water engineers spent years studying the characteristics of oils and oil films. Finally they obtained, in Veedol, an oil which offers the utmost resistance to deadly heat and friction, an oil which forms a "film of protection," thin as tissue, smooth as silk, tough as steel. Put the "film of protection" on the job safeguarding your motor and conserving its power.



Wherever the orange and black Veedol sign is displayed, you will find The Veedol Motor Protection Guide. This is a chart that tells which Veedol oil your car requires. Have your crankcase drained and refilled with Veedol to-day.

NEW POLICEMAN IS ON THE JOB

Officer Arrived From Napanee and Started Work Monday Night.

Campbellford, June 2.
Albert V. Light, of the Napanee district, who was appointed night policeman by the council some time ago, arrived in town yesterday and was on duty for the first time last night. Chief Brown remained with him during the night to instruct him in his new duties.

Constable Light has had over 12 years' experience in police and military duty in England, and comes to Campbellford well recommended as a fearless and efficient officer. He is married and has one young son.

Improving the Streets.
About four miles of streets have been put in excellent shape by the new road roller and scarifier, which outfit is followed up by the grader. About three miles of this stretch were completed within the last four days. Auto owners note and appreciate the improvement.

Engineer Atkinson, who had charge of the outfit, secured another position and quit the service of the town Saturday night. His place has been taken by R. Haig of Seymour East, a competent engineer, who for some years has held the position of government boiler inspector in this district. The work of improving Front Street will begin in a few days.

Bidgood Case Settled.
The suit of Sydney Bidgood against thhe town, started in Division Court a short time ago, has been settled. Mr. Bidgood claimed $40 for lumber which he said town workmen on sewers took from his premises and failed to return. He agreed to accept $20 in settlement.

Prices for Live Stock.
Hogs shipped from here yesterday brought 12 cents, and calves were sold for from 5 to 8 cents, according to quality. The business done by the dealers in this district is still brisk.

New Freight Engines.
Two new freight engineers, the largest in use on the C.N.R. system are now working on the local line, moving the wheat from Midland to Montreal. These engines each haul a train of 42 cars, as against 30, the maximum load for the locomotives they have displaced.

The proopsed uprisig is said to be work of oSviet emissaries.

STUNT RIDER KILLED.

Robert Swayne Was Killed in Leap Through Air in Automobile.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., June 2 (Canadian Press)—Robert Swayne, 26, of North Bay, Ontario, was instantly killed here yesterday when performing a stunt involving a leap through the air in an automobile.

Around The City.

He was a little boy, with a freckled face and a "Whistle" sign on his skujee cap. He hurried along the hot street, gaze lovingly fixed on three ice cream cones held in two grubby little paws. Unmindful of passers-by, he conveyed his prize to a waiting party. As he went he licked the tops of the three cones in careful fashion that left a symmetrical top on each.

TICKET CONTEST GREAT SUCCESS

Great Deal of Hard Work Done By Girls and Committee.

MISS NOONAN WON.

The ticket selling contest which has caused so much excitement came to a close at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon with a gloriously successful ending. The results far exceeded the most sanguine expectations, and a great deal of credit is due a number of people. The one who should come first is Mr. W. H. Dickin, who was the originator of the idea, and chairman of the committee that had the contest in charge. His knowledge combined with his untiring efforts of the past two weeks, has been chiefly responsible for the immense success of the undertaking. The office of the Prudential Insurance Company, which the manager, Mr. Allen, kindly placed at the disposal of the committee for their use as headquarters, has been a busy place for the past two weeks. Miss Elsie Taylor, of Mr. Allen's staff, has had charge of the office work and accounting for the contest, and is entitled to much credit for the way in which she has handled the giving out and receiving the tickets, having charge of the money, and keeping everything straight so that when the accounts were turned over yesterday afternoon there was not the slightest discrepancy in either votes or coupons. With such a large number of contestants in the field, making an equally large number of separate accounts all fluctuating each day, it was a remarkable performance. Those who made up the committee and gave their time and energy to the work in hand, each striving for its success, must know that their efforts are appreciated. But all this is behind the firing line, out in the front, where the actual fighting took place, were the young ladies who volunteered for the contest and who knew that but few of their number could really win a prize, but nevertheless devoted all of their spare time to the work, dropping all pleasure and recreation and enthusiastically putting their shoulders to the wheel with the knowledge that their enthusiasm and energy were being devoted to a most worthy cause and whether they won a prize or not, they were glad to give their efforts to further the work of the Peterboro Health Association. To them really belongs the credit, for without them the contest could not have been carried forward to its wonderful success.

Miss Rose Noonan wins the grand prize with 390,000 votes to her credit. Miss Arleigh McKone wins the second prize with 342,000, and Miss Margery Evans is the winner of the third prize with 277,000. These three young ladies are to be congratulated for the high score which they rolled up far in excess of what was ever supposed possible. It can be realized what has been accomplished when the fact is known that considerably more than twice the number of admissions were sold to the Fair before the doors were ever thrown open than was ever sold during the best year of the automobile shows. There are over 14,000 tickets of admission now in the hands of the public and more will of course be sold at the door. In two short weeks this campaign was carried forward to a whirlwind success.

1st—Cash prize, $100.00, won by Miss Rose Noonan. She also 6 months' business course, valued at $96.00, donated by Peterboro Business College.

2nd—Cash prize, $50.00, won by Arleigh McKone. She also 3 months' business course, valued at $48.00, donated by Peterboro Business College.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Many Fluctuations On New York Market To-day

NEW YORK, June 2 (Canadian Press).—The removal of selling pressure against United States Steel common and Baldwin, which sank to 114 and 115 1-2 respectively encouraged bear traders in Wall Street to hammer other stocks despite another outburst of buying in Maxwell Motor issues, which sent both the B stock and B certificates up 6 1-2 points to a new high record at 116 1-2 before mid-day. Bullish operations also were vigorously conducted in a number of public utilities; International Telephones leading the advance in that group by attaining a new peak price at 118. Declaration of the only regular dividend on Mack Trucks brought about increased offerings of other motors, that stock, Jordan and Pierce Arrow prior preferred falling back sharply.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent. Nash, however, attained a new record price at 436.

Corn Led Sudden Drop In Grain Prices To-day

CHICAGO, June 2. — Corn led the in the general early swing downward to-day of grain values. Widespread rains gave relief from the drought caused a selling movement that was especially effective against December delivery of corn, a delivery that was recently made conspicuous by a sensational advance on account of crop damage fears.

Before to-day's decline could be checked December corn prices suffered an extreme break of 5½c a bush. Corn, opening prices unchanged to 3-4c lower; Sept 115 3-4 to 115 7-8, and December 97 3-4 to 98¼ were followed by a slide down that carried September to 113 and December to 93. Wheat and oats gave way with corn, despite month end reports from exports showing heavy crop deterioration during May. After opening at 1-8 to 7-8c off July 160 to 160 1-2 and September 157 to 157 3-8, wheat scored moderate gains but then sharply declined; July touching 157¼ and September 155½.

Oats started at 1-8c off to 1-4c up, September 484 to 48 3-8.

Later upturns were followed by a material set back all around. Higher quotations on hogs gave firmness to the provision market.

Few Active Stocks On Toronto Mining Exchange

TORONTO, June 2. — Trading was very slow on the standard mining exchange this morning and only a few stocks were active. Columbus Kirkland with 5500 shares traded in open at 4 closing a ½ higher.

Gold Reef headed the list of shares in point of activity with 23,000 with 2½ points higher than yesterday's close. Kenora advanced a quarter to 10¼ and Kirkland opening at 39½ rose 1-4. Teck Hughes opened at 133, advancing 2 points, the widest spread on the exchange. Total sales 89,870.

BALLOON RACE STARTS SUNDAY

Two British Women Have Entered Balloons For Gordon Bennett Cup.

NEW TROPHY.

LONDON, June 2. — Two women have entered balloons for this year's Gordon Bennett cup race, which starts from Brussels next Sunday.

Mrs. John Dunville's Banshee III will be piloted by Lieut. Colonel Dunville, and Mrs. Arthur Spencer's Miramar has Captain C. W. Spencer as pilot. Both are British entries.

Probably two balloons representing the United States, Britain, Belgium, Spain and France, will start.

Belgium, which won permanent possession of the former trophy, has put up a new cup.

OBITUARY.

MRS. CATHERINE DOLAN.

The death occurred yesterday of Mrs. Catherine Dolan, in St. Joseph's Hospital. She is survived by her husband, two sons, William of Peterborough and Patrick of British Columbia and one daughter, Mrs. H. MacDonald, of Buffalo. The remains were taken to Kinmount on the 8.20 C.N.R. train this morning.

ELIZABETH KATHLEEN HATLEY.

There died very suddenly this morning at her home, 140 Park St., Elizabeth Kathleen, eighteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Hatley. Miss Hatley's death has proved a great shock to her many friends in this city, where she has lived all her life. The deceased was a devoted member of All Saints' Church, taking an active interest in church work and was beloved by all with whom she came in contact. There are left to mourn her loss: her father and mother, one brother, Tom, and four sisters ,Lillian, Firence, Alice and Rheta, all at home.

The funeral will be held June 5th to All Saints' church, and the Little Lake cemetery at 2 p.m., Rev. J. D. Paterson officiating.

IMMENSE MASS OF LEGISLATION

Report to Manufacturers' Association Tells of Laws Passed.

OTHER REPORTS.

HAMILTON, June 2 (Canadian Press).—At the second business session of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association Convention this morning, the members were given a review of the immense mass of legislation affecting industry which has been passing through the leislatures of the cougntry during the past year. While still of enormous volume, it was indicaed that the apparent mania for legislative enactment following the war is showing some signs of abating. Following the present volume of the commercial intelligence committee and the report which was taken up mainly with an outline of Canada's program in export trade, two interesting glimpses of conditions in Europe were given by Colonel Hercule Barre, Canadian trade commissioner to France, and A. T. Wilgress, Canadian trade commissioner to Germany.

The session was concluded with the presentation of the transportation committee's report, the chief feature of which was the revelation given of the chaotic condition of the freight rate structure at the present time.

The Presbyterian Church Assembly

By R. E. KNOWLES

(SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER)

"With malice towards none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us seek to finish the work we have begun."

TORONTO, June 3. — On every train they come and from every point. From Victoria to Sydney delegates are arriving to attend the last General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the first meeting of which is to be held tonight. There have been many memorable assemblies since the day, just fifty years ago, when the union of the Canada Presbyterian Church and the "Old Kirk" of Canada formed the great national church, whose termination under its accustomed form and by its familiar name has come at last after more than twenty years of constant conference, debate, concession and struggle. Most of the early leaders who helped to launch the first movement have now passed from their labors. The youthful recruits who wonderingly watched the beginning of the great conflict are now regarded almost as the older men of the church, who at last see the great enterprise crowned with victory, if not with the measure of complete success which has been their dream and inspiration through the long embattled years.

Something akin to a trembling hush seems to pervade the ecclesiastical atmosphere to-day. The moment is pregnant with significance and portent. Nothing of this kind has been before attempted, much less achieved, in the history of the Christian Church. Dismembered families of the universal church have, it is true, been re-united and recalled to the still unforgotten fireside, each bearing the common parental name. But never before have districts and different denominations each with a separate raison d'etre, actual or inherited, made the sacrifice of what they hold thrice dear, prepared to forego the denominational luxury which appeals to all, deliberately removed their aloof and separate existence, their distinguishing name and polity, in order to banish what they deem the sham of sectarian waste and strife, to prove the sovereignty of the greater by the surrender of the lesser, thus to lead the world in a practical movement toward the visibility of the Christian brotherhood of man.

This will be a great assembly. The temper of the leaders is fine and forbearing. Anti-Unionists will be there in substantial numbers, and they too will, it seems almost certain, seek in no way to mar the solemnity of this parting hour with needless division and contention. I confidentially predict that this assembly will remind us all of the great Lincoln's great appeal: "With malice towards none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us seek to finish the work we have begun."

An Interview.

The only Presbyterian I can find who does not think that Dr. Geo. C. Pidgeon will be the next, and the last moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, is the minister of Bloor Street Presbyterian Church, Toronto.

Of this, he will not talk—but of the prospects of the Union now at the door he will talk incessantly. And he talks not only with voice, but with a radiant face and a general thrill of evidently very sincere elation and ardent expectation.

"How does it look" I enquired, "now that's nearly over?"

"Now, that it's just beginning," the Doctor amended. "It looks glorious. The note of optimism is everywhere, and why not? The figures are, approximately 1,735 pro as against 665 anti. Only 25 per cent. of the congregations have voted out. But figures are comparatively negligible in casting up the account of the Church of God," the impending moderator went on almost passionately. "It is the spirit that counts—the great spritual meaning of this whole movement is growing on us daily. Our minority groups, homeless and dispossessed of temples into which they have put the soul savings of a lifetime are grand in their bearing, no groaning or complaining—but working, praying, giving. We can have no adequate idea of what this will mean in the life of the new church.

"It's power of gravitation, like its momentum, will be tremendous. The forward looking of this land, in generations yet to be, will be with us. It goes forward in the conscious rectitude, so far as the Presbyterian section is concerned, of constitutional procedure and of loyalty to Presbyterian procedure and Presbyterian principles."

Splendid Adventure.

"What one thing, as convenor, rejoices you most, Dr. Pidgeon"

"The new note of spiritual urgency. Believe me—and I am not free to enlarge on this—this feature will take form in policy and action in the near future. Among our exiled people especially there is a note of joyousness like we were going into a splendid adventure."

"How about the missionary enthusiasm?"

"Splendid. Practically the whole staff strength of the three churches is solid for Union. We have missions on every continent of the globe. There will—mark this—be no retrenchment; not a missionary will be withdrawn. And this is even more startlingly true of home missions. So many little charges, on our Western frontier, although beleaguered and urged to yield, have held out heroically: 'We can't live,' they say, 'other than in Union.' A good old Scot, here from the Prairie for the Assembly, telephoned today to Wright, my assistant to thank him for the good home provided for him here. "There isn't a church worth considering,' he volunteered, 'West of the Great Lakes, that is not going into Union'."

"Now for a last vow, Doctor, before the Assembly and Moderatorship"

"Forget about that moderator stuff," retorted the usually urbane convenor, evidently peeved for the first time in his placid life. "But as to the Assembly—there is just one heart—and it's glad and thankful and hopeful and reverently curious. We have no more adequate idea of what lies before this great and unprecedented move than had Columbus when he first surveyed the dim and suggestive shores of the new continent that lay behind," —with which eloquent paragraph the nevertheless near-moderator turned to his crowded desk and his crowded life.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Dance Floor, Tea Rooms, Card Tables and Music Good.

There was a bumper crowd, estimated at over two thousand, at the Armories last evening. The fine warm night attracted the citizens, who turned out to view the Made-in-Peterboro Fair and the various exhibits on view. Every booth seemed to have its own coterie of interested observers, and the amusement centers and refreshment booths did a rushing business from early in the evening until late at night. The dance hall, where excellent music is provided nightly by Bell's three-piece orchestra, was crowded until a late hour. In the stage room, the excellent concert given by the Catholic Womens' League was repeated once more last evening to an appreciative audience. This includes a fancy dress old-time dance by Miss Jessie Hodgson and Mr. Jack Roach; a comic song by Mrs. J. Dwyer, Miss Minnie Allen, and Messrs. Brady, Grey and Guerin; a string trio composed of Messrs. G. H. Cark, G. Loescher and Frank Clarke, and a cake walk by Miss Hodgson and Norman Laing. An added number last evening was an instrumental solo by Mrs. Hodgson. This musical programme will be re-

ALL PRODUCERS OF ASBESTOS IN A NEW COMPANY

Canadian Companies Have Been Merged in $50,000,000 Corporation.

STOP COMPETITION.

W. G. Ross is President and Company Will Be Run By Committee.

NEW YORK, June 3. — Canadian Press. — Negotiations have been virtually completed for the merger of all the Canadian Asbestos Companies, controlling 85 per cent. of the world's output of asbestos and involving an invested capital that approaches $50,000,000. A formal and detailed announcement of the terms will be made in a few days.

The merger represents the culmination of 12 months' efforts to place the asbestos industry on an entirely new footing with the elimination of competition that has deprived the asbestos companies of their profits.

The president of the new organization will probably be W. G. Ross, who is now head of the Asbestos Corporation of Canada, the largest of the eight producers involved in the merger.

The capitalization of the new company will embrace $5,200,000 in bonds which it is thought will be placed privately; $5,000,000 in first preferred 7 per cent. cumulative stock; $4,700,000 in non-cumulative second preferred 6 per cent. stock, and 200,000 shares of no par value non-preferred stock.

For five years the control of the company will reside with three men ,two being Canadian business men of wide standing and a third being the representative of the bankers who have organized the merger.

After five years the control will pass into the hands of the stock holders, all classes of stock having voting power.

Two Killed, Score Injured In Big Electrical Storm

SCHOOL DENTAL OFFICER SHOWS TEETH SOUNDER

Dr. J. C. Green Presents Report Comparing Results of Work in Two Years.

HOLIDAYS JUNE 26.

Public School Average Attendance 2,795 and 518 at Collegiate.

The date to which all the school children have been anxiously looking forward was set at last night's meeting of the Board of Education as June 26th. This date was adopted on the recommendation of Mr. Mowat, who called attention to the fact that June 29th, the usual closing date, is a Monday.

The students of the Collegiate Institute who are not writing on the departmental examinations, are more fortunate as they are released June 19, as the examinations will take place in the week of June 22. The entrance examinations will start on June 29.

A recommendation from Miss Moffatt that five sewing machines be purchased for the public schools and two for the Collegiate for use in the domestic science classes, was referred to the Property Committee.

Dental Statistics.

A statement was read from Dr. J. C. Green, school dental officer, offering comparative figures to show the benefit of dental work in the schools. The figures were compiled from the examinations in the Central school in 1923 and 1925.

In the former year there were 489 pupils examined, and in 1925 there were 484. In 1923 he discovered 1079 cavities in the permanent teeth while in 1925 the number had dropped to 299. Only 51 pupils were passed as having teeth O.K. in 1923, while 131 were passed in 1925. The percentage of pupils needing attention has dropped from 89.57 in 1923 to 68.8 in 1925, while the average number of cavities in the permanent teeth per pupil is now 1.6 instead of 2.2 as it was in 1923.

The Committee on Appointments was given authority to fill any vacancies which might occur on the staff. The committee reported that Miss Marks the Beginning of Last Gathering of Church as a Unit.

ARRANGE UNION.

Civic Welcome From Toronto to Commissioners to be Given To-morrow.

TORONTO, June 3. Canadian Press. — The fifty first general assembly of the Presbyterian churches in Canada wil be constituted in the College street church here at eight o'clock this evening, with about 600 commissioners present from all parts of the Dominion.

The assembly marks the close of the existence of the church in the form in which it has been known for a half century, and will see the completion of arrangements for entering upon organic union with the Methodist and Congregational denominations as the United Church of Canada.

While largely formal to-night's session will be of much interest. The retiring Moderator, Rev. Dr. Clarence Mackinnon, of Halifax, will address the commissioners briefly at the opening devotional exercises and the new Moderator will be chosen. It is expected that Rev. Dr. G. C. Pidgeon of Toronto will be unanimously chosen.

The business committee will present its recommendations for the arrangement of the assembly's work, and various other committees will be appointed to handle details of the programme.

A civic welcome from the City of Toronto will be tendered the Commissioners to-morrow morning.

Alleged Plot To Kidnap Mary Pickford, Frame Up, Defense Lawyers Assert

LOS ANGELES, June 3. — District Attorney Asa Keyes yesterday refused to issue a conspiracy complaint against three men arrested by the city police on Saturday, accused of plotting to kidnap Mary Pickford, the film star. Keyes ordered the whole affair aired before the County Grand Jury.

Attorneys for the defense issued a statement characterizing the arrests and reported confessions of the men as a "frame up" among the police informers.

This phase as well as any tangible evidence that the trio did plot the kidnapping, will be investigated by the Grand Jury, Keyes said.

The men are: C. Z. Stephens, Claude A. Holcomb and Adrien J. Wood.

CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS ASK TARIFF PROTECTION FOR DOMINION PRODUCTS

Resolution Drawn Up To-day To Be Adopted at To-morrow's Session.

LIMIT TAXATION.

Overlapping in Tax Assessment and Collection Must Be Repaired.

HAMILTON, June 3. Canadian Press. — An important series of resolutions were brought down at the morning's session of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association convention by the nominations and resolutions committee, with recommendation that they be adopted when the item of business comes up to-morrow.

Leading them is a pronouncement on the tariff question. This declares that a sound and stable fiscal policy is absolutely necessary for the national development of Canada and the welfare of the entire population; that the provision of adequate tariff protection for all forms of Canadian production should be the cornerstone of Canada's fiscal system; that such a policy would bind together more firmly the provinces of Canaad, attract capital, commercialize national resources, strengthen existing industries, and create new industries, raise revenue, encourage immigration, provide employment, increase traffic through national ports furnish passengers and freight for transportation systems, lower freight rates and make farming more profitable by providing a larger market for farm products.

The meeting is therefore called upon to record its opinion that the Canadian customs tariff should be immediately and substantially increased on finished products; and that when higher rates of duty have been put into effect, Canada should endeavor to increase her export trade by making preferential tariff arrangements based on the principle of bargaining with other countries, particularly the countries of the British Empire.

Adjust Preferential.

A second resolution places the Association on record as urging the government to adjust the British preferential tariff so as to equalize the difference in wages and other costs of production in Canada and the United Kingdom, it being claimed that under present conditions, many Canadian factories have been forced to cease or to curtail operation, an

KINGSTON CHIEF HAS NO NEW CAR

Council Sold Horse and Buggy But Won't Buy Automobile.

CAN DO WITHOUT.

KINGSTON, June 3.—(Special).—For many years Fire Chief Armstrong has had a horse and buggy to drive to the fire. This year the Fire and Light Committee arranged for the complete motorization of the department, and the Chief's horse and buggy were sold, with the result that the Chief has no conveyance to respond to alarms. Ald. Chown moved in Council to purchase a car for the Chief, but the motion was turned down, the members of Council feeling that in view of heavy expenditures incurred this year in making repairs at the two fire halls, that the head of the department could very well do without a car. The Chief may be provided with a car next year.

HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN PROMISES ADVISORY TARIFF COMMISSION IF CONSERVATIVES GAIN CONTROL

Says Canada Needs National Policy as Remedy for Industrial Conditions.

FAITH IN CANADA.

Premier Said Resolution Should Have Been Introduced in Budget Debate.

OTTAWA, June 3.—If returned to power at the next election the Conservative party will create a tariff commission to act in an advisory capacity to the Government, Hon. Arthur Meighen declared in the House yesterday in supporting his national policy resolution. The responsibility for the Federal tariff should never be removed from the shoulders of Parliament, he added.

Speaking on migration to the United States, Mr. Meighen said that it was the average citizens of the country who knew what was going on in their homes and in their family circles, despite any speeches made by the Minister of Labor. In 1923, 102,000 Canadians had gone to the United States, and in 1924, 181,000. The figures were appalling but they did not tell the whole story. Many entered the United States surreptitiously, without paying head tax, and they were not recorded.

Benefit to Labor.

Mr. Meighen expressed the belief that the mass of labor population were aware of the value of a protective tariff to themselves. "I speak for no class, I speak in the name of Canada," he said. If there was one class to which protection was more vital than another, it was the laboring class. Mr. Meighen quoted Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, whose writings, he said, stated that the only hope for the laboring population was in a "firm and definite protection policy."

Answering questions asked by W. Irvine (Labor, Calgary East) as to whether or not the Conservatives, if in power, would put in a completely protective programme, Mr. Meighen said: "I give him an unqualified affirmative." The Conservative party was committed to the principle more emphatically today than ever before. "The party has not witnessed in vain, the last three years of vacillation and drift," he said.

Export of Raw Materials.

Was not the export of raw material going on to-day faster than ever? asked Mr. Meighen. So far from imposing any restrictions, the Government had taken an opposite course in regard to the export of pulpwood. "They passed an Order-in-Council," he declared, "under which they guaranteed American importers of raw pulpwood exemption from restrictions for ten years in respect to contracts made in Canada before a certain date.

Mr. Meighen declared that while he preferred to have Canadian capital invested in Canada, that rather than have our raw material exported for manufacture elsewhere, he preferred to have American capital come into the country, and manufacture here.

If Canada required one resource to an outstanding extent, it was our undeveloped power, stated Mr. Meighen, in referring to the export of power to the United States.

The resolution advocated a tariff commission which, said Mr. Meighen, should be advisory only. Never from the shoulders of Parliament should responsibility for tariff be taken. If the Conservative party returned to power, such a commission would be created. Of the railway problem, Mr. Meighen said that the Dominion as a whole should bear the costs of bridging the two great chasms between the Central Provinces and the Maritimes and the Central Provinces and the West.

A Commercial Battle.

Canada's problem was, however, largely spiritual. The object of all should be to help each, and the success of one did not mean the failure of another. The whole country, not any section of it, was fighting and must fight a great commercial battle with the industries of the rest of the world.

"I have faith unreserved in the destiny of our country," said Mr. Meighen in conclusion. He expressed faith in the destiny of Canada as a British nation, and the resolution which he moved was, he believed, conducive to the safeguarding of the country from any drift away from the Empire.

CANADA'S CLAIM TO POLAR LAND UNDER DISPUTE

MacMillan, in Expedition to Arctic, Will Set Up U. S. Flag.

SAILS JUNE 17.

Believes the Nations of the World Will Justify Grab of Territory.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., June 3. — Commander Donald B. MacMillan, when informed last evening by the Associated Press of the report that Hon. Charles Stewart, Canadian Minister of the Interior, had told the House of Commons on Monday night that Canada claims all lands north of the Dominion to the North Pole, said:

"There is nothing new in that claim although I have often wondered on what it was based.

"Any land which we discover on the expedition which is to start this month from Boston, will certainly be claimed by us for the United States. We were told of Canada's claim when we left in 1913 on the Crocker Land expedition. We sailed for 150 miles across the polar sea and took from the maps land which had previously been shown on them, but we found none.

"This summer's expedition will seek land in a region lying partly north of the Dominion, but the greater part will be north of Alaska. If we find anything we shall claim it for the United States and I think the nations of the world will regard it as just."

In the report of the statement by Hon. Mr. Stewart, it was said that Canada does not claim Wrangell Island or territory directly north of Alaska or Greenland. A commission it was said is engaged in establishing Canada's right to lands between it and the Pole.

Commander MacMillan is scheduled to sail from Boston with the Peary and the Bowdoin on June 17.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Evidently Made-in-Peterboro by-laws are not so popular as the factory produced goods on exhibition in the Made-in-Peterboro Fair at the Armouries. The one is repressive while the second is constructive. The aim of the Aldermen is to stop something. The object of the manufacturers is to start something. And the knocker will have the worst of the deal every time.

Making Our Morals

In interviews conducted by Examiner reporters to-day, men in every walk of life condemn the action taken by the Council in stopping Sunday bathing and Sunday band concerts. The Council may claim that it has not stopped the bathing, but has merely withdrawn its caretakers. It amounts to the same thing. Respectable people cannot undress in the street to get into bathing togs, but that is the necessity forced upon the man who works all week and depends upon the relaxation and healthful exercise of a Sunday swim. There are men who work six days a week from seven in the morning until five in the evening. By the time they are dressed and have supper it is too late to go swimming. Others—notably storekeepers—work even longer hours. To all of these people the City Council shuts the door to the only recreation — and doctors say the healthiest recreation—possible.

As for Sunday band concerts, it is a matter of common experience that these attracted hundreds more people than did the Friday concerts. That should be sufficient answer to any suggestion of change, but is evidently not enough for the city fathers.

Some of the wilder element in the city have talked about forcing a way into the dressing rooms, which are the property of the citizens, but this would only cause needless trouble. If citizens want the order rescinded they can point out to the Aldermen that the City Council is elected to represented the people and carry out the wishes of the people. If the citizens wanted a board of censors they would say so.

The 1925 City Council looks like making a record for getting in wrong. First the East City gasoline tanks; now the closing of the bathing beaches on Sunday and the stopping of Sunday band concerts. And still seven months until January 1.

The situation regarding the unveiling of a monument at Bewdley on Sunday next was misrepresented to The Examiner in a letter from an official of the League. He said that G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Mayor J. J. Turner and others would participate in the ceremony This The Examiner announced last week. When the City Council frowned on the invitation on Monday night and Mayor Turner announced that the City would not be officially represented there, The Examiner telegraphed to Mr. Gordon to obtain his view, and has received a reply saying he will not officiate.

Nobody There

To correct the impression that the City would be represented at the unveiling by prominent officials, it is now announced on the authority of those concerned that there will be no official representation of Peterboro present.

Hundreds of copies of The Examiner of Monday were sent out to cities all over United States and Canada to advertise Peterboro. Hundreds of others of Tuesday's date, telling of the ban on Sunday bathing and Sunday music might counteract this valuable publicity if anyone is so minded. Extra copies of both dates may be obtained at this office.

ARRANGE PICNIC.

Queen Alexandra Home and School Association Met Yesterday.

The Queen Alexandra Home and School Association last night held its postponed monthly meeting, which is also the final meeting for the season. Routine business was attended to and the report, of unusual interest, of the delegate to the Easter Convention of Home and School Associations in Toronto was listened to, read by Mrs. Percy King, of the King George School. Arrangements were made for the holding of the annual school picnic on June 19th. The banner for this month was won by Junior Fourth, Mr. Dearborn's room.

THE EFFECT OUTSIDE.

What a wonderful advertisement for Peterboro the action of the City Council in banning Sunday bathing and abandoning Sunday concerts is likely to prove!

The manufacturer looking for a site for his factory and scrutinizing all the conditions in order to assure himself that he is justified in counting upon his employees being satisfied, will take the first train for Peterboro as soon as he hears the news, will he not?

Yes, he will—not!

He'll hesitate a long time before committing himself to establishing his factory in a town where his employees are barred from the enjoyment of Sunday bathing and where Sunday evening band concerts are apparently regarded as a moral blemish.

Remember, he wants his staff to be as permanent as possible—nothing interferes with production so much as a continual breaking in of a new working force—and he knows full well that under present-day conditions he cannot expect his workers to remain in a community whose Council is bent upon giving it the status of a New England village in the days of the Puritans.

What will be the result of the widespread publicity given the action of the Council in regard to these two questions?

Undoubtedly the manufacturer in search of a suitable location is going to turn his attention to cities whose civic government suggests the deliberations of a body of business men, rather than a meeting of a moral reform league.

THE DOG-CATCHER'S TROUBLES.

The dog bylaw in force in Peterboro may be quite sound in principle, but it is undoubtedly an embarrassing ordinance to enforce, and the manner in which an attempt is at present being made to enforce it is causing indignation among dog owners.

The principal object of the measure was, of course, to keep Peterboro streets free of dogs of doubtful pedigree and still more dubious ownership, and of those canines whose ownership could be established but whose habits when not under control of their lords and masters were not such as to make it desirable for them to be allowed to roam at large.

Unfortunately, the bylaw is not working out as it was hoped.

The dog of roving habits, the Ishmail that feels that every man's hand is against him, is a "downy bird," if the expression can be allowed.

He is much too wise and much too active to fall before the clumsy cunning of the dog-catcher.

But what use is a dog-catcher who does not catch dogs?

Reasoning thus, there is a temptation always before the official to follow the line of least resistance, to lure comfortable-looking, sleek, trusting family pets off the home lawn, to pick canines off the running-boards of cars when their owners happen to be temporarily absent—in fact, to observe no game laws at all.

This may not be cricket, it may be too much like potting a sitting partridge, but it gets results in the shape of captured dogs, which is more than can be said of the policy of chasing those long, lean street dogs who rob a garbage can with an eye always alert for the appearance in the offing of the dog-catcher, and who can teach a jack-rabbit something about the science of speed when danger threatens.

The City Council is non-committal: "Here is the bylaw—roaming round the city are dogs, go and catch them"—are the orders under which the official operates.

The result so far has been that the hardy old-timers in the dog world are still gaily decorating the open spaces, while the stay-at-home canines find their safety plotted against to the heated indignation of their owners.

Some of these days the inclination to disregard the game laws may spread to some of these owners with consequences not likely to be pleasant to the official dog-catcher.

BLUE LAWS.

Developing a sudden Puritanical streak, Peterboro's City Council has not only decided to banish Sunday bathing so far as the civic swimming beaches are concerned, but also passed a programme of concerts without making arrangements for Sunday concerts.

The Examiner has no desire to see the advent of the open Sunday, but there is a wide difference between the wide-open Sunday and the innocent recreation the Council is withholding from the citizens.

Nothing more closely resembling class legislation than this blue law decision of the city fathers has been passed in the local Council Chamber.

It hits most directly at those whose circumstances keep them at home on summer Sundays.

The citizen with a pretty cottage at Stoney Lake, Rice Lake or Chemong Park doesn't care whether Sunday bathing is authorized or not, nor will the abandoning of Sunday band concerts concern him in the least.

He can have all the Sunday bathing he wants.

His neighbor with an automobile will not worry either.

He has the means of transportation to places where Sunday bathing is not regarded as a crime.

But there are hundreds of families who have neither summer homes nor automobiles.

No matter how great the humidity, no matter how high the thermometer, there is no escape from the sweltering city for them.

The Examiner refuses to believe that the members of these families, for whom Sunday is the only day free from toil, should be condemned to do without the refreshing effects of a swim in the Otonabee on a Sunday afternoon, or that they would be in great danger from a moral standpoint if for an hour or two on Sunday evening after church they listened to good music that would take them out of themselves and cause them to forget for a short time the cares and boredom of every-day life.

There has been Sunday bathing here since the civic beaches were opened without any noticeable increase in crime or immorality; there have been few, if any, complaints from any source.

As for Sunday concerts, their popularity has been unmistakably demonstrated, the attendance on Sunday being invariably double that at the Friday night concerts.

The people want both Sunday bathing and Sunday concerts, and some members of the Council seem to have a peculiar faculty of shutting their eyes to the wishes of the citizens whose representatives they are supposed to be.

If the Examiner interprets public opinion correctly, the people will lose no time in letting the Council know that their decision of Monday night is unpopular.

The verdict is not irrevocable; it can be altered, and doubtless will be if the citizens who are being deprived of harmless recreation during the summer show their disapproval of blue laws and class legislation.

PREMIER BRUCE AND IMPERIAL POLICY.

Premier Bruce of Australia is very naturally disturbed by the anomalous—not to say dangerous—situation created by the lack of adequate machinery to enable the Overseas Dominions to take an effective part in shaping the foreign policy of the Empire. He sees very clearly that—whether we like it or not—we are committed to any foreign policy adopted in London. We cannot, of course, be compelled to support it with men or money. Only by the action of our own Parliament can this be done. But neither can we escape the consequences of any such policy so far as they may be imposed upon us by foreign nations.

Let us take an illustration. Suppose Great Britain got into war with Japan. We might totally disagree with the policy that brought her into such a war; but that would not prevent the Japanese from seizing Canadian merchant ships found in Western Pacific waters. As Sir Wilfrid Laurier said: "When the Empire is at war, Canada is at war." We may not fight. That is at our option. But it is very hard for a nation not to fight when another nation commits against it acts of war. It will be recalled that the Americans fought Germany when the Germans began to sink their ships.

At the present moment, the British Government could plunge Canada into war without either consulting us or even letting us know until the fatal step had been taken. We can spin theories and coin phrases about this situation until we are tired, but it will remain unaltered—until we find some method of altering it. And that is what Premier Bruce is trying to do. Of course, the British Government would never do so foolish and perilous a thing—if it could help itself. But sometimes decisions which lead to war must be made almost in the course of a conversation; and the British Government of the day must act first and trust to the justice of its cause to convince us afterward.

There will usually be no difficulty where there is full information—and good will—on both sides. It does not take long to send a coded cable. The chief difficulty is, of course, in keeping the Overseas Ministers right up to the minute in information. We know from Viscount Grey's memoirs that even the British Ministers in London were not all always abreast with the latest developments during the dark days preceding the late war. To a considerable extent, they had to trust their colleague, the Foreign Minister.

Then the Overseas Ministers seldom have the back-ground that is necessary to judge fully the mystifying and sometimes malevolent sword-play of foreign diplomats. They cannot possibly know what this or that manoeuvre means until it is laboriously explained to them. This is a job most difficult to do by cable. The proposal of Premier Bruce is that this obstacle might be removed if each of the Overseas Dominions had a resident Minister in London authorized to commit his Government.

This is true—if it were only possible. But how many Overseas Governments would trust a resident Minister with such tremendous powers? Even Premier Bruce admits that he is still looking for a man who could fill this difficult bill. But when he finds a man whom Stanley Bruce will trust, is he quite sure that his Parliament and his people will repose in him an equal confidence? And how about the next Government? Must it send over a trusted novice whose education in foreign affairs will take years?

* * * *

We may as well recognize that it is a practical problem in democracy that we have to fact. When nations were governed by a limited electorate, the men who constituted the elect few were like a business board—they employed a small body of experts in foreign matters, some in one political party and some in the other, so that the foreign secretaries would always belong to this body; and then they trusted their experts. This is the way that all businesses are run. Mr. E. W. Beatty probably knows very little about bridge-building, and most of his directors know less. They trust experts to locate and build bridges.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

God save King George V. Long may he reign over us.

Have you visited the Armouries yet? If you haven't there are many surprises in store for you.

As a matter of precaution, the Council should have the dog-catcher protected by a life-insurance policy. His family may need it.

Judging by the cost of his new car, the city fathers will expect the Fire Chief to be at the scene of every fire now before the alarm is turned in.

Unfortunately, resolutions against Sunday bathing are also made-in-Peterboro.

So far, at least, it is permissable for citizens to sit on their own verandahs on Sunday.

If the Aldermen who opposed Sunday bathing would agree to keep their motor cars in the garage from Saturday night until Monday morning their position would be materially strengthened.

The Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition has surprised even its most enthusiastic advocates. It is better than they dared hope it would be.

The Home Bank depositors may soon be added to the ranks of those who want to see the Senate abolished.

NO HALF HOLIDAY TO BE OBSERVED

Increase in Excursions to Cobourg Will Likely Cause Cancellation.

COBOURG, June 3.—The excursion season opened in Cobourg on Saturday last, when both of the car ferries, Ontario No. 1 and Ontario No. 2, brought large excursions parties to Cobourg from Rochester, the day being the annual Decoration Day in the United States and a public holiday. The vistors distributed themselves about town visiting places of interest and at Victoria Park, where the dancing pavilion is now open for the season.

Capt. Redfern has taken over the command of Ontario No. 2, succeeding the late Capt. F. D. Forrest.

Because of the many excursions that come in to Cobourg during the summer months, it begins to look as if the usual Wednesday half holiday will not generally materialize. The grocers and butchers are pretty well agreed as to taking the holiday but some of the dry goods merchants are objecting. One reason given is that many of the excursions who come to Cobourg on Wednesday and many excursionists like to secure souvenirs to take home with them. In the even of Cobourg merchants not agreeing to take the holiday, it is hardly likely that Port Hope will either, as the two towns are so near together that quite a number of rural residents can trade in one, about as conveniently as in the other. For a considerable part of the summer, it is expected, these towns will be considerably inconvenienced by the paving in progress on the Provincial Highway, as sections east of Cooburg, west of Port Hope, and lying between the two towns, are being paved.

A THOUGHT.

THE OUTLAW'S ODDS.

There's a buzzard slowly wheelin'
In the glassy, brassy sky;
And he's waitin'—and he's just waitin'—
And he's bettin' I will die.

By this mesquite there's some shelter,
From the blazin' desert sun—
But water—hell, there's not a swaller—
And I reckon I am done.

There's a coyote on that sand ridge,
And he never makes a sound;
Guess he knows just what's a comin',
And he thinks he'll stick around—

Buzzard wheelin'—coyote watchin'—
And my carcass full of lead;
Two to one, an' both just waitin'—
Till they're sure that I am dead!

Wedding Taken As Excuse For Dodging Jury Duty

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 3.—(United Press).—"What is your excuse?" asked Judge Josiah Cohen of Miss Josephine McCormick when she asked to be excused from jury duty.

"I'm to be married next week," she replied. "Excused," replied the judge.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO June 2. — Trade slowed up a little today after yesterday's exceptionally strong and active market. Prices were holding firm and unchanged at Monday's general advance of 25 to 30 cents on butcher and export cattle. With a small carry over of about 300 and fresh receipts 950 there were plenty of cattle on hand for to-day's requirements. Both packers and exporters were heavy buyers in yesterday's market and prospects are good for the next few weeks in export trade.

All small meats steady to firm, lambs especially holding strong.

Hogs, steady at $11.75 f.o.b. and $12.75, thick, smooth, off cars.

Lambs—Choice spring, $12-$14; yearling, $12-$13; heavy, $10-$11.

Sheep — Yearling, $8-$9; choice wool, $7-$8; choice clipped, $6-$6-50; heavy, $3.50 to $4-50.

Rogers and Maybee bought on the market yesterday 800 heavy steers at $7.75 to $8.40; two special loads, $8.60. Forty bulls, $4.75 to $5.25. Stores, good short keep, $7.50 to $8.15.

H. P. Kennedy Company bought 200 export steers, $7.15 to $8.50.

Geo. Rountree (Harris Abbatoir Co.) bought yesterday and to-day 1,500 cattle, good to choice butcher steers and heifers, $7.25 to $8.25. Fat cows, choice, $5.50 to $6.25.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 2.—The foreign demand for Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was not very large and in consequence the trade was inactive. Exporters made sales of No. 4 grade barley to Bristol at 36s. 3d. per quarter for June shipment, and No. 1 feed oats were also worked.

There was a little more business done in the domestic market, including sales of No. 4 barley at 6 1-2 cents per bushel over the July option, and No. 1 feed oats at 2 1-4 cents per bushel over the same option, c.i.f. Montreal. New York was in the market for feed barley and bid 90 cents per bushel, c.i.f., with sellers asking 92 cents per bushel, c.i.f., the local trade in car lots of oats was inactive and prices were unchanged.

The tone of the cheese market was firm at the late advance in prices recorded, but the volume of business for export account showed little improvement. Cables from London in some cases were stronger and sales of lots of white and colored were made at 90s. per cwt. but the bulk of the bids received from other English markets were on the basis of 89s. per cwt., which exporters were not disposed to accept.

Beans were selling at $2.65 per bushel.

Curb Cheese Prices.

MONTREAL, June 2.—On the local curb market the offerings were 1,000 packages of creamery butter and 2,500 boxes cheese. Sales of No. 1 pasteurized creamery were made at 32 7-8 cents per lb., No. 1 creamery at 32 1-8 cents per lb., and No. 2 creamery at 31 1-8 cents per lb., and the bulk of the cheese was disposed of at 17 3-4 cents per lb. delivered here.

Quebec Butter Auction.

MONTREAL, June 2.—At the Quebec Agricultural Co-operative Society auction sale of creamery butter held on Monday, there were 2,525 packages offered, of which 800 packages No. 1 pasteurized sold at 32 7-8 cents per lb., 800 packages No. 1A pasteurized at 32 7-8 cents per lb., 600 packages No. 1 creamery at 32 1-8 cents per lb., and 325 packages No. 2 creamery at 31 1-3 cents per lb.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, June 2.—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 1-2.

Sterling cables $4.86.

WOODSTOCK CHEESE NOT SOLD

WOODSTOCK, Ont., June 2.—The offerings of cheese on the board were 1,189 boxes for which 17 1-4 cents per lb. was bid, but no sales were made.

ST. PASCAL, June 2.—The offerings on the board were 238 packages creamery butter, and 48 boxes cheese. The butter sold at 31 5-8 cents per lb., and the cheese brought 16 2-32 cents per lb.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 2.—Spectacular breaks in the price of corn, as much as 5 1-2 cents a bushel, resulted today from good rains, but relief from drought had only a transient effect on the wheat market. Unofficial estimates which were current indicated that there would hardly be 50,000,000 bushels of wheat available for export from the 1925 domestic crop. Corn closed irregular, 5-8 to 3 cents net lower; Sept. 1.14 5-8 to 1.14 3-4, and December 95 1-2 to 95 5-8, with wheat firm, 1-8 to 1 7-8 cents up; July 1.61 to 1.61 1-8, and Sept. 1.59 to 1.59 1-4; oats unchanged to 1-4 cent off, and provisions ranging from 15 cents decline to an equal advance.

EXPULSION OF ALL FOREIGNERS DEMAND OF CHINESE AGITATORS JAPANESE SHOPS ARE ATTACKED

10,000 Workers in Shanghai on Strike Closing Many Cotton Mills.

FARMERS HELD UP.

Prevented From Supplying Food to City—Authorities Regard Menace Serious.

SHANGHAI, June 3 — Chinese agitators made public appeals on the streets of Shanghai yesterday for a general uprising to drive out all foreigners.

Officials of the foreign settlements expressed confidence that they could handle the situation, but admitted that the outlook was perhaps more grave than at any time in the city's history.

Delegations of students are patrolling all roads into the city, intimidating incoming farmers and preventing supplies bringing of food into the city.

A delegation of about one hundred Nanking students, alleged Communists, arrived last night from Nanking to reinforce the trouble-making elements. Upwards of 10,000 workers in Shanghai industrial plants are on strike. These include mechanics and fitters at the Riverside power station in the Eastern district, from which the major part of the foreign settlement receives its electric current. Strikes also have forced the closing down of many cotton mills and lesser industrial establishments.

Tension Unrelaxed

A tour of all sections of the city by The Associated Press correspondent at ten o'clock last night showed the situation generally quiet, but the tension brought by the disturbance unrelaxed. Armed guards, were everywhere to be seen; streets the most part were deserted; usually crowded theatres were empty.

Machine guns were used to clear the streets late Tuesday, when a patrol was fired upon from houses at the corner of Nanking Road and Thibet Road.

One man, Thomas G. McMartin, a United States dentist, was wounded and his horse shot fro munder him.

A Chinese amusement resort, the "New World" came before the machine gunners.

When members of the patrol entered the "New World" they found one man dead and another wounded any others concerned in the firing had escaped.

Attack Japanese

Minor outbreaks were reported last evening from the North Szechusen Road district, across Soochow Creek. These disturbances seemed tob e directly especially at the Japanese. Gangs stationed in alleyways, invited by Chinese soldiers hurled all sorts of missles at street cars and automobiles. Japanese shops also were attacked in several instances. The North Szechuen Road traverses Chinese territory into which foreign settlement defense units cannot enter, thus making difficult the apprehension of those responsible for the trouble.

REVISION COURT IN DOURO TOWNSHIP

Some Assessments Were Reduced—Council Held Meeting After.

The members of the Municipal Council of the Township of Douro met at the Town Hall, Douro, on Monday, May 25, at the hour of ten o'clock a.m. as a Court of Revision of the assessment rolls. All the members were present.

On motion J. J. Leahy was appointed chairman.

The following appeals were heard and disposed of, viz:

John R. Allen appealed against assessment of northwest quarter of lot 3, as being too high. Assessment reduced by $50.

LESS REVENUE FROM WOODBINE IN 1925

Fewer People Attended and Less Money Was Wagered This Year.

TORONTO, June 3.—(Canadian Press).—Ontario Jockey Club will pay $229,461.70 to the Provincial Treasury of Ontario from the club's revenue at the recent spring race meeting at Woodbine track. This is slightly lower than the amount paid to the province after the race meeting of the spring of 1924. The total revenue from the five per-cent impost on wagers amounted to $132,068.95, compared with $157,406.55 for the spring race meeting of 1924. The returns also show that 99,575 persons passed through the Jockey Club's gates at the recent meeting compared with 100,657 at the races a year ago. The per diem tax of $7,500 levied on each mile track amounted to the customary $52,500 for the Ontario Jockey Club, this bringing the total up to $229,461.70.

UNITED CHURCH BASIS OF FAITH REGARDED BEST

Reformed Episcopal Church Could Affiliate, Retaining Its Own Practices.

BISHOP'S OPINION.

Bishop Brewing Says Church Has Always Stood For Union.

OTTAWA, June 3 — There has never in history been drawn up a better basis of the Christian Faith than that of the United Church of Canada, declared Right Rev. Bishop W. L. Brewing, of Toronto, addressing the annual synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church of Canada here Tuesday.

The Synod had resolved itself into committee as a whole to consider what should be the relationship of the Church to the United Church of Canada which Bishop Brewing reminded is audience comes into being a week from yesterday in Toronto. The Bishop said the reformed episcopal chnurch has always stood for union.

"Our church cannot let this great movement go by without some recognition of it," he said. In the the fundamentals of the Christian religion the United Church is to be absolutely one, he added. In all non-essentials there is to be absolute liberty, he declared. Bishop Brewing maintained that reformed Episcopal Church could go into the United Church retaining its own organizations and practices.

Bishop Brewing urged that while his church could do nothing quickly, certainly the minds of all ought to be towards the United Church of Canada. He urged further that the United Church was not leaning towards the Roman Catholic Church as the Anglican Church, both here and in the old country is doing, he maintained. Perhaps, he suggested, that is why the Anglican Church and the United Chnurch are not leaning towards each other.

Bishop Brewing was authorized to appoint two members to serve with him as a committee to meet the council of the United Church after a resolution to be drawn up by him has been approved at today's meetings of the Synod with regard to the relations of the two bodies.

IMPRESSIVE SERMON MILLBROOK CHURCH

MILLBROOK, June 3.—Sermons of an evangelistic type are a feature of the services in most of the churches which enter the union on June 10.

Sunday evening, being the last opportunity he would have of addressing his congregation before the United Church is established, Rev. F. H. Howard preached an impressive sermon on the subject, "The Man on the Tree", basing his remarks upon John 12, 32: "I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Me."

"The first man, Adam, hid behind a tree in the shame of sullied innocence; the Man, Christ Jesus, hung upon a tree in shame and agony, the innocent victim of others sin. He died as a sinner, but not a sinner."

The persistent attitude of Christ toward His enemies was exhibited in the prayer as the nails were driven home, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." Again, the attitude of the lifted up Christ toward repentant sinners is shown by His reply to the thief who asked forgiveness: "This day shalt thou be with Me in Paradise."

Dying for a race, He forgot not the simple home comforts of a woman, as He committed His mother to John's care, "Behold thy son,"—"Behold thy mother." And this thoughtfulness in the midst of His own suffering and sacrifice shows His constant attitude toward the benefit and distressed.

"We are facing a great task. God has given to us this land if we will go in and possess it for Him. He has laid upon the church the responsibility of the opportunity of seeing that there are within its borders no peoples who have not had the lifted up Christ presented to them. He will draw all who sin, all who sorrow, all who are in need, yes, even His enemies, unto Himself, if His followers are faithful in showing, by word and deed, the salvation possible through His death upon the cross. The tragedy of Calvary will not be in vain when consecration and sacrifice mark the church in her response to the drawing power of the lifted-up Christ. The spirit of union which is finding its consummation as Presbyterianism, Methodism, and Congregationalism become one for the more effective propogation of the gospel, bears striking evidence to the compelling influence of Him Who said, 'And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Myself.'"

TO-NIGHT IS THE NIGHT
If you do not feel well there is some reason for it. In nine cases out of ten it is due to your liver. So start tonight and take two Tanol Calomel Tablets or take one before meals and a glass of hot water in the morning to wash all poisons from the system. Calomel, as you know, is the only drug known that acts upon the liver and that is why there has been such wonderful results from the use of it in the new form called Tanol Calomel. Just get a few of these sample tablets from F. C. Webber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and you will be surprised how effective they are. m.-w.s.

GIVE REPORT ON BIRTH CONTROL

Self-Control is Ideal Method, Says Committee on Morals.

LARGER FAMILIES

LONDON, June 3.—(Canadian Press).—Ideal method of birth control is self control, so the committee of the national council of public morals reports after enquiring into the question. The commitee's report recommends discouraging the use of contraceptives and also suggests that people return to greater simplicity of life. It also suggests that a drastic reformation of social and economic conditions should be made.

The duty of adequate parenthood is emphasized in the report which says that normally each married couple should look forward to having a family of at least four or five children. The committee deeply deplores the present day tendency of married people to regard fewer children than this number as a sufficient fulfillment of function the value of those far reaching potency it is impossible to exaggerate.

The chairman of the committee appointed to enquire into the problem of birth control is Right Rev. Frank Theodore Woods, Bishop of Winchester. The committee's membership includes leading representatives of religious communities, the medical profession and prominent citizens in other walks of life.

FAMOUS SKATER DEAD.

F. W. Meagher Died Suddenly After Exertion.

KINGSTON, June 3 — Frederick W. Meagher, who some years ago was known as one of the most famous fancy skaters in the country and who skated before many crowned heads in Europe, died suddenly Monday night while returning from his farm near Kingston Mills. He had trouble with the car on a hill and it got stuck in a rut. Both Mr. Meagher and a farmhand who was accompanying him got out and pushed the car on the road again. Mr. Meagher commenced to cough and an instant later straightened out in his seat and passed away.

MIKADO ENGINE CUTS LABOR ON MIDLAND ROUTE

Fewer Trainmen Required in Hauling Grain Since Moguls Withdrawn.

LINDSAY AFFECTED.

C.N.R. Official Denies Rumor of Dismissal of Recent Recruits.

LINDSAY, June 3. (Special.) — "There is absolutely no truth in the statement that because of the use of the new Mikado engines on the Canadian National Railway between Belleville and Midland, the company have let out all employees in Lindsay with ten years or less of service," said a prominent Lindsay railway official to-day. "It is an absurd statement," he concluded. "Consequently business conditions in Lindsay are not affected by means of this change."

However, it does happen to be correct that the use of the new type of Mikado engine has to an extent revolutionized traffic conditions on the above old established grain route. The new Mikado engined arrived about the middle of May and took the place of small mogul engines which were in use here for years. The new Mikado engines have a greatly increased pulling power, in fact they haul fully 30 per cen. more cars than the former moguls. This has consequently resulted in a reduction of the hours spent on the route by the employees. Where formerly seven trains were required to move a certain amount of grain, now but five are required to move the same amount. A railway crew for all ordinary purposes numbers five, and where thirty-five men were used on the grain haul before, only 25 are required to-day to handle the same amount of grain.

When it is considered that the average haul of grain through Lindsay on the C. N. R. averages 45,000,000 bushels a year, it can be ascertained what amount of saving is being effected in haulage. To further handicap the employees, there is considerably less grain moving this year than in former years because of trade conditions, depression in business and the light demand for grain.

EXPORTS TO U. S. FALL IN APRIL

Adverse Trade Balance For April and Year Just Ended.

OTTAWA, June 3. — Canadian exports to the United States were down in April and the trade balance in that month was unfavorable to the Dominion. In a statement issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics it is shown that Canadian goods to the value of $27,268,410 were exported to that country while imports from the United States were $39,851,761. The exports were over $15,000,000 less than those of March, 1925, but some $3,000,000 more than in April, 1924. For the twelve months ended April 30 exports to the United States totalled $420,231,394 and imports from that country $507,740,355.

Favourable With Britain.

OTTAWA, June 3.—A balance favorable to Canada in trade with the United Kingdom in April last is shown in the monthly statement of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Imports are valued at $10,533,161 of which $8,884,768 were dutiable goods. Exports totalled $17326,542. Imports decreased nearly thirty per cent. From the March figures and exports were about $6,000,000 less. In the twelve months ended April 30, Canada brought in from the United Kingdom goods valued at $151,575,662 and exported goods worth $402,686,049.

War Memorial Fund of the Order Now Stands at $382,800.

OTTAWA, June 3 (By Canadian Press)—The War Memorial Fund of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire has mounted to $382,800, according to the treasurer's report submitted at that organization's annual meeting here yesterday. Strong financial standing was indicated in the report made by Mrs. J. C. Power of Toronto. The order's balance, which includes the large war memorial fund, stands at $403,742. The year's receipts totalled $73,513. The war memorial fund was increased by $53,294 in the year. Scholarships and bursaries from this fund cost $18,262. Total disbursements for the year were $40,195.

Thirteen Chapters were added during the year, the honorary secretary, Miss A. Stewart Galt, of Toronto, reported. Also fifteen girl guide companies became affiliated with the order. In Miss Galt's report it was stated that the executive had sent a resolution to the Dominion government asking legislation "to advance the furtherance of a substantitial and proportionate direct contribution to the maintenance of the British navy in whatever manner they may deem fitting." Protest had been made by the Order against press publication of sensational crime news.

Assist Immigrants

Close co-operation with the Victoria League, London, an organization of women with similar aims to those of the I.O.D.E., had been recommended to the executive by Miss Joan Arnold, of Toronto, This included exchanges of organization literature, of introductions to travelling members, of correspondence between school children. The League also asked for a list of moderately priced hotels throughout Canada which might be recommended to immigrants and tourists.

At the request of Col. Henry Osborne, secretary for Canada for the Imperial War Graves Commission, the visit of Major General Sir Fabian Ware, vice-chairman of the Commission, to Canada in September will be under the auspices of the Order. Arrangements will be made by the various chapters for meetings at which Sir Fabian Ware will speak.

Here is a "Friendly drink"

What are you doing to keep cool and healthy this summer? Try this! When you rise in the morning drink a 'dash' of ENO in a glass of water. The adoption of this simple rule gives the little practical help your system needs to keep it free from the poisons and wastes which are the initial cause of overheated blood and other summer disorders.
When you travel—when you go on holidays or week-ends—take a bottle of ENO's "Fruit Salt" along. It is invaluable in counteracting the ill-effects of changes of climate and water and diet. You should never be without

OPPOSITION TO DAY WORK PLAN LAYING SEWERS

Several Campbellford Councillors Believe Contract System Wold Be Cheaper.

ESTIMATES MADE.

Street Superintendent Fox Confident of Economy By Day Labor Method.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 3. — There has always been in the town council an element of opposition to the system approved by the majority, to have the work of sewer construction done by day labor instead of by contract. Several of the councillors appear to be of the opinion that the latter method is the cheaper.

This opposition took on new vigor Monday night, when Henry Redden and John Hall submitted tenders for the construction of the sewers on Market Street and Oliver Road, the lower tender being that of Mr. Hall, who offered to build the sewer for $4,638.00, funishing everything, tile included.

If this offer were accepted, the town would be required to pay the charges of the engineer, five per cent. or over $200, and would, beside, be at the expense of putting the roadway in repair after the contractor had finished and filled in the sewer.

Mr. Fox's Figures.

Chairman Cole of the committee on roads and bridges, submitted an estimate for the work prepared by Robert Fox, street superintendent, who had been in charge of the sewer work for the past two years. Mr. Fox's opinion was that the sewer could be constructed by day labor for $4,740, including the engineer's fees and the cost of leveling the streets.

Mr. Fox's Offers.

Some of the councillors questioned the figures of Mr. Fox, intimating that he was merely guessing, and that his estimates were not backed up by a marked cheque, such as Mr. Hall had sent in with his offer.

Mr. Fox is so satisfied that he is on the safe side, that he offers to put up security and do the work by day labor, provided he is allowed to choose his own men and on condition the town will pay him the amount for which the work is done below the estimate.

He offers as an alternative to take the contract, giving the required security, and to put a man in charge of the work, the engineer's fees and the cost of putting the street in repair to be paid out of his estimate.

Wants a Chance.

Superintendent Fox has been building sewers by day labor for the past two years, blasting the channel out of solid rock and has finished every one of them for less than the estimate of the engineer. There is no rock on Market Street, and the Oliver Road, and Mr. Fox believes that he should be given a chance to demonstrate what he can do when conditions are easy.

The Labor Problem.

Only married men resident in town or single men with dependents, are given work on the sewers under the day labor plan. Mr. Fox has no chance but to take on men sent him by the town officials. This is the reason why he insists, in the event of him doing this new work, he be allowed to choose his workmen just as a private contractor is.

Preaches Next Sunday.

Rev. Edwin E. Preston, who preached in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday, was so acceptable to the congregation, that he has been asked and has consented, to officiate again next Sunday. Mr. Preston spent some years in Wyoming, U.S.A., working among the Indian tribes. The United States authorities insisted on all aliens becoming naturalized citizens of the Republic and as Mr. Preston preferred living under the British flag, he returned to Canada. He saw service overseas in the late War, and was so badly gassed that on his discharge he was physically unfit to take up his professional duties.

Mr. Preston bought a small farm near Colborne, where he now reside, with his wife and two daughters. Outdoor work has restored his health and he now proposes to accept a pastoral charge.

Dairy Outlook Good.

The last shipment of cheese from the local factory sold on the Belleville Board, brought 17 15-16 cents for first and 17 7-8 cents for second choice. Dairy farmers are well pleased with the market outlook and the warm weather has started a vigorous growth of grass on old and new pastures.

OBITUARY.

ELIZA KATHLEEN HATLEY.

The sudden death of Eliza Kathleen ("Lila") Hatley yesterday morning came as a great shock to her many friends in the city. The late Miss Hatley, who was only eighteen years of age, was stricken with heart failure yesterday morning, between nine and ten o'clock, while preparing for work, and passed away almost immediately. She was a popular member of the staff of the Otonabee Mills, Limited, a member of the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium and swimming class, and had been confirmed in the Anglican Church a few months ago at the ceremonies held in All Saints' Church. She will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends.

JAMES DUFF.

LAKEFIELD June 3.—Word was received in the village on Monday of the death of James Duff of Drinkwater Sask., a brother of Miss Duff, Mrs. A. Quinn and Mr. Robert Duff. The late Mr. Duff was born in Smith Township, and was well-known to the older residents of Lakefield and the district, as was also his wife, formerly Miss Annie Johnson. Interment will be in the Little Lake Cemetery, Peterboro.

CONTRIBUTION IS ASKED OF SEYMOUR

Appeal By Campbellford I. O.D.E. Referred to Ratepayers.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 3—Mrs. Andrew Haig and Mrs. R. C. Deston, representing the I.O.D.E., accompanied by Mayor . M. Bygott, commanding officer of the Northumberland Regiment appeared before the Seymour Council to ask for a grant for the monument which it is proposed to erect in memory of the young men who lost their lives in the great war. So far the movement has been purely local and all the money raised so far has come from Campbellford .

It is the idea of the promoters now to have the township render financial aid so that the names of Seymour's heroes may be inscribed on the monument as well as those from Campbellford.

Mesdames Haig and Weston and Major Bygott addressed the Council all the memebrs of which were present, and urged the cooperation of the township in the cause. They were given an attentive hearing and were assured that their request would receive careful consideration.

When the deputation had retired the question was discussed, but no member seemed disposed to assume the responsibility of taking the initiative. Finally it was decided to call a public meeting for the evening of June 16th in the Township Council Chamber and submit the matter to the ratepayers of Seymour.

Council Routine

Dr. G. A. Hay, the clerk, was instructed to draw up a by-law changing the limit for the payment of taxes from December 31st to December 14th.

It was decided to charge dancing pavilions the same fee as that of last year. When it came to a question of providing police protection for these places of amusement, it was stated that John A. Arcstrong, who for several years has discharged this duty, his pay being $1.50 per night, had refused to act longer unless, his pay was raised.

The clerk was instructed to prepare a by-law for the appointment of a new officer, who also is required to see to the enforcement of the O.T.A.

Boys Are Warned

Some of the electric light globes on the Hastings Road have been maliciously broken and a warning was issued that all such offenders would be prosecuted to the limit.

Case of Charity

Dr. H. B. Longmore reported the case of a resident of Trent Bridge who is ill and in poor circumstances. It was decided to send this patient to a Toronto hospital for treatment for two weeks, and to care for his family at the expense of the public in the meantime.

Personals

Mrs. Earl William, a former resident, arrived by motor from Toronto Tuesday to visit friends.

Mr. Alex Haw, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dalgleish, and family, motored to Port Hope Sunday.

Committee Will Meet on Friday to Prepare Report to House.

OTTAWA, June 3. — (Canadian Press).—The Ocean Rates Committee of the House of Commons, which has considered the proposed Petersen ship subsidy contract, finished its work last night so far as the hearing of witnesses is concerned. It will meet again on Friday morning to consider the preparation of its report to Parliament.

Weddings

QUIBELL—BROOKS

HASTINGS, June 3—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Brooks, Hastings, when their fourth daughter, Ruth, became the bride of Harold C. Quibel, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Quibell, of Campbellcroft, Ontario, Rev. M. L. Hinton officiated.

The bride entered the living room on the arm of her father and took her place under the bower of white and mauve flowers. The bride looked charming in a gown of sky blue brocaded satin back crepe and wore a veil of white chiffon tulle trimmed with pearls and carried a bouquet of shell pink and rose carnations.

She was attended by her sister Edna who was gowned in brick shaded canton crepe. The groom was supported by Mr. Norman Haynes of Campbellford.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. O. Phillips of Warkworth, a sister of the bride. During the signing of the register Miss Jessie Wilcox sang "Oh Take Her and Be Faithful Still."

A great many friends and relations were present and sat down to a beautifully decorated table for dinner.

The young couple left on the C. N. R. train for Toronto, Niagara and points west, the bride travelling in a dress of apple green crepe and picture hat. On their return they will reside in Campbellford.

The number of savings bank depositors in the United States is now estimated at 40,000,000. This is nearly double the number in 1919.

CHANGES MADE IN ASSESSMENT ROLL

North Monaghan Council Sat as a Court of Revision.

The North Monaghan Council held the Court of Revision for the assessment roll of 1925. All the members of the Council being present and duly sworn, Mr. G. A. Wood was elected Chairman.

Albert Hubbard, Leo Shaughnessy and Price Adamson each appealed for a remission of their dog tax. Each one having taken the necessary declaration, a resolution was passed that the assessment for dog tax of each of the applicants be removed from the assessment roll of 1925.

J. F. Goselin of 21 Frank street appealed to be assessed as a Separate School supporter. No action was taken in this matter as the assessment roll shows that 21 Frank street is assessed for the Separate School.

John Taylor appealed on behalf of Charles Clute that lot 60 and 61, plan 50, be assessed to James Deline, who is the present owner.

The Court of Revision accepted the assessment roll as presented for 1925 with the changes made and adjourned proceedings.

The Council now proceeded to general business, with Reeve Rye in the chair. The township scavanger was present and reported that there were certain unsatisfactory conditions prevailing in North Monaghan and which the Sanitary Inspector seems to have failed to have corrected. The present Sanitary Inspector was asked for his resignation as Sanitary Inspector and School Attendance Officer.

Resolution was passed that William B. Anderson be appointed Sanitary Inspector and School Attendance Officer at the customary salary, $80 per year. The Sanitary Inspector was instructed to give written notice to all parties who are not now complying with the requirements of the Board of Health of the township, and that if the parties now complained about do not remedy the cause of such complaints, legal action will be taken against them by the Sanitary Inspector.

Mr. Thomas Glover wrote to the Council and asked them to try and make arrangements with the Peterboro Utilities Commission whereby meters would be installed in each of the homes of the present water consumers, and that each be individually responsible for payment to the commission, or that the township appoint some other person to make the regular collections. Mr. Glover having attended to this matter for the past five years, feels now that it is time he was relieved of any further responsibility for the collections. The Clerk reported that he had received a cheque from the Department of Public Highways of Ontario for $854.99 for township subsidy for 1924.

A resolution was passed that the Reeve, the Deputy Reeve and Councillor G. A. Wood be a committee to meet the Peterboro Utilities Commission for the purpose of discussing the changes as suggested by Mr. Glover in regard to the Brown street water main.

The following committee was appointed to inspect the gravel pit for the purpose of laying plans for removing the stone crusher and the erection of new bins: Reeve Rye, Deputy Reeve Lillico and Councillor G. A. Wood.

The same committee was appointed to meet a committee from the South Monaghan Council for an inspection of the S. Monaghan boundary. The same committee was appointed to meet a committee from Smith Township for an inspection of the boundary between N. Monaghan and Smith Townships. This committee was given full power to act.

The following bills were passed in order to be paid: The county of Peterboro, for lots purchased by the township at the adjourned tax sale and now the property of the township, searches, deeds, etc., $7.05; Harry Fowler, twelve yards of gravel, $1.80.

The following is an estimate of public expenditure for 1925 as submitted to the Department of Public Highways: Bridge construction, $1,000; machinery, $500; superintendents, $400; maintenance and repair, $4,000.

George Patton was appointed Township Road Superintendent at a salary of $5.00 per day for actual time employed.

Bylaw 867 was then read and finally passed appointing George Patton Township Road Superintendent.

Bylaw No. 868 was introduced, read and finally passed making provision for expenditures on the township roads for 1925.

A committee from the Township Council, as arranged at a previous meeting, has purchased five acres from Archie Patterson as a site for a township dump ground.

Arrangements were made at a meeting held on May 11 whereby the Globe Indemnity Company of Toronto insures the municipality from accidents on the public highways for the sum of about $100 per year.

A resolution was passed that the meeting adjourn, and the next regular meeting be held at the Court House, Peterboro, on Monday, June 8, 1925, at 2 o'clock.

SASKATCHEWAN LIBERALS ARE AGAIN ELECTED

Walkover Indicated in Province Liberal Since Formation in 1907.

43 ELECTED.

Premer Dunning Won Personal Victory—Only One Minister Lost.

REGINA, Sask., June 3.—(Canadian Press).—The Liberal Government of Saskatchewan, headed by Premier C. A. Dunning, was returned at the polls yesterday. While very few constituencies had reported complete, it was indicated that the Liberals had elected 43 candidates to the sixth Legislature of the Province. In doubtful seats remaining early this morning, Liberal candidates were leading in six. Progressives have elected four, Conservatives 2, Independents 2. There are 60 constituencies.

In the last Legislature, the Government had 49 members out of a total of 63. The return of the entire Dunning Cabinet is indicated with the exception of Hon. H. A. Cross, Attorney-General, who was defeated on the basis of unofficial returns. The Premier himself scored a personal victory in Moose Jaw County, where with 42 out of 44 polls reported, the vote stood: Dunning 2,061, J. E. Etkeval (Progressive) 760.

Saskatchewan has had a Liberal Government since the formation of the Province in 1907.

BIGMY CHARGE AT BELLEVILLE

Fred Milne Admits Having Wife in West When Married Here.

SIX CHILDREN.

BELLEVILLE, June 3.—(Canadian Press).—Fred. Milne, who appeared in Police Court here on a charge of non-support, yesterday left the court under remand on a charge of bigamy. Milne confessed that he was a married man when he married Mrs. Bessie Woods, and that his former wife, who was Miss Minnie Hogg, was living in the West at the time. She is still alive, he stated. Milne was arrested at Cobourg a week ago at the instance of the Provincial Police. He was charged with not supporting his wife and her six children. He was remanded on the non-support charge.

HON. AURTHUR MEIGHEN PROMISES

Premier King's Reply.

Right Hon. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister, expressed regret that Mr. Meighen had found it necessary to bring on the present discussion at this particular time in the session. He believed that it would have been more satisfactory had the discussion taken place when an opportunity existed to go into the matter fully. The resolution of the leader of the Opposition was word for word in agreement with his "manifesto" issued a few days before the opening of the present session of Parliament. Mr. Meighen had not taken steps in time to enable his resolution to be placed on the order paper for full discussion on private members' day. Failing that, the Conservative leader had not brought in this resolution at the time that the debate on the budget address was taking place.

Premier King said that to discuss the subject matter of the resolution in full, would involve a re-opening of the budget debate. He stated further that should the resolution of the Conservative leader carry, "this Government would be called upon in accordance with Parliamentary procedure, to resign immediately." What the country desired was that Parliament should get through its business as rapidly as possible, and the sooner the House expressed itself on the resolution before it, the better. The Government had adhered to its principles, and had enjoyed, up to the present at least, the confidence of the House. This was borne out by the votes taken on the various budgets brought forward by the present Government since it came into office.

The present resolution, stated Premier King, served to set the East against the West, and helped to make wider the differences that existed between the Maritime Provinces and Central Canada.

Progressive's Opposition.

Robert Forke, Progressive leader, said that the Prime Minister had declared the motion to be one of want of confidence but in so far as the Progressives were concerned, their vote would simply be recorded against the motion because they did not believe in the principle which it contained.

He complimented Mr. Meighen on his speech and said that while he did not believe in any of the arguments presented, the speech had been easy to listen to, and was remarkable for the definite manner in which the different declarations of policy were presented.

History showed that Oppositions in Canada had usually advocated reductions in the tariff which they had not enforced on securing power. The present Opposition was advovating high tariff, but if the Conservatives ever secured power again, the probability was that they would not make any drastic tariff changes. The only salvation for the country was for the Progressives to take up the reins of power and rectify the situation.

Mr. Forke had no faith in the tariff commission advocated by Mr. Meighen, and did not agree with the proposed policy for reducing the railway rates to the Maritime Provinces, and to the Prairies. If such a policy was put into effect, the people in the East and in the West would have to pay taxes in order to subsidize the railways for the lower rates. Further, such a policy would expose the markets of the Ontario and Quebec farmers to unfair competition from the West. Some other solution of the railway rate problem would have to be found.

Reports to the City Council

Manufacturers Committee.

The Manufacturers Committee reported and recommended as follows:—

That this Council express its appreciation of the work which the dustless sweeper purchased fom Dominion Dustless Sweepers, Limited, is doing, as it is accomplishing all that was expected from it and doing the work of collecting and removing the dust from the streets in a very satisfactory manner; and also that the Council is pleased that the company has also developed a dust filter for use in cereal mills, elevators and other places where dust is a nuisance and a menace, and wishes the company success in its enterprises.

Fire, Water and Light.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee reported as follows:—

We received the following tenders for repairing the motor car of the Chief of the Fire Department:—

White & Ackford, $123.00; Reid & Son, $130.00; G. Walter Green Co., new parts extra, $60.00.

We also received the following offers for a new motor car for the Chief of the Fire Department:—

C. L. Brewer—Used McLaughlin Roadster, $1450; V. M. Eastwood—Dodge Roadster, $1450; V. M. Eastwood—Used Dodge Roadster, $1250; Selkirk & Elliott—Durant Roadster $1395, less $200 allowance for old Ford car, making $1195;A. Brown & Co.!—McLaughlin $1195;A. Brown & Co.!—McLaughlin Roadster, $1785, less allowance of the amount of rental paid for car now used by the Chief of the Fire Department.

We recommend that no more money be spent on the old car.

We referred the matter of the purchase of a new car to the Chairman of this Committee and the Chief of the Fire Department with a request that they examine the cars, for which tenders had been received, with a mechanic, and also ascertain what the tenderers would allow for the old car and report to the Council.

The sub-committee recommended the McLaughlin six as being the best car for the use.

Railways and Parks.

The Railways and Parks Committee reported as follows:—

We referred the matter of a schedule for the different leagues and clubs for the use of the James Stevenson Park to the Chairman of this Committee, the Mayor and Ald. Phelan with power to act, and also with authority to make financial arrangements with the clubs.

Your Committee received the following applications for the position of caretakers for the bathing beaches—Joseph Bannon, $14 per week. Sundays $2 extra; Thomas Blodgett, $15 per week, and will furnish a boat and Sundays extra; William Henry, $15 per week and Sundays extra.

We recommend that Wm. Henry's application be accepted for the Inverlea Bathing Beach provided he furnishes a boat.

We recommend that the caretakers of the bathing beaches be paid on the certificate of the chairman of this committee.

We received and accepted a tender from T. H. Hooper of $35 for the exclusive refreshment privilege at the athletic section of the James Stevenson Park.

The appointment of a caretaker at Lake Street bathing beach was left over, Alderman Turner being given authority to engage a man.

Finance Committee

The Finance Committee reported as follows:—

That we authorized the City Treasurer to sell to the Peterborough City Trust the $132,000 of pavement debentures bearing five and one-half per cent. interest, and the $14,000 of waterworks debentures bearing five per cent. interest, on a basis to yield five per cent.

We authorized the City Treasurer to sell the balance of the local improvement debentures, locally, on a basis to yield five per cent. which includes $5,371.12 of sidewalk debentures bearing five and one-half per cent. interest, $2,940.73 of sewage debentures bearing five and one-half per cent. interest and $7,200 of sewage debentures bearing five per cent. interest.

We recommend that a cheque be issued to Charles Risher for $20.65 on account of income taxes over paid.

Your Committee had a conference with representatives of the Board of Education in regard to the monthly payments to the Board and recommend that the motion that the Board of Education's monthly demands be paid at the end of each month be rescinded, and that they be paid as may be arranged by the Mayor and Chairman of this Committee and the Treasurer.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Committee and the Mayor have a by-law prepared to issue debentures to pay the cost of the construction of the sewage disposal plant.

We recommend that the following accounts be paid:—

Blue-jay is the delightful way to end a corn. A tiny cushion, cool as velvet, fits over the corn—relieving the pressure. The pain ends at once. Soon the corn goes. Blue-jay leaves nothing to guesswork. You do not have to decide how much or how little to put on. Each soft downy plaster is a complete treatment with just the right amount of the magic medication to end the corn.

A Corn will mar a pretty face

That corn is reflected in your face. Pain is disfiguring. If you keep that corn it will hasten crow's-feet. . . . To carry a corn for days is to show those days, unfavorably, in your looks. The constant dull irritation makes its mark in frown lines which do not always come out. . . . Then there's the undaintiness of it. . . . For the sake of personal charm and comfort—let Blue-jay end that corn in 48 hours.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes . . . and no children.

Dick borrows MAGGIE, his mother's maid, to teach Gloria to cook. But she refuses to learn, to the great disgust of MOTHER GREGORY. Then Maggie leaves, because of Gloria's wild parties.

Gloria hires RANGCHILD SWANSON, although Dick tells her they can't afford a maid. She swamps Dick with debt, and demands a new automobile.

Dick becoms dangerously ill with pneumonia. During the time of his recovery, Gloria asks Dick's secretary, MISS SUSAN BRIGGS, to give her $200 of Dick's money. She explains that she needs it for the house, so Miss Briggs gives it to her. Then Gloria lends the money to STANLEY WAYBURN, an out-of-work actor with whom she is infatuated. Wayburn plans to use the money to go to New York to look up a job.

A few days before he goes, Gloria and he are out driving in her car, when they have an accident. Wayburn leaves Gloria lying under the wrecked car, goes for help, and disappears. His cigaret case is found lying under the car, and when Dick sees it, he goes to the hospital to see Gloria and forces a confession from her about her friendliness with Wayburn.

Weeks pass Gloria finds her life very stale without Wayburn. Then her friend, MAY SEYMOUR, wife of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, tells Gloria that there has been much gossip about he affair with Wayburn. Her friends begin to shun her.

May gives a party which includes Gloria, JIM CAREWE, a man who half in love with May, and some of his gay friends. Gloria leaves early. She's "blue" and depressed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The delicatessen was a mile away on George Street. And when Gloria returned May's "party" was under way.

Ann Somers was making cinnamon toast in the kitchen. She was a shy little widow with mouse-colored hair and big gray eyes. She was very popular with men. She let them all make love to her and then she cried about it afterwards. Apparently it made a great hit with them.

Jim Carewe called her "the red lily."

"Ann, you're some kid," he was aying to her when Gloria came into he kitchen. "You know doggoned, well that you're not going to marry Ted Sawyer. Why don't you tell him so, instead of letting him dangle in the wind?"

Ann went on buttering her toast. She hadn't seen Gloria come into the kitchen.

"Well, I've got to have someone to take me around . . . since you won't, Jim," she answered softly. "Ted does as well as anyone."

Gloria coughed and cleared her throat.

"The nasty little cat!" she said to herself. "I'll bet she's trying to land Jim because of his money. In the meantime she's keeping this Ted hanging around in case Jim doesn't bite! Why can't Jim see through her?"

What fools men were to let women pull the wool over their eyes the way they did! Gloria felt like shaking Jim Carewe as she watched him pat Ann Somer's shoulder.

May was dancing the Texas Tommy for Ted Sawyer and Jim Collins, the two nice young salesmen from Jim's office.

Presently Jim came in with a tray of "horse's necks."

"Ann says lunch is ready," he said. "Isn't this a good party, boys?"

Everyone but Gloria seemed to think it was a good party. She couldn't dance because of her bandaged arm and shoulder. She didn't want her horse's neck or her cigaret. She felt "blue" somehow.

At 4 o'clock she went upstairs and got her hat.

"Good-by," she said to May, as she and Jim danced past the living-room door where she was standing. "Just let me sneak away without saying 'good-by' to the others. They won't miss me."

"Whatsa matter?" May asked. "Lost your pep, or don't you like my party?"

May stopped dancing and shoved Carewe down into an armchair.

"Park yourself there for a minute, Jim," she said. "I want to talk to Gloria."

She came out into the hall, closing the doors behind her as she came. She sat down on the bottom step of the stairs and looked up at Gloria with puzzled eyes.

"What's the matter with you, anyway?" she asked. "I've noticed that you've been singing the blues to yourself, all day. You haven't had a lit. of a good time, have you?"

Gloria shook her head.

"No," she confessed, "I haven't. "I feel awfully 'blah,' somehow or other, today."

"You're worrying about that sap, Wayburn," May said with sudden bluntness. "And you're a fool to do it! I've had his number ever since the night of your party when he made such a fuss over Myra Gail. He's some sheik . . . At least, he kids himself that he is!"

Gloria looked intently at her fingernails.

"Stan's left town," she said at last. "So don't worry about him and me any more . . . And I don't know what's the matter with me, May. Honestly."

But she did know.

She was terribly lonely without Wayburn.

"What's the use of pretending?" she asked herself on the way home through the streets, warm and sunny in the late afternoon quiet. "I'm homesick for Stan.— That's what's the matter with me. That's all that's wrong with me."

Wayburn had filled her idle days with interest, for months past.

When there was nothing else on hand, he was always ready to go for a drive or a hike with her. He always had a new dance to teach her . . . or the latest New York hit to sing to her

He had a ready laugh and a wealth of funny stories. He was amusing. Gloria had always called him her "one-man show."

Now that he was gone, timehung heavily on her hands. She didn't know what to do with herself all day long.

"I'm lost without Stan. That's about the size of it," she told herself, as she turned the corner of her own street.

The mother of the Donburg twins was just ahead of her, followed by her lovely off-spring on roller skates.

Across the street two of the neighbors stood gossiping on the driveway between their houses. Gloria looked at them, curiously.

They seemed happy and contented in their placid, deep-bosomed maturity . . . those two women.

"But I wonder if they really are," Gloria asked herself. "Or are they sick and tired of married life, like I am?"

She quickened her steps and caught up with Mrs. Donberg.

"Hello, there!" said the twins' mother. "It's nice to see you around home again. I tried to get to the hospital to see you, but the twins were both sick in bed with bronchitis, and I never poked my nose outside the house for two weeks!"

She sighed. "It's just one thing after another for a woman, isn't it?" she asked. "Now it's the spring sewing, and then the canning season will be here, and after that the fall cleaning and sewing! . . . My goodness, I don't get time to do half the things I'd like to do?"

Gloria looked at her intently. Was this little, bright-eyed smiling woman discontented like herself?"

"What would you like to do, really?" Gloria asked her.

Mrs. Donberg laughed.

"Well," she said, "I've had three cans of blue paint up on my broom-closet shelf for three months," she said, "and I know it sounds silly to say it, but I just can't seem to find time to paint the twins' bedroom set with it! That's what I'd really enjoy. Fixing up my house so it would be pretty, like yours, Mrs. Gregory."

Gloria's interest flagged.

She certainly had nothing in common with the little "hausfrau" beside her!

She said goodby to her and walked on.

Dick was in the side-yard transplanting some cannas along the house.

"Hello, where have you been all day?" he greeted her.

"At May's house," Gloria answered briefly.

Dick ran up the front steps and opened the door for her. He followed her into the house.

He asked her how May was. He told her that Mrs. Gordon had telephoned an invitation to spend the day with her, tomorrow.

But Gloria knew that that was not what he had come into the house to say.

He said it leaning up against the newel-post at the foot of the stairs, nervously tapping the trowel he still held, on the polished wood.

"Doc Seymour thinks I ought to go away for a rest," he said. "How would you like to go with me to Kawartha Lakes for a couple of weeks, or so? It would do us both good."

Gloria's eyes narrowed.

"Is your mother going along, by any chance?" she asked, biting off the words, like little bits of ice.

"We—el, Doc Seymour thinks she ought to go along," he began. "She's not getting over her operation as well as he hoped . . . ."

Gloria interrupted him, snappishly. "Is she going?" she asked sharply. "Now don't hedge. Dick! She is going, isn't she?"

"I don't see how I can very well tell her you don't want her with us," he said. "After all, she's my mother, Glory."

"Well, go with her, then! But count me out!" Gloria cried passionately. "I wouldn't go to the most wonderful place on earth, with your mother, Dick! I can't stand her!"

Angry tears sprang to her eyes. But she brushed them away with the back of her hand, and ran upstairs.

She went into the little taffeta-hung room that had been hers since the beginning of Dick's illness. She locked the door behind her.

In a moment Dick was there, rattling the knob.

"Open the door, Glory," he pleaded "and we'll talk this thing over sensibly . . . . What's the use of your taking it this way? Even if Mother goes with us, you won't have to see much of her . . . . Open the door, please!"

MAKE REPAIRS ALNWICK ROADS

Council Also Sat as a Court of Revision on Assessments.

BUILD MEMORIAL

ROSENEATH, June 2—The Alnwick Township Council held its May meeting in the town hall, Roseneath, on Saturday afternoon with all members present.

Councillors Brown and Parker reported on the condition of roads in the north end where they had been sent as a committee with Reeve Mauncey. They had given a job to R. McCracken to repair the wharf at McCracken landing and also one to George Watt to repair the road leading to McCracken's landing. They reported that West's hill on the boundary was in a very bad condition with the railing broken at a point where there was a drop of from 25 to 30 feet. There are signs up at this hill and the clerk was instructed to get information regarding the length of time that these signs were lawful and would stand between the township and danger.

Jos. Dunnet asked for 1 day gravelling with four teams which he received.

Mr. Elder was given authority to repair the road at Elders' corner where it will either have to be raised or widened to protect it from the water.

A delegation was present from the Indian Reserve at Alderville with W. R. Coyle, the agent, as spokesman. Mr. Coyle outlined his case in a very able and appealing manner. The Alderville band has been talking of erection of something in commemoration of their soliders for the last four year, and at last they have got down to business and are working hard to raise funds to the extent of $2500, the cost of a cenotaph. Mr. Coyle is the chairman of this committee with J. D. Hayden of Cobourg a very active worker in co-operation. Mr. Coyle appealed to the council for a grant which he said he thought they richly deserved. At the time of the war out of an adult male population of 66, thirty-two enlisted and ten paid the supreme sacrifice on Flanders Fields. Mr. Coyle spoke very feelingly of the Indians in whose cause he appears to be bound heart and soul.

Reeve Mauncey replied that this was rather sudden and the council would give his request serious consideration and report to him.

A delegation from the Women's Institute was present to ask for the grant of fifty dollars made by he 1924 council. They were told to present a bill of the expenditure to the caretaker at the next meeting and they would be paid accordingly as a caretaker had not been under salary for the full year.

The following accounts were ordered paid: Arthur Braithwaite, cartage, $2.64; Archie Mauncey, grant on wire fence, $15.41; Jas. Robins, work, $10.50.

Court of Revision

The Alnwick Township Council met on Saturday to hear any appeals that might be made against the assessments. Reeve Mauncey was appointed chairman.

The first appeal was that of Chas. Sherwin who owns a farm on the border of the village, in fact a large portion of the village is built on what belonged originally to the farm. In the past two years Mr. Sherwin has sold some four or five lots and his farm is assessed more than it was previous to the disposal of the lots. Also he claimed that he was assessed for 97 acres when he didn't have over 90. Councillor Parker objected to lowering it, basing his objection on what he himself is paying. He said Mr. Sherwin was assessed for $21 an acre on choice land while he was assessed for $15.50 an acre on a farm that was not to be compared with Mr. Sehrwin's, some of his land having hills that could not be driven up let alone worked.

It was moved by Councillors Parker and Brown that this appeal be not allowed, but the motion was defeated. It was then moved by Councillors Braithwaite and Timlin that Mr. Sherwin's assessment be lowered $100.—Carried.

The next case was that of J. D. Hayden of Cobourg who appealed against his assessment of $900 on Hickory island. Mr. Hayden had his solicitor, T. Hall, K.C., with him. He thought that he was assessed out of all reason in comparison with the farm land in the township. The council thought that this summer resort was a trifle different than farm land. Mr. Hall thought that Rock Island should be the governing principle. Finally a resolution, moved by Councillor Timlin and Reeve Mauncey, carried, lowering Mr. Hayden's assessment $100.

The third and last appeal was that of Mr. Thos. McCracken on his land 22 acres of which he declared, would not even grow grass and he did n't think he should be assessed $800 on 58 acres containing this poor land but the council thought differently and on motion of Councillors Braithwaite and Parker his appeal was disallowed.

The assessor was authorized to strike off two dogs, which had been killed since assessed, from Mrs. D. Douglas' list.

Considerable discussion took place regarding the rate of assessment of Indian land rented by white tenants. Mr. Parker, the only member of last year's council, was in favor last year of the high rates but apparently he had a wrong understanding of the situation and when it was explained to him at this board he said that he said that he had changed his mind entirely and would have voted differently on McCrackens' appeal had he it to do over again as he was basing it on rented Indian land. On motion of Reeve Mauncey and Councillor Braithwaite the assessmet of Indian land was reduced from $15-$10-$6 to $10-$8 and $6.

Considering there had to be some changes in this list the court was adjourned until Saturday, June 27, at 1 o'clock p.m. so as to give every ratepayer a fair chance.

REALITY OF UNION IN CAVAN CHURCH

First Official Service Will Be Held on June 14.

CAVAN CAVAN, June 2. — The service in Cavan church will commence at seven-thirty instead of seven p.m., for June, July and Aug. Sunday school will be held at half-past ten in the morning during those months.

The Cavan Sunday school anniversary services will be held morning and evening, Sunday, June 14.

The Rev. R. B. Ferris, B.A., general secretary of the Ontario Educational Council, Toronto will be the preacher for the occasion.

On account of the conference the services are withdrawn on the Cavan circuit on June 7.

Anniversary Sunday (June 14) will be the first official services of the Union church at Cavan.

As the Rev. Mr. Ferris has been a Presbyterian minister, and Rev. R. L. Richards will be present two former denominations will be represented in the pulpit.

One feature of the evening service will be welcoming any who wish to join with the Union church, taking it as their church in which to worship.

Annual Garden Party.

On Monday evening, June 15, the annual garden party will be held.

The programme will be given by an organized boys' class of Murray street Baptist church, Peterborough.

NEW RULER.

Major-General Sir John Lawrence Baird, a member of Britain's diplomatic service for years, is the new Governor-General of Australia. He won the D. S. O. during the war and has a whole flock of honorary titles after his name.

PLANNING PICNIC AT INDIAN RIVER

Baseball Games and Other Sports Are on the Programme.

ON DOMINION DAY

INDIAN RIVER, June 2.—The warm weather and the showers have brightened up the crops.

The Indian River baseball teams are promising under the management of Harry Fitzgerald. They play Asphodel on Saturday evening, June 6th and intend to lay them aside.

The regular meeting of the I. R. F. Club will be held on Friday evening, June 5th. Mr. Davidson hopes to see a good attendance and a prepaartion for the second annual picnic to be held on July 1st.

Mr. James Bowens and Fred White, who have so ably handled the soft drinks in the past, are of the opinion that they can do much better since the 4.4 is considered a soft drink.

The Asphodel and I. R. baseball teams are preparing for a match, also the Sixth Line and Drummond's Station. The latter are old rivals. More will be said in the near future of the sports, etc.

The I. F. F. Club has just got in a car of flour and feed.

APPEALS DISPOSED OF BY TOWNSHIP

Some Assessments Were Reduced While Others Remain as Assessed.

KEENE, June 2.—The Municipal Council met as a Court of Revision on Wednesday, May 27 and the following appeals were disposed of:

Mr. Craft appealed against his assessment on Lot 26, Concession 3. On motion it was reduced to $300.

Mr. Bailey on behalf of the Canada Cement Co. appealed against the assessment on their property. On motion assessment reduced $130.

Mr. Edgar appealed against assessment on Lots 27 and 28, Concession 5. On motion assessment confirmed.

Mr. Mark Manley appealed against assessment of east half Lot 18, Concession 10. Moved by Mr. Comrie, seconded by Mr. Anderson, that the assessment stand.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Reid, seconded by Mr. Devlin, that he be reduced $50. Assessment confirmed.

Mrs. Maria O'Connor appealed against assessment on eastern part Lot 31, Concession 12. Assessment confirmed.

Jame Weir appealed against assessment on summer cottage at Campbelltown. Assessment confirmed.

Eva May Miller was assessed for east half Lot 19, Concession 5 and southwest quarter of Lot 19, Concession 4, instead of Mrs. Wilkins.

The court adjourned for 1925.

PERCY COUNCIL HEARD APPEALS

Only One of Five Objections to Assessments Was Sustained.

COUNCIL MEETING

(By Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, June 3.—Sitting as a Court of Revision, with every member present, the Percy Township Council dealt Monday with five appeals against the assessment, which for the past four years has been made by Arthur Wilson of Warkworth. All of the appeals were disallowed except that of W. J. Barrie, who secured a reduction of $100 on some farm property which the Assessor had rated at $1,200.

The most important case to come before the court was that of Miss A. Haight, Principal of the Warkworth Continuation School, who objected to pay an income tax levied on $1,200 of her annual salary of $2,000. Miss Haight taught in Warkworth the latter half of last year, and her earnings did not amount to sufficient to render her liable to income tax. A lawyer had told her that she could be assessed in 1925 only for her income the previous year, and that the Council had no right to compute her income for parts of two years.

Reeve McCubbin, Councillor Sybser and other members denied that they were doing anything of the kind. The Reeve read the clause in the Assessment Act which provides that when the income of the previous year cannot be ascertained the computation is based on that of the current 12 months. Miss Haight had told Assessor Wilson that she was now earning $2,000 a year and she was charged on $1,200 of this amount, the balance being legally exempted.

When the matter was explained to her Miss Haight gracefully accepted the situation and consented to pay the tax.

Assessment Nearly a Million.

The total assessed value of Percy Township and the police village of Warkworth this year is $996,378,50, a slight decrease from 1924, when it was over a million.

The population is 2,201. There were 26 births and six deaths in the township during the past year.

The canine population is 345.

Church Property Values.

Only two of the churches in the township are situated outside of the village, at Dartford and at Norham. The land held by all the churches is assessed at $1,125, and the value of the buildings is placed on the assessment roll at $29,300. The Warkworth Catholic Church property stands highest on the list at $10,000; the Presbyterian second at $7,000, and the Methodist property third with an assessed value of $5,000.

Grant $150 to Fair.

Bert Armstrong, Secretary, J. F. Freure, Treasurer, and Ben Buchanan, Director, of the Percy Agricultural Society, appeared before the Council to ask for the annual grant. Secretary Armstrong, who opened the proceedings, said that the deputation would set no figure, preferring to leave the amount to the discretion of the Council.

Mr. Freure: "We reduced the debt on the Fair property by about $400 last year. We receive grants from the Province, from the county and township and about $400 or $500 from individuals, the village of Warkworth helping us to the extent of between $200 and $300."

Councillor Laver said he had been connected with the Fair for over 30 years, and he realized that about 90 per cent. of the people in the township received no benefit from it. While ready to support the Fair personally, he did not think it just to the people referred to to compel them to help pay for it.

Mr. Freure: "All the Fairs in Ontario would have to close if the different grants were withheld. The $1,400 taken at the gate on the day of our Fair is all expended in the payment of prizes."

Councillor Laver: "I have been told that the Warkworth Fair could be conducted without a township grant."

Mr. Freure: "Perhaps it could, but not if all the other grants were withheld. It is the grants from your public bodies that encourage individual support."

Deputy-Reeve Nelson is a Director and Councillor Poole is President of the Fair Board. For that reason both hesitated to take a prominent part in the discussion. The former, however, said that all the years he had been in the Council he had never opposed a grant, and Councillor Poole added that a Fair could not be run on wind. No person had ever come to him with an objection to a grant.

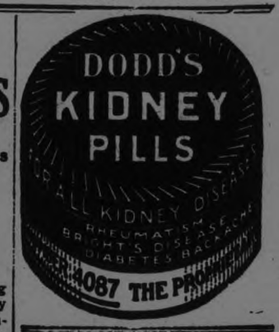
Councillors Sybser and Laver were in favor of a small grant, less than the $200 given last year.

Director Buchanan: "We have the best Fair in this part of Ontario, and the support we have received from this Council has helped to make it so."

Reeve McCubbin said that the people in Warkworth had no playground by the Fair site. In the past five years the Council had contributed $1,000 to pay for the buildings, and it would never do now to let them go down. The situation was different in Campbellford where there was a large rink aside from the Fair buildings altogether.

Before leaving the room the deputation hinted that $300 would meet their ideas of an adequate grant, but the amount actually allowed, on motion of Councillors Sykes and Laver was $150, or $50 less than last year.

The greater part of the session was devoted to the hearing of applications from taxpayers for the improvement of roadbeds and the putting in of culverts.



LADIES AID HOLDING GARDEN PARTY SOON

Plan to Remodel Church Hall—Man Kicked By Playful Horse.

NORHAM, June 2.—The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Aid was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clem Palmateer. The new president, Mrs. David Evans, occupied the chair. The meeting was opened by singing "Take the Name of Jesus with You" after which the pastor led in prayer. The scripture lesson was read by Miss Madge Cliffe. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Twenty members responded to the roll call. After some discussion about remodelling the church hall by moving the kitchen to the opposite end of the room so that it might be used as a dressing room for actors at concerts as well as a kitchen. Samuel Gummer, John Wesley Newman and the pastor Rev. John F. Everson, were appointed a committee to look over the ground and ascertain the probable cost and to report at a future meeting of the Aid.

It was also decided to hold a garden party on the church lawn, serving supper in the sheds, on June 24. Mrs. Oney Isaac, Mrs. Lorne Evans, Mrs. J. Wesley Newman, Mrs. John F. Everson and Mrs. David Evans were appointed a program committee for the occasion, to report at a special meeting of the Aid to be held at the home of Mrs. Oney Isaac on Thursday, June 11th. Refreshments provided by Mrs. Ivan Denike, Mrs. Lorne Evan and Miss Madge Cliffe were served after which the meeting was closed by singing "God be with you till we meet again" and the Mizpah Benediction.

While holding his horse out on grass a few days ago, Abijah P. Spafford escaped serious injury, when the animal in fun reared and backed up, knocking him down and injuring his neck.

C. Hiram Curtis made a business trip to Campbellford and Stirling last Wednesday.

A number of people from this vicinity attended the temperance meeting in Warkworth last Tuesday.

The sympathy of the neighborhood is extended to Mrs. John Diamond in the loss of her brother, John Moore, of Port Hope, who passed away early Monday morning, May 25th.

Mrs. Murney McCann and little daughter Noreen, are visiting her sister, Mrs. Hazleton, of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ward, of Milemma, Ohio, left for home by motor on Thursday morning after spending a week with Mrs. Sidney Palmateer.

Simon Moore of Detroit is the guest of his sister, Mrs. John Diamond.

Among those from a distance who attended the temperance convention at Warkworth on Tuesday were: Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Glover, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Massey and Mrs. Lorn Darling, all of Morganston.

Watch Your Daughter

Chatham, Ont.—"I gave Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to my daughter and it did her a world of good. She had always been delicate, had functional disturbances and was very nervous and weak. She also had a lot of trouble with her stomach. But after I began giving her the 'Favorite Prescription' she did not suffer, her nerves were good, she began to get stronger and finally developed into a healthy, robust girl. And what 'Favorite Prescription' did for my daughter, it will do for other girls if they will only try it."—Mrs. Fred Crouchman, 30 Adelaide St. N. All dealers.

MEIGHEN LOST TARIFF MOTION

Called For Revision on Protective Basis, But Was Defeated.

VOTE 147 TO 37.

OTTAWA, June 3. — (Canadian Prerss).—By a majority of 110 votes, the House of Commons last night defeated an amendment moved by the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition leader, calling for an immediate revision of tariff on a definitely and consistently protective basis. The vote stood, for 37, against 147. The Conservatives present voted solidly in favor of the Meighen resolution. Liberals, Progressives, Independents and J. S Woodsworth, the Labor member present, voted against. A motion to go into supply then carried.

LUSH MEADOWS NEAR MARMORA

Dairy Farmers Report Heavy Flow of Milk—Hay is Promising.

MARMORA, June 3. — A tour of the surrounding district reveals the fact that meadows show promise of a good hay season, and grain has nicely started its growth. The blossom on fruit trees makes many a pretty picture. Dairy farmers tell of rich yields of milk and generally speaking, farmers seem satisfied with the season's progress thus far.

Following regular meeting of Marmora L.T.B. on Monday evening, the sisters and brethren adjourned to the home of Mr. Allan McHarvey, where W. M. J. Cottrell, on behalf of the Lodge, presented Bro. and Sister D. Robertson with a handsome 8-day clock to mark the occasion of their recent wedding. Both were taken completely by surprise, yet suitably responded to the speech which honored them.

Revival Meetings.

Revival meetings in connection with the Free Methodist Church were held in the White Hall on Sunday by the District Elder Rev. Lee. On Saturday evening Miss Hughes of Picton, also of the same denomination, addressed an open air gathering near the St. James Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Emmorey and Mr. and Mrs. Adam McGarvey, motored to Belleville on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Yeomans, and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Henderson and family of Havelock, were visitors at Mrs. Abe Smith's on Sunday.

Mrs. George Mantle made a trip to Belleville on Monday.

Mr. Joe Callery was a visitor to Havelock on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nobes and Mrs. T. Rowan of Sidney Township visited at Mrs. William McCoy's on Sunday.

Mrs. George Wilks arrived home from the Havelock hospital on Sunday.

DEATH HOAX PAIR MARRIED AT LAST

Woman Paroled After Three Years—Burned Corpse as Blind.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., June 3.—(United News.)—Some of the dust that has been gathering for three years over the story of the famous Lake Nebasgamen death hoax was brushed aside here yesterday when its perpetrators, Dorothy Anderson and Edward J. Sailstad, applied for a license to marry. Sailstad, who was formerly a wealthy phonograph manufacturer of Eau Clair, Wis., has been working at Oshkosh, Wis., as a mechanic, waiting for his "sunshine girl." She was recommended for a parole yesterday from the Industrial Home For Women at Tyacheedah, where she had been confined for the last three years for her part in the death hoax. Sailstad was confined in the reformatory at Greenbay, Wis., until recently.

Five years ago Miss Anderson and Sailstad, a married man, placed a corpse they had removed from a grave in a cottage on Lake Nebasgamen and burned it down to cover their elopement. Their hopes that the body would be accepted as Sailstad's were realized for a time. Sailstad's wife was awarded large sums in life insurance. She remarried. Then, after two years Sailstad, who had been living with Miss Anderson in California, was recognized. He and Miss Anderson were returned to Wisconsin for trial and were found guilty of arson. Sailstad's wife secured a divorce.

Before being separated to serve their terms, Sailstad and Dorothy exchanged promises of love and marriage.

MINISTER TO U. S. TO BE CHOSEN

Premier King Announces That Right Man is Hard to Secure.

ALLOWED $60,000.

OTTAWA, June 3. — (Canadian Press).—The Canadian Government hopes to make the appointment of a Canadian Minister to Washington very shortly, Premier King announced in the House of Commons last night when a vote of $60,000 for Canadian representation in the United States was before the Commons for consideration.

The Prime Minister said that the Government had not found it easy to secure the person it wanted to represent Canada and referred to the necessary personal experiences which went with such a post.

thousands have been derived of work.

Akin to this is a resolution urging the government to provide regulations that will safeguard our factories and their employees until the depreciated currencies of other countries are restored to normal, and amend the anti-dumping provisions of the tariff act to prevent the dumping of goods into Canada.

Limit Taxation.

On the subject of taxation it is pointed out in a general resolution that there is a great deal of duplication and overlapping in assessment, and the collection of taxes in Canada and it is accordingly urged that a policy be adopted which will define the courses of revenue to which the Dominion, Provincial, and Municipal governments will be limited for taxation purposes.

The resolution calls for the abolition of the sales tax as quickly as possible and for the raising of the necessary revenue through customs tariff, thus developing the country, and creating new taxable wealth.

There is also a resolution calling for additional and improved steamship services between Canada and South America, without delay, and for the establishment of adequate trade commissioners' services in that region.

WOMAN INJURED BLAMES TRUCK

Mrs. Harvey Hall Upset From Buggy, Crowded Off the Road.

OBTAINED NUMBER.

OMEMEE, June 2.—On Monday afternoon while Mrs. Harvey Hall was driving to the village for her husband with a horse and buggy, she suffered an accident, the marks of which will remain with her for some time. Mrs. Hall was only a short distance from home when she met a truck loaded with household effects proceeding north. She turned out as far as possible and claims the driver of the truck 'hogged' the road. The horse, which is very quiet, became frightened and jumped, upsetting the buggy and its occupants into the deep ditch, with the result that Mrs. Hall suffered a number of bruises and a general shaking up. The driver of the truck did not stop, but a passerby managed to secure his license number in the hope that he may be made in future to give a little share of the road to a lady, and also bear other expenses.

Mission Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was held in the Sunday school room on Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of winding up all matters of business before the disbanding of the society. The president, Mrs. J. A. Black occupied the chair and conducted the devotional exercises having chosen the scripture lesson from Proverbs, the 8th chapter. Sentence prayers were offered by Mrs. Mackey, Mrs. O. G. Williamson and Mrs. Black.

The roll call then followed, each member answering with a verse of scripture containing the word 'Wisdom.' The minutes of the previous meeting were given by the secretary, Mrs. E. H. Mitchell, followed by a report of members and attendance during the six months' continuation of the society. The treasurer of the supply fund and the treasurer of the general fund then gave detailed reports of all monies raised during the half year. A motion was passed that all money on hand be forwarded to the provincial treasurer so that if either the Unionists or non-concurring members re-organize they do so with a clean sheet.

The bale to the Northwest Mission school was discussed and as all donations were on hand, it was packed at the close of the meeting.

Letter of Condolence.

It was unanimously decided to send a letter of condolence to Mrs. A. Laidley, who recently lost her sister, Miss Feir, the death having been due to a fall which she received while attending the May missionary meeting.

A splendid report of the Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society held at Cobourg last week was given by Mrs. E. H. Mitchell and added upon by Mrs. Black (both of whom were delegates) after which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered them.

Mrs. Black then in a few words spoke of the disbandment of the Society and expressed her heartfelt thanks for all kindnesses shown her while filling the office she was about to retire from, and in appreciation of Mrs. Black's services the members present rose to their feet in honor of same.

Mrs. Williamson then asked all the members present who wished to re-organize to remain at the close of the meeting, which was done.

The closing hymn was "He Leadeth Me," followed by the Lord's prayer in concert.

The hostesses for the day were Mrs. S. J. Mackey and Mrs. F. G. Sandy.

CANADA'S CLAIM IS PERPLEXING

United States' Officials Had Never Heard it Made Before.

TO CLAIM NEW LAND.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(Canadian Press).—Officials here are somewhat perplexed at news despatches from Ottawa, indicating that Canada expects to claim any lands that may be discovered to the northward of the present Dominion. So far as high officials are informed, no such claim ever has been asserted before, and no overtures on the subject made to other governments.

It has been the intention of the MacMillan-Navy expedition, which is to set out next month for the region in question, to raise the United States flag over any new land they may find. Such a land probably would be comparatively valueless, however, except as a possible future base for aviation, and there is no thought here that any serious controversy will arise on the subject between the American and Canadian Governments.

RECOMMENDS AN EXPORT SCHEME FOR MARKETING

Expert Engaged By Ontario Government Turns in Report on Markets.

WANTS CONFERENCE.

To Discuss National Trade Mark and Creation of Funds.

TORONTO, June 3.—(Canadian Press).—The creation of export marketing machinery, national or provincial, is the concrete recommendation to the Ontario Government of C. W. Baxter, the marketing expert, who was commissioned some time ago to investigate the possibilities for the sale of Ontario agricultural products in the United Kingdom, and whose report was made public yesterday by the Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture. The report will be laid before the Agricultural Enquiry Committee of the Legislature.

The recommendations of Mr. Baxter is for a conferernce of representatives of all the provinces, its object being specified as the discussion of the export marketing situation with special reference to the following points:

The adoption of a national brand or trade mark.

The establishment of national export grades, grade designations and regulations.

Providing a Federal inspection service which may issue export grading certificates with power to refuse the granting of certificates unless the product is in accordance with adopted standards.

A national advertising program, funds for which may be provided by a small per package and per carcass charge.

The creation of a fund which may be drawn upon during the process of adjustment made necessary by reason of over-production or reduced purchasing power.

The funds for the purpose of making adjustments are to be provided jointly by the producers, the Provincial and Federal Governments, and the exporters in proportion to the tonnage exported.

MINING FOR LUMBER.

CHICAGO, June 3.—Mining for timber goes one in a swamp not far from Chicago. Thousands of years ago a storm flattened a forest of white oak, but some chemical in the soil or water preserved the wood except for a thin layer of decay on the outside of the logs. The wood brings high prices.

CLEAN LIFE IS MOST POWERFUL

Influence of a Christian Man Leaves Permanent Effect for Good.

NORHAM SERMON.

NORHAM, June 3.—The men's service held in the Methodist church on Sunday evening was a splendid success. The church, which was beautifully decorated with flowers was filled to capacity with people from Meyersburg, Codrington, Morganston, Dartford and Oak Heights. A carefully prepared program was carried out without a break. Twenty-two men took part in the service. A male choir of fourteen voices rendered three special selection of music. The congregation head Psalm No. 1. Prayer was offered by Messrs. Fred Laver and Lewis Denike. Martin Peterson read Exodus, 20 (1-17). The hymns were announced by Messrs. Fred H. Huycke, David Evans and Richard Knight. The Pastor, Rev. J. F. Everson, spoke on "A Clean Life," from Phil. 4, and 8th verse. Following is a summary of the address:

A man's influence cannot be stayed and will live on in the lives of others long after he has died. Piety, gentleness, zeal, earnestness, revealed in a quiet, tackful Christian way has untold influence for good. If children are set a good example of Christian living in the home, they will never forget it. Home should be something more than four walls and a roof. It is sunshine and not expensive furnishings that make hame what it ought to be. These are great days for the fathers of Canada, who should themselves be 100 per cent. Canadian and imbue their offspring with the true spirit of citizenship and manhood.

Heroic Conduct.

Suffering, service and sacrifice accomplish great results. Heroes are made not in moments, but by weeks, months and years. It takes a hard, long, steady pull to win a victory. To stand like the anvil beneath the blows of the hammer and firmly resist the force of repeated temptation is grand and heroic. To accept pay for one's service is no sin; but no price which can be weighed in gold can remunerate a man for the sale of one ounce of his manhood. When conscience is seared or shorn by evil transactions the wrong can never be fully healed.

Men who are serving this generation well are making a splendid contribution to the generations yet unborn. The men who work to influence others for good shall have an abundant reward. Every man is a link in the chain of destiny. It matters vastly more what kind of a man one drops out on the street each day than what kind of a ballot a man may drop into the ballot box once a year. A clean life is a national asset. A citizen who loves justice and hates evil is worth more to his country than a battleship.

Salt of Community.

The strength of any community can be determined by the number of men in the community, whose lives are clean, pure, honest, straight forward and who uphold the right and who are sensitive to every approach of evil. A clean life in business is worth more than cash; in religion, it is worth more than radium; in the home, it is worth more than gold; in society, it is worth more than culture; and in politics, it is worth more than brilliant statesmanship. Character is the crown-jewel of citizenship. Men with clean records are wanted, and are granted great privileges. The clean life is the most powerful thing in the world." John Wesley, who was carried to his grave by six poor men, and who left behind him two silver spoons and the Methodist Church is an example of power and influence.

An ancestor of David Livingstone, who was a descendant of the Scottish Highlanders, when dying, called his family to his bedside and said, "I have looked over our family history as far as I can trace it, and I have not found one dishonest man. You children inherit good blood. You have no excuse for doing wrong. Lads, be honest."

Don't work for applause; but work because you are inspired by a great principle and you will have an internal satisfaction that will abide with you through life.

A clean life will make your credit good at the bank.

Englishmen, Irishmen, Scotchmen, Welshmen, Canadians and Americans by birth or circumstances are identified with the foremost race in the world. A book written in English will be read around the world, and some years ago Gladstone predicted that by the year 2,000 there would be 600,000,000 of English-speaking people in the world. Canadians move on the high tide of time. Will we be true to our origin, to history and to destiny

Their Last Meeting.

Morganston Methodists held their last meeting as a Methodist congregation on Sunday afternoon. The pastor, Rev. James E. Beckel, of Castleton, gave a short address on "Entering the Union." Several hymns were sang at the service, all of which were over fifty years old. Mrs. Marcius Massey of Norham, but who until a year ago resided at Morganston and was a member of that congregation for over fifty years, sang a solo. Mrs. Massey is the oldest surviving member of the Morganston congregation.

Gerom F. Cryderman and family of Toronto, formerly of Norham, are visiting friends in this vicinity. Mr. Cryderman was for many years superintendent of the Norham Sunday School, but vacated that position about twenty years ago. He addressed the session of the school Sunday morning. The attendance was 94.

Modern Pavements Make Feet Tired

The miles and miles of hard surface roadways and side-walks are very wonderful, but, being hard, non-resilient, and excellent conductors of heat and cold, they torture our poor feet unmercifully.

It has been found that if tired, sore feet are bathed in warm water containing a few drops of Absorbine Jr. they will be delightfully cooled and refreshed.

But this is not the only use for Absorbine Jr. It is a liniment, antiseptic, and germicide in one—the handiest, most useful article in the family medicine cabinet.

Not only does it kill germs and prevent infection in open cuts and sores, hastening the healing—not only does it limber up to new freshness, tired, stiff muscles, but as a mouth wash, throat spray or gargle it protects you against wandering disease germs and leaves behind a pleasant, clean taste and odor. $1.25 a bottle at your druggist's.

Rev. James E. Beckel of Castleton left Monday morning for Oshawa, where Mrs. Beckel and family have been staying at her mother's for some time.

Mr. Nicholas Lean, who for several weeks has been seriously ill, is somewhat improved and was moved to his son, Hermon's, at Castleton last Saturday.

ST. LUKE'S W. A. CLOSING MEET

Interesting Reports Are Presented By Officers of Branches.

CERTIFICATES GIVEN.

The closing meeting of the W. A. of St. Luke's Church including the Girls' Branch and the Junior Branch took place last evening at the Rectory. There was a large number present. The meeting was opened by the Rector, with a hymn and prayers. The minutes of the last meeting were r d by Mrs. F. Whitehouse, and confirmed. The treasurer's report was then given by Mrs. T. H. Adams, after which reports were presented from the annual diocesan meetings by Mrs. H. Butcher, president of the Senior Branch, Miss Muriel Curtis of the Girls' Branch, and Miss Nora Gemmell of the Junior Branch.

These reports were very interesting, giving those who were not present at the conference a very clear idea of the work carried on in the W.A.

Certificates were then presented by the Rev. G. J. Bousfield to eight of the girls. These certificates were given for the mission study. This class is conducted by Miss Clara Adam, who takes great interest in this work. The following are pupils who received certificates: Audrey Heap, Muriel Davis, Nora Gemmell, Clemena Long, Margaret Whittaker, Connie Mason, Margaret Scott and Mary Scot.

Refreshments were then served, after which the meeting was brought to a close.

Mrs. G. J. Bousfield, superintendent of the Junior Girls' Branch, had on display a lovely quilt done by the girls.

MUSICAL RECITAL.

There was a good attendance in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening for the piano recital given by Miss Olga Fowler, pupil of Mrs. Pearl Burford Curtis of Toronto, assisted by Miss Winifred Evans, in violin selections. The programme was very attractive and Miss Fowler played in a manner that brought her much applause. She has a thorough grasp of technical intricacies, a splendid memory and plays with intelligent appreciation of her music. A firm touch and fine, clear, ringing tone were particularly apparent in the main number of her programme, the "Concerto Gruinor" by Mendelssohn, with orchestral accompaniment on second piano, played by Mrs. Curtis.

Miss Evans, a youthful pupil of Miss Edwina Palmer, was also accorded much appreciation for her well-played violin numbers. She played entirely from memory some difficult numbers, with attractive rounded tone and excellent bowing. Miss Fowler received a large number of lovely floral tributes and Miss Evans was the recipient of two very pretty bouquets. Miss Palmer acted as accompanist for the violin numbers.

The programme was as follows: "Gavotte" by Gluck-Brahms, 1st movement of the Moonlight Sonata, by Beethoven, "Ecosaisses," by Beethoven-Busoni, played by Miss Olga Fowler; "Sonata in D Major," by Handel, played by Miss Evans; "Kiss Waltz," by Scutt, "Three Ecosaisses," by Chopin, and "The Chase," by Paganini-Liszt, played by Miss Fowler; "Le Cygore," by Saint-Saens, "Orientale," by Cesaer Cui, and "Hungarian Dance No. 5," by Brahms-Joachim, played by Miss Evans; "Concerto Gruinor," by Mendelssohn, played by Miss Fowler and Mrs. Curtis.

WARKWORTH PERSONALS.

Mr. Hugh Leonard has returned to Buffalo, after spending the week-end at the parental home.

Mrs. Roy German and Dorothy are visiting relatives in Toronto.

GUESS IS WRONG, IT'S A NIGHTIE.

There's chic as well as comfort to this sleeveless night gown of satin striped voile with red poppies gracing its surface. The ties at the shoulder and belt are of red ribbon, and the skirt is cut in points finished with a picot edge. It is different, at any rate.

Locket Comes Home To Sorrowing Woman

WINNIPEG, Man., June 3. — (Canadian Press).—A little gold locket, pathetic in its broken condition, and still bearing verdigris caused by years of exposure on the battlefields of France, has come back to home at last. In September, 1916, it hung round the neck of Mrs. S. J. Bevan of this city and enclosed tiny snapshots of her husband and baby girl, Harriet. Today it is in Mrs. Bevan's possession again, but the clasp is gone and the photographs are stained and weather-worn. The baby girl is eight years old and the father who wore the locket joined the ranks of the heroes who fell at Vimy Ridge. Almost nine years from the day she last saw it, the locket arrives by registered mail, accompanied by a note from the Dominion Department of National Defence. The letter explained that the keepsake and the pictures had been forwarded from the Imperial Graves Commission to Ottawa, to be sent on to their owner. They had been found on the battlefield, it said. Clearly discernible on the back of the snapshots, themselves blurred almost beyond recognition, are the words "Baby Bevan," and Mr. Bevan's name and regimental number. He was with the First C.M.R.'s.

"I gave him the locket just as he was leaving," said Mrs. Bevan. "You see he had nothing of mine to take away with him, and he said he wanted something so much. It was the only thing I had so I just took it off my neck and gave it to him as he went away."

TRAFFIC PROBLEM OLD

LONDON, June 3.—London had its traffic troubles as far back as the beginning of the seventeenth century, according to an old book found in a public library. The city then was described as a place "of fogge and rotten mistes," suffering from traffic congestion "like mutton pies in a cook's oven."

FIRST WOMAN TO GRADUATE

Miss Fagan of Hamilton Leads in University of Alberta.

OTHER HONORS

EDMONTON, Alta., June 3. — (Canadian Press).—Miss Ethel Bertha Fagan of Hamilton, Ont., has the honor of being the first woman to graduate from the University of Alberta.

Before coming to Alberta to take her course, Miss Fagan was for ten years engaged in law work in Toronto. For two years of this time she was articled, and has a number of clients of her own. She found there were many women who preferred for different reasons to seek the advice of a woman in the matter of investment and she expects to work up this line of practice. However, Miss Fagan expects ultimately to go into social service work. This has been her goal for several years. Law training is said to be more helpful in this work.

To Miss Leone McGregor, Red Deer, Alberta, falls the triple distinction of being the first Alberta girl graduate in medicine, of winning the scholarship offered by the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Province of Alberta for the best record in the final year in medicine, and the Moshier Memorial Medal for general proficiency in the faculty of medicine. Pathology is Miss McGregor's chosen work, and she has received an appointment in the Provincial laboratory at the university.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

Mrs. F. D. Craig, 586 Water street, recommends the following recipe for butter tarts:

1 egg
1-4 cup butter
3-4 cup brown sugar
1-3 cup small seeded raisins
1 small teaspoon nutmeg or walnuts

Melt the butter, add brown sugar and beaten egg. Mix with one tablespoon of cream and bake in uncooked shells.

Cynthia Grey Says

Nearly three-fourths of the letters I receive are from these classes:

Girls who are looking for some formula to win the love of some young man they admire.

Girls who fear they are losing a man's love.

Girls who are jealous of some attractive flapper.

Girls who admit their efforts to win the attention of young Romeo has failed.

Through all these letters is one dominant tone. It belies the old verse about dashing young Lochinvars riding out of the west to capture a lady fair.

For these letters seem to say that the Lochinvars of to-day are not men but women.

There's probably many a woman who won't admit it, but it's a fact just the same that the women of today are pursuing the men, more than men are pursuing women.

And there is really nothing alarming to this fact. Why shouldn't a woman try to win a man she admires? Women no longer are slaves. They have just as many rights as men these days.

Weddings

MOORE—HAMILTON.

A very pretty wedding took place at three o'clock this afternoon, in the Mark street Methodist church, when Sara Hamilton, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hamilton, of Peterboro, became the bride of Rev. J. E. Moore, Ph.B., D.D., of Uxbridge, a former pastor of the Mark street church.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. Bamforth, B.A., assisted by Rev. S. G. Rork. The church was beautifully decorated with lilacs and ferns by the Ladies' Aid Society, of which the bride was a valued member. Mr. V. Boorman played the wedding march.

The bride who entered the church on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. John Speer, looked charming in a gown of silver grey satin, trimmed with uncurled ostrich mauve, with hat of grey, trimmed with mauve satin and silver lace.

She also wore a choker of grey and orchid pearls, and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon to the bridal party and their friends was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Speer, 38 Hunter street.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore left on the five-thirty train for their home at "Mooreland Place," Uxbridge, the bride travelling in an ensemble suit of olive green, with hat to match and rust tunic. The bridal party will be welcomed by a reception on their arrival at Uxbridge this evening.

Miss Hamilton was the recipient of many handsome presents from a large circle of friends in the city.

Belled Garters

NEW YORK, June 3 (United Press).—

Each Little Belle's in Tune
With Fashion
If Jingling Garters Are Her Passion!

Four young girls of high-school age tripped up Fifth Avenue and each person passing them stopped and listened. With every step came the sound of jingling bells, yet nowhere could these bells be located.

A block or so further on, a dashing young matron juggled a belltone that would make a cowboy weep. It had the reminiscent sound of a lead cow. But no bell could be seen.

At the ten-cent store the riddle solved itself. Dozens of women and girls thronged about the garter counter buying tiny brass bells to attach to their round garters. The pealing of bells appealed to them.

One might offer a few suggestions to the 'bell-ringers' of Fifth Avenue. For instance, a few close women friends might get together and work out a barber-shop harmony. By wearing a different tone on each leg, three friends would have six tones at their command. With a little tricky foot action, they could be their own brass band. Or—one might even do a little solo work. It has been done, you know! The polar bear at the circus pulled this stunt some years ago and it went good. He wore bells on his 'wrists' as well as his legs and shook one tone at a time. He had a pretty wide repertoire—considering.

But here's how they're wearing them! Twenty cents will buy enough bells for a pair of garters. Each little bell is sewed to the lower edge of the round garter forming a fringe of bells. Or a little cluster of bells hang from ribbons at the side of the garter. One can get a regular Santa Claus effect by applying more bells.

We doubt however, if the bell garter will be widely worn, for assuming that women dress to please men, the only bell a man is in tune with is the dinner bell!

What's Your BIRTHDAY

WEDNESDAY, June 3—If you are celebrating a birthday today, you will have a nervous, excitable nature that will greatly handicap your chances for success. It is displayed even in driving a car, as you never will make a good driver. You are born under the zodiacal sign of the Gemini, the twins, and because of this you can correct this fault by developing another trait. You have a latent but nevertheless strong will power, which you should develop by use. You will marry close to the age of 20, and your fiance or fiancee will be a brunet.

FISH LOSE FLAVOR.

Cod, haddock and halibut may be kept a day before using, but mackerel and whitefish lose their flavor if they stand.

PAPA LOVE MAMA? MAMA LOVE PAPA?

As a general thing, I'm a very easy man to engage in conversation. I'll listen to almost anything anybody feels like telling me.

But right here is where I draw the line—no translations from the celluloid!

I can't get up an interest at all in these verbal accounts of the eternal triangle, the rising young politician or the wild young flapper. The narrated activities of the social butterfly, the unfaithful husband and all the other cinema sinners leave me cold.

At least, they do when my wife sits down and says, "Now ,this girl meets this very attractive man at a friend's house. And this friend, who is in love with this other man, tells this chap that she doesn't thinnk this chap is worthy of her—"

See what I mean? There are always too many "thises" in the story for me.

So I always interrupt her and say, "Never mind, dear, I'll stop in and see the picture myself tomorrow."

NATURE LORE

By Wallace Havelock Robb.

One day, years ago, somebody discovered that the golden plover is a bit of a globe trotter, to put it mildly, for he was first noticed keeping house up in the sub-Arctic, and when winter came on, he was seen in the other ends of the earth, down not far from the South Pole.

Naturally folks began to keep tabs on old man plover, and he still has people guessing about his private life. He does about twenty-two thousand miles a year in the process of migration. How he manages to keep alive in the storms is a question.

These storms during the migrating season are the cause of death and suffering to many many birds. Just this year we had a terrible spring storm, and it overtook huge flocks of birds passing through New England on the way to Canada.

When the storm came on, the poor things had to make the best of it, and it was about the same thing as a fire in the forest, only the opposite in temperature. When there is a forest fire, man and beast forget their fear of each other and swim in the lake, side by side, and in the spring storm, the birds come to man for help. And the people of New England went out into the storm and looked for birds, bird lovers who understood, and picked up exhausted birds, warmed them in their hands, kept them until the storm was over, and then let them go. One man says that a hermit thrush in his town, came wobbling down into the main street and fluttered about in a dazed half frozen sort of way, and then, to the delight of everybody, it settled on the top of this man's auto radiator, and recovered with that warm spot to help it, and that car, with the engine running, stayed right where it was, in the middle of the road, until Mr. Thrush pulled himself together and flew.

The hermit thrush is at least the equal of the English sky lark, in song, for bird lovers who have heard them both, say so. He is shy and seldom appears in town, but after the storm, was very friendly and on the lawns with robins, eating worms. And some scientists say birds have no human intelligence. I ask you.

YOUR GARDEN

CUTTING FLOWERS FOR DECORATION.

The season of abundance of bloom is with us and all garden lovers are keen on keeping a good supply of flowers to brighten the rooms in the home.

Even in the cutting of flowers there are certain points which make for success in keeping them fresh for as long a time as possible. Some of these points I propose to consider. In the first place flowers should be cut when partially closed and not fully open to the sun. Cutting may be done either in the early morning, preferably, or in the late evening. Choose only those flowers which are absolutely fresh as indicated by the slight curling of the petals which have not fully opened. These will last the longest. Some flowers indeed are better cut in varying stages of the opening of the bud and allowed to open in water. A little experimenting should be carried on to determine just the right stage for the various flowers and even with varieties of the same flower. Freshness in open flowers may be told by the color and general apeparance and with a little experience one can tell just how fresh a flower may be.

Cut the stems on a slant with a sharp knife rather than use a pair of scissors or break them off. Then place them in water in a cool place for a time, after which they may be brought up and placed about the rooms. This should be attended to especially if the blooms must be cut in the heat of the sun or are to be shipped or carried any distance.

The third point is that of preserving the plant from which the bloom is cut, as in attempting to get long stems, very often the strength and future blooming of the plant are affected. Bulbs should be left with sufficient foliage to nature them. That is the juices from the foliage pass back into the bulb after it has flowered and produce the strength for another season's flowering. There is not much danger in cutting the Narcissi and Daffodils with their numerous leaves but there is with Tulips. At least two leaves should be left on the stem for this purpose.

The Peony can also be harmed by too close cutting, as here again the foliage is required to form next year's buds and two leaves at least should be left on every stem. In the case of Gladioli the corm (bulb), will be sacrificed if the stem is cut close to the ground. If cut so that three or four sets of leaves remain, however, good sized corms will be matured for the following season's bloom.

Roses will do much better if the flowers are cut a certain way and not haphazard. The rose should be cut so that five leaf foliage is left upon the stem, and flower buds will start growth very soon. If cut, however, to three leaves anywhere on the stem other flower stems develop very slowly if at all.

Many other plants also will do better for careful cutting and their habits should be studied in this regard. It is a lamentable fact that when persons are cutting flowers (pulling and breaking them when in public or semi-public places) they waste the nearest spot instead of spreading over the entire area, taking a few here and there. If only two or three are taken from a group, here and there ,a surprising number of flowers may be cut without any apparent effect on the total quantity of bloom. Also when taking bloom from bushes, do not confine your operations to one side, or one or two branches, and above all do not break off more than you can use.

SIXTH STRAIGHT FOR SYRACUSE AS TORONTO LOSE THIRD IN ROW READING WINS 13-INNING GAME

Stars Hammered Pair of Leaf Pitchers and Won By Wide Margin.

BIRDS RECOVER.

Five Home Runs Helped Baltimore End Losing Streak of Six.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., June 2.—Syracuse won its sixth straight game here today, slugging its way to a 10 to 2 victory over Toronto. Smith, who started in the box for the Maple Leafs, was hammered for ten hits including homers by Taggert and Griffith in four innings and was relieved by Englishman with none out in the fifth. Reinhardt allowed nine scattered hits and was backed by strong support. Score:

Baltimore 13; Jersey City 3.

BALTIMORE, June 2.—Baltimore today ended its losing streak, which had reached six straight, by trouncing Jersey City, 13 to 3. Five home runs were made by the champions, including Johnny Roser's fifteenth of the season. The homers accounted for eight runs. Roberts was driven from the mound in the fifth on four consecutive hits, the last Roser's circuit clout. Cantrell, who relieved, was also hit soundly. Thomas allowed nine hits but scattered them so that the Skeeters hit safely in eight of the nine innings. Score:

KELLY'S RECORD FOR HOME RUNS

Only Player Who Twice Made Three Homers in a Game.

Ty Cobb who recently established a new major league record by making five home runs in two successive games, is one of 17 big league players who have ever smashed out three homers in a single contest. The only player in the history of baseball who has ever performed this feat twice is George Kelly of the Giants. Kelly and Hauser of the Athletics were the only players in the major leagues to smash out three home runs in one game last season. Kelly previously had performed this feat in a game in Chicago on September 17, 1923. Cobb and Gordon Cochrane are the only players who have performed the feat this season.

In addition to Kelly, Hauser, Cobb and Cochrane, only three players have hit three home runs in one game during modern baseball history. These players are Butch Henline of the Phillies, Cy Williams of the same team, and Ken Williams of the Browns. Henline, who made three homers in one game on Sept. 15, 1922, was the first National League player to perform this stunt in a period of 25 years. Ken Williams had previously made three homers in one contest during April, 1922. He and Cobb are now the only American League players who have hit three homers in one game. Cy Williams hit his three circuit clouts on May 11, 1923.

The feat of hitting three homers in one game was first performed by Edward Williamson of the Chicago National League team on May 30th, 1884. The stunt was done again during the same year by A. C. Anson, also of the Chicago club, who made the three circuit wallops in successive times at bat, and John Manning of the Philadelphia National League Club. The stunt was done twice in 1886, once by Dan Brouthers of the Detroit National League club, and once by Guy Hecker of the Louisville Club of the American Association. Roger Connor of the New York National League Club accomplished the feat in 1888, and no one succeeded in doing the trick again until 1894, when two players each made three homers in one game.

They are W. E. Shugart of the St. Louis National League team, and Wiliam Joyce of the Washington National League Club.

During the season of 1897 two players smashed out three homers in one contest. They are J. C. Beckley of the Cincinnati National League Club and T. L. McCreery of the Louisville National League team. From the time that Beckley hit his three homers in a game on September 26th, 1897, the feat was not performed again until April 22, 1922, when Ken Williams came through with three circuit clouts.

Although three home runs in one game constitute a record for modern baseball history, the record for all time is four. Only two players have succeeded in making four circuit clouts in one game, however. The record was established by R. L. Lowe of the Boston National League Club

RUTH'S HITTING AIDED YANKEES BEAT SENATORS

His Double Tied the Count and Bob Meusel's Second Homer Won.

ROMMELL'S NINTH.

Mackmen Beat Boston—Cobb Wins Slugging Bee From White Sox.

NEW YORK, June 2.—With second stringers replacing slumping regulars together with the presence and hitting of Babe Ruth today, the Yankees ended their five game losing streak by repulsing the Senators 8 to 5. Bob Meusel knocked out his 13th and 14th home runs, the first coming in the third and the other in the eighth with two on base.

Ruth made his first hits of the 1925 season, singling in the fourth and doubling in the eighth, his last blow sending in the score that tied up the game. Score:

Washington.. ....012011000— 5 12 0
New York ....03100004x— 8 16 0

Mogridge, Russell and Ruel; Shocker, Ferguson and Bengough.

Detroit 16; Chicago 15.

DETROIT, June 2.—Detroit won a batting orgy from Chicago here today, 16 to 15, after the White Sox came from behind and wiped out the ten run lead that the Tigers had at the start of the sixth inning. With the score tied at 15-all in the ninth, with one out and the coun three and two, Cobb lashed out a home run into the right field bleachers, giving the Tigers their fourth consecutive series.

O'Rourke and Kamm duplicated yesterday's feat in knocking out homers. Score:

Detroit ....40033001—16 22 1

Thurston, Mack, Blankenship and Crouse, Grabowski, Schalk; Dauss, Wells, Stoner, Cole, Doyle and Bassler, Woodall.

Athletics 15; Boston 2.

BOSTON, June 2.—Philadelphia batted the Boston pitchers, Lucey and Wingfield savagely today and took the second game of the series, 15 to 2. Rommell had an easy time annexing his ninth win of the season. Boone clouted a long home run into the centerfield bleachers in the first inning for Boston. Cochrane's timely single with the bases filled and two out in the second, scored three runs for the Athletics. Score:

Philadelphia.. ....450001050—15 19 1
Boston ....100010000— 2 9 0

Rommell and Cochrane; Lucey, Wingfield, Fuhr and Picinich, Stokes.

St. Louis 8; Cleveland 3

CLEVELAND, June 2.—Milton Gaston's pitching proved too much for the Indians today and St. Louis won, 8 to 3. It was a real battle for seven inning until Walter Miller, recruit southpaw gave way to a pinch-hitter. With Jim Edwards pitching in the eighth, Bill Jacobs tripled two runs over the plate and in the same round Gaston doubled three run on Carl Yowell's first offering. Score:

St. Louis ....001000160— 8 11 1
Cleveland ....010300020— 3 9 0

in 1894, and it was later equalled by E. J. Delehanty of the Philadelphia National League Club in 1896. Two of Lowe's homers were made in the same inning.

The feat of making two homers in one inning has been performed only six times during the entire history of baseball and only once during the modern life of the game. It was first done by C. Jones of the Boston National League Club in 1880. During the season of 1890 Louis Bierbauer of the Brooklyn and Buffalo clubs of the Players' League and Edward Cartwright of the St. Louis and Philadelphia clubs of the American Association performed the stunt. It was also done twice during the campaign of 1894. R. L. Lowe made two in one inning in the game in which he made a total of four homers, and Jacob Stenzel of the Pittsburgh National League team drove out two in a single inning. The only player in modern baseball history who has made two homers in one inning, is Ken Williams, who made them on August 7, 1922.

LEAGUE LEADERS MEET THURSDAY

Bankers and Examiner Play Mercantile Game at Riverside.

BOTH NEED WIN

On Thursday night the Bankers and Examiners will meet in a Mercantile League fixture. Both teams are out in front in the league, each having won one game. Thursday night's game will give either team first place in the league, so a great battle can be expected.

The Bankers showed unusual strength against the Lock Works All Stars. The Lock Works team was considered the best in the league. The Examiner also fielded a nice team and showed great hitting power.

"Casey" Masterson will do the heaving for the money kings with Kenealley catching. Bill Duggan will likely dish them up for the newspaper outfit with Ab. Delahaye receiving.

The game starts at 6.00 o'clock sharp and a good crowd should be out to see these teams battle.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The Kingston Ponies, in addition to the majority of last year's team, will introduce a number of new faces to Peterboro fans on Saturday afternoon when they go into action against the Petes at Riverside Park. The new comers include Young and Cairns, pitchers; Art Quinn, a new catcher; Halbert, at shortstop, and two new outfielders, Scott and "Liz" Walker, the latter the well-known Queen's football star. Purvis, Somerville, Batstone, Cherry, Teeple and Gallagher of last year's outfit are still with the Ponies, as is Manager Joe Daley. They expect to win here handily, but the Petes cannot see it that way and prophesy a hot reception for the league leaders.

• • • • • • • • •

There is apparently a war on between the Ponies and their press agents and the sporting columns of the Kingston papers are devoid of Central Ontario League news. No explanations have been given out from either side as to the sudden disappearance of senior baseball items.

• • • • • • • • •

The warm weather last night furnished the Petes with an opportunity for one of their best work-outs of the season, and the squad promises to be in the best of shape for Saturday's game. The hot spell is particularly pleasing to the pitching staff, as it gives them a chance to loosen up their throwing arms properly.

• • • • • • • • •

Duke Dainty is to be presented with a made-in-Peterboro alarm clock in order that he may be able to get around on time for the next ball game.

• • • • • • • • •

The biggest crowd in several seasons is expected at Riverside Park Saturday. The good showing of the Petes, coupled with the fact that the Ponies are regarded as the team to beat for the flag, is responsible for more than usual interest in the struggle. Many fans from Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg and other ball centres are coming to Peterboro for this fixture.

• • • • • • • • •

The prophesy that good ball would be seen in the Junior City League this season is being fulfilled. The Lakeview-C.G.E. clashes promise to be full of interest, and the league winners will be strong enough to put up a good battle for the Provincial honours—which, by the way, the Kingston Circle Six team have already arrogated to themselves.

KANE SEES KAYO WIN FOR GIBBONS

Manager of St. Paul Battler Thinks Tunney Will Take Dream Punch Friday.

NEW YORK, June 3. — If you know prizefight managers and their ilk you won't get particularly excited over this:

Eddie Kane, who pilots Tommy Gibbons, is betting his own jack on the St. Paul Irishman to win from Gene Tunney when they come together June 5.

What's more interesting, Kane is betting on Gibbons to knock out Tunney!

A lot of persons with mental gifts beyond those of a village half wit think Gibbons is good enough to make Tunney say uncle in a slow, reluctant manner, but only the ultra-brave suspect he is capable of a knockout.

Kane, however, thinks Gibbons is capable of anything. Kane actually thought Gibbons would whip Dempsey. That's why he agreed to match him with the champion out in Montana for nothing or less at the usual rate of foreign exchange.

They Are Real Friends.

Kane and Gibbons are more than just business associates. They are wonderful friends. You will never read of a split coming into the lives of these two like that which is now bringing the Messrs. Dempsey and Kearns much undesirable publicity.

When Gibbons hangs up his gloves, Kane will cease to be his manager. Not before.

Kane's shrewdness as a manager has been questioned by the financial experts. (But never by Gibbons). In these days, when any ham-and-egger can make a fortune out of knuckling, many have wondered why Gibbons failed to break into the fancy greenbacks with greater frequency.

Gibbons answers that one for you himself. "I'm not so easy to whip," explains Tommy. "The boys can make more money fighting the push-overs. It takes two to make a match and I know the difficulty Kane has in getting most of them to meet me."

Even so, Gibbons is comparatively wealthy. He has nearly $200,000. For fighting Tunney he will get more than he ever got before for a single fight. The Dempsey fight—which he fought for nothing—was not exactly unprofitable. A vaudeville tour netted him $50,000. The publicity was vital, too. It is something to be known as the only man who ever stayed 15 rounds with the man-killer.

Got $500 Purse Then.

Six years ago Gibbons was fighting for $500 purses. And in 1918 he fought George Chip in Pittsburgh for $250. His first big money came at Pittsburgh in 1921 when he was paid $5,000 for battling Harry Greb. Later he fought Greb at Madison Square Garden and drew down $15,000.

That was "top" for him until last summer, when he got $60,000 for chasing Georges Carpentier in the Footrace of the Century at Michigan City.

Gibbons went to London last year to battle Jack Bloomfield. He was promised $75,000. Actually he got $15,000. The promoters didn't have any more. Gibbons had to take what he could.

"The fight probably wasn't worth any more than that to me anyway," philosophises Gibbons, without the slightest trace of venom or regret.

Any other fighter, or most any other one, would be sobbing yet.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Getting the throw of the clubhead in the right place is one of the accomplishments of golf that quickly leads to much better scores and one that is not hand is against. Players often make this difficult by varying the intensity of the grip—that is, by trying consciously to control the grip pressure at different points in the swing. When you throw anything the grip automatically tightens if you leave the grip to itself—as you would do if you threw a stone. It is the same way with the golf clubhead. The old rule is for a fairly firm—not tight—grip at the beginning of the back swing. At the turn at the top wait for the clubhead to recoil. When it is about half way down throw it with the hands, or wrists, and let the grip take care of itself. It will tighten. Be careful not to try to throw with your whole body—only with the hands and arms.

EXTREE! EXTREE! DEMPSEY FIGHTS AGAIN!

But Don't Get Excited For It's Only An Exhibition Bout On Board Ship That Jack Appears In.

JACK AWAITING THE CALL TO ACTION

During the recent trip to Europe of the Dempseys, Champion Jack put on an exhibition bout with A. Keely, the ship's butcher and former heavyweight king of the British Army. The watch, which was held for the benefit of the seamen's fund, was staged on the deck of the S.S. Berengaria with hundreds of passengers looking on. No, there weren't any knockouts.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

Johnson Praises Lajoie.

Walter Johnson is pretty generally recognized as baseball's greatest pitcher and deservedly so.

Recently, in discussing the great batters of the game, Walter expressed the opinion that Larry Lajoie was the greatest natural hitter he ever faced.

This was rather interesting since Johnson in his long career has faced a flock of great batters.

Walter didn't say Lajoie was the best batter, the craftiest or the hardest to fool. He simply rated him the greatest natural batter.

Anent Rogers Hornsby.

He selected Joe Jackson, now out of organized baseball, as a close rival to Lajoie.

When I mentioned Hornsby, Walter explained his experience against the famous slugger of the Cardinals had been limited to exhibition games, not a very satisfactory way to judge a batter's merits.

Walter named Hornsby as the greatest of the modern day natural batsmen, but puts Lajoie on the pedestal of the greatest natural batsman of all time.

Having umpired with Lajoie and Jackson, when those two players were in their prime, I am inclined to think that it would be hard to improve on Johnson's selections.

Line Drive Batters.

Lajoie and Jackson were line-drive hitters. By that I mean a large percentage of the balls they hit traveled on a line.

Neither Lajoie nor Jackson got the distance or the height to their drives as does Ruth, the present "king of the swat." The lively ball probably accounts for the difference in distance.

It may interest fandom to know that Lajoie and Jackson were bad ball hitters. As a matter of fact most of the natural batsmen have more success hitting a ball just inside or outside rather than one right through the heart of the plate.

I have seen Larry take two strikes through the heart of the plate without offering at them, then murder the next pitch, a fast ball, just outside the plate and letter high.

Larry would hit such a pitch to right field a mile-a-minute. There never was a batter who could pull a pitch inside, down the third base line, harder than Larry.

Hornsby reminds me more of Lajoie's style at bat than any player I have seen break into the majors in years. Two great batters.

Sluggers Whiff Often.

It seems when a batsman seeks to get distance he loses some of the finer points of timing. That is why most sluggers strike out so often.

Take the case of Babe Ruth for instance. Babe usually leads the league in strikeouts as well as home runs.

In getting distance the batsman swings hard at every ball pitched. Against certain types of pitching the free swinger is at a decided disadvantage.

If the slugger cuts hard at a pitch, believing it is going to be a fast one, and too late discovers it's a knuckle or a dinkly slow ball, he cannot hold back. As a result he is made to look ridiculous.

The crafty type of batsmen like Cobb and Collins try to time their swing to each pitch. That is why it is so difficult to strike either of them out.

Ruth, on the other hand, has his healthy cut at practically every ball and is often a strike-out victim for the smart pitcher who slows up.

However, Ruth is one of the few players who is an interesting figure at the bat even when he is striking out.

(Special to the Examiner)

KINGSTON, June 3—In the best game of the Central Ontario League to date, the Kingston team defeated Oshawa here last night by the score of 2-1 after nine innings of hard-fought and snappy baseball in which Dainy and Cairns battled it out for pitching honors. The game was played in an hour and thirty minutes and there was little delay by either team throughout the contest. The two pitchers turned in great performances and there was but one extra base hit, Somerville securing the loner in the sixth inning, later scoring.

"Duke" Dainty had but four strikeouts, three of them being contributed by Walker, a left hand hitter, who switched over in his fourth trip to the plate and bounded to short. Cairns made the fourth strikeout for Dainty. Cairns had but two strikeouts to his credit. The support given the pitchers was strong at all times, and although neither pitcher had much of a strikeout record, they were putting the balls where the batters could not get hefty wallops at them.

Kingston secured ten hits off Dainty and Oshawa got six off Cairns.

Teepell played a star game in the field for Kingston getting seven put outs. Purvis at first played his best game of the season and turned in a .500 batting sheet. Purvis scored the two runs that Kingston made. In the fourth frame, the first three Kingston men to bat, Batstone, Somerville and Cherry, each got singles and Purvis sent a long fly to right field, Batstone scoring. Kingston's second run came in the sixth inning. Somerville, the first man up, hit for two bases. Cherry was thrown at first by Warde, Somerville going to third. Purvis hit safely scoring Somerville and stole second but the next two men were easy outs.

Oshawa's lone tally came in the seventh innings. Cairns was ratted when Tyson sent an easy one down to him and he threw badly to first. Saunders flied to right and Roddick was thrown at first, Tyson going to seconds Ward hit safetly and Tyson was over. R. Fair drew a ticket but the inning ended when Somerville threw Dainty at first. Oshawa suffered two errors, Roddick and Ward contributing while Kingston counted one on Cairns' bad throw.

The teams:

Kingston—Teepell, rf; Halbert, ss; Batstone 3b; Somerville 2b; Cherry cf; Purvis 1b; Walker lf; Quinn C; Cairns p.

Oshawa—Dineen 1b; W. Fair, lf; Rowden ss; Tyson c; Saunders 2b; Roddick, lf; Ward 3b; R. Fair cf; Dainty p.

Umpires—Kay at the plate; Collings on the bases.

SEATS FOR 480,000 IN LEAGUE PARKS

Enlargement of Shibe Plant Increases Combined Capacity.

With the recent improvements at Shibe Park, the home grounds of the Athletics in Philadelphia, increasing the seating capacity of that enclosure to something like 36,000 persons, the combined seating capacity of the major league baseball parks moved still nearer the 500,000 mark. At the present time there are in existence fifteen major league ball parks, the Browns and Cardinals in St. Louis now being the only two teams which share in one home field. The combined seating capacity of all of these parks is about 480,000, or an average of almost 32,000 each.

During the past three or four years the combined seating capacity of all of the major league baseball parks has increased tremendously. In that period the seating capacity in the major league cities has been increased by approximately 120,000 persons. This big increase, of course, was due in great measure to the erection of the gigantic Yankee Stadium, with its seating capacity of some 65,000, which is now the largest baseball park in the country.

However, the 65,000 in the new Yankee Stadium are not the only ones which have been added to the combined total in the two major leagues during the past three or four years. The ever-increasing popularity of baseball has forced the owners of other clubs to add more seats to their parks. The seating capacity at the Polo Grounds has been jumped from about 38,000 to 52,000. This increase put the Giants' park in second place among the baseball stadia of the country and gave New York's two ball parks a combined capacity of about 117,000.

Several years ago the home of the Cubs in Chicago was increased from 16,000 to about 32,000 and this now ranks as one of the best ball parks in the two major leagues. Additional seats at the American League Park in Washington within the past few years have increased the seating capacity at those grounds from about 15,000 to 28,000. The most recent change has been at Shibe Park, where the capacity has been increased from about 22,000 to 36,000. With the renewed interest now being displayed in Connie Mack's team, it is likely that the seating capacity of the park will be taxed on many occasions between the present time and the end of the pennant race.

With the building of a new ball field for the Reds in Cincinnati in the not distant future having a seating capacity of about 50,000 the combined capacity of all the major league parks will reach about 505,000. The present home of the Cincinnati Club can accommodate about 25,000 fans and the new home of the team will rank third only to the Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds.

Before the opening of the Yankee Stadium and the changes in the Polo Grounds, Braves Field in Boston ranked as the largest major league baseball park for a number of years. Its seating capacity is 45,000. This park, the Polo Grounds and the Yankee Stadium are the only major league enclosures that can seat more than 40,000 persons. The Cubs' field and the White Sox park in Chicago, Shibe Park in Philadelphia and Fenway Park, the home of the Boston Red Sox, are the only others which can seat 30,000 or more. The Phillies' Park, with a capacity of 18,000, is the smallest in the two major leagues while Sportsman's Park in St. Louis ranks as the next smallest, with a capacity of about 20,000.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

CLASS OF GIANTS

The New York Giants are keeping pace with all the nice things said about them before the opening of the season.

When I saw the Giants in action during the spring training season. I was impressed by the great power of McGraw's club.

Yet, the feature that struck me most forcibly was the enthusiasm of the club. Repeated success in no way seemed to have dulled the players' desire to win.

I saw the Giants play several exhibition games, some of them against minor league clubs and they put the same enthusiasm in their play as if fighting for the world championship.

I watched the Giants at the fag end of my tour of the training camps. I had seen practically every other big league club in action. I expressed the opinion that the Giants were the best club I had seen and would probably outclass the rest of the National field.

So far the Giants are making good on being rated the class of the field. Continuing their present pace the race will be pretty well over by August first.

SPIRIT TELLS

Enthusiasm, love of the game, is after all, a most potent asset to a pennant-winning ball club.

It was spirit more than any one thing that won a pennant and a world series for Washington. The club simply refused to be discouraged no matter how great the provocation.

Washington, in its effort to repeat the success of last year, impresses you by the enthusiasm every member of the team puts into his work.

When Al Schact and Nick Altrock, baseball's prize comedians, are on the coaching lines, they are about the most serious pair in the game.

The surprise showing of the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago White Sox, must be attributed to spirit.

The personnel of both clubs is practically the same as last year but spirit and fight have changed them from second division aggregations to pennant contenders.

The will to win is a fine thing. It makes great clubs out of merely good combinations. Clubs managed by John McGraw always seem to have it.

POOR PITCHING

If you should ask Miller Huggins why the Yankees are not in the first division, he will no doubt answer, "our pitching has been erratic."

If you should ask the manager of any other club that has disappointed in the early stages of the race, for the solution of his team's trouble, it will be laid to lack of pitching.

Incidentally, when a team is in a slump, largely due to lack of consistent pitching, breaks in fielding and batting invariably seem to go against it.

It just seems impossible to combine all three elements, battling, fielding and pitching in the same game.

When a pitcher turns in a well-worked game, his teammates either fail to get him any runs or toss away the contest because of poor fielding.

Slumps such as the two supposed pennant-contenders, the New York Yankees and Detroit Tygers are experiencing this year, are usually attributed to lack of consistant pitching.

Unquestionably, no one asset is more necessary to a team's success than consistently good pitching. It makes for better work in all departments.

GAUDETTE HITTING 'EM IN INTERNATIONAL

Gaudette of Jersey City is playing a great game in the International League. Latest reports gave his batting mark as 1.452,also the leadership of the circuit. Roser, the Baltimore slugger and leading home-run swatter, is 100 points below Gaudette

YALE BOASTS STAR ATHLETE IN DEACON

Yale has a stellar athlete in young Deacon, who specializes in the high and broad jumps. In the recent dual meet with Princeton he won both events, clearing the bar at 6 feet 3 inches, and leaping 23 feet. He looks like the best high jumper the Blue has had since the days of Dick Landon.

Radio Flashes

If you want to solder where there isn't room for the point of your iron, use a piece of big bus bar as a substitute. Stick one end in a bottle cork and use the other for soldering. It will not hold heat long, but, with practice, you can do very well with it.

To increase the wavelength of your set, try hooking a Chelten Midget condenser across the stator and rotor terminals of the antenna-tuning condenser. When the proper setting has been determined the Chelten can be left alone.

In making a connection in aerial system where you can't solder, twist the ends of the wire, put a coat of shellac over the joint, wind it with tape and then brush shellac over the tape.

If the dials do not read alike, chances are the dials have slipped on the shafts. Loosen the setscrew and reset the dials so they read maximum when the plates of the condenser are fully meshed.

CRICKET.

The Royal Oak Cricket Club will have a full practice to-morrow (Thursday) evening at 6.15 in preparation for the match with the Peterborough C. C. on Saturday afternoon on Royal Oak C.C. pitch at Exhibition grounds, commencing at 2.00 p.m. All players are requested to turn out to both practice and match.

FAIR ATTRACTS

peated this evening, with several new additions.

In the fortune-telling booth, the gaily attired gypsy ladies were busy all evening, gazing into the future for enquiring patrons. Additional helpers to the band of ladies who officiated here on the opening evening were Mrs. R. . McAfee,,, Mrs. A. A. Perrin, Mrs. B. Gardiner, Miss E. Scott, and Miss E. Nichol.

The Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E. serving high tea in the upper lecture room in the eastern gallery, had excellent patronage yesterday. The tables here are attractively arranged with orange paper and bowls of white iris and mauve lilacs, the little tables centred with vases of lily of the valley and pink roses. Mrs. J. K. Hughes has charge of the floral decorations, with Mrs. D. Jordan providing the profusion of ferns. In the absence of the president, Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Mrs. C. A. White acts as convenor of the supper room, with Mrs. R. W. F. Davidson in charge on Tuesday, Mrs. R. Harstone today, Mrs. J. P. Pulkinghorn tomorrow, and Miss M. English, on Friday.

Cafe Chantant

In the Cafe Chantant, where the luxurious fittings and ingenious decorations effected by Mrs. V. Eastwood are receiving congratulations from all sides, a pleasant little programme was presented during the evening to the many patrons. In Oriental interior of this attractive retreat, here were dances in costume by members of Miss Littlefield's dancing classes at the Y.W. C.A. Last evening, the Misses Gertrude Gimblett and Dorothy Collins gave the interpretive dance, "The Call of Youth." On Monday evening, the French patriotic number, "On to Victory," was given by the Misses Edna Cheverill and Florence Adams. Miss Madeline Willis played piano accompaniments for the dances. Further musical numbers were an instrumental duett by the Misses Helen and Mildred Morphet, a violin seelction by Mrs. M. B. Hoyland, vocal solos by the Misses Florence Scott, Bertha Hill, Georgia Cuffe and H. Snelgrove, a piano solo by Miss Marjorie Turner, and numbers by the bright players of the Peterboro Juvenile Syncopated Orchesrta. Accompanists for the songs were the Misses L. Hurley, Mildred Greene and Marjorie Turner.

The amusement booths in the western end of the hall were a centre of interest, many ladies and gentlemen departing homeward from a visit here with samples of the elegant tinware offered for skilful throwing of the darts or balls.

Bridge Party

The first afternoon of bridge, which will be followed up by various organiaztions of ladies throughout the week, was played yesterday. The Rotary-Annes will have charge of the week's programme, and supervised the decorations,, which will be available for the balance of the week and are exceptionally attractive. These are carried out in the deep rose pink shade which is a favorite of the society and was used to such good effect in their big dance this season. At the windows are fringed curtains of rose pink crepe paper, caught by clusters of rosebuds, the electroliers have been converted into huge rose-pink tassels and there are streamers of mossy ferns, spangled with pink roses, to the windows from a central point. In the windows were brass bowls of white chokecherry blossoms and red tulips, and the central tea-table was beautifully arranged with a huge silver bowls of white lilacs and pink tulips, pink candles in silver candelabra and individual vases of lily of the valley and forget-me-nots. Mrs. Gerald Wood and Mrs. Reg. Turner presided at the tea-table, assisted by members of the club. Twenty tables of bridge were played, the first prize being won by Miss Marjorie Hatton, the consolation by Mrs. H. Morphet, and the lucky prize by Miss Margaret Turner. Ladies in charge of the decorating work were Mrs. G. H. Thompson and Mrs. Reg. Turner, assisted by Mrs. E. Birke of the ePter Robinson Chapter I.O. D.E. Mrs. Claude Rogers acted as convenor of refreshments, assisted by Mrs. N. D. Buchanan and Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, with Mrs. C. G. Graham looking after the card tables. The ladies of the Kiwanis Club have charge of the tables this afternoon, with the Catholic Women's League in charge tomorrow, and the 57th Regimental Chapter I. O.D.E. on Friday afternoon.

The programme in the upper music booth was provided last evening by members of the orchestra of the Conservatory of Music, and by the Peterboro Male Voice Choir, the latter organization singing two selections. Tonight ,the Symphony orchestra will play, with Mr. Hubert Low as vocal soloist.

ATTEMPT CLIMB CANADIAN PEAK

H. F. Lambart is Assistant Leader in Big Assault on Logan.

DOMINION DAY

The H. F. Lambart sierred to here as assistant leade. of the expedition addressed the Women's Canadian Club in Peterborough recently, describing the task ahead.

Among the important events expected for next Dominion Day is the attempt of a little group of Canadian and American Alpinists to climb Mount Logan, the highest peak in Canada. The mountain is in the Yukon territory near Alaska and is 19,850 feet high. The difficulties in the way of the climbers will be slightly less than those which confront those who would conquer Mount Everest, but they are severe enough to test the most determined and experienced Alpinists. With luck it is believed that the little international party will succeed. Without it, there will be a failure to record. Much depends upon the weather. While it is daylight for the whole twenty-four hours of the day at the time the climb will be made, the presence of fogs which are prevalent in the district may frustrate the best of plans, and at any moment a sudden avalanche might not only defeat the adventurers, but send them to their death. Then there is the possibility of unforseen difficulties arising due to the contour of the peak itself, but a preliminary survey undertaken last year gives hope that the mountain is climable.

An International Party.

The expedition is under the auspices of the Alpine Club of Canada, as we learn from LeRoy Jeffers in the New York Times Magazine. There are eight active climbers, and four of them are Americans. The leader is Captain A. H. McCarthy of Summit, New Jersey (rather an appropriate address for an Alpinist, by the way), and Wilmer, British Columbia, and he has an enviable record of first ascents in the Rockies and Selkirks. The assistant leader is H. F. Lambart, of the Geodetic survey, who has done much pioneering work in mapping the mountains of the Alaska-Canadian boundary. The Geological Survey of Canada is sending along H. M. Laigh as naturalist and motion-picture photographer. The leading Alpinists of both Canada and the United States are collecting funds for the attempt, and have already raised $10,000 of the $11,500 required. Captain MacCarthy has been in Alaska since February freighting in supplies to the base. In all 10,000 pounds of food and equipment will have to be hauled by dogs 150 miles. Some rough weather has been encountered, but it is expected that this part of the work will be finished in time for the climb to begin on July 1.

A Long Trail.

The party will first have an ocean voyage of 1,600 miles to Cordova, where they will travel over the Copper River Railway for 191 miles to McCarthy. Transportation by pack train will follow for 88 miles to the Chitina Glacier at 3,000 feet elevation, from which point all equipment and supplies must be carried by back-packing. It is expected that six days will be required for the fifty-mile crossing of the Chitina, Walsh and Logan Glaciers, while an elevation of 8,850 feet will be reached at the last outcropping rock, where base camp will be established. The surface of these glaciers is extremely rough, requiring careful work, while their extent is remarkable, the Logan Glacier alone being about 200 square miles in area.

Concealed Crevasses.

From base camp the real climbing begins and the Alpinists will ascend 5,650 feet in eight miles up the King Glacier to King Col. If not driven back by blizarzds they will continue for five miles, rising 3,500 feet to the 18,000-foot level. After this there is a traverse of four miles in which another thousand feet is gained. Still another mile is necessary to reach the summit at 19,580. In these eighteen miles of glacial ascent are perils unknown to the ordinary explorer. Ice falls and seracs may bar the way and require hours of careful work to pass them. All great glaciers are seamed with crevasses, which are often too wide to jump and which necessitate long traverses to advance only a short distance. On the upper snow fields the crevases are concealed, requiring the climbers to be roped and to sound frequently with their ice axes to discover a safe route. Where steep ice is encountered they must cut steps and sometimes handholds for many hundred feet. Snow and ice conditions vary greatly with the weather and the climate of this region is notoriously bad. The party must ever be watchful for avalanches, which may unexpectedly sweep the route of ascent.

Difficulty of Elevation.

Not the least difficulty may be that of elevation. Even between 14,000 and 15,000 feet we have sometimes found climbing with a pack was exhausting work, says Mr. Jeffers. Atmospheric conditions on a mountain vary greatly and a battle royal with terrific wind and storm is not the only hindrance to success. On the other hand, we have climbed various peaks of this elevation in fair weather without noticeable discomfort. If favorable weather and good snow conditions prevail the peak may be conquered in time to allow the exploration of the great Logan Glacier. It is possible, however, that difficulties may be encountered on the proposed route of ascent which will necessitate the discovery of another way.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

THE ART OF ROSS HAMILTON.

What is it that makes Ross Hamilton the world's greatest impersonator of the fairest of the fair sex? That he is the greatest has been conceded by every one of the sixteen dramatic critics of New York; the leading theatrical writers of London; every man in the Canadian armies overseas and the nine-tenths of the population of Canada who have seen The Dumbells at one time or another.

Hamilton, off stage, is the last man in the whole Dumbells Company that one would single out as the famous "Marjorie," even after having seen his performance and with some ideas of his features. He stands well over six feet tall, has broad shoulders and wears a number nine boot. He plays hockey like a professional, rides like a cowboy, shoots with the best of them, whether it be the traps, target or out in the woods where the live targets are found.

Being the kind of a he-man that he is, it must be his art, rather than any natural aptitude, that has placed him at the head of his particular line of endeavor.

The first evidence that proves him an artist is his make-up. He gets to the theatre a full half-hour ahead of any other member of the company, and after first shaving before every performance, he puts on a make-up that makes the average flapper of to-day look like a totem pole in the bright sun. Even the dowagers, who spend hours in prolonging and enhancing their youthful beauty, seldom get the artistic results that Hamilton achives nightly and twice on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

That the type of women with whom he has associated and from whom he gained his knowledge of their innermost artifices, must have been both well-born and beautiful, goes without saying. It is the infinite refinement, the almost old-world gentleness and courtesy of his characterizations that gives them their delicate charm.

In the newest and best of the Dumbells revue, "Oh, Yes!" which comes to the Grand theatre for Monday and Tuesday, June 8, 9, Hamilton gives three new and delightful characterizations in his songs, "I Love Them All," "Lips I Have Kissed," and "Sunrise and You."

"Age cannot wither nor custom stale his infinite variety" might have been written of Ross Hamilton and his beloved creation, "Marjorie."

AT THE ROYAL

RICHARD DIX FAVORITE WITH LADIES.

Since the death of Wallace Reid, the favorite male star with the ladies of the U. S. is said to be Richard Dix. Whenever his pictures are shown in New York City, matinee crowds are assured, and the ladies always outnumber the men. Reginald Denny is said to be running Dix a close second. Dix's first starring vehicle, "Manhattan," closes a three-day run at the Royal to-night.

AMATEUR NIGHT THURSDAY AT THE ROYAL.

New talent has been secured for Amateur Night to-morrow at the Royal. A flute player, song and dance team, a singing violinist, and other novelties have already signed to appear.

PRIZE-WINNING STORY BOOKED FOR ROYAL.

Pat O'Malley, who plays the juvenile lead in "The Fighting Adventurer," Universal Jewel production to be shown at the Royal Theatre next Thursday, claims distinction because he is one of the very few actors given leading parts who has emerged from a fight a sadly defeated battler. O'Malley is remembered for the part he had in "Fools Highway," Universal-Jewel starring Mary Philbin. As a gangster he fought against a dozen men.

"That is as it should be," he said in laying his claim to distinction. "In real life no one man can possibly whip a mob."

"The Fighting Adventurer" also gives O'Malley a chance to fight, and in each case he loses, except where it is a man-to-man affair.

This picture is the prize-winning screen story in the Carl Laemmle inter-collegiate scenario scholarship contest. It was submitted by William Elwell Oliver, University of California student, and selected from several thousand manuscripts.

The story is about a youth who is far more like his rough-and-ready grandfather, once a power in the trans-Pacific shipping business. The youth's father who desires that his son become a "cultured gentleman," much to the grandfather's disgust. The son is expelled from college and disowned by his father.

Stowing away on a China-bound vessel, the youth follows the girl he loves, but from whim he had become estranged. In China the girl becomes prisoner of the leaders of a revolution and with the aid of a general in the Chinese Army, a white man whom the youth had met in the United States and rescued from a policeman who had arrested him as a drunken tramp, rescues her after thrilling adventures that includes a fight between two airplanes.

An all-star cast directed by Thomas Forman, includes, besides O'Malley, Mary Astor, Warner Oland, Edwin J. Brady, Taylor Carroll and Alfred Fisher.

AT THE CAPITOL

NEWSPAPER EDITOR WRITES FILM STORY

Meredith Davis Author of New Harry Carey Film, "Beyond the Border."

While there are some writers who can write convincingly about people they have never known and places they have never seen, it is pretty generally conceded that these are rare exceptions and that for the most part if a story is to ring true, the author must know and feel whereof he talks.

Who then is more eligible to write a western drama than Meredith Davis, a man the greater part of whose life has been spent in the country west of the Rockies and who has as a background a journalistic career covering many full years?

Davis started his work as a cub reporter and like every cub reporter served a more or less bitter apprenticeship. But he stuck to his oars and was finally put to doing special assignments — work that carried him into all sorts of places and gave him the opportunity of meeting unique personalities and collecting rare material for story purposes.

He stored all these in the back of his head determining to some day write stories. Then Davis began to steadily mount the editorial ladder until to-day he fills the Sunday editorship on the Los Angeles Times, one of the largest and most influential dailies in the country.

Recently there appeared in a popular publication a story by this author called "When Smith Meets Smith." Sensing its tremendous motion picture possibilities Hunt Stromberg, the producer, purchased the motion picture rights and using Harry Carey as the star, is now releasing the picture under the title, "Beyond the Border," which is being shown at the Capitol Theatre to-morrow.

BATHING BAN MEETS ATTACK FROM CITIZENS

Universal Condemnation Voiced of Council's Prohibition—People Angry.

GENERAL CHORUS.

Some Would Pay Caretakers If Council Can't Afford It.

The citizens of Peterborough are loud in their condemnation of the policy of council in failing to provide caretakers at the municipal bathing places on Sunday. Not one dissenting voice was heard among a number of citizens who were approached on the subject.

F. J. Hungerford, of Woolworth's, stated that many of the citizens could not go swiming any day except on Sunday and they are entitled to protection.

Ex-Mayor T. H. G. Dunne said that the people would continue to go swimming on Sundays and there would be more complaints if they had to undress in the open without supervision than if they were enabled to use the bathing houses as shelter.

W. R. Breyfogle of the DeLaval Company, said that men who are working all day do not feel like going anywhere at night, and Sunday is the only time they have to go swimming, and they should have some accommodation provided for them.

Market Clerk Walter Stocker says that the citizens need to swim, and many can swim at no other time. The city should give them accommodation and protection.

Many other citizens in all walks of life expressed the same opinion and more than one said he would be willing to pay toward the salary of caretakers at Inverlea and Lake strees if the city hadn't the money to do so, as the citizens' health and comfort would be improved by bathing.

BIRTH CONTROL TO MEAN DEATH BRITISH RACE

Bishop of Quebec Says Roman Catholic Church is Against It.

IN DISFAVOR.

Great Many Good People Favor Practice—English Now Decreasing.

TORONTO, June 3. — (Canadian Press).—"If birth-control is adopted it means extinction of the British race," said Rt. Rev. Dr. L. W. Williams, Bishop of Quebec, in an interview with a representative of a local paper to-day. Speaking more particularly with reference to the French-Canadian province, Bishop Williams deplored the fact that English-speaking people are decreasing in the country places of Quebec. "They are moving away to cities and other provinces," he said. "The French are taking possession of the rural parts. Some of the cities, Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, Three Rivers, Richmond, Drummondville, are attracting more English and these places are growing." His Lordship declared that he looked with disfavor on birth control, although a great many very good people favored it. He pointed out that the Roman Church had set itself steadily against anything of the kind, and in this connection he expressed the opinion that the decline among English - speaking people in Quebec when compared with the French might in some measure be due to the practice of birth control.

OBITUARY

MR. JAMES DUFF.

The death occurred on Sunday evening, May 31, at Drinkwater, Sask., of James Duff, formerly of Smith Township. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, one daughter, Mrs. R. D. Smith of River desert, Que., three sisters, Mrs. L. Hunter, Miss I. Duff, Mrs. A. Quinn of Lakefield, Ont.; two brothers, W. H. Duff of Drinkwater, Sask., and Robert Duff of Lakefield, Ont.

The funeral will be held Friday, at 3 p.m., from the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Geo. Allen, 587 Water Street, Peterboro, to Little Lake Cemetery.

JOHN LANE.

The death occurred this morning at St. Joseph's Hospital of John Lane, aged 85, after a short illness. Mr. Lane was born in Ireland and came to Peterborough when he was nine years old and has lived here ever since.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Catherine Dinneen, one son, Thomas J., of Peterborough, and Mrs. F. J. Cooney, of Toronto.

Mr. Lane was a lumberman, engaging in that business from boyhood.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

WILLIAM H. DAYMAN.

The death occurred at his late residence, 525 Bolivar street, on Tuesday, of William Dayman, after an illness of four weeks.

Mr. Dayman was born in Port Hope 1858. He was a telegraph operator in Port Hope and Peterborough under the late Senator Cox. His wife, Josephine Uin, deceased him about two years ago. Mr. Dayman had to give up the telegraphy business and entered grocery under Mr. Alex Elliott. Then went into business for himself for a few years, after which he was given a place on the staff of E. F. Mason in 1897, where he had worked ever since. He was a well known figure in the store at the corner of Sherbrooke and Rubidge streets. He was well liked by a host of friends, most genial character and kindly disposed always. As an Oddfellow he took great interest in that work, also very interested in all kinds of sports, especially bowling.

The funeral will be held tomorrow under the auspices of the Oddfellows, at 2.30 p.m., at All Saints' Church, and proceeding to Little Lake Cemetery. R. J. D. Paterson will officiate.

There are left to mourn his loss, one sister, Mrs. Hawkins, Port Hope; and three brothers: G. Dayman of T. Eaton Co., Toronto; T. Dayman of Lindsay, and Fred of Lakewood, Ohio.

TOO ROUGH ON PARSON.

BOSTON, June 3.—A Massachusetts court docket reveals that in 1656 Henry Walton was fined for saying that he would as soon hear a dog bark as a sermon of Rev. Cobbell. John Studly was fined for stealing his master's ox and selling it back to him. Robert Edwards drew a fine for wearing excess apparel—sleeve lace and gold buttons.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Speculation Waned To-day After Rise In Maxwell

NEW YORK, June 3. — (Canadian Press.)— Sporadic outbursts of profit-taking were quickly absorbed during the forenoon trading in Wall street while the market's firm resistance to selling pressure created a more optimistic sentiment, which was heightened by the buoyancy of several investment stocks. Speculative operations in motor shares, however, waned somewhat after Maxwell B extended its rise 7 1-2 points to the acute distress of short interests. Hudson and Moon motors were heavily bought, but Mack trucks yielded to the pressure of realizing sales. Under the impetus of a reduced flowing supply of stock, several public utilities pushed ahead under the leadership of Havana Electric Railway which advanced 5 1-2 points. Higher dividend predictions were behind the buying movement in a number of goods and chain store issues, including Great Western Sugar, Shattuck and Childs.

General Decline In Grain Following Rain In West

CHICAGO, June 3.—(Canadian Press.)—The unexpected weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool, owing more or less to an important bank failure in Denmark, had an early depressing effect on wheat prices here. Additional rains over the wheat producing territory in the United States tended also to give a set back to values.

Rallies, however, soon took place, numerous traders being inclined to look for a further improvement of the export demand. Chicago opening price 1 to 2 1-2 cents lower, July 159 1-2 to 160 and Sept. 157 to 157 1-2 were followed by an irregular upturn which lifted July to 161 1-2 and Sept. to 159 1-4. Corn weakened under the general selling due to warm, moist weather. After opening at 1-4 to 3-4c. decline, Sept. 114 to 114 1-4, the market suffered a moderate additional setback.

Oats sympathized with corn, starting at 1-4 to 1-2 cents off, Sept. 48. Later, there was a slight further sag and and then something of a reaction. Provisions were responsive to the firmness of hog values.

CANADA LEADS CARE OF WOMEN

Unaccompanied Women Immigrants Are Well Looked After.

946 BRIDES.

OTTAWA, June 3. Canadian Press —Canada stands first in its care for the unaccompanied woman entering the country," said Miss Mary Burnham, head of the Women's Section of the Immigration Department, who addressed the National meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, here this morning.

Miss Burnham added that women's organization aided enormously in the aid of the immigrant women. Great care was taken, she said, to have the right type of woman immigrant.

Lecturers on immigration were not permitted to paint rosy pictures.

During the year 946 girls came to Canada to be married.

CHINA PROTESTS AGAINST FIRING

Sends Note To Powers About Shooting Rioters in Shanghai.

WILL MAKE CLAIMS.

PEKING, June 3. — (Canadian Press.)— The Chinese Government has presented to the Italian minister a note to the powers protesting against firing upon rioters in Shanghai. In the note China reserves the right to formulate claims at some future date against the powers whose armed forces took part in attacking the rioters. It holds the authorities in the Shanghai concession as entirely responsible for what are termed "deplorable incidents."

The Presbyterian Church Assembly

By R. E. KNOWLES
(SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER)

"If this is death, it is beautiful—there is no valley here," murmured D. L. Moody with his latest breath. So it was at the last Assembly of the Presbyterian Church last night.

TORONTO, June 4. — A very Presbyterian group, indeed, in face and flavor, was that seated about the Moderator last night in College St. church, when the last General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was opened with due form and solemnity.

A half dozen men there were, no more—but the stamp of Shorter Catechism was on every face. First, came the genial Moderator, Dr. Clarence MacKinnon, carrying somewhere in brain and bosom the truly great sermon waiting to be born. Then Dr. R. P. McKay, benignant and beloved, whose opening prayer clutched at your heart, so great is the power of reality, when it took wing to China, and the Doctor's beloved husbandmen, in that troubled vineyard. The assembled clerks, too, the older of whom, Dr. W. G. Wallace, great as preacher, and superb as pastor—why in the name of effectual calling has Wallace never been pastor?—poised and pre-occupied after true clerkly fashion, and removing his spectacles as he came to each perplexing path with an air of composure and command that would have made even the late Dr. Robert Campbell look to his laurels. Beside him sat—once or twice, I thought, quite still, but then he has had an exhaustive week—the quick and quickening Cochrane, once known as "Bob," this now displaced by the saintly accretion wherewith his alma mater has acknowledged as true hearted service at the church has ever had.

Among them all sat two brethren from afar: Dr. Rorke, ex-Moderator of the English Presbyterian hurch, and Dr. Hanna from the Presbyterian Church of Ireland, a distinquished looking man.

Last night's was a great opening of what will doubtless be a great Assembly. Crowded edifice, tremendous song—it was fine to watch the faces of the two visitors aforesaid when, on this far distant strand, there suddenly swept about them such a gust of National Anthem fervor as I make bold to say they never felt before, for none of us has heard it sung like that before—impressive prayer and reading, brethren from sea to sea and from the islands of the seas.

Something Being Done.

And the breath of reality was about everything last night. And why? Because something was being done, a movement achieved, a forwarded movement at that. Swung more or less at anchor in the stream of time there was the feeling that the Church was pushing out into the deep, that a guest pilot was really marking the path, and that we were fronting the ocean and the stars. Of sincerity there were pledges aplenty. Men who have renounced, nor deemed it a sacrifice, were there. Heroes were there, and —where poverty did not block the way—heroines too. The Church knows them, glories in them, and hundreds last night, legitimately enough too, joyed in a sacrifice not there own.

Face after face, I saw, of men who have cast everything into the discard, who are sans kirk, sans salary, sans manse, sans immediate prospect. One, to draw from life, who has had to take a job in Detroit, unskilled, though he is, ot win bread for wife and bairns. Another who leaves presently for a far west mission post, comfortable manse, tidy salary, congenial work, all renounced: "It won't take much of my salary to keep me," I heard him say, "and the rest—well, the kiddies must be fed and schooled, you know." Multiply these cases by hundreds, and you have some trace of the fuel that fed the fire which somewhere seemed to glow last night on a thousand faces.

One could not but wish that all who contend that the Presbyterian Church in Canada goes out of being by its blending with another soul, could have stood by its alleged death bed last night. "If this is death, it is beautiful—there is no valley here," murmured D. L. Moody with his latest breath. So was it in College street last night.

Great Retirer.

It seems like a gracious provision of the Great Shepherd of the sheep that the retiring Moderator was Rev. Dr. Clarence MacKinnon—(surely there is a remote flavor of the Scottish about that monumental name!) Great as Moderator, he was surely greater as retirer. What delicacy of thought, and grace of expression and charm of manner, and purity of purpose and felicity of allusion, and glow of allusion, and glow of passion—what transparent depth of Presbyterianism and profounder depth of Christianity lay in his words like water in a well. How splendidly he interpreted what we all feel, the pain of parting from the old, the eager joy of expectation from the new, that it would not depart from the age-long law which demands sacrifice as the source of life, and life more abundant, through whose stern and gracious application the church will prove anew that "we learn in suffering what we teach in song."

The sermon was generally pronounced as the finest, in point of fittingness and sympathy and power, that has been heard at an opening Assembly for long years past.

It was a winning, wistful, wonderful night, ending with a crash of love and welcome for Dr. Pidgeon such as, so the Moderator told us, the Assembly scarce ever saw before. The artistic thing about the whole great occasion was the tender backward glance that alternated with the stern and eager forward look. The modernism and the fundamentalism of the great convocation, and of the hearts and heads that formed it, were in lovely play and interplay calling to each other as deep calleth under deep. Reverence for the old mingled with "the onward surge," to quote one of the many fine phrases of our mystic Moderator. "In the Cross of Christ I glory," rolled out like the confession of faith set to music. And not a few halted, eyes suddenly bedimmed, as they essayed—was it not just a little cruel of the Moderator?—the glorious Presbyterian pilgrim song, "Oh, God of Bethel," to say nothing of that other paraphrase so dear to the northern heart and so warm from the lips of our noble fathers, "To him that loved the souls of men and washed us in his blood."

I could not but turn and look into the strong and earnest faces. Some were quivering. They were as pilgrims faring forth who cannot but look back and catch once more the glory of the evening sun upon the lights of home.

BIBLE READINGS FOR THE SCHOOLS

Graded System Being Tentatively Prepared By Anglicans.

OTTAWA, June 4. — An increase of 45 lay delegates in the representation on the Synod of the Ottawa diocese of the Church of England in Canada was approved at yesterday's session under the chairmanship of His Lordship, Bishop J. C. Roper. The enlarged representations will be on the basis of the number of families in each parish.

Rev. Dr. J. Bedford Jones, of Perth, submitted the report of the Diocesan Board of Religious Education in the course of which it was stated that a sub-committee, under the leadership of the Archbishop of Algoma is working on a graded system of scripture reading to be used in the Public schools of the Province under the new regulations of the Board of Education. On completion the proposed schedule will be submitted to the Department of Education for approval. It was stated also that the committee was anxious to secure the co-operation of other religious bodies in this task.

Wet Weather Forces Dail To Provide Relief Work

DUBLIN, June 4.—The Irish Free State Parliament yesterday voted £65,000 (about $325,000) for agricultural and unemployment relief work, based upon proposals by Finance Minister Blythe. If the weather in Ireland continues to be as bad as it was last year, ore funds will be necessary, said the cabinet member. His proposal was endorsed by a vote of 37 to 19. Three weeks more bad weather would necessitate supplementary appropriations, he declared.

FARMERETTE FROM ENGLAND IN WEST

Miss Emily Pinder is Making Study of Canadian Methods.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 4.—Emily Pinder, a graduate of the experimental farm of Leeds University, is in Winnipeg to begin a years' study of Canadian agricultural methods, with a view to creating a movement to Western Canada of English farm girls, on her return to the British Isles.

"Girls on the farms in all parts of England are intensely interested in Canada. They are seeking an outlet for their energies and would migrate to the dominion in large numbers if only encouraged," Miss Pinder asserted.

Many of these young women, she declared had sufficient funds to start farms of their own and would prove a valuable asset to the development of the Western country.

SERVANT PROBLEM HAS BEEN RELIEVED

Number of British Domestics Reached Winnipeg From England.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 4.—(Canadian Press).—The domestic servant problem in Winnipeg has been materially relieved by the arrival of a batch of British girls who were included among the large quota of settlers reaching here during the past few weeks.

While the majority of these domestics have remained in this city, a number have proceeded to different points in the West. The girls were brought to Canada under the auspices of the Salvation Army.

Statistics show that the population of Western Canada has been augumented by more than 6,000 newcomers during May, the majority immigrating under the British Empire colonization scheme.

ENDORSED MEIGHEN.

North Perth Conservatives In Annual Convention.

MILVERTON, Ont., June 4. — D. A. Dempsey was yesterday elected president of the North Perth Conservative Association at the annual meeting. Resolutions were passed endorsing the policy of the Dominion and Provincial Conservative leaders.

H. B. Morphy, ex-M.P., of Listowel, was one of the principal speakers and in an interesting address defended the policy of the Meighen Government. J. A. Makin, K.C., of Stratford, criticised the King Government. J. D. Monteith asked the electorate not to be hasty in condemning the Government's action in giving the public 4.4 beer and urged that it be given a fair trial. Other speakers were Ellis, of Listowel, ex-M.P., R. T. Kemp, Listowel, Dr. Moore, Listowel, and D. M. Wright, of Stratford.

AMATEUR NIGHT AT ROYAL.

If you have been to the "Made in Peterborough Fair" and are still looking for more fun and entertainment, then your place is at the Royal Theatre to-night. In addition to the regular programme, amateur night is the added attraction. Five new acts have been secured. Mr. Harris will sing "Alabamy Bound" and "Oh Katrina." A pie eating contest, always sure fire when it comes to hearty laughter, will wind up this part of the entertainment. Royal to-night.

MINERS ADOPT MORE VIGOROUS PICKET POLICY

All Maintenance Men Withdrawn and Not a Union Member Working.

MINES FLOODED.

Hospital Patients Must Be Moved if Light and Water Cut Off.

GLACE BAY, N.S., June 4. (Canadian Press).—"We have decided on adopting a more vigorous policy in District 26," said District Secretary Alexander Mackay, of the United Mine Workers of America to-day regarding developments in the strike situation. "All the members of the United Mine Workers who have been doing maintenance work have been withdrawn, and to-day not a union member is working. It is not the policy of the executive to have local colliery officials interfered with." The announcement was made this morning by H. J. McCann, general manager of the Dominion Coal Co., that No. 15 colliery would be allowed to flood, and officials from that mine and from the other three pits, numbers 12, 14 and 16, will be pressed into service at Waterford Lake power plant to fill vacancies caused by the withdrawal of maintenance men.

Following the decision of the Miners' Executive to adopt "100 per cent." picketing at the collieries, pickets were actively on the job at most of the collieries this morning.

New Waterford is more seriously affected than any other district by the new picketing order, owing to the fact that the power plant there supplies light and water to the town. If light and water are cut off from the town, patients, numbering twenty, in the local hospital, will have to be taken to some other town.

MIXED SPIRITS WITH 4.4 AND PAID FINE

Hastings Man Found New Beer Not Strong Enough.

By Staff Reporter

HASTINGS, June 4.—Albert Scriver was in Police Court, charged with being drunk, the officer in charge of the case being Constable Trinkmon. According to the evidence 4.4 beer was not potent enough to suit the palate of the defendent and while drinking it in a local hotel he loaded the contents of his glass with ardent spirits.

Scriver was found guilty and was fined, $50, with cost amounting to to $20.50.

The fine goes into the village treasury and Hastings is reaping the advantage of having in Officer Trinkmon an experienced policeman to enforce the observance of the Ontario Temperance Act and so add all fines to the local revenue.

W.C.T.U. RESOLUTION.

Another Registered Against Government For Beer Measure.

SARNIA, Ont., June 4. —The Lambton W.C.T.U. convention held its closing session yesterday after passing a resolution condemning the Government for legalizing the sale of 4.4 beer and urging grocers not to seek licenses for its sale. All the officers were re-elected without a ballot.

BECK PROTESTS POWER EXPORT AS SCANDALOUS

Chairman of Ontario Hydro Denounces Proposed Terms of Carillon Lease.

INJURY TO CANADA.

Ontario Will Need All Its Power Resources in Few Years.

TORONTO, June 4.—(Canadian Press).—The recent discussions in the Dominion Parliament respecting the proposal to grant a lease of the important water-power rights at the Carillon Falls power site on the Ottawa River with the privilege of exporting 400,000 horse-power or more of electrical power to the United States have called forth a vigorous protest from Sir Adam Beck chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power of Ontario, in the form of a printed statement in which he refers to the terms of the proposed Carillon lease as "scandalous."

Sir Adam states that the issues are of such serious moment to the Canadian public that "no government in Canada can stand against the opposition of the public opinion that will be expressed by the people of the provinces of Ontario and Quebec once it is fully appreciated what sacrifice of their interests is involved in the lease proposed for development on the Ottawa River, involving, as it does, the right to export electrical energy to the United States under circumstances which, heretofore, have not existed. The copy of the proposed Carillon agreement that I have been able to go over contains conditions that are scandalous."

The burden of Sir Adam's statement is that no further exportation should be permitted, or at the least, that a prohibitive export tax should be levied.

Premiers Opposed.

Sir Adam Beck states that he is not alone in his protest. He says, "Premier Ferguson of Ontario and Premier Taschereau of Quebec on different occasions have expressed themselves most forcibly against the exportation of electricity upon terms such as those outlined for the proposed Carillon lease. I believe, also, that the views I have here expressed accord with those of all citizens who appreciate what is involved in the use of low-cost Hydro-electrical energy as a substitute for natural coal resources which we lack in Eastern Canada. No such lease as that proposed for the Carillon power site must be considered."

Sir Adam draws attention to the fact that, although the Carillon site is only capable of furnishing 200,000 horse-power, the lease seeks to establish the right to export twice that quantity of power and the Hydro chairman asserts that the Carillon lease with its exportation rights is, "not merely the entering of the thin end of the wedge by means of a change in the law governing the exportation of electricity, but is a complete breaking down of the barrier which, heretofore, has been a reasonable, and in fact the only, safeguard to the people of Canada, serving notice annually on all users of Canadian-produced electricity that this commodity is only being exported from the country until such time as the need arises for its use in Canada and until it becomes necessary to employ the electricity for the municipal, domestic, commercial and industrial requirements of the citizens of Canada.

Shortage in Ontario.

With regard to the province of Ontario, he stated that "the citizens of Ontario are now facing a most serious power shortage. Its gravity can scarcely be overstated. Within the short period of fifteen years Ontario will need every horse-power that can be developed from its water powers and the markets will absorb this power as rapidly as it can be produced. The available Niagara power supply is being utilized as rapidly as the necessary equipment can be installed, and, under present allotments of water, all available Niagara power will be utilized in 1923."

The Hydro chairman issues a warning against taking too literally the 'exaggerations' respecting the water power resources of Canada and On-

BELIEVING HIS SON LOST WITH AMUNDSEN J W ELLSWORTH DIES SUDDENLY IN ITALY

American Capitalist Passed Away in Villa Once Occupied by Boccacio—Dr. Nansen Expects Explorers to Return From Arctic.

FLORENCE, Italy, June 4.—James W. Ellsworth, of New York, capitalist and art collector died yesterday at his villa, Palmiere, near here, the place where Boccacio is said to have written the Decameron.

Mr. Ellsworth's son, Lincoln Ellsworth, is at present with the Amundsen Polar expedition.

Nansen Hopeful for Their Safety.

GENEVA, June 4.—Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, veteran Arctic explorer and relief worker, declared yesterday that absence of news from the Amundsen flying expedition to the North Pole does not justify the deduction that a catastrophe or even an accident has occurred.

Even if one airplane has been damaged, the six members of the expedition could travel in the other, said Dr. Nansen. If Amundsen is attempting to return from the Pole by foot, it will require 25 days to reach Cape Columbia, Grant Land, off the northwest coast of Greenland, but sixteen months might be required to reach a locality from which it would be possible to resume contact with the world.

STORM AGAINST PROHIBITION OF SUNDAY BATHING SPREADS THROUGHOUT ALL COMMUNITY

J. Wells Fraser Hits Ill Advised Legislation as Showing Small Compass of Council's Thought — Mrs. Arthur Stevenson Strongly Disapproves Closing of Beaches.

MEN AND WOMEN ON STREET STRONGLY OPPOSE RULING

Medical Health Officer Aligns Himself With Citizens—No One Found To-day to Approve Action of Aldermen—James Juby Says Council Morally Responsible.

The action of the City Council in withdrawing the bathing beach conveniences and locking up the dressing rooms during Sundays has aroused a storm of disapproval among the people. Views are expressed in no measured terms and all condemn the move as unwise, unjust and extremely selfish.

An Examiner reporter spent five minutes in importuning passers-by on the street; ten people, representative of both sexes and of various ages were aceosted and of that number there was not one voice which said "Close the dressing rooms." All were unanimous in saying, "Let the people swim, what could they do during the summer that would be better?" One person suggested that the booths should be closed but he also added "Some people forget that they were young themselves."

Needless Inconvenience

Gus White, proprietor of the White House, said that poor children who were unable to go out of the city in cars to popular beaches would be left at home either to swelter in the heat or to ramble off to some unprotected spot where no care could be taken of their lives. They would be forced to change clothes behind whatever cover nature might afford which procedure would inevitably shock many pure minded citizens.

The M. O. H. Speaks.

Dr. T. W. H. Young, medical health officer for the city, said: "Cleanliness is next to Godliness, and Godliness is worth striving for even if it is necessary to put an occasional quarter on the collection plate. If Sunday bathing is going to be permitted in the city, and it can't be stopped as the waterways belong to the Dominion Government, how much better it would be to have the bathing carried on at specified and recognized beaches which are properly guarded and where facilities for life-saving are ready for use rather than having the children scatter to a multitude of places, change attire in semi-concealed spots where there are no appliances or guards. If it is a matter of cost, surely there is no citizen who would not gladly pay an extra fraction of a mill in order to keep Peterborough's beaches open on the Lord's Day."

Morally Responsible.

James Juby, well-known grocer, was of the opinion that, while he himself was not concerned, the beaches should be available and protected for the children of those who could not afford to go to other places. If an accident were to happen the Council would be held morally, if not legally, responsible.

J. Wells Fraser, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said that the

Shepherd Trial Juror Attends Uncle's Funeral

CHICAGO, June 4.—(Canadian Press). — No progress was made yesterday in obtaining a jury in the Shepherd murder trial, court holding only a morning session to permit A. Ross Hoyt, the first juror selected, nearly three weeks ago, to attend the funeral of an uncle. Along with Hoyt went the other eleven men who occupied the jury box with him, three jurors, two veniremen temporarily passed by both defence and prosecution, one examined by the prosecution and five veniremen who had not been questioned.

The Illinois law requires that after the first twelve men have been called into the jury box no fewer than that number may ever be there until the end of a trial.

HORSE ATTACKED AND KILLED BOY

Three Year Old Lad Was Playing Near Grazing Animal.

WINDSOR, Ont., June 4. (Canadian Press).—Alfred Blontrock, the three-year-old son of August Blontrock, of Lauzon Road, Sandwich, met a tragic death late yesterday afternoon when he was attacked by a horse. The lad was playing in a chicken coop when the animal, which had been grazing peacefully nearby, made a sudden dash for the child and kicked him several times before being driven away. The boy was brought to the Hotel Dieu, but died shortly after.

THIS FREEDOM BIG FACTOR IN CAUSING CRIME

Parental Control Weakened By Emancipation of Women, Winnipeg Judge's View.

CHIEF'S MEETING.

Farmers Set Good Example —Average Criminal To-day a Mere Youth.

WINNIPEG, June 4. — "Emancipation of women has led to the slackening of parental control, and is one of the most potent causes leading to crime to-day, for by far the largest proportion of offences against the law are committed by young persons under twenty years of age."

This was the statement made by His Lordship, Mr. Justice Dysart in addressing the 21st annual convention of the Chief Constables' Association of Canada at the Royal Alexandra Hotel on "Crime and Punishment."

There were 175 persons present at the meeting, which was presided over by Chief X. Bruton, of Regina, in the absence of the president, Chief A. M. Ross, of Ottawa.

Mr. Dysart pointed out that when the attention of the home was not given to the children, they experienced harmful freedom in their actions.

Commendation was expressed by His Lordship of the action taken by various organizations to improve disciplinary conditions under which the children of to-day existed.

Urban Offenders.

Speaking of crime, Judge Dysart stated that 90 per cent. of the law infractions were of minor character, only 10 per cent. being indictable; 9 men were convicted to every woman, and in spite of the fact that rural and urban populations in Canada were aproximately equal, four-fifths of crimes were perpetrated by the city-dwellers. Single men were three times as prominent on the lists as married, and taken as a whole criminals were found to be educated above the average considered by occupations, 31 per cent of the prisoners were registered as "laborers," 27 per cent. as having no occupation, and only 7 per cent. as agriculturists.

Crimes among Youth.

A marked increase of crimes among women and the younger generation of Winnipeg during the past year, was indicated in the annual report of Chief Constable C. Newton.

The average criminal of to-day the the report states, is the boy of 17 to 18, at most 20 to 21 years of age.

These youthful malefactors, the chief declares, are "hardened criminals at heart," although just boys in years, boasting to their friends, and parading themselves in an effort to show how close they can stick to their criminal associates.

Unemployment is blamed for very much of the crime. Practically every nationality in the civilized world was represented in the number of people running afoul of the law.

WEATHER

Yesterday's highest temperature was again 86 degrees in the shade. For several days there has been but little variation. Last night's lowest was 68 degrees—the warmest night up to the present time. Rainfall last night .23 of an inch. Showers every night, and warm and close in the day time should provide conditions favorable to rapid and vigorous growth. —W. P.

HOPE HELD OUT BY MR. MEIGHEN AT BIG DINNER

Urged Members of Conservative Party to "Teach and Preach" Principles.

VICTORY CERTAIN.

If Members Will Set House in Order, They Will Be Victorious.

OTTAWA, June 4. — Canadian Press. — Paying tribute to his lieutenants and urging the workers of the Conservative party to "teach and preach" the principles of the party where the opposition was the most adverse, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative party, addressed a gathering of the Conservative members and Senators at a complimentary dinner given in honor of himself and Sir James Lougheed, Conservative leader in the Senate, last night.

The Conservative party had it in its power to make victory certain in the approaching election, said Mr. Meighen. "I believe the wave is with us in all parts of Canada," he said, in urging every Conservative member of both Houses to set his house in order, to make victory certain.

Mr. Meighen made a particular appeal to the Conservative dherents in the province of Quebec where there was perhaps more in store for the party than anywhere else in Canada. The Conservative leader advocated that his followers also address themselves to the west which had been overswept by anti-tariff propaganda. The present political foe was not such a strong opponent as the party had faced in years gone by, and the present government, with no cohesive policy, was weak compared to opponents met in former campaigns.

Sir James Lougheed said the best guarantee Canada had of efficient administration was the Conservative party.

ISLAND LEASE MAY CAUSE WAR

Soviet Will Consider Rental to England by Esthonia as Hostile Move.

FLEET PREPARED.

....COPENHAGEN, June 4 (United Press).—A press report purporting to emanate from Moscow, declared today that the Soviet supreme council had decided to declare a state of war at Kronstadt during the visit of the British fleet to Esthonia and had also ordered the Baltic Russian fleet to be in "preparedness."

Moscow advices recently said that the Soviet Government would regard as tantamount to a declaration of war, the proposed lease to England of the Esthonian Islands near the doors of Russia.

TAXI DRIVERS MUST DRESS UP

New York Police Require Them to Wear Coats and Collars.

UNIFORM CAPS.

NEW YORK, June 4. (United Press).—New York's thousands of taxi drivers will have "white collar jobs after June 15.

The police department has issued a "thumbs down" order on shirt-sleeved, bare-necked chauffeurs, and ruled that after the above date cab operators must wear a uniform cap with patent leather visor, a white linen collar, a neck tie and a coat.

LOW COST FOUR-WEEK TOUR

Through Western Canada to the Pacific Coast, Yellowstone Park, Salt Lake City and Rocky Mountain National Park.

A never-to-be-forgotten four-week tour of Western Canada and the Pacific Coast with a trip through the United States on the return journey has been planned for Canadian teachers and their friends this summer, leaving Toronto by Canadian National Railways on July 9th.

The trip is simply crammed with scenic and historic wonders. A visit to Wainwright Park, Alberta, where the largest herd of Buffalo in the world is located. Two days are spent at Jasper National Park, in the heart of the Canadian Rockies, where the beauty of the mountain scenery is indescribable. From Jasper Park westward the party passes snow-capped Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and stops at the Indian village of Kitwanga, with its wonderful historic totem poles. Then westward again, following the mystic Skeena River to Prince Rupert, the North Pacific terminal of the Canadian National Railways.

At Prince Rupert a palatial steamer is boarded for the 750 mile trip through the Sheltered Scenic Seas of the North Pacific to Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle. This is recognized as one of the finest sea trips in the world.

On the journey homeward a 72 mile motor drive will be taken from Portland, Oregon, over the famous scenic Columbia River Highway, and five days will be taken for a motor tour of Yellowstone National Park. Then follows a visit to Salt Lake City, Utah, with a three-day motor tour of Rocky Mountain National Park to Colorado. Enroute to Denver short stops will be made at Clear Creek Canyon, Idaho Springs, and Lookout Mountain—where Buffalo Bill is buried. Chicago is reached on August 6th, and Toronto, August 7th.

In spite of the magnitude of the tour, the fare is remarkably reasonable, and as the leaving date is July 9th, arrangements should be made at once. Reservations and illustrated booklets with full information regarding the trip can be secured from A. E. Bryson, 44 Silverthorn ave., Toronto, Martin Kerr, 4 Beulah Ave., Hamilton, or any Canadian National Railways Agent. 4-10-16

ARABIC SPEECH IS LIKE CAMEL SOUNDS

Language Contains 6,000 Words Descriptive of Ship of Desert.

LONDON, June 4.—(Associated Press).—In the Arabic language there are nearly 6,000 words descriptive of the camel and its various offices, according to Lieut.-Col. H. F. Jacob, formerly in Cairo as political adviser to Lord Allenby, former British High Commissioner in Egypt, who lectured recently before the London Chamber of Commerce on his experiences in Egypt.

Col. Jacob told of being captured by tribesmen while proceeding to Santa, capital of the Iman Yahya, as Government envoy to that monarch. The tribesmen kept the Colonel prisoner four months. They feared he intended completing a treaty which would place the entire country under the Iman's away. The British Government offered $250,000 for his ransom which the tribesmen scorned, and eventually he got away by concluding a temporary agreement with them.

In his description of Arabic and its connection with the camel Col. Jacob asserted that guttural sounds of that language were said by scientists to have been derived from the gurglings of the beast of burden of the deserts.

BUSINESS METHODS NEED OF CHARITIES

Recent Society Ball Netted $250 Out of $1,750 Collected.

LONDON, June 4.—(Associated Press).—There has been such a slump in the net receipts from charity functions, balls, tea dances and concerts given by society folk, that an effort is being made toward proper organization. By this means it is hoped hitherto ridiculous expenses will be wiped out, and good profits made for the various deserving charities for which the particular functions are given.

In a recent case a ball committee paid out $1,500 for expenses, and everybody enjoyed themselves dancing, but the charity got only $250. All this is to cease, and the management of affairs has been placed in the hands of Mrs. Frank Braham, a well-known society woman. Her dances are among the most popular in London. Mrs. Braham intends getting to work first on obtaining royal patronage, then forming a good hard-working committee of women, after which she expects the rest to be comparatively easy, and also profitable.

COUNCIL MET AT HAVELOCK

Court of Revision Went Over Assessments—Plan to Keep Down Dust.

MANY APPEALS.

HAVELOCK, June 3. — The regular meeting of the town council was held on Monday evening, with all the members present.

The following appeals were considered in the Court of Revision.

Dr. A. S. Thompson appealed against his own assessment as being excessive and also against the assessments of Dr. J. Holdcroft and Chas. Dickenson, the latter property owned by Donald Holdcroft, as being too low.

Moved by R. Campney and J. Scott that Dr. Thompson's assessment be sustained.—Carried.

Moved by A. Spencer and J. Ketchen that the assessment of Charles Dickenson be sustained.—Carried.

Moved by R. Campney and J. Scott that Dr. J. Holdcroft's assessment be increased 250.—Carried.

Mr. P. Yuill appeared against his income assessment claiming that he should be exemt on account of being a householder.

Moved by J. Scott and A. Spencer that Mr. Yuill's assessment be sustained.—Carried.

On Motion of R. Campney and J. Ketchen.

Mr. George Isles was exempted from assesment on income as he was only allowed the exemption on income of a non-householder although married and a tenant when assessed.

Mr. Frank White of Peterboro was also exempted from income assessment on motion of R. Campney and A. Spencer, as he is not a resident of Havelock.

The assessment of Yuan Chong for business and property valuation of $800 was sustained on motion of J. Ketchen and A. Spencer.

Mrs. Mary Lynch, of Toronto, appealed against the assessment on her property on Ottawa Street. Moved by J. Scott and A. Spencer that this assessment be sustained. Carried.

The court adjourned until July 6, and Council resumed.

To Settle Dust.

A petition signed by seventy-eight business men and ratepayers was received, requesting the Council to take steps to relieve the dust nuisaenc on the streets.

In compliance with this request, it was decided to purchase eight tons of valcium chloride and place on the following streets:

On George Street, from A. Watson's residence west to Quebec Street.

On Ottawa Street, from Orange Street to Quebec Street.

On Quebec Street, from Ottawa Street to George Street.

On Concession Street, from Geo. McGowan's residence south to Bernard Smith's gate.

On Oak Street, from Ottawa Street to George Street.

On motion of R. Campney and J. Scott, the 1924 taxes of Fred. Jackson and Gordon Burgess were abated to the collector and the collector's time extended until next Council meeting.

Moved by J. Ketchen and A. Spencer that the treasurer be authorized to pay street expenditures upon authorization of Street Committee.

LAST ASSEMBLY MET LAST NIGHT

Presbyterians From All Over Canada at Final Meeting of Church.

NEW MODERATOR.

TORONTO, June 4 (Canadian Press).—With more than six hundred ministers, ruling elders and commissioners in attendance, the fifty-first and the last general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada convened last night in College Street Presbyterian Church. When its sessions finish, six days hence, Canadian Presbyterianism as it exists at present will pass out of existence, merging in the United Church of Canada, and a new body, formed by non-concurrents will be constituted.

Last year's moderator, Rev. Clarence Mackinnon, D.D., delivered his address and formally constituted the new assembly. The roll call was held, and then the Rev. Dr. George C. Pidgeon, of Bloor Street Presbyterian Church, was unanimously elected as moderator for the present session. Votes of thanks and striking of committees concluded the business.

MOST CRIME IS LAID TO BOYS

Average Criminal of To-day is 18 Years Old, Says Chief.

MANY MORE WOMEN.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 4 (Canadian Press).—A marked decrease of crimes among women and the younger generation of Winnipeg during the past year was indicated in the annual report of Chief Constable C. Newton issued yesterday.

The average criminal of today, the report states, is a boy of 17 to 18, at most 20 to 21 years of age. These youthful malefactors, the Chief declared, are "hardened criminals at heart," although just boys in years, boasting to their friends and parading themselves in an effort to show how close they can stick to their criminal associates.

LOW WATER IN ST. MARY RIVER

Averages 9 Inches Lower Than Last Year—Eight Millions Difference in Freight.

BLAME CHICAGO.

SAULT STE. MARIE, June 4 (Canadian Press.—Freight vessels passing through the St. Mary's River, stand to lose $8,000,000 in revenue this season as compared to last season, on the basis of the draft of 18 feet 9 inches recommended for vessels using the river yesterday, which is 9 inches lower than last year. Just what the reason is for this big drop in the river level here is a point on which marine men differ, but there is a general disposition to consider that the diversion of water by Chicago drainage canal is to a large extent responsible. The water in the river here has been from six inches to a foot lower than last season in the spring.

WEDDING BELLS.

TAYLOR—KIDD.

LAKEFIELD, June 4. — The Lakfield Presbyterian church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon, when Myrtle Annie, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kidd, became the bride of Allen Gordon Taylor, only son of Mr. and Mrs. David Taylor of Warsaw. At three o'clock the bridal couple entered the church to the strains of the Wedding March played by Miss Alice Hunter.

The bride, who was given away by her father looked charming in a peach colored georgette gown with leghorn hat with peach colored trimming and carried ophelia roses. The bridesmaid Miss Lulu Darling, looked very pretty in an apricot georgette gown with hat to match. She carried ophelia roses. Mr. Ernest Batten supported the bridegroom. Rev. P. L. Jull conducted the ceremony. During the signing of the register, Miss Olive Cullen sang "Beloved, it is Morn." The ushers were Mr. Harold Kidd of Toronto, and Mr Harry Garbutt of Douro.

The church was decorated with lilies of the valley and lilacs for the occasion ,which was done by the girls of the Young Ladies' Mission Band of which the bride was a member.

After the ceremony a luncheon was served at the bride's home.

The happy couple left for a motor trip to Niagara Falls and other points. The bride's going away gown was of flame color, trimmed with sand flowers and coat of wedgewood poiret twill, with trimming of fur, and hat of the same shade.

Among many gifts was a life membership certificate of the Women's Misionary Society of the Presbyterian Church, presented by the Young Ladies' Mision Band.

The bride was one of the most popular young ladies in the village, and an efficient and active worker in the Presbyterian church, both in missionary work and in the choir.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, upon their return from their honeymoon, will reside in Dummer .

PENSION FUNDS COST MILLIONS

Great Britain Expends Large Sums on Various Doles and Grants.

NO RESERVES

The cost to Great Britain for the year ended March 31, 1925, by the existence of health and unemployment funds, old age pensions and unemployment grants, was £53,819,000. According to official figures received by Bankers' Trust Company of New York, from its British Information Service, the health insurance scheme accounted for £8,046 000 of this amount, the unemployment insurance scheme for £13,202,000, old age pensions for £25,810,000 and unemployment grants for £6,761,000. In addition, loans totalling £1,471,000 were made to local and poor law authorities in connection with unemployment relief. The total of the outstanding loans made by the state to the unemployment insurance fund on April 1, 1924, stood at £10,350,000. It is estimated that this sum was reduced to approximately £8,000,000 on March 31, 1925. The state did not accumulate any reserves from either of the two insurance funds during the last 12 months.

THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1925.

NOT TOO LATE TO CHANGE.

The abandoning of Sunday evening concerts comes as a surprise, in view of the undoubted popularity of the Sunday programmes with all classes of citizens.

Never in Peterboro's history have there been such crowds in Victoria Park as attended some of the Sunday concerts last year, and the Friday evening attendance always seemed slim in comparison.

With the musical organizations the Sunday concerts were also most popular, for they were assured of a better turn-out of their members than at the week-night engagements in view of the fact that a number of soloists who played in the theatre orchestras were not available except on Sundays.

It was surprising in the face of these circumstances to find that not a single Sunday concert has been scheduled for this season; and more surprising to see that the announced programme was allowed to go through without comment from the Council as to the absence of Sunday concerts.

It is not too late to alter the schedule and to provide for a number of Sunday concerts, and the Examiner has no hesitation in saying that such a change would be welcomed by the majority of Peterboro's citizens, who thoroughly enjoyed last season's Sunday evening programmes.

UNDESIRABLE ADVERTISING.

It was particularly unfortunate that the City Council should have selected the week of the Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition as a fitting time to grow suddenly dubious about the ethics of Sunday bathing and the moral worth of Sunday band concerts.

The Exhibition and the special industrial edition of the Examiner, issued simultaneously with the opening of the former, concerned to give Peterboro much valuable publicity as an industrial centre of much importance and as a live community of the sort likely to attract new industries and new citizens.

And then along came the Council and practically destroyed much of the value of this carefully planned publicity by arriving at a decision that was bound in the eyes of the outside world to stamp Peterboro as a narrow-minded, Puritanical, joy-killing kind of place, from which the average man would shrink as from a small-pox placard.

The Examiner does not believe that the Aldermen responsible for Monday night's action stopped to weigh the possible results of their decision; they undoubtedly failed to catch the significance of such a verdict and what it entailed.

What they must have heard since Monday night surely has given them some reason to change their mind in regard to Sunday bathing, and to cause a desire on their part to have the question re-opened.

If, however, they are still of the same mind the electors may be trusted to take on unusually active interest in the next municipal election.

WHAT CAN BE DONE.

To the Examiner the most wonderful feature about the Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition is the demonstration it affords of societies and individuals throwing themselves whole-heartedly in a united effort on behalf of a community organization.

What a delightful place Peterboro would be, what great progress could be made, if this unanimity of effort could be utilized the year round in the advancement of every movement that had as its aim the betterment of the city!

Hundreds of workers, representing a score or more of different local societies, are giving of their time, money and energy to make the Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition a huge success.

Every one is contributing something to that result—there is not a drone in the hive, and the consequence is an unparalleled exhibition of the effectiveness of a community effort, intelligently planned and directed.

The financial success of the affair already seems assured; the receipts will supply the Health Association with a very substantial sum with which to balance its year's budget.

The Exhibition has, too, succeeded in its object—of educating the people in regard to the products of their home factories.

And last, but not least, it has proven that when there is a real community effort made any enterprise backed by that effort is predestined to triumphantly succeed.

SUNDAY BATHING.

If the Aldermen who voted against the opening of the civic bathing beaches on Sunday do not believe that their decision is most unpopular, let them test public opinion for themselves by asking the first dozen people they meet as to their views on this question.

Unless the Examiner is greatly mistaken in its diagnosis of the feeling of the public, the Aldermen who make this test will find at least ten out of the twelve who think that Monday's night's decision was a mistake.

One Alderman in explaining his stand in the matter declared that Sunday bathing could still go on—the Council, he declared, did not wish to be put in the position of officially endorsing bathing on Sunday, and therefore had merely decided to withdraw the supervision on that day.

But he admitted that he had quite failed to think of the fact that if no caretaker were on duty the dressing-rooms would have to be closed and would-be bathers would find no facilities for donning their bathing apparel.

The Examiner does not doubt that Sunday bathing will continue whether the Council approves or not, but the absence of dressing-room accommodation will prove an inconvenience that should not be put in the way of hundreds of citizens who can see no moral wrong in cooling off on a hot summer Sunday.

This question, in view of the condemnation of the Council's action by citizens in all stratas of society, should be re-opened: there is no reason why the mistake should be persisted in in the face of general opposition.

MOTOR CARS AND THE RAILWAYS.

The American railways have come to an agreement to fight motor bus and motor truck competition. This they propose to do by agitating for the regulation of these carriers in the same degree that their own operations are regulated. Beyond that, it is their intention to insist that their competitors for both passenger and freight traffic shall make a just contribution toward the upkeep of highways by paying a ton-mile tax. That is the rule in Great Britain.

The Minister of Railways announced to Parliament, when making his annual statement recently with respect to the Canadian National, that motor vehicle competition had last year cost the railways of Canada $24,000,000, says the Ottawa Journal. Both in Canada and the United States the railways are said to be the largest contributors to the taxes out of which improved highways are built and maintained. Therefore, they feel that they have a right to act defensively.

Motor car competition is peculiarly effective in respect of holiday travel. The matter was investigated last year by several large railways operating in the Eastern States, and it was found that private and other auto services were carrying more than half the visitors to seaside and summer resorts. Because of loss of business from this form of rivalry, the Boston & Maine Railway has seriously proposed to abandon a thousand miles of its line. A statement given out last month by this company showed that many of its branch lines were not earning half the cost of their operation.

Defensive measures on the part of American railways will also take the form of introducing cheap service by means of gasoline-propelled units instead of ordinary trains. The same expedient is being tried in Canada, although not wholly for the purpose of meeting motor car competition. Contrary to popular notions, branch lines, which enjoy what are regarded as high local rates, are seldom profitable. Indeed, what to do with such feeders to the main line service has become an acute problem in modern railroading. This is particularly true of our own West, where there is an enormous branch line mileage. Such branches are necessary; yet they yield a profit only during the relatively short period each year when the harvest is being moved. That is a factor which complainants against the existing scale of rates are apt to overlook.

SENTIMENTALITY OR SAFETY.

Chicago is not being permitted to enjoy its evil pre-eminence in the murder industry, and is no longer entitled to a monopoly of the slogan of "a murder a day." Statistics just issued, dealing with crime in New York City, show that in the seven years ending on December 31st, 1924, there were 1,909 homicides, or approximately one for each working day, and at present the average is being well maintained, six murders a week being recorded. During the seven-year period only 231 accused were convicted of first degree murder, and while statistics of the actual number executed are not at hand, it was probably not more than one-fourth of the total. Last year three hundred killings remained unsolved, and the increase in murders for 1924 over 1918 was forty per cent. It is a shocking record, and one that constitutes a damning indictment of boasted American efficiency, so far as the administration of justice is concerned. An effort is being made to balance the scales in the present year, and three Brooklyn thugs have just been sent to the electric chair for the murder of two bank messengers in 1922, their executions closely following those of half-a-dozen men for the slaying of store attendants in two hold-ups at Buffalo.

If New York is awakening to the need for remedial measures, it can find a mentor and an example in the neighboring city of Philadelphia, where Judge McDevitt, of the Court of Common Pleas, has recently given expression to some views and facts, based upon actual experience, which are worthy of attention. Judge McDevitt, in the twenty-eight months which he has spent upon the bench, has earned from the denizens of the underworld the sobriquet of "Hanging Harry," because of the number of capital convictions registered before him. He succeeded another terror to evil-doers, Judge "Treat-'Em-Rough" Monaghan, so-called because of his drastic sentences upon convicted highwaymen, which proved effectual in ridding Philadelphia of the unenviable distinction of "a hold-up a day."

"The death penalty is the result of the reasoned judgment of society over thousands of years of experience, and nothing else has the same deterrent effect in crime," said Judge McDevitt in an interview. "I have never lost a wink of sleep over a death sentence, because I do not accept any personal responsibility for the law other than to do my sworn duty. It is the law—the measured judgment of the majority that has come down to us through the years—that prescribes the death penalty. Swift and adequate punishment is a measure of crime prevention; delayed punishment and sentences guided by sympathy rather than justice operate to make crime of all kinds more frequent. Spineless jurors can bring about an increase of murder. Courageous men and women who are willing to accept the plain mandate of the law, and to put responsibility for the actual death penalty on the law, where it belongs, can bring about a reduction in murder."

As proof of his contention, Judge McDevitt cites the decrease in the number of murders which follows a strict enforcement of the law and the exacting of the extreme penalty. Prior to 1921, Philadelphia's ratio of murders was almost as high as Chicago's and New York's in proportion to population, but with an average of only one death penalty a year. In 1921, under the pressure of increasing crime, there were six first degree verdicts, and in 1922 there were twelve, with the result of a marked reduction in homicides for 1923, only 108 being recorded. The drop in killings was accompanied by a corresponding reduction in death penalties, only six being imposed. This measure of laxity was immediately reflected in the statistics for 1924, there being an increase of twenty homicides over 1923. Judge McDevitt, putting into practice his sound theory as to cause and effect, imposed eleven sentences of capital punishment last year, and this salutary course has resulted in materially reducing the monthly average for the elapsed period of the present year.

Judge McDevitt finds a strong supporter of his viewpoint in Mrs. George Thomas Palmer, President of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, who in a recent address in Chicago said:

"I am tired of the silly sentimentality that surrounds the treatment of crime here. There should be no abolition of capital punishment in Chicago or Illinois, and no cutting down on the number of hangings until we find something worth while to substitute in their place. We should follow the example of England, where justice is swift and sure."—Montreal Gazette.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, June 3.—The hot weather has not had any effect on the butchers' trade yet, but a continuance of high temperature will cut down the beef demand and this accounted for a slowing up in the demand for butchers today, although the prices were about steady. An odd choice handweight brought the week's top of $8.25 a cwt. Bulls were bought for export from $5 to $5.25 a cwt. Light export steers were $7.40 to $8.25 and heifers $7 to $7.25 a cwt.

Bologna bulls were wanted at $3.75 to $4 a cwt., and the market for butchers' cows was active at steady prices. Three heifery cows sold at $6.65 a cwt., and the bulk of the good cows were $5.75 to $6.25 a cwt. To-day's offering would be around 1,600 cattle and it was generally expected that these would be disposed of during the day.

A heavy run of calves on Tuesday made this market a little sloppy and medium calves sold some lower. A much lighter offering this morning kept the undertone steady. Most of the good calves did not sell above 9 1-2 cents and medium calves were 8 cents a pound.

The demand for mutton has fallen off and sheep are not too good a sale. Fair quality sheep are selling from 6 1-2 to 7 cents and spring lambs are seady with a range of $8 to $15 each.

The packers claim to be getting all the hogs they want at $11.75 a cwt. f.o.b., and are refusing to follow any attempt at advance. Hogs have strengthened on all the United States markets.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burto

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes . . . and no children.

Dick borrows MAGGIE, his mother's maid, to teach Gloria to cook. But she refuses to learn, to the great disgust of MOTHER GREGORY. Then Maggie leaves, because of Gloria's wild parties.

Gloria hires RANGHILD SWANSON, although Dick tells her they can't afford a maid. She swamps Dick with debt, and demands a new automobile.

Dick becoms dangerously ill with pneumonia. During the time of his recovery, Gloria asks Dick's secretary, MISS SUSAN BRIGGS, to give her $200 of Dick's money. She explains that she needs it for the house, so Miss Briggs gives it to her. Then Gloria lends the money to STANLEY WAYBURN, an out-of-work actor with whom she is infatuated. Wayburn plans to use the money to go to New York to look up a job.

A few days before he goes, Gloria and he are out driving in her car, when they have an accident. Wayburn leaves Gloria lying under the wrecked car, goes for help, and disappears. His cigaret case is found lyinz under the car, and when Dick sees it, he goes to the hospital to see Gloria and forces a confession from her about her friendliness with Wayburn.

Weeks pass. Gloria finds her life very stale without Wayburn. Then her friend, MAY SEYMOUR, wife of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, tells Gloria that there has been much gossip about he affair with Wayburn. Her friends begin to shun her.

May gives a party which includes Gloria, JIM CAREWE, a man who half in love with May, and some of his gay friends. Gloria leaves early. She's "blue" and depressed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Oh, dry up and blow away!" Gloria answered crossly. "I'm not going to talk about it any more! You go with your precious mother, and I'll find something to amuse me here . . . never fear!"

She stopped suddenly. She had just found the letter! Stanley Wayburn's letter . . . There it stood, propped up on her dresser, where she would be sure to see it.

With shaking fingers, she ripped open the cheap, white envelope.

"Dear Russet," the letter read. "I trust this letter will find you well and happy. After I sent the old farmer to get you the day of the accident, I beat it. I thought you were dead when I saw you lying under the car, and I knew if I stayed I'd be mixed up in a scandal. Believe me, I was glad when I heard that you'd only had a few broken bones. If anyone happened to find my silver cigaret case, will you send it to me?"

"As always, S.W."

Below the letter he had penciled his address.

He was living on Forty-Second street, in New York.

Forty-Second street! The words brought to Gloria a sudden vision of electric lights, dashing taxicabs, gay crowds of people, red-striped awnings before restaurant entrances . . .!

Her breath caught in her throat. How she would love to be there! Part of the movement, the color, the riot, the noise!

There was corned beef for dinner that night . . . corned beef with horseradish sauce and boiled cabbage.

"I hate corned beef!" Gloria exclaimee when the meal was almost over. "I wish you'd give me a little more money to keep the house on, Dick. Then we wouldn't have to eat this horrible stuff, just because its cheap!"

Dick laid down his knife and fork on his plate. He looked across the table at Gloria thoughtfully.

"That reminds me," he said. "Miss Briggs said she let you have $200 of mine while I was sick to spend on the backyard. I'm afraid I'll have to ask you fr that money, Gloria. . . . We can't afford to spend it just now. That's why I'm trying to fix the place up, myself."

Under the tablecloth, Gloria's hands were twisting and untwisting themselves frantically.

She tried to open her mouth to speak. But she couldn't make up her mind what to say.

What could she say? What was there to say?

She had given up all hope of Wayburn's paying back the money!

She sat silent, looking at Dick with her great brown eyes fixed and staring. Then she began to cry. Tears always distressed Dick horribly, she knew.

He got up and came around the table to her. He drew her up from her chair and out of the room. He led her to the davenport in the living room and pushed her down into its velvety depths.

"Poor little thing!" he said, "are you afraid to tell me what you did with the money? . . . You spent it, didn't you?"

Gloria nodded, sobbing against Dick's breast.

"There, there, don't cry," he said. "It doesn't matter, honey. I wouldn't have mentioned it to you, only we're dead-broke. I'd have given it to you for hats and things, if I weren't right down to rock bottom!"

Gloria wiped her eyes, and looked up at him.

"Then, where are you going to get the money to go away on your trip?" she asked. "I should think you'd go right back to work tomorrow, if you're down to your last dollar! Instead of planning an expensive trip!"

Dick groaned despairingly as he dropped into his armchair.

"That's what I'd like to do . . . get back to work," he said, "but Doc Seymour won't let me go back into the office until I've put on ten pounds. He says I'll go all to pieces if I do."

He cleared his throat and went on with difficulty.

"I'm going to mortgage the house," he said. "You see, I've just got to get some money to tide us over 'til I start earning again. Gosh, I hate to put a plaster on it, too, but I guess it can't be helped. We've had a pretty tough run of luck, lately, you and I . . . haven't we, sweetheart?"

Gloria nodded. She patted the bandage across her aching shoulder.

"I should say we have?" she answered.

"By the way, what's become of Wayburn?" Dick asked. "I still have that cigaret case of his. I ought to give it to him."

"You can't," Gloria answered. "He's left town."

The moment she had said it she could have bitten off her tongue for he stupidity.

"Hmm!" Dick mused, "that's so. . . . A letter came for you from New York today. I told Ranghild to put it on your dresser. Did you get it?"

"Yes," Gloria faltered. "I did."

"Who writes you letters from New York?" Dick asked.

Gloria could feel Wayburn's letter inside her blouse, where she had slipped it. It crackled against her flesh with every breath she drew.

. . . There really was nothing inside the letter that she couldn't show Dick, she was sure.

It was as harmless a letter as ever had been written.

There was not a single word in it to suggest that it had been penned by a lover to the lady of his dreams.

Gloria pulled it from the top of her dress and handed it to Dick.

"Here, read it yourself," she said. "It's from Stan Wayburn."

But Dick didn't read it. He didn't open it. He hardly touched it . . . just long enough to toss it down on the teak-wood table at the end of the davenport.

His face was white under the light of the tall lamp that stood there.

"So?" he questioned. "My wife carries Wayburn's letter against her heart?"

Gloria laughed.

"Dick, you're absurd," she said. "I never thought of it's being against my heart. I stuck it into my blouse, so Ranghild wouldn't find it and read it."

"I see," Dick said. But his face was grim. He sat down in his armchair, and filled his pipe. He picked up the book he was reading. Then he laid it down upon his knees.

"Gloria," he said abruptly. "Tell me the truth for once in your life. . . . Are you or are you not in love with Wayburn?"

"I don't know," Gloria answered. She had asked herself that question a thousand times. And she never answered it the same way twice.

"That's nonsense," Dick went on impatiently. "You must know how you feel about him! . . . Tell me this: you don't care about me, any more, do you?"

Gloria looked across the room at him with the calm eyes of the Sphinx, herself. But his question had set thoughts to buzzing like bees in her head.

How much did she care about Dick? Would she miss him if he went away from her as she missed Stanley Wayburn?

She wondered.

She felt Dick as something trustworthy, honest and good beyond measure. Good all the way through. . . . That was Dick.

But did she love him?

"I don't know, Dick," Gloria said at last.

She sat up straight, pulling herself together like a woman who had something to say and meant to say it now!

"I'll try to tell you how I feel about you, if I can, Dick," she said. "To begin with, I hate housework. I hate having to run this house for you. It makes me sick and tired. And sometimes I almost hate you for marrying me and turning me into a housewife!"

Dick gave a short laugh.

"Bah!" he said. "You a house-wife! That's pretty good, Gloria. You haven't done a day's housework in your whole life! How do you know whether you hate it or not?"

Gloria waved his words aside.

"Now don't interrupt me!" she snapped at him. "When I married you, I was awfully tired of office work. I was tired of playing around with fellows who didn't want to get married . . . And you looked awfully good to me. See?"

Dick nodded.

"I see perfectly," he said. "You wanted to marry Wayburn, but he didn't want to marry you. I came along, and you thought I had a lot of money. So you married me. Isn't that it?"

Gloria shook her head so that every curl on it quivered.

"No, no. That wasn't it," she said quickly. "I'm not such a gold-digger as all that! But I knew you'd be awfully good to me if I married you. And . . . you know I did care for you, Dick, don't you?"

Dic'c puffed his pipe in silence. He passed his hand across his forehead, cold and wet with sweat.

"Was Wayburn ever in love with you?" he asked.

"I thought he was once," Gloria answered, "but I found out that he wasn't."

MONUMENT UNVEILED AT OTTAWA COMMEMORATING WOMEN'S AID IN WAR A GIFT FROM UNITED STATES

Presented by the George Washington-Sulgrave Institution in Epochal Event.

I.O.D.E. PRESENT.

Borglum's Symbolic Bronze Accepted By Premier on Behalf of Government.

OTTAWA, une 4—The Victoria Memorial Museum was the scene of an epochal ceremony on Wednesday afternoon when John A Stewart, chairman of the Board of Governors of the George Washington-Sulgrave Institution presented on behalf of the institution, a bronze monument, executed by Borglum to commemorate the part played by Canadian women in the world war. The statue stands about 7 feet high and surmounts a black marble pedestal. It depicts the world being held up by a number of symbolical female figures. It is considered to be a masterpiece of its kind.

On behalf of the government of Canada, Right Hon. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister, accepted the statue.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, speaker of the House of Commons, was chairman of the gathering and introduced Mr. Stewart to the gathering, which was attended by members of he Privy Council, members of the Cabinet, foreign consuls in Ottawa, their wives and many representatives of the Daughters of the Empire, to whom Mr. Stewart addressed himself specifically in giving the statute.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, and Mr. Robert Forke, M.P., leader of the Progressive party, associated themselves with Mr. King, in brief speeches.

Unveiled by Woman

The actual unveiling of the memorial was done by Mrs. Doolittle, Dominion President, Daughters of the Empire, following Mr. Stewart's presentation address.

Hon. Rodophe Lemieux, in opening the ceremonies welcomed the visitors from the United States, on behalf of Canada, the House of Commons and the Senate. He also welcomed the presence of a good many Daughters of the Empire. He paid high tribute to Mr. Stewart and his institution for their graceful and gracious act in thus presenting to Canada a monument with which to commemorate the great part played by Canadian women in the war.

"Canada and the United States," said Mr. Lemieux, "since they speak the same language and have the same ideals should go hand in hand."

Official Message

Mr. Stewart brought a message from Secretary of State Kellogg of the American government to the effect that Mr. Kellogg was highly pleased to learn of the gift to Canada and stated that he had hearty sympathy with any deed which will promote peace and goodwill between Canada and the United States.

Mr. Stewart said that the monument was dedicated to women, the bearers of the world's burdens. It was most fitting that it should be entrusted to Canada on an auspicious day like the King's birthday, to be specifically presented to the Daughters of the Empire. He assured them that an American bringing such a gift brought his heart with it.

Problems Similar

"Our problems, those of the United States and Canada,' he said, "are so similar that we may live side by side without envy and be inspired only by neighboriy feelings towards one another. Nothing can happen in the United States that is not reflected in Canada and nothing can happen in Canada that is not reflected in the United States.'"

Premier King on accepting the "gift of love," said it was fitting that such a monument, indicative of the endurance and tenderness of women should be given. He recalled the similar monument given to Canada about 5 years ago by France. France and Canada were once one and became politically separated but are now one in sipirt again, he said; and the situation is the same with regard to Canada and the United States. They were once one, became politically separated but are now closer together in unity of spirit than ever.

Hon. Arthur Meighen felt that the meeting was significant, reflecting as it did the good feeling and love existing between two nations. As a member of the war government he spoke with feeling about the work done by women for Canada.

Robert Forke spoke along similar lines, associating himself with the remarks made by the Prime Minister and Mr. Meighen.

The George Washington-Sulgrave Institution is a society for the perpetuating of the work of the 100 years of peace committee.

KIWANIANS MEET

Largest Meeting of Western Clubs Will be Held This Month.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 4 (Canadian Press).—The most representative delegation in the history of the organization is expected to attend the district convention of the Western Kiwanis clubs, on June 18-20, inclusive. An invitation has been extended to Lord Byng of Vimy, and other high officials will attend. A well-balanced programme is being prepared for the visitors.

POPULARISE PARK.

"Go To Park" Day in Stratford Drew Crowds.

STRATFORD, Ont., June 4.—(Canadian Press).—A goodly number of citizens took advantage of the park board's invitation for a "Go to park" day yesterday and spent the afternoon and evening in the local parks. Band concerts were given, games and races were run off and various other sports events were on the programme. In the evening dancing was indulged in at the new pavilion at Queen's Park. The citizens were invited to bring their lunches and picnic on the grounds, the park board supplying tea and coffee.

ITALIANS TO HONOR KING NEXT SUNDAY

Native Chiefs From East Africa Arrive For Anniversary.

NAPLES, June 4. — (Canadian Press).—Twenty-five native chieftains dressed in primitive tribal costumes, arrived here yesterday from Mogdishu, Italian Somaliland, East Africa, to participate in the celebration on Sunday of the twenty-fifth anniversary of King Victor Emmanuel's ascension to the Throne.

The delegation will represent the Italian colony in the great procession that will pass through the streets of Rome to the Quirinal Palace to pay homage to the King. Great crowds were attracted by the arrival of the natives yesterday.

King Humbert died on July 29 and Victor Emmanuel assumed the throne on August 8, but both dates were discarded, the former because of the sad memories associated with the tragic assassination of Humbert at Monza, in 1900, and the latter because of the heat that prevails in Rome at that time of year.

"I wish to meet my people on the day that is the anniversary of the adoption of the Italian Constitution" declared King Victor Emmanuel, in choosing June 7 for the celebration.

The Mayors of 8,000 Italian municipalities will come to Rome to parade through the streets with their flags and bands on June 7.

The Italian Senate approved by acclamation the address of loyalty prepared by a committee of Senators and prominent officials to be presented during the celebration on Sunday.

HUSTLE CAUSES NEW DISEASES

Doctors Told to Urge Patients to Return to Simple Life.

MEET IN LONDON.

LONDON, June 4.—"It is difficult for any clear-thinking doctor to avoid the conclusion that the hustle of modern life, the pace at which we go, the nerve strain involved and the expense of spirit entailed have become large factors in the incidence of disease and of diseases of a different type from which many with which we were formerly acquainted."

Thus Sir Thomas Horder declared in addressing at Wigmore Hall, 700 United States and Canadian doctors, delegates to the annual congress and Interstate Postgraduate Assembly of America. Sir Thomas and other speakers addressed the doctors after the opening of the assembly by the Duke of York. Sir Thomas continued:

Stresses Nerve Tone.

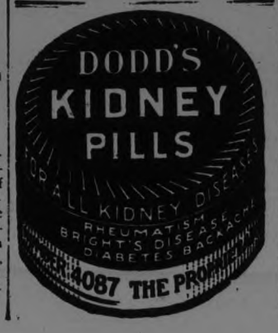
"I cannot over-emphasize the importance of concentrating more upon means of raising the general resistance to disease and especially raising the nerve tone. We ought to do our best to induce our patients to return to a simpler life.

"We must not only point out more clearly and insistently the importance of hygienic rules for the conduct of bodily functions, but in the sphere of intellect, and especially of emotions, we must urge moderation and simplicity."

Duke Honored.

Ambassador Houghton thanked the Duke of York for the interest he had taken in the Assembly, and in the course of an amusing speech declared it would require all of the doctors' professional talent and knowledge to weather the wealth of British hospitality which has burst upon them.

Dr. C. H. Mayo, president, conferred upon the Duke of York honorary membership in the association, pointing out that they only had one other such member—President Coolidge.



PEACE FEELERS REPORTED FROM RIFF CHIEFTAIN

Abd-El-Krim Playing Into Hands of Spaniards For Own Advantage.

SHOW OF FORCE.

Emphasize Futility of Riffians Fighting Both France and Spain.

GIBRALTAR, June 4.—Reports reaching here from the scene of operations in Morocco are to the effect that the rebel leader, Abd-El-Krim up to the present has refrained from using Riffian tribesmen against the French in battle on the northern border of the French zone.

It is asserted that the tribesmen fighting there belong to the Beni Zeruals and a dissident branch of the Beni Urriaguel tribe, which occupies territory on the border line along the Quergha River and never has consented to accept the leadship of Abd-El-Krim, who commands the other branch of the Beni Urriagüels, whose territories lie around Alhucemas and Ajdir, in the Spanish zone.

Led by Spaniard.

A woman from Gueznaya recently presented herself at a Spanish front line post where, during interrogation, she declared that in the fighting against the French the rebellious faction was commanded by a Spanish officer superintending the construction of trenches and establishing a new telephone system connecting the Moorish positions.

The preparations in the Melilla zone of the Spanish protectorate for the landing of Spanish troops in Alhcemas Bay have now virtually been completed.

May Conclude Peace.

The advices received here say that rumors are circulating freely in Melilla concerning Abd-El-Krim's attitude. It is persistently reported that he has agreed to display some sort of defence when the Spanish troops land in order to placate the fighting spirit of his followers. In this manner he would permit General Primo De Rivera, head of the Spanish military directorate, to gain military prestige from the victory. It is added that Abd-El-Krim has secretly informed the Spaniards that he is prepared to conclude peace by pointing out to his followers the futility of fighting against both France and Spain. In return for this action Abd-El-Krim, the reports say, would receive the appointment as chief of the Riff district, under supervision of Spain, and also pecuniary consideration.

Agitators Active.

TETUAN, Morocco, June 4.—Although tranquility prevails generally in the Spanish zone, there is evidence that unruly elements in the Anjera region to the rule of the native government set up by the Spaniards. To counteract the new activities, Spanish air warfare against the Anjers has been intensified. Fire bombs are being dropped in their territory.

Meanwhile the Spanish blockade forces are extremely vigilant. They have captured several convoys destined for the enemy and also have preventd other convoys from getting through the Spanish lines into rebel territory.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE.

been supposed did much to bring about a sharp advance in wheat prices here. The wheat market closed strong, 3-8 to 3 1-8 cents net higher; July 1.64 to 1.64 1-8 and Sept. 1.60 3-8 to 1.60 5-8, with corn ranging from 1 1-8 cents decline to 1-8 cent gain; oats 1-8 to 3-8 to 1-2 cent up, and provisions at a rise varying from 25 to 55 cents.

According to one comprehensive report which received particular attention, the wheat crop is virtually destroyed over a hundred square miles of territory around Bloomington. Other authorities contended that only the harvest will tell the actual amount of damage. An outstanding fact, however, was that a good many traders were sufficiently impressed to buy wheat at a rather lively rate, especially the July delivery.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 3.—The feature of the market for rolled oats was the stronger feeling that prevailed and prices were marked up 10 cents per bag.

The trade in baled hay showed no marked improvement, but the demand was fairly steady for car lots of grades for cattle feeding owing to the increased movement of the latter of export account, but the trade in the higher grades was rather slow, and prices were unchanged, with car lots of good No. 2 timothy hay quoted at $14 to $15 per ton, No. 3 timothy hay at $11 to $12 per ton, and clover mixed hay at $10.50 to $11 per ton, f.o.b. cars here.

There was no important change in the local egg situation, but the undertone to the market was very firm, and especially so for fresh extras which are reported to be somewhat scarce and the indications were that prices may possibly be advanced for such in the near future. There has been some further enquiries from English importers for cold storage eggs at 17s. 6d. per 10 dozen, c.i.f., which price is about 42 cents per dozen delivered, which exporters have met with counters offers of 19s per 10 dozen, c.i.f., which is about 45 1-2 cents per dozen delivered. The volume of business in a wholesale jobbing way was rather small and the market was quiet.

Butter and Cheese.

On account of today being partly a holiday, there were no receipts of butter posted on change at the Board of Trade. The tone of the market was stronger for broken lots and prices for such were 1-4 to 1-2 cent per lb. higher. There was some demand from local buyers for supplies and a small volume of business was done in this respect, but the trade in other direction was slow. In a wholeale jobbing way prices were unchanged, with sales of finest creamery at 34 cents per lb. in solid packages, and at 35 cents per lb. in 1-lb. blocks.

A firm feeling prevailed in the cheese market, but the volume of business was small owing to the fact that English importers are not disposed to pay present prices ruling here, as it is claimed by some in the trade that they are receiving sufficient matured New Zealand cheese to meet their immediate requirements and, therefore, what few orders are coming forward here are for small lots of Canadian cheese. The demand between houses on spot was quiet and prices were unchanged.

Beans were selling at $2.65 per bushel.

SCHOOL FOR EX-ROYALTY

BERLIN, June 4.—Two sons of the former crown prince have passed their high school examinations, but their father has not decided what university they will attend. Formerly all the sons of royalty went to Bonn, but this is in the occupied area, and it is not believed he will send them their.

COURT REJECTED STILLMAN APPEAL

Judges End Famous Case—Banker Sought Divorce.

ALBANY, N.Y., June 4.—The Court of Appeals put an end Tuesday to efforts of James A. Stillman, New York banker, to obtain a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman. At the same time the Court, in an opinion written by Judge William S. Andrews, refused to pass upon the legitimacy of Baby Guy Stillman.

The Appeals Court, by unanimous vote, agreed with the findings of the lower courts that Mr. Stillman had been shown by evidence to have been guilty of addultery, and therefore ineligible to obtain a divorce from his wife.

The Court also rules with the lower courts that this decision did not pass upon the guilt or innocence of Mrs. Stillman in the charge made by her husband.

Theaction for divorce was started by Mr. Stillman and was fought through the courts in a series of tests, which ended with the appearance of former Governor Nathan L. Miller before the Court of Appeals in his behalf, asking a new trial. This the Court refused to grant, one line of the opinion saying:

"There is no dispute and could be none as to the adultery of the plaintiff (Mr. Stillman) and the necessary dismissal of the complaint."

The decision of Judge Andrews, concurred in by the other Judges, holds that the question of the legitimacy of Guy Stillman has no place in the proceedings before it.

"A child born of a wife during marriage is presumably legitimate," says the decision. "It may not be so in fact; in one case the husband may directly test this question. It was never intended that a husband, entitled to no relief against his wife, might bring an action nominally for divorce but in realty solely to determine a child's legitimacy."

The Court said it could not grant a new trial of the divorce action between husband and wife, "first because the Appellate Division has not reviewed the question of her adultery, and we could but remit the matter to that court for further consideration, and, judgment dismissing the complaint must necessarily stand and her guilt or innocence is immaterial."

LEAGUE PAID VISIT

Thomasburg Young People Visited Epworth League at Plainfield.

THOMASBURG, June 4.—About twenty-five members of Thomasburg Epworth League visited the League at Plainfield on Monday evening and all report a good time. The programme was as follows:

A duet by Miss Ruby Holbert and Miss Mildred Harrison, "In Jesus", after which Rev. Mr. Bell gave a very interesting address on his life. A chorus by three girls, "Sunshine", was then given, after which an excellent lunch was served by the members of Plainfield League.

More than 70,000 people along the North Sea are engaged in fishing.

NATURE LORE

Speaking again of Spring bird migrations, let me tell you another rather pretty little story about that very bad snow storm which came down the east coast of America and caught a lot of migrating birds on their way to Canada.

It is reported that the folks in the cities, towns and vilages, were busy warming birds and feeding them. Some had wonderful experiences. One man says that he was out among the spruce and cedar trees, spreading food and putting up suet for the hard pressed little fellows, when he saw a itle something or other, fall into the soft snow. Now, if it had been an ordinary time, he woud have said, "Oh, nothing but a tiny chip of bark, falling from the tree," but this was not time for guessing.

He went over to the spot and picked up a poor little bird, almost dead and already stiff from the cold.

It was a little Ruby Crowned Kinglet. I will tell you what kind of a bird that is, in a few minutes, but, the man took this little fellow into the house at once, for he was too far gone to risk warming in hands that were cold. The man put R.C. Kinglet on the dining room radiator, warm but not too hot. In a very few minutes R.C. K. was himself again and out in the sunshine catching insects.

The Ruby Crowned Kinglet is one of our smallest birds, being not very much bigger than a humming bird. He generally goes to gardens where there are evergreen trees, for this is a bird of the deep evergreen shadows, and there is where you will find him, working away all day, eating insects, devouring the eggs of forest destroyings bugs and worms. They are dandy singers, are dull olive green and have little, short sharp beaks. They have a ruby crown or crest, very difficult to see except when the bird flashes it. There is a first cousin to the R.C.K. called the Golden Crowned Kinglet and it has a crown with a dark border and orange red centre for the male and yellow centre for the female. Maybe you have these about your place if evergreens are near.

YOUR GARDEN

CULTIVATION.

A surprising amount of time can be wasted with the rake, about the home grounds. It is a very useful tool when used with discretion, but its use should not be overdone. Rather than constantly rake over the surface after hoeing, to remove every stick, stone and weed, it is much better to leave the ground reasonably rough and let the weeds lie to dry up if they are not too large and prominent. If, however, the cultivating is done at frequent intervals, the weeds will never get sufficiently large to count. Use the "Buco" cultivator more frequently and with a little practice the ground can be covered at a surprising speed. If the weeds be small they will be destroyed. Should, however, the cultivation be less frequent and the weeds attain any size the hoe must be resorted to. With the Dutch or flat hoe and practice, skill may be developed to a point where the ground may be left level and in sufficiently fine condition. Raking will only produce a still finer mulch which will cake with the slightest shower and then the cultivation must be done over again. Therefore cultivate a little more frequently and leave out the raking and much better gardening will result.

Cultivating should always be attended to as soon as the ground is sufficiently dry after a heavy rain or watering. For best results there should be a dust mulch on the ground at all times.

PREACHERS WIN HONESTY TEST.

LONDON, June 4.—Some unique honesty test recently were tried by a British newspaper.

A ten-dollar bill was sent to ten clergymen, ten lawyers, ten journalists and ten scientists, with the false explanation that it was "in adjustment of the error complained of in your account."

Only 25 per cent of the people returned the money. The clergymen were found to be the most honest class, but only seven of them sent it back. Not one scientist returned the money.

Locket Worn By Soldier. Killed At Vimy, Comes Home To Widow In West

WINNIPEG, Man. June 4.—(Canadian Press).—A little gold locket, pathetic in its broken condition, and still bearing verdigris, caused by years of exposure on the battlefields of France, has been returned to its original owner after 10 years.

In September, 1915, Mrs. S. J. Bevan, of Winnipeg, entrusted the locket to her husband on his departure with the Canadian expeditionary force. Today it is again in Mrs. Bevan's possession but the clasp is gone and the photographs stained and weather worn.

Mr. Bevan fell in the battle of Vimy Ridge and, according to a note from the Dominion Department of National Defence the momento was picked up in the shell-storn sector by a worker engaged by the Imperial Graves commission.

PRESENTATIONS TO PROSPECTIVE BRIDES

Miss Irene Brown and Miss Ruth Brooks Receive Gifts.

HASTINGS, June 4.—At a regular meeting of the Young People's League of Seymour West, the following address was read and presentation made to Miss Irene Brown whose marriage takes place shortly. Dear Irene:

As we believe you are about to leave us for your new home, we have gathered here tonight to spend a social time and show in some tangible way our appreciation of your good work among us. You have always been true to your duty as social vice-president, ever ready to help in any way you could for the good of our League. We feel we could not let you go without asking you to accept this gift, not for its value but as a small token of remembrance.

As you look upon it you may be reminded of the pleasant times we have spent together in the Bethel League.

We feel our loss will be another's gain. We pray God's blessing may follow you wherever you may be. We want you to feel that there will always be a warm welcome among us; whenever opportunity allows it.

Signed on behalf of the members of the Bethel League.

MRS. T. DUNHAM, Pres.
MR. F. BROWN, Sec. Treas.

A miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Ruth Brooks Wednesday evening when about sixty friends gathered at her home to show in this manner their wishes to her before her marriage which takes place soon. After the bride-to-be had opened the gifts the remainder of the evening was spent in games and music.

DERANGED BY HEAT.

Ontario Man Stabbed Himself on Mauretania.

NEW YORK, June 4.— (Canadian Press.)—While more than 1,000 passengers on the Mauretania were bidding good-bye to friends and relatives, Carlo Gregoris, a laborer, 39, of Fort Francis, Ont., stabbed himself eleven times in the abdomen with a small pocket knife. Two sailors knocked him to the deck floors and held him until the arrival of physicians.

The ship's surgeon said Gregoris was suffering from a persecution mania and added that the excessive heat may have unsettled the man's brain. Gregoris was taken to Bellevue Hospital for observation.

NOVELTIES AT CAVAN BAZAAR

Interesting Contests Provided Entertaining Features—Proceeds $76.06.

IDEAL WEATHER.

CAVAN, May 4.—The bazaar on Tuesday afternoon on Mr. Lord Sutton's lawn was a pleasant social event.

The weather was ideal for an afternoon out of doors, and all present had an enjoyable time.

The country store, presided over by Mrs. R. Syer and Mrs. H. Tinney, was well stocked and well patronized. Its wares were many and varied; groceries, home-made bread, buns, cookies, tea-biscuits, candy, tomato plants, asparagus, honey, chick feed, lard and many other articles were there, and of excellent quality. The fancy goods were sold by Mrs. J. W. Perrin, and the aprons, dresses, caps, etc., by Mrs. Syer and Mrs. Staples.

Tea was served by a committee of ladies on small tables, grouped in shady places on the lawn. An excellent tea, bountiful and appetising, was served for twenty-five cents.

There were some guessing contests, which afforded fun and entertainment. A tray was passed, on which were twenty-six small articles. Each person could look at it for a few seconds, and by paying five cents was entitled to try to write out the names of the twenty-six articles on the tray. When the papers were marked, it was found that Miss Alathea Kelly had won the prize, which was a pretty jardiniere. Miss Kelly named twenty-four of the articles viewed.

Another contest was guessing the weight of a loaf of bread. Miss Frances Hunter and Mrs. Chester Fee were ties on this contest. They drew for the prize, and Miss Hunter won the china dish which was given as a prize.

Ice cream sold readily.

The total amount taken in was $76.06. As much had been donated, the expenses were not heavy.

Miss Lola Telford, Peterboro, is the guest of Mrs. Loyd Sutton.

GOSPEL MEETINGS AT SPRINGBROOK

Stirring Sermons Preached to People at Gatherings.

BONAR LAW, June 4.—Rev. George Rennie, a missionary from China preached the gospel at the Gospel Hall, Springbrook, on Sunday night and every seat was occupied. He read Colossians 2, verses 14-15: "Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to His cross.

"And having spoiled principalities and powers, He made a show of them openly triumphing over them in it."

His main subject was Christ, the conqueror. Never before have the people at Springbrook had the pleasure of hearing such an able speaker. Mr. Rennie is giving a few nights talk on China and the wonderful work the Gospel has done there.

Mr. A. E. Ainslie of New York held Gospel meetings last week and was highly appreciated by all. He also gave an object lesson, Friday night, of the "Scales of Justice", a grand lesson for children and older ones too. The object was to prove the Bible the most wonderful book in the universe, and the necessity of being born again to enter in at the strait gate.

Mr. Ainslie left on Saturday for Toronto where he intends to preach the Gospel for a short time.

Mr. Ainslie is a very able speaker and expects to return to Springbrook in the fall.

MORE CLAIMANTS OF OXFORD EARLDOM

Two Westerners Have Laid Claim to Asquith's Title.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 4.—(Canadian Press).—Following the startling claim of Captain Samuel Lawrence, of Salmon Arm, B.C., to be the rightful Earl of Oxford, supplanting Rt. Hon. H. H. Asquith, who recently adopted that title on his elevation to the peerage, there now appears in Winnipeg another claimant.

Frederick William Mason, son of Mrs. Emily Julian of Ericksdale, formerly of Rosario de Ste. Fe, Argentine, has entered the field for the coveted title. His mother is a sister of Samuel Hiram, father of the British Columbia claimant, and grandaughter of the sixth Earl of Oxford.

A strange and romantic tale surrounds the marriage of her mother Sarah Harley to her father's overseer, which was contrary to the will of her parents. The family difference ended with the emigration of the descendants to South America.

It was in the Argentine that Emily Lawrence married to Walter Mason, father of Frederick William Mason of Winnipeg. In 1913 she moved to Bethune Sask., to reside with her brother Samuel Hiram and later moved to Winnipeg following her second marriage.

The local claimant is endeavouring to establish prior rights over his British Columbia relative.

BECK PROTESTS POWER EXPORT

tario, which have recently appeared. Referring to a figure of 9,000,000 horse-ower given for Ontario, he says that, excluding the, at present, useless water power of the far north, the amount available is only 2,500,000 horse-power.

Advantage to States.

Referring to the desire of the North-Eastern United States to obtain low-cost Canadian power "which would build up their industries at the expense of those in Canada." Sir Adam remarks, "It is not surprising, therefore, that every effort is being made to facilitate exportation of electrical energy from Canada to the United States under long-term contracts or agreements,—in fact it has authoritatively been stated by some," and he sees in those efforts, "the chief reason why the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario has been blocked in its efforts to secure the rights to generate, for public use in Canada, further supplies of electrical energy from the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Rivers."

Referring to the fact that New York State now owns possible development of about 1,000,000 horse-power from the international St. Lawrence, Sir Adam remarks, "It is most significant to enquire why do the United States authorities not go on with the development of this St. Lawrence power to supply the urgent demands in the United States, instead of having United States interests hammering to break down the barrier at present holding in safeguard Canada's electricity for the present and future use of Canadian industries and communities."

Pool Power Resources.

Sir Adam quotes the New York "Times" as declaring that there is on foot a programme to pool the water-power resources of the United States and of Canada, involving $5,000,000,000 of properties, under private control, and he asserts that, "the proposed export of 400,000 horse-power from the Carillon development is simply the first step in carrying out this gigantic programme of making Canada's powers the source from which electrical energy is to be permanently exported to the United States for building up the communities and industries of that country.

"It has been stated that Canadian water powers could probably provide 4,000,000 horse-power to supply the market demand in Eastern United States, a demand which, in the New England and Middle Atlantic States, is far in excess of even this enormous quantity of power. Recently a company sought to obtain a Canadian Federal charter to develop, in conjunction with a proposed canal scheme just such a large quantity of electrical energy, namely, 5,000,000 horse-power, with the object of its exportation. Of this amount, over 2,500,000 horse-power was to be developed in the province of Quebec between Lake St. Francis and the City of Montreal.

Blow to Canadians.

"Canadians cannot weigh too carefully the import of such proposals. If carried out there would be an end to low-cost electrical energy as now enjoyed by the citizens of Ontario under public ownership. In fact, there would be an end of further Hydro-electrical supply to Canadian citizens. Moreover, there could not be any further extension of electrical service to rural districts. The policy of the Government in making grants to rural districts to stimulate the use of electrical energy in agricultural pursuits will not, in the future, be justifiable if there is a deficiency."

In conclusion, Sir Adam Beck says, "The physical conditions that obtain at the St. Lawrence and Niagara power sites in the provinces of Ontario and of Quebec are such that the electrical energy that could be developed would essentially be provincial and not national, and no national status would be created unless the Dominion should seek to increase its revenue by the imposition of taxes upon the exportation of electrical energy. The provinces certainly have their own special rights. Ontario and Quebec own their water powers. It is inconceivable that the Dominion authorities, no matter who may be the stimulus or the pretext, will be ready to take any such Federal action as is proposed at Carillon because to do so would clearly be an aggressive usurpation of provincial rights."

And the Hydro chairman calls upon "All public bodies such as boards of trade, farmers' organizations and others, irrespective of political persuasion, must unite to conserve their water-power interests against alienation, especially by means of exportation of Canadian electricity in perpetuity."

STORM AFFECTED MASONIC BANQUET

Visit of D.D.G.M. To Marmora Lodge, Monday.

MARMORA, June 3.— The annual Masonic banquet, when the District Deputy Grand Master visits the lodge, took place on Monday night. On account of the storm the attendance was rather small.

The ladies of the Anglican Guild catered for the banquet and on Tuesday night, put on a supper in the Masonic Hall and thus disposed of the bounties provided.

Rev. D. R. Clare motored to Belleville on Tuesday morning to attend the annual conference of the Methodist church. He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Margaret.

Mr. Harry Heath, of Springbrook, is the lay delegate from the Marmora circuit to the Belleville Conference.

Miss Williams and a number of her pupils had a picnic on Saturday at Crowe Lake. A good time was reported, but the black flies proved very annoying.

Mrs. John Murray, senior, is seriously ill.

Mr. Robert Harris has greatly improved his home with a new verandah.

Mrs. Frank Osborne is on the sick list.

Miss Dorothy Denike, of Colborne, is visiting her mother, Mrs. (Dr.) Crawford.

Mr. David Simmons and family motored to Belleville, the end of the week.

Mr. Albert Simmons, who has been visiting his brothers, returned to his home on Saturday.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE.

J. C. Elliott, K.C., Nominated For West Middlesex Vacancy.

STRATHROY, Ont., June 4. — J. C. Elliott, K.C., of London, was nominated yesterday by the Liberals of West Middlesex to contest the riding for the Commons. The riding is now vacant due to the death of J. D. F. Drummond, Progresisve. Mr. Elliott formerly represented West Middlesex in the Legislature.

Did Dad Walk Baby?

Fathers would not have to walk the floor so often with restless babies if mothers insisted on using Baby's Own Soap for baby's bath. This soap cleanses and refreshes and prevents skin irritations and scalding which so often cause bad nights.

And baby smells so sweet after a good rub with the aromatic lather of Baby's Own Soap.

NO PROCESSION AT OPENING OF UNITED CHURCH

Three Inaugural Services Will Be Held in Toronto Arena on 10th.

BIG PROGRAMME.

Public Signing of Basis of Union By Heads of Churches.

TORONTO, June 4. — (Special.) It has been definitely decided to hold the entire three inaugural services of The United Church of Canada in the Arena on Wednesday next, June 10. The proposed street procession has been abandoned. The orginal intention was to have a public procession similar to that of the Presbyterian Union of 1875, but the members of the General Council, Congegational, Methodist and Presbyterian, will assemble in the vestibule at the north end of the building and enter the Arena in a body where they will take their seats directly in front of the rostrum.

The afternoon service will be held between 3 and 5.50 o'clock and the special feature of this gathering will be the public signing of the Basis of Union by the heads of the the three churches and the 350 members of the General Council.

The presiding officers and secretaries or clerks of the council will be appointed. Addresses will be delivered on the ideals and outlook of the United Church.

Overseas Delegates.

The evening meeting will be specially reserved for addresse by fraternal delegates from overseas. Among these will be Prof. Archibald Main, of the Church of Scotland; Rev. A. W. M. MacGregor of the United Free Church of Scotland; Rev. Jos. Rorke of the Presbyterian Church of England; Rev. R. A. Manna of the Presbyterian church in Ireland, Rev. Dr. J. T. Wardell Stafford, ex-president of the British Wesleyan Conference; Rev. J. W. G. Ward, D. D., representing the Congregational Union of England and Wales.

The arrangements for the installation of amplifiers are completed and by this novel contrivance the voice of each speaker will be carried to every corner of the vast auditorium.

Applications for tickets for the three services in the arena are being received from all parts of the Dominion and these are being dealt with as expeditiously as possible.

Applications for tickets from proposed motor parties from distant points are being received, and these are being specially dealt with. No less than ten of such parties are expected from Owen Sound alone. Several parties are expected to motor from Buffalo and Detroit.

The billeting of members of the General Council of the United Church is now complete, and a full list of members with Toronto addresses will be published in the souvenir booklet, which is now ready for the press. Many enquiries are being made at the Church Union Bureau by friends of members of Council who are anxious to have them in their homes.

DISCUSS PAPER PRICE.

Prominent Paper Makers Met Yesterday—Believe Price Will Remain Stable.

MONTREAL, June 4. (Canadian Press).—Several prominent Canadian newsprint men met here yesterday to discuss, it is understood, the price of newsprint, which is expected to remain at $70 a ton. Among those present were Alexander Smith, president of Abitibi, and George H. Mead, president of Spanish River. No official announcement was given after the meeting.

Living History

WHATEVER DENOMINATION you belong to, the Church History that is being made in Toronto this week and next cannot fail to have its effect upon you.

THE EXAMINER, appreciating the importance of the events that will transpire during the last session as such of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and the first session of the United Church, has arranged with probably Canada's best known writer, to chronicle the events day by day. These reports are telegraphed to The Examiner daily and appear in the first two columns on Page One.

PRESBYTERIANS, METHODISTS, AND CONGREGATIONALISTS, and all others interested in the momentous happenings of this period should clip the reports and save them. In years to come, you and your family will be glad to have this sympathetically and brilliantly written narrative of the parting of the ways.

THE FIRST ARTICLE appeared yesterday, and copies of The Examiner containing it may be obtained at the office. Make sure you preserve this record.

Famous Editor Addressed Graduating Class Of One

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 4 (United Press).—William Allen White, widely known editor and author delivered a commencemencement address at the Aiken School here to a graduating class of one. The class consisted of Melbourn C. Hosp, 17. After hearing White's speech, Hosp played two piano solos. The audience was composed of Hosp's relatives.

HAWAIIAN CONCERT.

The Hawaiian Concert held by Harry Wagner and his pupils in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening was very interesting. The attendance was spoiled to a certain extent by the attractions of the Made-in-Peterboro Fair, but the audience was very appreciative of the good programme presented by Mr. Wagner and his pupils, the majority of whom came from outside points, a big tally-ho 'bus from Toronto conveying a band of about thirty-five pupils from that city. Bowmanville, Oshawa and Lindsay, and making the return trip in the early hours of this morning.

The Hawaiian music played by Mr. Wagner and his pupils proved exceptionally interesting. The guitars and the ukuleles and the tiples of the Southern Isles strummed the haunting music of the Hawaiians in a manner that brought them much appreciative applause. The solo numbers by Mr. Wagner were particularly attractive, and met with repeated encores. His art visualizes the real dreamy melody of the seawashed islands of the Southern sea, and he plays with a skill and power that brings out all the charm of this lovely music.

An additional item of interest on the programme was the singing of Miss Thelma Bateman of Toronto, a vocalist who captured her audience with her high, clear, vibrant songs, her dainty stage presence and high bird notes bringing her renewed applause.

Violin numbers by Roy Rome, played with fine effect by this young musician, a reading in catchy style by Miss Irene Wright, who was compelled to respond to an encore for her clever work, with pianoforte solos by Mr. Harry Northrup, whose excellent powers of memory and smooth, facile touch made his music very pleasing, were further additions to the programme.

The programme of the musical entertainment was as follows: "Mellow Moon" and "Missouri Waltz," played by the Bowmanville class; violin numbers by Roy Rome, with accompaniment by Miss Margaret Rome; "Drowsy Waters" played by a quartette from Toronto, Messrs. Hyde, Wheeler, Garwood, Wagner; "Sally" and "What'll I Do?" by the Peterboro class; "The Rosary" and its encore, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," solo numbers by Mr. Wagner; readings, "Watchin' the Sparkin'," and encore "The Passing of the Kings," by Miss Irene Wright; the "Hilo March," by Messrs. Wagner and Harris, of Oshawa; piano solos by Mr. Harry Northup; "Mauna Kea" a selection by the Oshawa class; "On the Beach at Waikiki," by Mr. Wagner; vocal numbers by Miss Thelma Bateman, "Come to the Fair" and "Mighty Lake a Rose"; "Dreamy Melody" and "No Wonder" by the Lindsay class; an original composition of his own played by Mr. Wagner; the "Aloha" number from "The Bird of Paradise," by the Toronto Hambourg Conservatory of Music class; and a united selection by the entire ensemble, "One, Two, Three, Four" and "The Spanish Fandango."

At the conclusion of the programme a dance was held, with fine music provided by Ken Blood's four-piece orchestra.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE DOG-CATCHER.

Editor of Examiner,

Dear Sir,—At Monday night's meeting of the Council it was amusing to hear the city fathers caressing and encouraging the dog-catcher to go out and do his duty. "You are doing fine," the Mayor said. "Just carry on, Mr. Ferguson." Anyone who owns a family dog and children's pet, which this man preys upon, are calling him by many other names.

He can only get the family dogs and pets. He is a pet-catcher. They come naturally to his horny hands, while sneaking around in the best streets to get the easy ones.

Why doesn't he go after the real wild dogs, the mongrels and curs that are roving the streets, and which no one owns? These are hard to get—very few of them with any tag. The writer saw seven one day last week at the City Buildings within 35 minutes; only two had tags.

Jimmy Gates used intelligence compared to this man. He was a real dog-catcher, and cleaned up the mongrels in tidy shape.

If, and I say if, we had a humane society in this busy, bungling city there is ample room for its protection for the good dog who needs it at the present time.

Truly yours,
WM. H. LYTLE.

REVIEWS RECORD OF COUNCIL.

The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—As you say in your "Line-o-Type" column last night there are still seven months in this year to go, and where is the City Council taking us? The gasoline tanks were allowed to locate in East City without respect to the wishes of the people and despite their massed protests. Daylight saving was rejected in face of a big demand. Now a tax is put on gasoline tanks that is neither just nor effective—not just to the small dealer who hopes to pick up a few extra dollars by the sale of gasoline, and not effective in clearing the nuisances off the street. On top of that the council appoints a dog catcher who apparently spends his time trapping pets off private property while the city is over-run with mongrels. Now we have a blue sky law that closes the bathing beaches on Sunday—the working man's rest day—and does away with Sunday band concerts.

And you hit the nail on the head when you said the rule does not affect the Aldermen who can take their families away into the country or to a lakeside on Sunday. The only man both these latest regulations hit is the working man, and well the Aldermen knew it when they put through the resolution. Peterborough is an industrial city, and yet these men, naming themselves representatives of the people, sat there and deliberately slapped the working man in the face.

In six months they have hurt about everyone they can—what under the sun can they do next?

WAIT AND SEE.

WHAT IS THE REASON?

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Dear sir:

Is the reason for the withdrawing of the caretakers from city bathing beaches this summer the need of funds?

In such a case we may presume that the $122.50 appearing in the list of accounts published last night under the name "Roy Studio" represents the amount that must be made up by such saving.

This was for "Souvenir" photographs of the council, clerks, street makers, and everyone remotely connected with the council. It is a souvenir not of the city or its naming, but of crass incompetence and wanton wastefulness on the part of the Aldermen who put it through. And every one of the city paid clerks, etc., receives a "souvenir" picture free!

Meantime, the working man must go without his Sunday swim.

CITIZEN

PROHIBITION THE COMING GOSPEL.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Prohibition has come to stay. It is the new gospel. You might preach Christianity until you are black in the face but so long as your permit liquor it will win. It is so with all forms of what is now called sin. Remove temptation if you will remove unseeing crime and sin. Christianity tells us to "resist' temptation but Prohibition says to "remove" temptation altogether. Prohibition is practical. Christianity is beautiful but only theoretical. Two thousand years of it had not shut up the saloon. Prohibition alone did that.

One by one we will remove all the causes of temptation and enforce the laws here without waiting for eternity. So let us reconcile ourselves to Prohibition. Christians themselves are all turning prohibitionists. Twenty years will see Protestant Christianity, at any rate, a thing of the past and the church with it while Prohibition will reign in its stead. One policeman here on earth is worth a dozen prayers.

PRACTICAL.

The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear sir:

Blue sky laws belong where they are needed—and that is certainly not in Peterborough.

The City Council has steadily reduced the police force on the plea that there is not enough crime to keep the members busy. That doesn't indicate that during the last three years immorality has become rampant through the permission given to swim on Sunday. Nor has the Sunday evening music gone to the people's heads to such an extent as to turn them into the downward path.

If Peterboro wanted a board of censors the people would choose one. The Aldermen are elected to look after the business of the city and they will find this enough without forming themselves into a vigilance committee on public morals.

Sometimes the business end of it gets away from them.

Let the Aldermen remember that they are there to represent the citizens; they are not there to force their personal views on a helpless public.

OLD BUILDING IS TAKEN DOWN

Oldest Structure of Winnipeg Had Become an Eyesore.

HAD A HISTORY

WINNIPEG, Man., June 4 (Canadian Press).—Winnipeg's oldest building has been wiped out by the axe, hammer and by-law.

The famous old structure which till a few days ago, survival of Winnipeg's first building boom more than 60 years ago. The boom was started by the free fur traders, the first of whom was the genial flouter of Hudson's Bay company authority, Andrew McDermot. McDermot built a house and store on the banks of the Red river. Here he was able to intercept the fur traders from the North and get the pick of their catch before they passed on to the "forks" and Fort Garry.

Fort Garry standing half a mile or so away, was isolated from this busy little hamlet of trade on the site of the future heart of Winnipeg. So, somewhere about 1864 or 1865, the Hudson's Bay company erected a branch store, near the present intersection of Portage avenue and Main street. That branch store with its barn front and quaint outside stairway, solidly built of logs and handsomely clapboarded, was to remain a landmark of Winnipeg long after the last of the old free traders were in their graves.

The store stood cater-cornered on its hand-hewn "sleepers," until a boarding-house keeper bought it, hitched it to a logging chain and dragged it some fifty yards northwest. Here it camped for the rest of its natural life, and saw Winnipeg grow to its place stoutly.

Here is its history in epitome—Hudson's Bay branch store, dominion government receiver-general's office, private bank, provincial mounted police headquarters, printing office, Hudson's Bay standard, boarding house, carriage factory, blacksmith shop, billposter's mecca, derelict, eyesore outlaw. The landmark is to be replaced by a modern structure.

LOSES LEG WHILE CROSSING TRACKS

Montreal Man Tried to Climb Between Moving Railway Cars.

NORTH BAY, June 4. (Canadian Press).—While James Chopping, age 25, was coming up from fishing on Lake Nipissing last night, he attempted to cross a railway track through moving cars. He slipped and fell, and his right leg was completely severed below the knee. His condition this morning is serious, but it is believed he will live. His home is in Montreal.

THREE DIVORCES IN FILM WORLD TO-DAY

Movie Stars Were Separated From Spouses on Charges of Desertion.

LOS ANGELES, June 4. — Canadian Press. — Three persons of the film world were separated from their spouses by decrees of the divorce court to-day as follows:

Marjorie Sutherland, known as Marjorie Dawe, from Albert E. Sutherland, motion picture director, on a charge of desertion. She charged that he said: "I cannot accustom myself to married life."

Mrs. Edna May Acord from Art Acord, a screen actor, on a charge of desertion and failure to provide for her. Mrs. Acord testified that he had said: "He was tired of her."

Eula Mantecon, known as Alice Trevor, from Armando Mantecon, on a charge of failure to support, and abuse. "He said he was born a gentleman and he would not work," testified Mrs. Mantecon on the stand.

LOWER TARIFF CONDEMNED BY MANUFACTURERS

Committee Reports 80 Countries Raise Tariffs While Canada Reduces.

CRITICIZE POLICY.

Representatives From Atlantic to Pacific Unite in Urging Increase.

HAMILTON, June 4. (Canadian Press).—The presentation of the Tariff Committee's report formed the first item of business at this morning's session of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association convention. This committee is one of the largest and most important of the association's standing committees, with representation from every province in Canada. Particular emphasis was laid in the report on the fact that since the last annual meeting in Montreal 22 countries had increased their customs tariffs, making 80 countries in all to have raised their tariffs since the war Strong criticism was voiced by members from the Atlantic to the Pacific of the policy which had brought about six reductions in the Canadian tariff since the war in the face of the world-wide policy of increased protection.

Officers Elected.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association to-day elected as its president for 1925-26, J. H. Fortier, of Quebec City.

John H. Taylor, president of Taylor-Forbes Co., Ltd., of Guelph, was elected first vice-president, while the choice for second vice-president fell on W. S. Fallis, general manager of the Sherwin-Williams Co. of Canada, Ltd., Montreal.

Thomas Roden, president of Roden Bros., Ltd., Toronto, was re-elected honorary treasurer.

NO DISCUSSION OF NEW DIOCESE

F. D. Kerr, K.C., of St. John's Church, Brings Proposal Before Synod.

NOTICE NEEDED.

TORONTO, June 4. (Canadian Press).—The creation of a new diocese out of the eastern portion of the present diocese was referred to at to-day's session of the Anglican Synod of Toronto by F. D. Kerr, of St. John's Church, Peterboro. The suggestion was not allowed to be discussed as Bishop Sweeny ruled that the matter was of such importance that notice of the proposal should have been tabled at an earlier stage of the present sitting.

Mr. Kerr's notice of motion urged that the Executive Committee be instructed to prepare and submit at the next meeting of the Synod a special report on the desirability and practicability of creating out of the eastern portion of the existing diocese of Toronto a new diocese to be called by such a name as may here be determined.

The Synod devoted considerable time to a revision of canons.

4.4 BEER TO BE O.T.A. SALVATION

A Life-long Prohibitionist Warns Associates to Go Slow.

WAIT FIVE YEARS.

LONDON, Ont., June 4.—(Canadian Press). — You had better go slow, ladies and gentlemen, and see the effect of the present conditions, and in five years from now I'll guarantee that you will agree with me that 4.4 beer has been the salvation of the Ontario Temperance Act.

In these words, after carefully reviewing the temperance situation from its early days, as well as his own interests in the project, W. Harold Barnum, K.C., of Aylmer, a life-long temperance supporter, expressed his views at an open-air prohibition picnic at Pond Mills yesterday. Incidentally Mr. Barnum told his audience that he had never tasted liquor in his life, and had only once sampled the old beer, and that only by accident. He declared emphatically that the O.T.A. had lost the enthusiastic support that it originally had.

BIG RECEIPTS FOR HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT

Boxers' Share Will Amount to $200,000, or $4,400 Per Minute.

NEW YORK, June 4. (Canadian Press).—Payment on the basis of more than $4,400 a minute will be made to Gene Tunney and Tom Gibbons for their fifteen-round heavyweight battle to-morrow night at the Polo Grounds, if the bout goes the limit, it is estimated. The advance selling of tickets indicates receipts of $400,000. Thirty per cent. will be the share of Gibbons, giving him $120,000. Tunney's share will be $80,000, representing 20 per cent. of the receipts.

Tunney weighs 182 and Gibbons 180.

A DISLIKE FOR FOOD

Every healthy man and woman should have a natural desire for food at meal times. This means that the digestion is in working order and that the blood is in good condition. But if you feel a dislike for food—if the sight and smell of wholesome food repels you—then you may be sure that Nature is telling you that all is not well. If after a night's rest you have no appetite for breakfast, your digestion requires attention. If your food is distasteful, or if you feel that it is a trouble to eat, your stomach is rebelling. You do not digest properly the food you are taking and are therefore not hungry.

All these symptoms of a disordered digestion mean that the blood is not absorbing proper nourishment from the food, for the work of the blood is to collect proper nourishment from food and impart it to the system. The stomach tries to refuse food the nutriment from which the blood cannot absorb, and this causes the lack of appetite. If you force yourself to eat, the undigested food becomes a clog to the system. Nature is warning you Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone give the blood the richness and purity that it requires to perform its natural function. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills relieve the most obstinate cases of indigestion—why they will help any trouble due to poor blood.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ODD PRIZES GIVEN IN BEAUTY CONTEST

Razor Blades and Rifle Among Awards for Young Ladies.

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 4. — (Associated Press).—The business men of this city apparently believe that pretty girls in Brazil are a bit different. One of the local newspapers is running a beauty contest, with some unusual prizes being offered by local commercial firms.

There are, of course, the usual premiums of talcum powder, toilet sets and perfume, but some of the others are difficult to harmonize with the prevalent belief that the Brazilian girl does no work, and never goes out unless accompanied by a member of the family.

Included in the list of prizes is a repeating rifle, a bicycle, a gas stove, an ice chest, a typewriter, 50 safety razor blades, a lottery ticket and 25 collections of love stories.

The photographs already published have not included any contestants who seem to be in need of such a large supply of razor blades, and the motive behind the donation is unexplainable, except on the theory that the girls with bobbed hair are in the habit of shaving their necks.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Sultry Weather Had Effect On Trading

NEW YORK, June 4 (Canadian Press).—The bear traders in Wall Street extended their short position as trading progressed in an apparent effort to uncover additional weak spots. Selling for both accounts was inspired, in part, by the inability of the operators for the rise to attract a wide public following, particularly in standard industrials, with the growing uneasiness over the Maxwell situation and the further weakness of continental exchanges. The lowering of the renewal rate on call money to 3 3-4 per cent. and a bullish demonstration in Baldwin which carried that stock above 118 before mid-day failed to arouse much bullish enthusiasm in other quarters. While continued sultry weather had a restrictive effect on trading, it stimulated demand for American Ice which crossed 112 to the highest price in three years. Nash Motors soared to a new record high of 448, but other motors were in supply. Mack Truck, Pierce Arrow preferred, and Dupont sagging 2 to 3 points below yesterday's final figures.

Prices Of Auto Tires Are Increased To-day

TORONTO, June 4. — Canadian manufacturers of automobile tires decided yesterday to make an increased charge for their product. The jump for tires and tubes will run from 5 to 10 per cent. of the present selling prices. The manufacturers state that the cause of the increase is the high price of raw rubber. Since the last increase in tire prices in Canada the cost of raw rubber has been boosted from 20 to 73 cents a pound, according to grade. There have been two increases put into effect by United States tire manufacturers since the last jump in prices to purchasers of Canadian-made tires and tubes.

Mining Shares Were Very Active In Toronto To-day

TORONTO, June 4. — Following the holiday there was considerable activity on the Standard mining exchange to-day. Lorraine headed the list with 13,600 shares opening at 15, and after declining a half closed at 14 3-4. Ophir opened at 3 3-4 closing half point higher. McKinley-Darragh dropped 3-4 to 25½ while Victoria Silver opened at 17 advancing 3 1-2 points. Cons W. Lake opening at 13 1-8 declined 1-8; Hollinger Con opening at 1490 dropped to 1485; McIntyre also went down from 1800 to 1798.

Sharp Gains In Price On Chicago Grain Exchange

CHICAGO, June 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Sharp new upturns in the price of wheat quickly followed a setback at the start to-day. The initial declines were brought about largely by the failure of Liverpool quotations to reflect the advances which were scored yesterday on this side of the Atlantic. Notwithstanding this, many traders here began acting promptly on an opinion that unfavorable domestic crop conditions much more than outweighed at present the influence of world supply and demand. Chicago opening figures, unchanged to 1 7-8 lower, July 163 1-2 to 164 and Sept. 159 1-4 to 159 1-2 were followed by a rise which carried July to 167 1-8 and Sept. to 163.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat. After starting at 1-4 lower to 1-2 higher, Sept. 114 1-2 to 115, the corn market showed material gains all around. Oats started unchanged to 3-8c. up, Sept. 48 3-4 to 49c. and later made a decided general advance, September going well above 50c.

Provisions were responsive to grain strength.

Trading Was Quiet With Slight Declines Shown

TORONTO, June 4. — Trading on the local stock exchange was somewhat quiet this morning. Consolidated Smelters with 532 shares headed the list. Opening at 80¼ and dropping 1 5-8 points it recovered slightly and closed at 78 3-4. [illegible] Fishing opened at 40½ declining 1 point. Brazilian was steady at 53. Canada Bread was also steady at 124. Dominion Canners declined 1½ points from the opening at 110. In the mining department there was little activity. McIntyre opening at 1800 declined fractionally and recovered to opening figures; Hollinger opening at 1490 dropped to 1480 at close.

Speculative Buying Was Responsible For Gains

WINNIPEG, Man., June 4.—Speculative buying, encouraged by pessimistic crop reports from the winter wheat belt influenced the sharp upward swing of prices on the wheat market today.

A bullish sentiment developed right at the opening of the market, carrying July futures to $1.78, an advance of 5 cents, compared with Tuesday's finish. October also showed strength, gaining 4 cents on the early bulge.

KILLED BY LOGS.

Stakes Broke and Man Piling Logs Was Instantly Killed.

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., June 4. (Canadian Press).—Fred C. Knapp of this town was almost instantly killed Tuesday when unloading logs. He was struck on the head by logs which fell when the stakes supporting them broke.

WOMEN BUSY AT BIG FAIR

Organizations Are Working Hard For Success—and Achieving It.

GOOD PATRONAGE.

The crowd at the Made-in-Peterboro Fair in the Armories last night was even in excess of that of the previous night. Evidently, this new venture of the Peterboro Health Association has caught the popular fancy, and will prove to be a record sucess. Every booth and every amusement centre had its coterie of atrons all evening, and the attendants in the refreshment booths were busy as bees with soft drinks and ice cream cones.

In the Cafe Chantant, the musical programme consisted of numbers by the Peterboro Jazz Orchestra; vocal solos by the Misses Geraldine Collins, Elva McIntyre, and Hugh Niven, with accompaniments by the Misses Gladys Graham and Agnes Logan and Fren Chenhall; a pianoforte solo by Miss Agnes Logan; a reading by Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, and an instrumental duet by Mrs. T. Cruikshank and Mrs. C. C. Cragg.

The Peterboro Symphony Orchestra, playing in the music stand, was assisted by Mr. Hubert Low, bass baritone soloist, with accompaniment by Mrs. W. A. Greenslade.

In the stage room, the concert given on the two previous nights by the Catholic Women's League, under direction of Mrs. F. A. Hodgson, was repeated. Mrs. Hodgson contributing a guitar part to the string trio arrangement, with piano accompaniment by Miss Margaret McCabe.

This evening and tomorrow evening, silhouette by the Women's Art Association will be given in the stage room, wth a added attracton itomorrow night in the presentation of the one-act comedy, "The Right Word," written by Miss K. L. McCarthy, and produced by Mr. J. J. Southern. This comedy, produced with much success by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, now absent from the city, will be presented by a talented cast of local players.

New attendants in the fortune-telling booth of the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League yesterday afternoon and vening were Mrs. G. L. Hay, Mrs. E. L. Goodwill and Miss Flossie Mitchell, with Mrs. W. Laing telling tea-cup fates.

Yesterday afternoon, the ladies of the Kiwanis Club had charge of the afternoon bridge party, and had a very successful afternoon of cards, when about twelve tables of bridge and five hundred were played.

Prizes were won at the bridge tables by Mrs. O. M. Steer and Mrs. R. C. Flitton (consolation); at five hundred by Mrs. Hugh Niven and Mrs. Alex. Dick (consolation).

Mrs. Chas. Cook and Mrs. J. J. Craig acted as general convenors for the afternoon arrangement. Tea was served to the ladies by the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., who are conducting the supper room in the upper east gallery.

RUMMAGE SALE.

The Sewing Circle of Knox Church Held Successful Affair.

The Sewing Circle of Knox Church held a rummange sale of second-hand clothing, followed by the service of afternoon tea, in the basement of the church yesterday afternoon. Mrs. W. Bannon, presiden of the Circle, was in charge. Mrs. T. Skinner and Mrs. H. Kingdon supervised tea arrangements.

WHISPERS.

Whie one person cannot be considered a crowd, one girl can be a "petting party."

Love may be blind, but the neighbors aren't.

If a woman marries a man to lean upon his strong arm she shouldn't sit upon his neck.

Hate to be a joy killer, but we doubt if a fly ever got out while the screen door was open.

Wish daytime came at night. Then you could see some mighty funny things in porch swings.

It takes a stiff upper lip to kiss a mustached man.

The man usually takes all the credit for catching a girl, forgetting she co-operated.

SNAPPY SUIT FOR BEACH

Here's a snappy bathing suit of black lace over tan satin with a flippant ruffly skirt of changeable blue and green taffeta.

Weddings

BULMER—NORTHEY.

A very pretty June wedding took place at half-past eleven on Wednesday morning, June 3, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Northey, when their daughter, Ella Hazel, became the bride of Archie A. Bulmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bulmer, of Smith.

In the absence of Rev. C. S. Reddick, the ceremony was conducted by Rev. P. L. Jull, of Lakefield.

The bride, who was attended by Miss Alma Bulmer, as maid of honor and her two little nieces, Merle Elliott and Verda Northey, as flower girls, entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, played by Mrs. Gradon Northey.

The groom was supported by Mr. Kenneth Northey, brother of the bride.

The ceremony took place under a pretty arch, decorated with tulips, apple blossoms and ferns. The bride's gown was of ivory French crepe trimmed with seed pearls and white fur, and she wore a bridal veil of silk net which was beautifully embroidered and caught into a cap with orange blossoms.

She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley and maiden hair fern. The maid of honour wore peach crepe de chene trimmed with lace and carried pink carnations with lily of valley. The flower girls' dresses were of pink and they carried little baskets of pink carnations. After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served in the dining room which was decorated for the occasion.

The happy couple left on the 3.50 C.P.R. train for Toronto and Niagara. The bride travelling in a tailored suit of navy tricotine and a sand hat and she also wore the gift of the groom, a handsome American opposum choker. The groom gave the maid of honour a gold brooch set with pearls, the best man a set of gold cuff links, the organist a brooch set with brilliants, and the little flower girls a string of pearl beads each.

The young couple received many beautiful and costly gifts, showing the esteem in which they were held and on their return will reside at their home "Rose Bank", Smith township.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

A timely recipe for the strawberry shortcake that everybody likes is given us by Mrs. A. M. Helson, 13 Benson avenue.

2 cups flour.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1 cup sugar.
¼ teaspoon salt.
⅛ lb. butter (about two tablespoons).
1 small cup sweet milk.
1 cup whipping cream.
Strawberries.

Mix all dry ingredients together and cut in butter. Mix with the milk to make a soft dough. Bake in two tins for twenty minutes in a moderate oven. When cool, spread with mashed and sweetened berries. Whip the cream. Spread on top and decorate with strawberries.

THE TOREADOR SUIT

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, June 4.—(United Press).—The day of the bull-fighter is passing—but the costume of the toreador is the latest thing on Fifth Avenue. Warm days have brought out bolero suits trimmed in silver buttons and braiding in true toreador effect. In one case silver buttons extended down the side seams of the skirt.

The suit with bolero jacquette has been popular in Paris for some time, but we have not seen them in New York late this spring. Jacquettes extend to or slightly above the normal waistline. They are rounded in front and worn open to display the pleated white or colorful blouses. The skirt is worn with a belt or sash. Skirts are either box-pleated or plain with the inverted front pleat.

One of the most unusual suits of bolero type was made of navy blue Poiret twill. The jacquette, which scarcely reaches the waist line, was outlined in tiny silver buttons. The skirt was slender, but flared slightly in circular effect at the hem. A vivid striped sash in colors, red, black and yellow, tied in a knot at one side. The blouse was made of pleated white crepe de chene. The young lady wearing this costume chose a stiff-brimmed hat simliar to a "sailor" made of black pressed felt.

Another suit which attracted attention was made of gray flannel. The jacquette was similar to a man's sack coat, except that it was designed in cutaway effect in front and was extremely short. The skirt was plain and short and was worn with a grey crepe de chene blouse, and a wide red suede belt. A gray topcoat of mannish cut was carried over the arm.

MEN MUST PAY BILLS FOR DATES WITH GIRLS

ARLENE KENNEDY AND (INSET) DEAN E. LOUISE NARDIN

MADISON, Wis., June 3.—It's the woman that pays—reads an old maxim.

But not at the soda fountain or ticket window, chorus the co-eds of the University of Wisconsin.

And to forestall any effort to extend the old maxim to cover expenses or entertainment they have voted almost unanimously to permit male students to pay the bill on all "heavy dates."

Dean F. Louise Nardin, dean of women, announced to her charges: "I filmly believe that any adjustment which can be made between the young man and woman that will make social life less expensive for the man is highly desirable. It is one of the disadvantages of college life that such financial equality does not exist."

The college publication held a referendum on the idea and nearly 4000 women students at the institution voted "No."

"I wouldn't want any more dates if I had to help pay the cost," declared Arlene M. Kennedy of Sioux City, Ia. "Men would become effeminate; they would lose their leadership. Man's incentive to toil for the woman he loves would be broken down entirely.

"From time immemorial our men folks have always met this expense."

Waiter, put it all on one check. The "No's" have it.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

CHIVES HELP FLAVOR

Add a few chopped chives to your French saald dressing to vary the flavor.

CHEESE ON ASPARAGUS

Just before you serve asparagus put it on a plate, cover the tips with grated cheese and butter and set in the oven for a few moments until the cheese melts.

MUSTARD KILLS ODOR

To remove the odor left by on when you have handled them, wash your hands in cold water containing a little mustard.

LEAVE IN TINY FLAKES

Avoid rubbing the shortening too thoroughly into the flour when making piecrust. It should be left in tiny flakes.

NO SOAP IN ICE BOX

Never use soap when cleaning the inside of a refrigerator—always use soda and tepid water.

EVENING WRAPS.

Evening wraps are showing a tendency to be more tailored than ever before, with closer lines and no voluminous effects.

CLIPPED OSTRICH USED.

Clipped ostrich is very much in evidence on the bottom of coats and capes.

FASHION PLAQUES

TURTLE NECK IS LATEST

The turtle neck is the leader in sweater styles this season, and has had much to do with the revival of interest in collars generally. This particular one is knit in jacquard design in multi-coolred yarns on a white background. The collar and cuffs are of plain white.

Cynthia Grey Says

The English newspapers printed a story the other day about a Londoner whose wife refused to live with him. She told him he didn't love her enough ....because he didn't kiss her very often or give her the kind of clothes she wanted.

And this is the letter he wrote to her and slipped under her breakfast plate one morning:

"My Dear Wife:

"Times are hard, and it is more necessary for me to have new clothes than you. Suits and salaries are near relations.

"If I forget to kiss you the instant I come home, do not sulk and remind me about it at midnight. Come and kiss me....Iam probably wondering how I shall be able to pay my income tax. I need sympathy.

"Do not think because you have married me that I am yours forever. That 'too sure' path leads to the divorce court. Not all the women one meets are strait-laced, and not all of them ask: 'Are you married?'

"I am proud of you and want my friends to admire you. Make them do it. Mother me as much as you like when we are alone. . .but not before others. Please.

Remember how you looked when we fell in love. . . the dresses you wore, the cunning way you did your hair, the perfume you used. These things thrill me now as much as ever they did.

"And if you must ask me for money, ask for it just after supper ....never before breakfast!"

Excellent advice, all this Not only for one particular wife, but for all wives. We women spend much of our time wondering what our men folk want and expect from us.

Sometimes we only dimly guess But the above letter can be a lantern to guide almost any wife!

PAPA LOVE MAMA? MAMA LOVE PAPA?

Whenever my husband runs out of conversation and feels like going on talking anyway, he switches to this subject.

"First thing I'd do," he says, puffing on his cigar as though he were president of at least six banks, "would be to sell this place and move into a larger, more comfortable house."

"But I always thought you liked our house," I tell him.

"Oh, it's all right—in its way," he admits grandly, "but I want a place where things wont be getting out of order all the time. I'm tired of fixing things.

"And then I'd get some good servants," he continues. (This is a reflection on our Maggie, who really is the best we could get for the money we pay.)

"And then I'd buy a real car," says the dream Rockfeller, "and we'd go around the word and ——"

"All this reminds me—I need $10 in the morning," I put in. "Better give it to me now before you forget."

"What?" he shouts. "Do you think I'm made of money?"

Bon Ami

Keeps white shoes looking like new!

For all kinds of white shoes—except kid—Bon Ami works wonders.

Put it on with a wet brush—let it dry—then wipe it off with a dry cloth. You'll find that all the dirt, dust and grass stains have disappeared. Just the fresh original whiteness remains—without any pasty, chalky streaks.

When the original whiteness finally has worn off your shoes, clean them first with Bon Ami, then apply a good white dressing. This avoids the ugly, grimy, clogged-up appearance.

Bon Ami also cleans windows, mirrors, white woodwork, aluminium, kitchenware, bathtubs, etc.—in fact, it has scores of uses throughout the house.

BRASS Buys LARGE STOCKS

Of The HUDSON BAY KNITTING Co Limited, MONTREAL

by AUCTION at 10¢ to 50¢ on the DOLLAR

TORONTO MERCHANT BIDS

Stock of Hudson Bay Knitting Co., Ltd., Sold

Spirited bidding marked the sale this week by auction of the stock of the Hudson Bay Knitting Company, Limited, 234 Lagauchetiere street west, which went out of business. Many local dealers attended the sale in order to compete for the stock, but the principal competitor was a wholesale merchant from Toronto, who is reported to have purchased a number of lots. Mr. Brass, who bid against competitors on a number of important lines and obtained a large quantity of men's and women's furnishings, has plans to remove the stock to Toronto at once. Ballerson Auction Sales Company, Limited, were the auctioneers.

In the past Brass has made many great purchases and held many great sales that are still remembered by the people of Peterboro. But none can equal this purchase of the Hudson Bay Knitting Company, Limited, in Montreal—it positively eclipses all previous events, both in magnitude and value-giving. A visit to the store will convince. Come Early.

TOMMY GIBBONS ENDS TRAINING

In Perfect Condition For Friday Night's Bout With Tunney.

LAUGHS AT AGE.

NEW YORK, June 4.—"I'm going out to win, and, naturally, I think I am going to win," Tom Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight, said yesterday when he eased up training for his fight against Gene Tunney, which is to be staged to-morrow night at the Polo Grounds.

Tunney is the American light-heavyweight champion, but his title is not at stake, as they are not going to make weight. Neither one is interested in the trick title and they are fighting for the place of prominence in the heavyweight class that a quick victory would give the winner.

"I have been reading statements from myself that I was going to win with one punch, or in one round, or two rounds," Gibbons said. "I have never said anything like that before any fight. Vocal claims never won any fight. I think I'll win, however, or I wouldn't fight Tunney."

Gibbons, who trained several weeks at Atlantic City, and who finished his work yesterday at Coney Island, looks better and is working better than he has in the last five years. He is heavier and more solid, his wind is perfect, and his boxing is Gibbons' boxing, and that's the best in the business.

Gibbons laughs when he hears the old man stuff. Some critics said that age went down before youth when Mike McTigue was beaten by Paul Berlenbach, and that the 37-year-old Gibbons would have the same experience with the 27-year-old Tunney.

"Gibbons looks and acts like he was about 25 years old," Mike McTigue said, after watching Gibbons go through his stunts. "His years won't hurt him any more than they hurt me. [illegible] had a good fight under my belt, I would not have lost my title."

Gibbons was as nearly trained to perfection in Shelby as a fighter could possibly be trained, but he looks even better now. With more weight, he is probably punching harder, and there is no speed missing from his footwork. He is mentally fit also, as he receives daily the most encouraging news from Mrs. Gibbons, who has been seriously ill in St. Paul.

Gibbons is not easily aroused, but he has acquired a fine peeve from the statement of several critics that there will not be much action in the Tunney fight.

"They say that I am not aggressive, and that Tunney is too cautious," Gibbons said. "I don't know what they want a fighter to do. The rules would not permit hatchets or baseball bats to be used in the ring."

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

With Gallagher slated to work for Kingston on Saturday, the Petes will run into another dose of left-handed pitching. In their first four games the Johnstonites have been confronted by four southpaws, Cairns of Kingston, Jeffrey of Belleville and Lennox and Dainty of Oshawa, Goyer of Belleville being the only right-hander to work against the Petes.

* * * * * * * * *

Cairns, the Kingston left-hander, shares with Al. Heckman the distinction of being the only Central Ontario League twirlers to win two games.

* * * * * * * * *

Tuesday night's loss was the first of the season for Duke Dainty. The defeat on Saturday at the hands of the Petes was accredited to Lennox, who started the game.

* * * * * * * * *

Young players cut a big swathe in Tuesday's game at Kingston. Both Kingston's runs were batted in by Lornie Purvis, the Ponies' first sacker, who was a graduate last year from the Circle Six juniors, while Oshawa's lone counter was the result of a hit by Toots Ward, the Peterboro boy who is playing with Oshawa this season.

* * * * * * * * *

All the Central Ontario League teams have been developing young material except Belleville, and the results need no comment. Players like Legon, Hall, Whitehouse and McPherson are proving of great assistance to the Petes.

* * * * * * * * *

Tuesday night's 2-1 game at Kingston with Oshawa going down to defeat was the snappiest of the season, and was played in one hour and twenty-seven minutes. The hot weather had everybody on their toes.

* * * * * * * * *

Compeau, last year's Kingston shortstop, has learned that it is not very profitable to take the plunge into professional ball before being sure of making good. The ex-Pony now finds himself out of baseball, the Kitchener club having decided that it could struggle along without his services.

* * * * * * * * *

Saturday's game has the fans all agog, and the Petes' chances against the fast-going Ponies are being discussed on every side. It promises to be a red-hot tussle, and one that will give the crowd its money's worth of excitement.

* * * * * * * * *

With the league race only two weeks old, the Ponies and Petes have pulled away from the Motorists and Trunks. The Kingston crew are a game in front of the Petes, while the latter have two full games lead on Oshawa and three on Belleville.

* * * * * * * * *

Three of Kingston's four wins so far have been registered at home, while the Petes have won two on the road and one on the home lot.

BENEFIT LACROSSE GAME FRIDAY NIGHT

Will Be Played at Central Park—Two Teams Selected.

There will be a benefit lacrosse game played at Central Park, at 6 o'clock Friday evening, the proceeds being for the benefit of an old lacrosse player, who has been sick for about two years. The following players are requested to turn out:

First team: Murdock, McLeod, A. Hatton, G. Mein, M. Neary, Ward, Bailey, Dwyer, Donovan, J. Jones, King, McDonald.

Second team: L. LeBarr, McKinnon, Goodfellow, Taylor, A. White, Ranger, D. Miller, Dundas, D. White, L. White, J. O'Toole, K. Miller.

COURSE RECORD IN GOLF ROUND

Diegel and MacFarlane Led Field in Open Championship Play.

THE FIRST HALF.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 4. — Leo Diegel of Glen Oaks, N. Y., and Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., led the field in the first half of the 72-hole national open golf championship at the Worcester Country Club course yesterday with 141 each.

In obtaining their superb scores, both men shattered the competitive record for 18-holes here, Diegel setting a 68 and MacFarlane later reducing it a stroke.

MacDonald Smith, Bill Mehlhorn and other stars appeared to have little chance to gain the national crown. Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen were a half dozen strokes behind the leaders.

Cyril Walker, the present champion, was almost in the ruck with 154.

Gene Sarazen and Francis Ouimet, former champions, came in with marks that placed them in the contender class by scoring 72 and 73 respectively, in the afternoon round. Sarazen's 36 hole total was 144, and Ouimet's 143. MacDonald Smith got into difficulties in the afternoon's play and ran up his score to 152 by taking a 79.

Scores of the best known players were:

Leo Diegel, Glen Oaks N. Y.	73	68	141
Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y.	74	67	141
Francis Ouimet, Auburndale, Mass	70	73	143
Francis Gallett, Wauwatoss, Ind.	73	70	143
Gene Sarazen, Jamaica, N. Y.	72	72	144
Mike Brady, Memaroneck, N.Y.	74	72	146
Robert L. Jones, Atlanta, Ga.	77	70	147
Walter Hagen, Pasadena, Fla.	72	76	148
Bill Mehlhorn, Glenview, Ills.	78	72	150
George Kerrigan, Pasadena, Cay.	75	75	150
Joe Kirkwood, Pasadena, Fla.	81	73	154
Cyril Walker, Engelwood, N.J.	81	73	154
Pat Doyle, White Plains, N. Y.	78	7	155
Jock Hutchison, Golf, Ill.	78	73	150
Henry Cuici, White Plains, N.Y.	51	77	153
Tommy Armour, New York	76	74	160

SOUTHPAWS ON HURLING HEAP FOR SATURDAY

Dalley Saves His Ace, Ted Gallagher, for Crucial Game.

MEETS WHITEHOUSE

League's Youngest Pitcher Will Serve Them Up for the Petes.

Evidently the Ponies have paid the Petes the compliment of saving their pitching ace for use against Manager Johnston's team here on Saturday, for Cairns was worked against Oshawa last evening, leaving Ted Gallagher for service in Saturday's big battle at Riverside Park. The Ponies have now won four straight victories without a loss, while the Petes with three wins in four starts, the triumphs coming three in a row, are right at their heels, and can sew up the rack by taking the Daley-Batstone combination into camp in the week-end fixture. There is no love lost between the two teams as a result of last season's developments, and every point will be bitterly fought for, the contest looming up as the scrappiest of the season.

The game is called for 3 o'clock sharp, with Ken Colling of Belleville and Si Dell of Oshawa in charge, and it is certain that when the former announces the battery the biggest crowd that has gathered at Riverside Park in several years will be on hand. The interest in this fixture is not confined to Peterboro, for fans all over the district are looking upon the game as likely to be one of the choicest morsels in the Central Ontario calendar, and they are counting upon being among those present when "Play ball!" is sounded.

The Petes only loss this season was at the hands of the Ponies in the opening game at Kingston. Manager Johnston's team was not at full strength then, and, in addition, got none of the breaks of the game. They will have their complete squad available on Saturday, however, and they are confident of reversing the decision and getting on even terms with Kingston.

So far as is known now Whitehouse will be on the firing line for the Petes, and the battle between the two left-handers, one the youngest pitcher in the league and the other the oldest, should be a most interesting feature of the game.

PHILLIES STOP BRAVES' RALLY

St. Louis Cardinals Win Four in a Row From Cincinnati Reds.

ONLY TWO GAMES.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—Jimmy Ring hurled fine ball to give Philadelphia the odd game of the series with Boston today by a 5 to 4 margin, and the locals left for the West in the first division.

The game was one of the best played on the local lot this season and the Braves appeared to be helpless until the eighth, when a three-run rally nearly tied the score. Score:

Shifting the weight to the right leg during the back swing does not mean that the right hip shoves far out. This shifting of weight often is best accomplished by merely stiffening the right leg against the tendency of the club, going back, to pull the whole body to the right. The movement of the hips does not exceed more than a few inches — and by few I mean perhaps three inches. After the shift of weight it is important to hold the hips to their place because letting the right hip move far out will introduce body pushing into the forward swing, since if the hip moves away out in the back swing it will have to come back before the ball is hit.

BIRDS SET BACK.

Beaten By Jersey City After Pennant Raising Ceremony in Baltimore.

SYRACUSE, June 3. — Myle Thomas of Toronto held Syracuse to four hits today, while his teammates walloped three pitchers for 13 hits and won 13 to 0, thereby breaking the winning streak for the Stars which had reached six straight games. Kelly drove out four hits in five times up including two home runs. Heath also got a homer. Score:

BALTIMORE, Md., June 3.—Baltimore raised its new pennant today, but it failed to inspire the champions, who were defeated by Jersey City, 9 to 4, evening the series. After a poor start Rube Zellars pitched strong ball for the Skeeters and had by far the better of Jack Ogden, who yielded 13 hits. Simpson clinched the game for the visitors with a double in the eighth with the bases full, all runners scoring. Score:

DEMPSEY IN BERLIN.

Picks Up Piece of Easy Change at Park.

BERLIN, June 4.—Jack Dempsey got the most enthusiastic reception ever accorded any American boxer in this phlegmatic town when he and Mrs. Dempsey arrived Tuesday.

A vast crowd met the champion at the station and tried to carry him off on their shoulders, so that he had to use some fancy arm and footwork to fight his way through the mob. At the hotel his rooms were packed with flowers.

Dempsey will fight exhibition matches of four rounds each twice a day for a week at Luna Park in Berlin for which he has a guarantee of $15,000 and a percentage of the gate receipts.

He said he has no plans for any fights here, though he is keeping in constant training "in spite of the fact that this is our honeymoon trip."

The champion denied that he has retired from the ring.

Practically all car makers equip their new models with Balloon tires.

Firestone Gum-Dipping made Balloon tires possible. This special process insulates each fibre of every cord with rubber, giving great strength and flexing endurance to the cords. This makes light, strong side walls of extreme flexibility which avoid punctures by yielding to sharp objects that often drive through the stiff, bulky tires of higher air pressure.

Firestone Balloons grip the road even at high speed—holding the car steady and sure on the dangerous curves.

RICHMOND HAS STATUE MIX-UP

Society Gave City a Statue of Columbus—Erection is Opposed.

MANY OBJECTIONS.

RICHMOND, Va., June 4. (United Press).—The Streets Committee of the City Council will meet to-night to consider the matter of defeating a site for a $30,000 statue of Christopher Columbus, following insistence by newspapers that Richmond will be the "clown city" of the nation unless the matter is settled shortly.

The editorial warning was issued when the committee on utilities recommended that the Council refuse to permit the statue, which was donated by Italian-American citizens to be erected on city property.

Several fraternal organizations had opposed the acceptance of the statue. A petition, the only tangible opposition, charged that the memorial to Columbus came from a "sectarian organization." Numerous other objections were voiced, some even questioning whether Columbus actually discovered America.

The money for the statue was raised among members and friends of the Italian Society of Richmond.

STRIKE SPREADS WITHOUT ATTACK ON FOREIGNERS

There Are Now Over One Hundred Thousand Coolies on Strike.

FEAR EXPRESSED.

European Newspapers Think There May Be Another Boxer Rising.

SHANGHAI, June 4. (Canadian Press).—The strike in the Japanese cotton mills, which was the genesis of rioting here, is spreading, but no further attacks on foreigners are reported.

The strikers now are estimated to number one hundred thousand, most of them of the coolie class.

Grave View Taken.

LONDON, June 4. (Canadian Press).—A very grave view is taken here of the disturbances at Shanghai, and the outlook in China generally, fear being expressed that things are moving toward a situation resembling the Boxer uprising of 1900, when many missionaries and other foreigners were murdered.

As regards the agitation among workers and students, editorial writers of London papers are almost unanimous in attributing it to Bolshevist influences.

REV. DR MACKINNON DELIVERS ADDRESS

Church Could Not Expect to Escape Protest of Conservatism.

TORONTO, June 4.— "Whether we will or not, a new era is upon us that calls for new adjustment," declared Rev. Dr. Clarence MacKinnon, of Halifax, retiring moderator, in his sermon to the Presbyterian assembly. He preached from the words of Christ: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it until life eternal."

"It is common," said Dr. MacKinnon, "to speak of our own age as one of transition and to claim that we are standing at the portal of a new epoch in human experience. It is a claim that I think can be justified, not as a consequence of wars and political upheavals, in which too often men have vainly sought the promise of a better day; rather is it to be found in the remarkable triumphs of mind over matter that are so significant of our times, the operation of the Spirit of the Creator in the activity of man.

"These marvellous applications of science are affecting the whole intellectual, moral, social and spiritual life of man.

"Did we fondly imagine that our church could escape; that it could enter into the spirit and task of the new day without change of method or of mind; or that conservatism would permit the readjustment without its protest and anathema? If so, we have been rudely undeceived. We are not allowed to enter on the larger day without the exacted penalty. We have seen congregations split, old associations rudely broken. The Psalms have taken on a new meaning for many a minister; he has learned what it is to say: 'Yea, mine own familiar friend, in whom I trusted, which did eat of my bread, hath lifted up his heel against me,' but through it all he has never flinched. He has bade good-bye to the pulpit, he has turned the key in the door, he has left behind him little graves that lie in the village churchyard. Nor has she been inferior in steadfastness 'who blends the grace of Athens with Sparta's sterner mind.' The old is passing. God is fulfilling Himself in many ways, and our suffering ministry and people are the heralds of a brighter day of kindlier sympathies, wider vision and more Christian spirit. The corn of wheat has fallen to the ground and died, and great will be the fruit.

"Let us go forward," concluded Dr. MacKinnon, "with the word of comfort and of courage amid the disturbing and distressing circumstances through which our beloved church is passing."

HAD BAD SPELLS WITH HER HEART

He got me everything he could think of to see if they would do me any good, but nothing seemed to help me. One day a friend was in to see me and advised me to try action of withdrawing protection and facilities on Sunday was an extremely ill-advised piece of legislation. He was unable to recall any other municipality on the North American Continent which barred a practice so palpably for the public comfort and benefit.

STORM AGAINST

"Peterborough," Mr. Fraser said, "will get a name for narrow-minded Puritanism which will turn the tourist from our doors to other places whose civic authorities are capable of a wider compass of thought."

Surely the bathing beaches will be as great a public benefit as the toboggan slide which was erected at Hunter Street last winter, and will not approximate the cost of the added Sunday convenience.

Mrs. Stevenson's Opinion.

Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, president of the Local Council of Women, is of the personal opinion that the bathing beaches should be open on Sunday during afternoon hours. Closing during church time is perfectly proper, but Mrs. Stevenson is of the opinion that bathing on hot Sunday afternoons should meet with no objection from anyone. From two o'clock to five-thirty would be a reasonable period, in her opinion. Proper facilities for dressing and undressing should also be provided, with the caretaker on hand to open the dressing-rooms.

SCREEN'S CALL IS URGENT FOR NEW SCENARIOS

Too Many Players Awaiting Parts—Staff Writers Frantic.

IDEAS WANTED.

Movie Industry Has Collided With Its Greatest Problem.

By LINCOLN QUARBERG
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, June 4th. (United Press).—The crying need of the motion picture industry today is for scenario writers. The business of movie-making is top-heavy, with too many screen-players awaiting jobs or under contract who have potent box-office values, but are without suitable parts to exploit their talents.

Movie producers are literally throwing their hands in the air decrying the waste in production because many of their high-salaried performers are lying idle, while they search for stories and parts to fit them.

Staff writers are worrying nights and working days to produce suitable scenarios for the particular needs of their companies, but the bulk of their product, according to film heads, is sheer waste. Even plays and novels purchased for screen adaption must necessarily be so mutilated and overhauled that for the sake of efficiency producers and directors are howling for original stories from trained, or inspired, scenario writers.

This condition, according to producers, accounts for the fact that many of the larger film companies are spending thousands of dollars through popular magazines in prizes for ideas and scenarios adaptable to their particular players.

"The movie industry has collided with its greatest problem," declared Edwin Carewe, prominent producer-director. "Having eliminated in efficiency in other departments, we are now confronted with this waste of high priced performing talent.

"There are hundreds of artists welcomed and demanded by the public, who are being kept idle by failure of a story to provide them with suitable stories to exploit the talents and popularity of the marketable film stars.'"

The solution to the problem, according to Carwe, is to attract a better class of writers, and more of them to the movie industry. They would be better able to visualize the limitations and potentialities of the screen and its players, he believes.

"Their stories would be made to fit the players, and would keep steadily employed those whom the public demands," he said. "This is now more or less a matter of accident."

Cecil DeMille, famous indepen dent producer; Paul Bern, noted scenario writer; June Mathis, head of the scenario department of First National Productions, and others who were interviewed, agreed with Carewe that the industry "needs scenario writers more than anything else."

"My advice to the film-struck youth of America is that they forget their pretty faces, throw away their powder puffs and make-up boxes and try using their brains instead," said Miss Mathis.

"There are plenty of opportunities in the film business besides acting in pictures. For those who feel they can write, my advice is to try turning out a scenario. The shortest cut to success in the movie game is to forget about acting and do a little thinking."

"RED NEWMAN, THE STRENUOUS

From what source "Red" Newman derives his splendid vitality, not even he can tell. Yet it is that same superabundance of "pep" that has placed him where he is, one of the foremost character singing comedians on the stage today, and he has done it all in the last ten years.

His every entrance is a signal for the audience to sit up and take a deep breath. He speeds up the action of every scene he appears in. His vitality is contagious. What a wonderful athletic instructor he would have made! A football coach, for example.

"Red" has several solutions as to the source of his animation. The first is that he revels in his work. He would rather be an actor than a king. Another is that he was considerably of a fighter in his youth, hailing from Bermondsey, where many of England's best fighters got their start. In 1905 he was the amateur lightweight champion of England. The rigid training of those days still stands him in good stead.

In the Dumbells' latest and greatest re. , "Oh, Yes!" "Red" has the biggest opportunity of his shining career, and he makes the most out of it. His two songs, "Let's Keep the Money in the Country," and "How Does the Milk Get Into Cocoanuts?" are both sure-fire. Then, he has a part written for him in A Home from Home," the first comedy sketch. He also sings, "Oh, It's a Lovely War," for good measure.

The Dumbells will offer this entirely new revue at the Grand Theatre for two nights, Monday and Tuesday, June 8 and 9.

AT THE CAPITOL

A GOOD STAR NEED NOT CHOOSE A WEAK CAST.

There are any number of admittedly fine actors who invariably surround themselves with inferior casts in order that their own capabilities may be magnified by contrast. Harry Carey, star of "Beyond the Border," the Hunt Stromberg production which is at the Capitol Theatre to-day, Friday and Saturday does not stoop to such methods.

In this picture he does his most notable work to date, and he is surrounded by a cast of seasoned troupers who contribute in a large part to the high achievement of the picture as a glowing example of what a western should be.

Tom Santschi, who is a star in his own right, with a large fan following gives a very pleasing portrayal of a villain whose evil jeopardizes the happiness of many persons and is so convincing that one would not be surprised to hear the audience rise up and shout out against him.

William Scott, the juvenile lead, is recognized as one of the most capable actors in the industry. The charm and popularity of Mildred Harris in the leading role opposite Carey is sufficient to detract a good portion of interest from any star less impressive than this westerner. Jack Richardson is an old-timer at the game, and just to round it out as the best supporting cast Carey has ever had. Victor Potel is included to provide frown-proof comedy to the film.

Even all this, however, is but a slight test of Harry Carey's skill, for his performance in "Beyond the Border" stands out above the combined achievements of these capable people who support him as brazenly as the mountains that add their beauty to the background of the story.

AT THE ROYAL

PRIZE STORY FILMED WITH SELECT ACTORS

"The Fighting American" Won the Carl Laemmle Scholarship.

Thirteen persons, only two of them women, but all widely known to moving pitcure theatre patrons were selected to portray the leading characters in "The Fighting Adventures" —Universal Jewel—coming to the Royal Theatre to-day. The picture was adapted from the scenario submitted by Wiliam Elwell Oliver in the Carl Laemmle inter-collegiate scenario contest, and was awarded first prize, a scholarship.

Oliver is a student in the University of California; also has had considerable travels in China and he drew upon his knowledge of these widely divergent localities.

The hero is expelled from college and makes his way to China as a stowaway where he encounters much adventure in an effort to rescue his sweetheart from the power of leaders of a revolutionary horde of soldiers. Some of the action calls for hazardous experience in airplanes.

Thomas Forman directed the picture, and the thirteen stars that appear in it are Pat O'Malley, Mary Astor, Raymond Hatton, Warner Oland, Edwin J. Brady, Taylor Carroll, Clarence Geldert, Alfred Fisher, Jack Byron, James W[illegible]g, Emmett King, Jane Starr and Frank Kingsley.

O'Malley and Miss Astor have the juvenile leads and the others are in character parts of a type for which they have become famous both on the screen and on the speaking stage.

AT THE REGENT

"THE MASK OF LOPEZ."

In "The Mask of Lopez," a Harry J. Brown production, Fred Thomson has a corking first-appearance entrance to Sunny Meade Ranch with a chase full of stunts. A powerful fight which starts with Thomson diving over a seven-foot fence and bulldogging the heavy off his horse, ending with Thomson picking up the heavy, throwing him in a watering trough, then dragging him through the dirt. The cut-ins to the fight are the horse pawing, seemingly anxious to get into the fight, and the girl with the superintendent rooting on the side lines. Then the runaway ending with Thomson picking the girl off her horse at the edge of the cliff with both horses reared up on their hind legs. In the chase Thomson does a landslide, also vaulting with the horse over barb-wire fences, some corking good runs. This is followed by the lassoing of both Thomson and "Red" from their horses by the men on the cliff and their abduction. Thomson's horse, Silver King returns alone, enters the ranch, opens the gate, knocks on the door, commands a great deal of attention, but will not allow anyone to touch him until they start back, the horse in the lead, with the cowboys and the girl following. Then the rescue and the wind up with forty-five riders—and what shots!

LEGISLATION CURSE OF AMERICA TO-DAY

Episcipal Bishop Says There Are Too Many Professional Uplifters.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., June 4 (Canadian Press).—"I am a modernist but not an extreme modernist, I am a fundamentalist, but I hope a sane one; my position in the church prevents me from saying what I'd like about William Jennings Byran, and God save us from any more constitutional amendments." said the Right Rev. Dr. Charles Fiske, Episcopal Bishop of Central New York, in an address here last night.

"The curse of America today," Bishop Fiske declared, "is that we think we can make people good by legislation. There are too many professional uplifters who think they can crystalize morals by putting laws on the statute books.

"I like the old-fashioned religion of the men who worship and serve God in their own way and don't attempt to correct others by legislation."

OBITUARY.

JOHN LANE.

The funeral of the late John Lane will take place from his late residence, 565 Patterson Street, tomorrow (Friday) morning at 8.45 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and St Peter's Cemetery.

THOMAS McNAMARA.

The death occurred at his home at 606 Walkerfield Avenue, at five o'clock this morning, of Thomas McNamara, in his seventy-second year. The deceased, who had been ill during periods extending over the past five years, was stricken with a sudden serious attack of cerebral hemorrhage on Sunday morning, and passed away early this morning. He was well and favorably known throughout the city, where he has lived since 1906, coming here from Madoc, where he conducted a clothing establishment for twenty years. For some years, he was a member in the city of the staff of the H. LeBrun Clothing Company.

The late Mr. McNamara was born in County Roscommon, Ireland, in 1854, and came out to America in 1882. He was a valued member of the local Council of the Knights of Columbus.

Survivors are his sorrowing wife three daughters: Mrs. A. J. Massel and Miss Teresa, at home, and Miss Elizabeth, of North Bay; also a brother and sister in Ireland.

The funeral will take place at 9 o'clock Saturday morning from St. Peter's Cathedral to St. Peter's Cemetery.

MRS. MARTHA McMILLAN.

The death occurred on Wednesday of Martha McMillan, wife of Wilbert McMillan, 595 Division street. Mrs. McMillan, whose death was very sudden, had been a resident of Peterborough for eighteen years. She was born in Port Grandby, Ontario.

Mrs. McMillan was an active member of George street Methodist church, taking a great interest in the work of the Ladies' Aid. She was president of the Onward Ladies' Bible Class.

Besides her husband, she is survived by her father, T. E. Brown, of Port Grandby, three sisters, Mrs. O. J. Clatworthy of Oshawa, Mrs. I. B. Willoughby of White Fish, Montana, and Mrs. J. Arthur Kane of Oshawa, and one brother, Edgerton G. Brown, of Prince Rupert, B.C.

The funeral will be announced later.

JAMES DUFF.

LAKEFIELD June 3.—Word was received in the village on Monday of the death of James Duff of Drinkwater Sask., a brother of Miss Duff, Mrs. A. Quinn and Mr. Robert Duff. The late Mr. Duff was born in Smith Township, and was well-known to the older residents of Lakefield and the district, as was also his wife, formerly Miss Annie Johnson. Interment will be in the Little Lake Cemetery, Peterboro.

PREPARING FOR HUGE STAMPEDE

Fiftieth Anniversary of Calgary to be Well Celebrated.

BIGGER THAN EVER

CALGARY, Alta., June 4. — (Canadian Press)—Preparations are proceeding apace for the Calgary jubilee stampede to be staged in July.

The city will be given over to the populace and visitors during the period of celebration, for unrestricted merriment. Once more the dusty chuck wagons will come tearing down the streets distributing flapjacks to the crowds; once more will Indians tread stolidly through the streets of a modern city, where but half a century ago, their forebears whooped and hunted buffalo over what was then a bare prairie. Furthermore the Mounted Police will be there in full force and glory, to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of their coming to Calgary.

According to the stampede promoters, the outdoor West is going to be seen in its romantic glory. It is going to be wild, wooly, western and wholesome. It is going to be educational, interesting, historical and invigorating. The pioneer past will be depicted in contrast to the progressive present.

A mammoth parade will be staged the pageant to include Indians, cowboys and girls, mounted police, trappers, a cavalcade of Western horsemen, and floats representing the development of the district.

The stampede will not be conducted as a "show" but as a genuine competitive tournament, with valuable purses, trophies and official championship titles at stake.

Last years' stampede attracted a total gate of 167,279 compared with 97,732 in 1922.

Titled Pilot's Apprentice Subjected To Old Joke

LONDON, June 4.—(United Press).—David Kenworthy, the ten-year-old grandson and heir of Baron Lord Strabolgi, wants to be a pilot when he grows up and has already begun his apprenticeship.

If Master David sticks to his life's ambition, there will be some day a Lord Strabolgi swinging up over the sides of great freighters and piloting them to the great docks at Hull. Recently he spent a busy week on the pilot cutter W. A. Massey. He said:

"They persuaded me to try and win sixpence by dropping a coin off my head into a funnel at the back of my trousers. While I was busy balancing the coin on my head, I received the contents of a tin of water through the funnel into the back of my pants.

"Afterwards I enjoyed the joke on three more victims."

FUNERAL RITES OF W. E. CONWAY WELL ATTENDED

Beautiful Service of Church of England Read by Archdeacon Davidson.

LARGE CORTEGE.

Masonic Brethren Conducted Impressive Ceremonies For Departed Brother.

Most impressive funeral services were carried out on Tuesday afternoon for the late W. E. Conway. The services at the house and at St. John's Church were conducted by Archdeacon J. C. Davidson, assisted by Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, with whom Mr. Conway had been closely connected during his term of office as warden of the church during Archdeacon Davidson's rectorate.

The beautiful and impressive service of the church of England was read, and the church service was attended by a great many citizens of Peterborough, who had found a friend in Mr. Conway, and a willing worker in all his undertakings.

Archdeacon Davidson, in an exceedingly touching address in eulogy of the deceased, recalled that Mr. Conway had been one of the stuachest of the many warm friends he (the Archdeacon) had and still has in St. John's Church and in Peterborough city. The reverend gentleman also held up the departed as having lived in this city an exemplary life worthy of emulation by all citizens. He extolled him for his consistent religious principles, exemplified both in his chosen church of St. John's and in the community generally; for his love of and affectionate care for his home and family; for his kindly sympathy with others in the hour of their trouble or affliction, and finally for that industrious and energetic application to his business as local manger for Grafton & Co. which has resulted in that company's Peterborough branch winning recognition as an outstanding success among the several other stores trading under the same name.

Before the cortege left the house, the full service of the Masonic Order was conducted by former lodge brethren of Mr. Conway, who was a past master of Peterborough Lodge. At the cemetery, there was also a Masonic service, in addition to the religious ceremony.

The large funeral cortege, containing over fifty cars, and the good attendance at the church service, testified to the esteem in which the deceased gentleman was held by all who came in touch with him. The floral offerings were also many, including some from his business associates in Peterborough and other offices of the Grafton Company.

The honorary pallbearers were Colonel J. J. Grafton, Colonel E. B. Clegg. Messrs. W. G. Ferguson, John Mervin, W. A. Davidson, and Harry Rush. The active pallbearers, furnished by the Masonic lodge, were Messrs. Alex. Gibson, Ross Dobbin, J. G. M. Wilson, H. Morphet, John Craig, and Herridge.

As a mark of respect many of the business house lowered the blinds and closed the doors while the cortege passed through the centre of the city.

ONLY VOTING CAN OVERTHROW LIQUOR

President J. S. Wilson Asails Ontario's New Beer Law at Conference.

BELLEVILLE, June 4. (Canadian Press).—Methodists advancing into Union without a break in the ranks was the picture presented at the Quinte Conference this morning by President J. S. Wilson, in formally opening the forty second and last conference before the assembled members and laymen in Bridge Street Church here. Ontario's new beer law was assailed by the president, who stressed the point that even bone dry legislation does not necessarily mean sober people. United action at the polls will alone bring the overthrow of the liquor traffic, for the only force the politician knows is that of the ballot, he said.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

One of the great things about the British Empire is the freedom given men who live under its flag. They may singly or in groups do anything they please so long as they do not tramp on their neighbor's toes. That is why the Ku Klux Klan has been able to organize in Peterborough without molestation, and will be allowed to continue to function so long as the rights of other citizens are not transgressed. And there is no indication that there will be any un-British actions perpetrated.

Ku Klux Klan

It is unfortunate—for the Klan—: so many crimes and minor breaches the law should have been placed at the feet of the parent organization in United States. This makes it hard to convince Canadians that the organization is to prove beneficial—or even bearable.

And it is a pity too that the burning of the cross should have been made so great a travesty on the beauty of the ceremony as described in Scott's "Lady of the Lake," where the heart of every reader thrills to the sublimity of the call to service. Used, as it was in United States and is said to have been used in Canada, as a means to terrorize, it loses all its beauty, significance, and its legality.

A meeting of the Klan was held last night in Peterborough, and organizers have been busy among members of certain societies. So long as the organization remains British in spirit and actions, no one will have much to say against the addition of one more to the long list of societies, associations, and what not that take up the spare time of citizens. If its principles transgress the fundamentals of British constitution, then the people of Peterborough, with all other Canadians, will know what action to take.

There's no shortage of material for a platform for Aldermen seeking re-election on January 1. Daylight saving, Sunday bathing, Sunday band-concerts, provide three planks. And a good slogan to replace the old "economy" watchword would be "I represent the people—not my own ideas."

Again today universal condemnation of the anti-Sunday-bathing rule of the City Council is voiced by citizens interviewed by The Examiner. Manufacturers who have gone to expense in providing playing fields, tennis courts, and similar recreation places for their employees are indignant that the rights of these employees to bathe on Sunday should be taken away—and without any reason that holds water.

Sunday Bathing

The statement that there was rowdyism last year is characterized by one man as "a poor excuse." If there was rowdyism the police should have been called to quell it—and the thousands of workers should not be penalized for the fault of a few.

It seems certain from observations today that Aldermen Phelan and Denne had the vast majority of the people behind them in their contention that the beaches should be open on Sunday.

For the first time on record Alderman Phelan was on the losing side in a vote and did not call for the yeas and nays.

Four-point-four beer is as dead to fame today as was two per cent a month ago. Men who are thirsty drink it as a thirst quencher, but no one in his wildest moments would describe it as popular as a means to passing an hour in companionship over a glass. No one has been recorded on the city police blotter as becoming drunk on it. In fact, when men mention it at all it is with a smile.

Four Point Four

It can well be doubted whether being served over a bar would have increased its potency any. The opinion of those who hoped to find in it the kick that was missing in its immediate predecessor is that it should have been distributed on April 1.

Citizens on Bethune street are not rejoicing in the coming here of Mikado engines. They say the bigger the engine the bigger the noise.

MAN KILLED BY LEAP FROM FIRE

Five Minutes Later Firemen Reached Room Where He Was Trapped.

FEARED DELAY.

NEW YORK, June 4.— (United Press.) — Fearing that firemen could not reach him, Harry Englander, of Newark, N.J., a hat manufacturer, leaped to death from a window when he was trapped by a fire on the fourth floor of a loft building here. Less than five minutes later, firemen reached the room from which Englander had taken his fatal leap, and had the latter retained his presence of mind he would have been rescued.

The Presbyterian Church Assembly

By R. E. KNOWLES
(SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER)

"If this is death, it is beautiful—there is no valley here," murmured D. L. Moody with his latest breath. So it was at the last Assembly of the Presbyterian Church

TORONTO, June 5.—The General Assembly glories in its new Moderator. The day has been intolerably hot, but Dr. Pidgeon has kept imperturably cool. His urbanity, composure and consideration have set the pace for the whole conduct of the debate. Like the weather, the proceedings have been dry. Delay began with consideration of the Church publications, the dominant appeal being that the ministers should seek to keep young under the influence of such literature as fostered Canadian principles and British ideals.

At noon Mayor Foster made a speech of welcome on behalf of the city, stressing the superiorities and glories of Toronto physically, intellectually, morally and universally. This was warmly applauded, that operation being led by delegates from the Queen City, it being long and generally known that no one can say anything more complimentary about Toronto and its people than they already believe about themselves. If Mayor Foster had wanted to really solidify himself with the Presbyterians and make his calling and election sure, he should, since Toronto owns her own street railway here, have declared free transportation to all commissioners, an example set by R. J. Fleming when the great Kirk congress was held in Toronto twelve years ago, a dispensation which has canonized him ever since in the memory of all the faithful of Scottish birth or parentage.

A Warm Welcome.

This afternoon the Assembly had a visit from two of its new relations, the Rev. Mr. Perley and the Rev. Mr. Richards, representing the Congregational Church of Canada. Warm was the welcome. Indeed it was a melting occasion, the visitors wiping their brows and eyes. They declared their joy that they were so soon to move in and dwell with their Presbyterian brethren indefinitely. Their cordial hosts responded with [illegible] that threw [illegible] into violent perspiration, one rural delegate in a front pew heatedly flinging off his coat, an example immediately followed by the brethren eyed by the Moderator, but evidently with envious longing. The aged and beloved convenor of the Aged and Infirm Ministers' Fund, Mr. J. K. MacDonald, presented his report to-day, this being his fortieth appearance on behalf of the cause to which he has devoted his strength and gifts with an abandon of zeal and sympathy which to-day provoked a reception of unusual warmth and affection.

Home Mission Night.

Last night was home mission night, according to ancient usage, the Rev. Dr. Sedgewick, of Hamilton, in the chair. Addresses were given by Dr. Tanner of Montreal, Rev. Dr. Ross of Halifax and Rev. Mr. Watts of Haileybury. While they were speaking the fire burned, the fire of ardor for the cause of Union, first kindled at that heroic flame and because of the special need in the vast spaces of missionary enterprise more and more the Assembly fortifies itself in the wisdom of its action when it surveys the mighty problems of Northern Ontario and of the prairie vastnesses and realizes that only in the subjugation of partial interests and in the fellowship of a united front and united action can there be hope for holding this broad land for righteousness and truth.

Warm Argument.

Before the final leaving last night I visited the "smoking" tent, for the Assembly is still Presbyterian enough for that. I found it a debating arena, election and free will, inspiration plenary or optional, modernism and fundamentalism, the necessity for creeds and the arrogance of them; all these were under discussion by clergymen in various stages of evening dress, for the night was as hot as the debate, the choice parts of which were two sallies of wit, passed to sweltering readers everywhere.

1. Increasingly impatient, one of the colloquists, an Irishman, turned upon his adversary: "You remind me of the Scotchman who entered a hotel and demanded forty-four per cent. beer." Told that it did not exist, he persisted still, the attendant finally turning on him with, "You're just like all Scotchmen, you didn't see the point."

2. Approaching violence on free-will and predestination, an aged clergyman finally drew both apart and said in the sweetest voice, "I want you both the first Sunday you are in your own pulpits to preach from this text, "Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep."

Need No National Flag Say Daughters Of Empire

OTTAWA, June 5 (Canadian Pres)—"Should Canada Have a National Flag?" This question occupied most of the morning session of the National Chapter, Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire here today. In the end it was decided in the negative. The advocates of a Canadian flag rested mainly upon the strength of "Daughter am I in my mother's house, but mistress in my own."

SANDWICH ISN'T REALLY A MEAL

Attorney General To Cancel Licenses If Beer Rules Not Respected.

SUNDAY SERVING.

TORONTO, June 5 (Canadian Press)—It has been reported to Attorney General Nickle that certain hotels in Toronto and other parts of the province have evaded the Sunday beer regulations by selling beer with a sandwich. "That will not be tolerated," stated the Attorney General at noon today. "Beer can only be sold on Sunday with legitimate meals."

The Attorney-General intimated that some licenses would be lost if the practice was continued.

ENTHUSIASTIC ANNUAL MEETING TRENT WATERWAY ASSOCIATION HELD IN PETERBOROUGH TO-DAY

Credit For Ontario Tourist Association Given to This Body.

ANNUAL LUNCHEON.

Many Members Present To Discuss Betterment of Tourist Traffic.

An enthusiastic meeting of the members of the Trent Waterway Development Association was held today in the Chamber of Commerce with the President, G. K. Fraser, in the chair.

An address of welcome was given by Mayor J. J. Turner who assured all members present of the hearty support and co-operation of the city in the effort which was being made to exploit this district for tourist traffic. The Mayor commented on the good work which had been done in the past by the association and remarked on the indications for improvement which this year shows over previous years.

J. Wells Fraser, President of the Chamber of Commerce, in a brief address extended a welcome to the visitors on behalf of the branch which he represented and said that both the Trent Development Association and the Chamber of Commerce should work hand in hand to encourage the flow of tourist traffic in these waterways.

Credits Association

J. J. Duffus, recently created president of the Ontario Tourist Association gave the credit for the existence of that body solely to the Trent Waterway Development Association. "Accordingly," he said, "We must work that this Ontario Tourist Association coupled with the Trent Development Association become known Dominion wide as the finest, most efficient body dealing with the needs of the travelling pubic."

Immediately prior to the meeting in the Chamber of Commerce the guests from out of town together with the hosts gathered at the Empress where a very palatable luncheon had been prepared.

Those present at the luncheon were: G. K. Fraser; J. J. Duffus, vice president of the Ontario Tourist Association; J. Wells Fraser, President of Chamber of Commerce; Leon Frazer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, the Trent Waterway Development Association and the Ontario Tourist Association; F. J. Overend, secretary of the Orillia Board of Trade; Fred Abbott and John McNabb, councillors of Trenton; Reeve Tiers of Fenelon Falls; Reeve W. C. Moore of Bobcaygeon; W. N. Fowlds of Hastings; Alec Wilson, town clerk of Hastings, and A. W. Coughlin, councillor of Hastings.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

G. K. Fraser, President of the Trent Waterway Development Association, read the following report:—

"In submitting this my Fifth Annual Report, I cannot help but first of all express not only my regrets, but those of yours, in losing by death during the past year our most enthusiastic supporter and worker in the person of our late Honorary President, Senator, W. H. Bennett of Midland. We join in conveying condolences to Mrs. Bennett for her sad bereavement by the loss of a husband, one who at all times served his country faithfully and well.

The loss of our Honorary President and the example of enthusiasm that he has shown for the benefit of the Association since its inception should stimulate us to greater effort in the future.

This past year has been one marked with considerable significance by an effort on the part of the entire Province to form what is known as the Tourist Association of Ontario. During the past three years several district organizations have been formed in the south western part of the Province for the development of tourist traffic, namely the Blue Water Highway Association; the Southern Highway Association, the Algonquin Trail Association, the International Highway Association, and the association of Motor Clubs and Chambers of Commerce from Hamilton to Niagara Falls inaugurating what was known as "Blossom Week."

Your Association being the first organization representing a group of municipalities in Ontario formed the purpose of developing tourist traffic in 1920. I do not think it would be amiss in this fifth annual report to review berifly our activities during the entire period so as to enable us to satisfy ourselves that the Association has developed the tourist traffic considerably to the entire district during the past five years at a comparatively small expense, and that concerted co-operative efforts on the part of the entire Province cannot help but stimu-

FIRST CLASH IN ASSEMBLY WHEN ANTIS DECLARE THAT CHURCH NOT ENTERING UNION

"Only Continuing Presbyterian Church is Going Into United Church.

REPLIES MODERATOR.

Vote on Union Committee Report Laid Over Until Evening.

TORONTO, June 5.—(Canadian Press.)— Presbyterian church unionists and their non-concurring colleagues clashed this morning for the first time during the fifty-first General Assembly. It was on the final report of the Union committee, and on the declaration of principles which the Assembly was asked by the committee to adopt. Rev. Dr. S. Banks-Nelson, of Hamilton, one of the prominent anti-unionists, suggested to the committee the addition of a table "showing the corporate strength of this corporate church, which refuses to enter union."

Rev. Dr. Geo. C. Pidgeon, moderator, who as chairman of the committee had presented the report, replied that such a table was not possible [illegible] this time because all voting had not been done, nor all returns made.

"At any rate," said Dr. Pidgeon, "the only continuing Presbyterian church is the Presbyterian church in Canada going as such into the United Church."

There were great cheers.

"My addenda," replied Dr. Nelson, "is intended to show that is not true, and figures prove it. (Cries of "no.") The mother church is not in this union wagon. This is a statement of dream, not fact.

Dr. Nelson asked that the debate be delayed while the resolutions were printed. Rev. Dr. W. J. Clark, of Montreal, said they contained nothing new and the commissioners called for the vote, declaring they were wasting time.

Rev. W. G. Brown seconded Dr. Nelson's resolution amidst calls for the vote. The sentiment of the Assembly obviously was overwhelmingly for union. Rev. Dr. R. B. Cochrane, then called attention to the fact that the time of a new order of business had arrived and the debate automatically went over to the afternoon. Deputations then were heard from the Baptist, Methodist and Anglican churches.

Resolutions presented to the Assembly and which undoubtedly will be adopted, were called by Dr. Pidgeon.

Picked Pimple On Chin Died Of Septic Poison

KINGSTON, June 5.—(Canadian Press.) — A few days ago, fifteen year old George Hussey, son of George Hussey, of this city, picked a pimple on his chin with his finger and this morning he died at the General Hospital. Septic poisoning set in and this was aggravated by an attack of pneumonia.

FRENCH CABINET STILL ON FEET

Avoids Crisis This Morning When Premier Sidesteps Attack.

CAILLAUX CONCEDES.

PARIS, June 5.—The Cabinet crisis apparently threatened early to-day seemed postponed later when Finance Minister Caillaux partly surrendered to Socialist attacks upon his financial programme. At a conference this morning, called to reconcile differences, M. Caillaux insisted that balancing of the budget came first, while M. Loucheur and the Socialists maintained that financial reforms must precede a budget equilibrium.

Caillaux, however, emphatically rejected the Socialists' demand for capital levy.

After hearing arguments of M. Loucheur, M. Caillaux agreed to attempt to balance the budget and to "rehabilitate" French finances simultaneously.

130 Persons Died In U. S. Through Heat and Storms

CHICAGO, June 5 (Canadian Press) — At least 130 persons have died throughout United States in the last few days due to the heat wave, drownings and storms. Of this number 71 were in territory east of Ohio and 69 were in several states from Ohio to Montana.

MINES FLOODING SINCE STRIKERS CUT OFF POWER

Office Employees Operating Power Station Ejected by 200 Strikers.

TOWN DARKENED

New Waterford Without Light—Hospital Patients Will be Removed.

GLACE BAY, N.S., June 5.—(Canadian Press)—Three office employees of the British Empire Steel Company were injured when officials who had been doing maintenance work at the New Waterford power station were forcibly removed from the station by two hundred striking miners Thursday.

As a result of consequent stoppage of work at the plant the mines in the Glace Bay and New Waterford districts are now flooding and the town of New Waterford lacks light and water.

Only the three principal officials at the plant were allowed to remain. Power was competely shut off at 4 o'clock.

The cutting off of light and water from the town of New Waterford will necessitate the removal of patients at the New Waterford Hospital. They will likely be taken to the Glace Bay or Sydney Hospitals.

The situation now is that Glace Bay and New Waterford mine districts are totally without power and the mines left without maintenance. The power plant at No. 2 has been shut down since active picketing started there a few weeks ago.

WHISKEY TAKEN FROM CANADIAN BOAT IN DETROIT

United States Agents Boarded 'Noronic," Taking Beer and Liquor.

CANADA REGISTRY.

Liquor Order Was Received By Detroit Chamber of Commerce.

DETROIT, June 5. — Canadian Press. — United States Federal agents yesterday afternon confiscated 25 cases of whiskey and 168 cases of beer on the Canadian Steamer Noronic, scheduled to leave at 4 p.m. as she lay at her dock here. No statement was forthcoming about the discovery of the liquor or the possibility of prosecutions.

Captain H. J. Aitken, of the Noronic, declared his belief that the Federal agents were overstepping their authority.

The Noronic is owned by the Northern Navigation Company and is operated under Canadian Registry, he pointed out. He said that the liquor was taken on board last night at Walkerville.

Asked who ordered it, he said: "I don't care to discuss names, but the order was received by the Detroit Board of Commerce.

The Federal officials intimated that the raid was made on instructions received from Washington.

CADET CORPS IS COMMENDED BY CAPTAIN HERON

Peterborough Collegiate Cadets Made a Splendid Showing on Inspection.

ONE OF BEST.

Inspecting Officer Remarked On Excellence of Training and Corps Spirit.

The Peterborough Collegiate Cadet Corps is not yet the best in this military district although it is the Senior High School Corps, but it is well on its way to become the leading corps in Military District Number 3, said Captain Heron, District Cadet Inspector, after he had inspected the corps this morning. A complete issue of uniforms, with a number of rifles suitable to the smaller boys is the greatest need of the corps, said Captain Heron, and when there is a little more steadiness in the ranks of the younger boys it will be one of the best corps in Canada.

The Company, commanded by Alden Bookhout, Company Commander, showed a fine esprit de corps, and the boys were well drilled, and a credit to their school and officers. Perfect step and alignment were shown in the march past and the platoon drills under the various commanders were excellent. The officers showed a knowledge of the drill and manual of arms that bespoke excellent training from Captain C. E. Jamieson, the cadet instructor.

A splendid bugle band furnished stirring music for the boys, both in the route march, and in the general salute. A message "Situation reports AAA 19th; Bn. reports heavy casualties," was handed to the Signal Corps which relayed it across the park by Morse flag in good time.

After the inspection a short route march was taken along Murray St. to George, down George to Simcoe, and around the block, and up George street again from Hunter street to the park.

Half Holiday.

After Capt. Heron had addressed the cadets, he asked J. A. McKone, chairman of the Board of Education, to declare a half holiday in recognition of the good work of the corps. Mr. McKone made a stirring address very pleasing to the cadets, in which he congratulated them and declared the afternoon a holiday. H. R. H. Keener also said a few words to the boys, after which cheers were given for the King and Catain Heron.

The officers of Cadet Battalion No 13, Peterborough Collegiate Institute, are, Company Commander, Alden Bookhout, second in command, Harry Ebbs, Platoon Commanders: Killaly, Neal, Cox and Outram; Company Sergeant-Major Crawford; Signal Officer, Allen, and Bugle Band Lord.

With Captain Heron at the saluting base, were Mr. Keener, Mrs. Morris and Messrs. E. T. Fowler and J. A. McKone of the Board of Education, Major Hall of the Peterboro Rangers, and Mrs. Hall, and District Instructor Sergeant-major Thomas.

REMOTE TOWNSHIP IN VICTORIA COUNTY AUCTIONED TO TORONTO LAWYER FOR $2,000 UNPAID TAXES

Longford Township Comprises 38,373 and Assessed Value Was $20,000.

NO POPULATION

Mineral Rights Restricted to Original Owners—Score of Lakes.

LINDSAY, June 5.—(Special).—At the session of the county council of Victoria Thursday the interesting announcement was made that the township of Longford had been sold for taxes. Longford is situated at the eextreme northern boundary of the county, and comprises 38,373 acres of land. It was sold by auction at Hendersons' auction rooms, Toronto, some days ago for unpaid taxes of $2,000. The assessed value of the land, as given in the municipal statistics for 1923, was $20,000. There was only one name on the roll, no popuation and no buildings, and consequently no assessment or taxable incomes.

The new owner, who is a Toronto lawyer, secures this vast acreage of land with certain restrictions. The roads and road allowances are not included in the sale, and must remain open. Title to the navigable waters was also withheld. There was also a clause to the effect that the rights to all mines and minerals and the right to mine were retained by the original owners.

This muincipality is wholly within the granite area, and is dotted with more than a score of nameless lakes which are all drained to the northwest.

It was first bought in 1865 by the Canada Land and Emigration Company and ater sold by that corporation to John Thompson of Longford Mills, north of Orillia. Thompson stripped the township of all timber.

PETERBOROUGH MAN COLLAPSED IN HEAT

A. C. Cherney Was Affected in Toronto—Revived in Hospital.

TORONTO, June 5 (Canadian Press)—A. C. Cherney of Peterboro collapsed on the City Hall steps yesterday afternoon because of the heat. He was removed to the General Hospital where he soon revived.

No other heat cases were reported to the hospitals yesterday.

BOY DROWNED.

Body Had Not Been Recovered From River Moira To-day.

BELLEVILLE, June 5 (Canadian Press) — Vivian Martin, a boy of twelve, was drowned near Latta, 15 miles north of this city, last evening, and early today his body had not been recovered from Moira river.

GIRL DIED IN FIRE.

Explosion Destroyed Quebec Rooming House.

QUEBEC, June 5 (Canadian Press).—At least one girl, Miss Begelow, lost her life Thursday afternoon when fire razed a rooming house on St. Louis Street. The fire was caused by an explosion and the firemen were handicapped in their task of fighting the flames by lack of water, the forty-inch main being broken.

NEW B. C. COMPANIES.

Total Capitalization of Ten Millions in Enterprises.

VICTORIA, B.C., June 5. (Canadian Press).—New British Columbia companies with capital totalling over $10,000,000 were granted incorporation yesterday. The largest among the enterprises is the Hat Creek Coal Company, Limited, which is to be a $5,000,000 company to develop the new coal fields along the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, with head office in Vancouver.

Graduation Exercises

The Graduation Exercises of the Nicholls Hospital Training School for Nurses will take place on Monday evening next in the George Street Church at 8 o'clock. Rev. W. Harold Young will give an address, Dr. Yelland will address the graduates, Mr. E. A. Peck will preside and present the diplomas. The musical programme is in charge of Mr. J. H. Renwick. All are invited; no admission charge.

WEATHER

Highest temperature yesterday in the shade, 84 degrees. Lowest point last night, 65 degrees. Rainfall last night, .04 of an inch. Last night's rainfall was light, but there have been many occasions in the past when it would have been received with many expressions of gratitude. What we have in abundance we fail to appreciate. Copious showers have fallen every night for almost a week. There are sections of this earth where rain seldom falls. One of these places is the western coast of South America. The rainfall along this coast is exceedingly scant in most sections. At one place this year rain has fallen in torrents where it had not been seen before for 160 years. Here we have showers in abundance when needed.—W. P.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

If theres one' thing more than another that should be avoid in warm weather, it is argument. But who in Peterborough can help being drawn into controversy over Sunday bathing and music No Argument Here. And it isn't really an argument at all, for apparently there are 21,718 citizens against the prohibitory law and only 8 members of the City Council in favor of it. So it is one-sided to say the least.

The Examiner expected on Tuesday when it started to interview people on the question that there would be at least a few who would support the Council's action. But there is nary a one. People stopped on the street, called by phone, interviewed in their homes and in their stores, all gave the same answer. They are absolutely opposed without equivocation to the banning of Sunday bathing, and Sunday band concerts. And not one letter has been written to The Examiner supporting the Council.

If there ever was anything that the people of Peterborough were unanimous about—it is in condemnation of the legislation put through at Monday night's meeting of the City Council.

The thermometer on the back page of last night's Examiner looked as though it had burst under the heat wave. It didn't, but somebody decided the little dot that marked the height of mercury was not conspicuous enough, and he tried to fix it. The result wasn't a success.

The old wise crack that "It's not the heat; it's th' humidity," was pulled off yesterday for the first time this season officially. There's more truth than poetry in it at that, but if it's true, why is it that hotels report an increase in the consumption of 4.4 since the hot days arrived? Why not get some of the juice baked out instead of increasing the body humidity by drinking—even 4.4?

With weather prophets at every turn there seems little need for one more, but our guess is that one man's guess on the weather proposition is as good as another's. Except, of course, the PREDICTIONS made by the weather man's official representatives at the Observatory, which the Examiner prints every day on the front page. They are official, and anything official is right.

But to get back to our personal ideas of what the weather has in store, we forecast more rain and sun before there's snow, and as long as the rain comes at night we don't mind. We don't have to get out the hose to spray the budding grass and springing flowers.

Last night's was a little early, being directly responsible for holding up The Examiner team's game with the Bankers, and allowing the Bankers to run up such a score that they threaten to bring along one of their adding machines next time to keep track of the runs.

The weatherman is doing fine, so let him alone.

Signs of Summer: "This vest has a button too many at the top, an' a buttonhole too many at th' bottom."

The straw hat season is here in all its glory of new styles—the men's straw-hat season, that is, for the women have been wearing their new straws since January or Straw Hats the middle of February. And it will not be long now until they will have begun to wear their fall and winter hats. Last Saturday two hardy men were seen self-consciously parading in Summer headgear; by Sunday there were scores, and to-day the man without a straw is conspicuous.

The old school adage that a pupil cannot understand present day economics or politics, unless he has studied the beginnings, it seems to us, should hold true in so important a matter as this personal adornment that has such a hold upon the Sheiks of to-day. Straw hats have not been taken seriously enough in the past. Let's go back to the beginning.

Straw hats were first worn by the Romans. Now look at the picture you have for the first episode. Men in skirts that reach two inches above their knees, with table cloths slipped nonchalantly over a shoulder, parading the sunny side of the street with narrow-brim, high crown straws perched rakishly on their heads.

That was the beginning but it was not until many centuries later history records, that straw hats became really popular. It was in the sixteenth century that Mary Queen of Scots became interested in the wearing of straw hats, and she popularized the fad. She employed a number of straw plaiters and took them to Scotland to train her people in the art.

Tuscany furnishes the finest straws and plaids. In Tuscany the delicate Leghorn is woven into its finest texture. It is here that some of the braids are so fine that the hat-makers find it impossible to work upon it more than two or three hours at a time on account of the strain on their eyes.

Then the hats come over here to strain our eyes.

CONFIDENCE MAN WAS CAUGHT IN CAMPBELLFORD

"Dr. H. W. Count" Was Seeking a Manager for a Chain Store.

COMPANY UNKNOWN

CAMPBELLFORD, June 5. — "Dr. H. W. Count," a sleek and prosperous looking American, of about middle age, is cooling his heels in the Cobourg jail, a wealthy Seymour farmer has been rescued from the web of an alleged confidence man, these two conditions having been brought about by the police instincts of Chief Brown, who from a slender clue developed a case that is likely to prove of Dominion-wide interest.

Story Starts at Peterboro.

The story opens in Peterboro, that pious city, where Sunday bathing is rated as a misdemeanor—or is it a crime?—and where some of the aldermen are in favor of arming the dog-catcher with the accoutrements of modern warfare.

An advertisement called for applications for the position of manager of a branch store, which it was alleged, the British Columbia Chain Stores, Ltd., proposed to open in Peterboro. Replies were to be sent to Box 43. A number of applications were received and at this stage "Dr. Count" steps into the picture. He took the matter up with a Seymour farmer and his proposition was this: The farmer was to be engaged as manager of the new store at a salary of $50 a week and a commission of 5 per cent. on the net profits. The contract stated that the manager would be required to deposit every night in a local bank the amount of the gross sales during the day to the credit of the head office in Vancouver, B.C.

Naturally the farmer hesitated over paying that amount of money to a stranger, and he counsulted his banker in Campbellford. The latter searched the records of the commercial agencies but failed to find the name of the company which "Dr. Count" alleged he represented. This brought the negotiations to a sudden standstill.

Suspicions Aroused.

The fact that "Count" was willing to engage as manager of a store an inexperienced farmer, aroused the suspicions of the banker, and of Chief Brown, to whom the case was reported. The officer went to the hotel at which "Count" was stopping and invited him to the police station where he was questioned closely.

"Count" at first stuck to the claim that his business was on the level. Chief Brown, after a telephone conversation with Crown Attorney Kerr at Cobourg, who authorized the expense, sent a telegram of inquiry to the chief of police at Vancouver. The answer came back that neither the Chain Stores Company or "Count" was known in that city.

In the meantime, it is alleged, the "doctor," who said he earned that title by graduating in dentistry, admitted to the Chief that he was engaged in a fake scheme. A warrant was issued on a charge of attempted fraud, and without asking the prisoner to plead Magistrat Payne remanded him until Monday. Late on Tuesday evening "Dr. Count" was taken to Cobourg jail by Chief Brown.

Before returning home Chief Brown ascertained that the "Doctor" had operated in Port Hope, where he had engaged a woman as manager, and from whom he was to receive $600. The contract was drawn up and "Count" was to receive his money on Tuesday afternoon, promising to call at Port Hope for the purpose. Fortunately for the Port Hope lady, who had the money ready for the oily American, Chief Brown prevented him from keeping his engagement. At the hour of his appointment in Port Hope the "Count" was in the Chief's office here trying to explain matters.

From papers found on the prisoner it is believed that he carried on the same line of endeavor in Montreal, Kingston, Brockville and Belleville. He had in his possession a number of telegrams signed "M. J. McDonald," praising his work and commending his judgment in the matter of selecting managers; all of whom, [illegible] satisfactory. This "McDonald," whom the authorities regard as a confederate, was represented by "Count" as the big man in the company and the telegrams were shown to prospective clients as proof that the operations were genuine. One of thees "McDonald" telegrams was sent from Belleville to "Count" while he was a guest of the Empress Hotel, Peterboro, and praised him highly for the work that he had done in the former city.

Chief Brown has received a telegram from Provincial Constable Cousans of Cobourg, giving a description of "McDonald," who has been travelling in a Sedan car with a New York license.

CAMPBELLFORD PERSONALS

CAMPBELLFORD, June 5.—Mrs. A. W. Free, who has been visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. G. McCarthy, returned to town on Tuesday and is now at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. O. Richardson.

Mrs. M. Buck of Kingston was in town this week on business and while here was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Johnston, Ranney street.

Mrs. Leslie Brooks of Toronto is visiting friends in town.

Friends of Miss Mabel Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell, Havelock Road, will be pleased to learn that she is making very satisfactory progress after an operation in Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday. Miss Mitchell has been attending business college in Belleville, and when word of her illness was received here, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell left immediately to be with their daughter.

Rev. J. E. Glover of Cambray, formerly of Campbellford, called on friends here on Tuesday while en route to attend conference in Belleville.

Mesdames W. H. Ashton, George Hammond, W. J. Stillman and Miss Stella Keir left on Tuesday for Oshawa to attend the Methodist Women's Missionary Convention being held there this week. Mrs. Stillman is a delegate from the local W.M.S. Auxiliary and Miss Keir, delegate from the Young Ladies Mission Circle.

J. Light, the new assistant policeman arrived on Saturday with his family from Dorland, Ont. and have taken up residence on Queen street, in the brick house owned by James Moir.

Mr. and Mrs. James Casement left town yesterday for Round Lake where they will reside.

Mrs. Thomas Craighead is visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert Petherick, at Petherick's Corners.

Miss Essa Dafoe, B.A., and Miss Grace Payne intend taking a trip to Europe during the holiday.

Friends of little Billy Richardson will be pleased to know that his condition is slightly improved.

Dr. E. F. Richardson visited his little nephew in Toronto for a couple of days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Milligan and family and Mr. and Mrs. George Ivey left on Tuesday for Stirling, where they will reside. Mr. Milligan and Mr. Ivey have purchased Mr. Cranston's mill there.

G. B. Stevenson of Hastings was in town on Wednesday.

Artists at Alderville.

On Tuesday evening a large number of the leading musical artists of Campbellford, motored to Alderville (near Roseneath) where they staged a concert which was a grand success, in aid of the Alderville War Memorial Fund.

The concert which was held in the Methodist Church was largely attended, the pastor of the church presiding. Major Belford, M.P.P. was present and gave an appropriate address, in his usual fluent manner. The speaker spoke very highly of the service rendered the Empire by the people of Alderville.

A. H. McKeel of Campbellford, who also made a very fitting address and who has at heart the commemoration of the memory of all those who fell in the Great War, was the promoter of this concert.

The following is the programme rendered, every member being heartily received and encored.

Piano solo—George Lucy; Male quartette—Messrs. Walter Lowe, George Lucy, J. H Bell and Walter Henson; Vocal Solo—Miss Helen Wood; Monologue—Mrs. J. H. Bell; Vocal Solo—George Lucy; Vocal Solo—Walter Henson; Cornet Solo—Walter Lowe; Vocal Solo—Miss Nellie Hoover; Duet—Messrs. George Lucy and Walter Henson; Reading—Mrs. J. H. Bell; Solo—Miss Emma Meikledohn; Solo—Walter Henson; Solo—Mrs. Ed. Bates; Reading—Mrs. J. H. Bell; Male quartette—Messrs. Lucy, Lowe, Bell and Henson; Miss Helen Wood made a charming accompanist for the evening.

After the programme, those taking part were royally entertained to a sumptuous supper by the Alderville ladies.

Missionary Society Meets.

The regular meeting of the Women's Missionary of the Methodist Church and the Unionist McIntosh Auxiliary was held in the school room of the Methodist church on Tuesday afternoon.

After each had disposed of the usual business, a joint meeting was held at which Mrs. (Dr.) A. Haig, who was a delegate to the Provincial W.M.S. Convention held recently in London, gave an excellent report which was much enjoyed. It was decided to hold a prayer meeting on the afternoon of June 9th, from 3 to 3.30.

CHANGES MADE ON C.N.R. TRAINS

Men Have Been Shifted From One Line to Another.

AGENT MOVED

CAMPBELLFORD, June 5—George Bowhey, formerly of the Haliburton branch of the C. N. R. where he worked for over 15 years, has been appointed on the local line as passenger conductor to succeed the late conductor, John Way, who died recently.

William Crozier, formerly on the Campbellford branch, and later of the Blackwater and Midland division, has been appointed conductor on the C. N. R. flier which leaves Peterboro' for Toronto at 7.10, in succession to Mr. McCarthy, superannuated after 50 years service.

Goes to Peterboro'.

A. J. Wood, local representative of the Metropolitan Insurance Company for over a year, has been promoted to the position of assistant manager at Peterboro', and has left for that city to take up his new duties. His family will remain here for some time. Mr. Woods place in Campbellford will be taken by Charles Calver, late of the Standard Bank staff.

Mr. Wood's departure is regretted as he is well known here, having been on the staff of the Trent Canal for several years before going into the insurance business. He was a member of the Northumberland Regiment band, and one of the best amateur actors in town. He was elected manager of the league baseball team at the beginning of the season, but the change in his plans makes it necessary for him to give up that position.

Softball Schedule.

The following is the schedule for the softball games next week:

Monday—Mill "A" vs. Mill "B."

Tuesday—Hydro vs. Clerks.

Thursday—W. and L. Commission vs. Oddfellows.

Friday—Outlaws vs. Masons.

All games will be played at the fair grounds, and will be called at six p.m. sharp.

Conservative Delegates.

The following is a list of the town delegates who will attend the Conservative convention to be held at Warkworth at 1.30 Friday afternoon, the first [illegible] Crow officiating.

Ward 1—J. A. Irwin, A. L. Reindeau, J. A. Linton, T. S. Baker.

Alternates—R. J. Bullen and A. A. Linton.

Ward 2—Charles H. Davidson, W. J. Armstrong, G. A. Kingston, T. J. Horkins.

Alternates—R. J. Allan and J. C. Birmingham.

Ward 3—W. J. Abernethy, Nelson Lloyd, Ernest Wilson, J. A. Jeffs.

Alternates—D. A. Owen and J. C. Anderson.

Ward 4—J. A. Smith, Robert Lowery, S. A. Maguire, Dr. S. West.

Alternates—R. J. Bonney and Allan G. Watson.

Robert Lowery, who is vice-president of the Conservative organization for Campbellford, did not have the complete list last night of the township delegates, although it is understood that these have been elected in each of the polling subdivisions. Mr. Lowery says that the Campbellford and Seymour delegates will vote as one man in the convention for the renomination of Mr. E. Maybee, M.P., the present member.

Tuesday was a holiday in Campbellford, and the town was practically deserted all day, the majority of the residents attending the celebration either at Belleville or Havelock.

NEW COLOR MOVIES

ANTWERP, Belgium, June 5.—A Belgian inventor named Dony claims to have solved the problem of color motion pictures through the use of a new bi-chromatic movable screen. The screen "brings out" colors, he says.

NORWOOD PERSONALS

NORWOOD, June 5.—Rev. J. P. McLennan, pastor of the Baptist Church, Norwood, left on Monday morning for Walkerton to see his father, who is ill. Mrs. McLennan and Master Albert accompanied him.

Mrs. (Rev.) Verner McNeely, of Scugog, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McNeely during Rev. McNeely's attendance at conference.

Gerald Gardner is receiving gui tmo gratulations on his success in p his third year examinations at the Dental College, Toronto.

Miss Charlotte Beamish, nurse-in-training in the Smith's Falls Hospital, is spending her vacation in the village with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beamish.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hess, of Hastings, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elsworth Hogg.

Miss Nellie Satchel, of Toronto, is visiting at the home of Mrs. J. B. Pearce.

Miss Ida Weir returned home to Madoc on Monday after spending the past few weeks with her sister, Mrs. [illegible] Sutton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Weir, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stan. Weir, and Mr. Armar Weir, were guests of friends in Peterboro' and Keene on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Drope, of Roseneath, were guests of Norwood friends recently.

Ronald Garlick left on Wednesday morning for Cleveland, where he purposes remaining for an indefinite time.

Mr. Duncan, of Ottawa, was in the village and district the first of the week calling on some of the home boys.

OBITUARY.

RICHARD SHEEHY.

The death occurred last night of Richard Sheehy, well-known contractor of Peterborough. Funeral announcements will be made later.

ROBERT C. BIDGOOD

Robert C. Bidgood, late of 199 Beatrice St., Toronto, died at the residence of his brother, George, in North Monaghan on June 4. He leaves to mourn his loss four brothers: John of Ohio, Charles of Toronto, George of N. Monaghan, Thomas of Bradford, Pa., and one sister, Mrs. Wm. Patterson of Toronto. The funeral will take place on Saturday, June 6th, at 1.30 from the residence of his brother, to the [illegible] Crow officiating.

MRS. WILLIAM LINN

Bessie Hay, wife of William Linn, died Thursday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hay, Seymour East, after a long illness. The date of the funeral has not yet been announced.

The deceased who is survived by her husband, was about 40 years of age. The couple sold their farm in Seymour some years ago and lived retired on Front Street ever since. The late Mrs. Linn was ill in town all last winter and some time ago was moved to the home of her parents in the vain hope that she would be benefitted by the change.

Masons—Bonnycastle, p; Birmingham, c; Weston 1b; Wiggins, ss; Richardson, 2b; Easton, 3b; Tdigg, rf; Douglas, cf; Cumming, lf; Denyes, ss.

DIVORCE BILL AMENDMENT

from the Christian Guardian and the Presbyterian Witness. If divorce was unchristian, it was also immoral he said. It was violation of natural law which required that there should be enduring union for the welfare of children. Divorce led to legalized race suicide.

Wm. Irvine (Labor, East Calgary) asked if Mr. Vien would invoke Divine authority for all other legislation, for instance, for the vote to the Quebec harbor of five million dollars. Mr. Vien retorted that it was ridiculous to make such a comparison.

The Claim of Women.

A. R. McMaster (Liberal, Brome) could not understand where Mr. Vien got Biblical support for his arguments unless it was in that utterance of St. Paul, "He who does not look after his own is worse than an infidel." Mr. McMaster said that it shocked his sense of Christian justice to hear a man oppose a measure which sought only to give equality of rights to women as well as men. He wondered if Mr. Vien really suggested that the women of Alberta should be subject to divorce because of infidelity and then when the women applied for freedom from their husbands on the same ground that the law should say to them, "You can't get freedom unless he has treated you rough and banged you about in addition." He declined to believe that the Minister of Justice would mete out such justice as that.

Mr. McMaster said that if divorce was immoral, the fathers of Confederation were immoral, because they took on themselves the right to legislate for divorce. As for the Vien amendment, it struck no distinction between the guilty and innocent parties in an unhappy marriage. A woman whose husband had so misbehaved that divorce was inevitable would be condemned to struggle along for the rest of her life, the victim of another's sin.

Mr. McMaster did not think that Canada should be out of line with practically every nation in the world. In most countries divorce courts existed, and were in existence in certain provinces in Canada. The bill before the House merely asked for "even handed justice" as between man and woman.

"Curse in United States."

Hon. Charles Marcil (Liberal, Bonaventure) voiced his protest against divorce. It was a curse to every country, and a curse to the United States at the present time. Mr. Marcil read an article written some time ago in Hearst's magazine by Chief Justice Taft of the United States, in which in referring to the number of divorces in the States, he had stated that the increase was a "reflection upon the laws of the country." The divorce situation in the United States was a "warning to Canada."

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg Centre) stated he was surprised to hear Mr. Vien base arguments against divorce upon a literal interpretation of the Sermon on the Mount and Christian teaching. Mr. Vien had offered a number of Biblical quotations, but, stated Mr. Woodsworth, he would like to know what Mr. Vien's idea would be in respect to a literal interpretation of such passages as "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth." A number of similar quotations were read by Mr. Woodsworth from the Bible.

L. H. Martel (Liberal, Hants) interjected that it was against the rules of the House to carry on a theological discussion. He objected to a member "holding a Bible in his hands, endeavoring to show us our sins and iniquities."

"Open and Above Board."

Mr. Woodsworth asked if our whole system of national defence and our courts were in accordance with the literal translation of the Sermon on the Mount. He favored divorce and preferred to have conditions "open and above board," rather than to have "all sorts of clandestine arrangements."

All that was asked for in the bill was that women in the West should be placed in the same position as women in the East. This should not be denied. How could anyone in the East deny that right to the West? The bill also asked that women in the West should have the same rights as men in the West. This was only justice.

Sir Henry Drayton said that it was his intention later to move a resolution which would, in case of a divorce, make it impossible for the guilty to remarry, while the innocent could have that privilege.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, opposed divorce on principle, and could not find any compromise acceptable. The women of the West had the same rights as the women of the East, in matters of divorce, before the Parliament of Canada.

"At much greater expense," interjected Mr. McMaster.

"Let's have a Crow's Nest rate for divorces," said C. G. Power (Liberal, Quebec South).

Divorce a Tragedy.

The increase of divorce, Mr. Lapointe continued, was a tragedy. The Minister favored the amendment moved by Mr. Vien, because the right to remarry, if taken away, would be one effective remedy of the divorce problem. He would also support Sir Henry Drayton's proposal.

Miss MacPhail (Progressive, South-East Grey) spoke briefly, saying no one desired the preservation of the home, but it was a matter which lay almost entirely with men. She would support the bill but oppose the amendment. When society had a single standard for men and women, the homes would be worthy of preservation.

T. W. Bird (Progressive, Nelson) doubted if it was possible to legislate sanctity into the home.

Mr. Shaw remarked that it had been stated that women could come to Parliament for divorce on an equal footing with men; but it should be remembered that women, in such cases, were usually without funds to go to the greater expense of securing a divorce by Parliament. He submitted that the amendment was an entirely new proposal, and not related to the question of equality as covered by the bill.

A. M. Carmichael (Progressive, Kindersley) said he was opposed to divorce, and would support the amendment.

Amendment Defeated.

On division the Vien amendment was defeated 73 to 60. The House divided with no reference to party affiliation, three Conservatives and eight Progressives voting for the amendment. Neither the Prime Ministed nor the leader of the Opposition were in the House when the division was taken. The Progressive leader, Robert Forke, voted against the amendment. When a vote on the main motion was called for Sir Henry Drayton moved another amendment, which would provide that when divorce was granted, the guilty party would not be given the right to remarry during the lifetime of the other spouse under pain of action for bigamy.

Horatio Hocken (Conservative, West Toronto) said that while he was not in favor of dicorce, he objected to the measure proposed in this amendment. It would mean a great increase in illegitimate children in Canada.

Mr. Hocken said that Mr. Vien, by endeavoring to amend the Divorce Bill, had indicated his approval of the principle of divorce.

Mr. Vien interrurpted to say that he had been endeavoring to make divorce legal separation.

Mr. Hocken said marriage was primarily a civil contract, and in the matter, clergymen were agents of the State. All Parliament was concerned with was the civil consequences. The Drayton amendment, he said, was only half as bad as the amendment moved by Mr. Vien.

WEDDING BELLS.

FINNIE—McCONNACHIE

BAILIEBORO, June 5 — The Presbyterian Church at Centreville was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday when Annie Hamilton, elder daughter of the Rev. A. H. and Mrs. McConnachie, became the bride of Walter Laurence Finnie, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Finnie of South Monaghan.

At one o'clock the bridal party entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohns' Wedding March, which was beautifully rendered by Miss Kathleen Isbister.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very charming in a wedding gown of white canton crepe, with bridal veil daintily trimmed with orange blossoms and bouquet of ophelia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Connie McConachie, sister of the bride, looked very pretty in an ashes of roses lovatt crepe gown with fawn georgette hat. She also carried ophelia roses. Mr. Gladstone Finnie supported the bridegroom.

The Rev. A. H. McConnachie, assisted by the Rev. M. C. McKinnon, B.D., of Knox Church, Peterboro, conducted the ceremony. During the signing of the register, Miss Kathleen Isbister played very beautifully "O Perfect Love." The ushers were, Mr. Ronald Deyell, Mr. Fred Barnard, Mr. Ronald Hutchison, Mr. [illegible] Reginald.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowering plants forming a bank below the pulpit, the arch being formed of white lilacs. The whole scheme of decoration was tastefully done and greatly admired. The church itself was crowded.

The bride and groom received the guests at the manse, the veranda gay with flowers and streamers for the occasion.

A dainty four-course luncheon was served by T. H. Hooper's, Peterborough.

Mr. McKinnon proposed a toast to the bride to which the groom made a very neat reply.

The happy couple left in the afternoon for Toronto, Niagara Falls and other points, the bride travelling in a rust-coloured satin-faced canton dress and coat of rust shade velvedyne with shoes and stockings to match and hat of fawn georgette. Mr. and Mrs. Finnie upon their return from their honeymoon will reside in South Monaghan.

Among congratuations received by the bride and groom was a cablegram from friends in Ayr, Scotland the former home of the bride.

WESTERN MANUFACTURER TELLS OF OPTIMISM FOR FUTURE BASED ON PRODUCTION AND RESOURCES

Reports of Conditions in the East and West at Thursday's Sessions.

VOICE OF QUEBEC.

F. W. Stewart Says Term "French-Canadian" Is Resented in Province.

HAMILTON, June 5.—Speakers Thursday at the Canadian Manufacturers' Association Convention luncheon were Col. Hercule Barre, Canadian trade commissioner to France; W. J. Egan, deputy minister of immigration; F. W. Stewart, former chairman Quebec division C.M.A.; and A. F. Andrews, of Medicine Hat, chairman of the Alberta branch of the Manufacturers' Association.

Colonel Hatch occupied the chair.

"Before the war," Col. Barre said, "France fulfilled 80 per cent. of her needs, but now conditions have changed." He said that exporters must study the customs of the countries with which they wish to do business. "the Germans have done this," he said.

France is a really good market for our products, but the depreciation of exchange presents difficulties. Many Canadian exporters have overcome the French tariff barriers by sending their goods semi-finished. The trade commissioner stated emphatically that to be successful goods must be of high quality and reasonable in price. Quantities should be kept on hand in France so that agents can make quick deliveries.

France, Col. Barre added, is grateful to Canada for her part in the war, and is anxious to trade when prices are nearly equal.

At New Zealand "Ex."

W. J. Egan, former trade commissioner to South Africa and now deputy minister of immigration, spoke on the forthcoming exhibition at Dunedin, New Zealand. He asked the manufacturers present to take a part in this exhibition, and promised on the part of the Government that his department would have a "National Court in the Canadian Building," and would advertise Canada at the New Zealand exhibition as well as it had done at Wembley.

Mr. Egan pointed out that Canadian participation in the Christ-Church, N.Z., exhibition in 1907, had resulted in a New Zealand Canadian trade pact in 1908, which had increased Canadian exports to the sister dominion.

"Such exhibitions," said Mr. Egan "do much to show the advantage of Empire understanding," and he asked his audience to take space in the Canadian Building.

Emigration Losses.

Emigration of young Canadians to the United States is one of the greatest problems Quebec has to face," said F. W. Stewart, after commencing his address by congratulating his fellow provincial, J. H. Fortier, upon his election to the office of president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Stewart deplored use of the term, French - Canadian. "Our French-speaking people," said he, "are just as loyal, and just as good Canadians as any in the Dominion, so why should they be spoken of as French-Canadians any more than we call ourselves English-Canadians?"

Speaking of the produced-in-Canada movement, Mr. Stewart pointed out that in Quebec a plan had been mapped out that would take several years to accomplish. Manufacturers, retailers, wholesalers, clubs, boards of trade, school boards and women's organizations are all taking part.

They feel that the first thing to do is to increase the production of farm products. In the coming fall term, school children in Quebec will compete in an essay contest. Prizes are to be given by the committee of which Mr. Stewart is the head for the best essays on the subject. Special committees have been appointed, he stated, to investigate complaints of inferior workmanship, and every effort will be made to perfect the products of Canadian factories.

Optimism in West.

The last speaker, A. F. Andrews, of Medicine Hat, made some interesting comments on the west. He congratulated the C. M. A. on the work done in the Prairie Provinces by Messrs. Carpenter, secretary, and Ashenhurst, assistant secretary of the western division. "As a result," he said, "the feeling that once existed that the Association was run for the benefit of Ontario manufacturers is fast disappearing."

He called the west a land of optimism. Much of the trouble of the early days, said the speaker, was the result of the Government's failure to be guided by the Pallister report and the too easy extension of credit. That there is bound to be a return of prosperity was his conviction and he foresaw a great industrial future for the west, pointing out that the Winnipeg river is capable of producing 400,000 h.p. of electrical energy, that the Nelson can develop 600,000 horse power and that the gas deposits farther west could also be utilized.

Alberta has 87 per cent. of Canada's coal deposits and the speaker stated he would be glad to tell the west that Ontario is interested in western coal.

Alberta produced last year 22,000,000 lbs. of butter and 26,513,000 dozen eggs.

Mr. Anderson closed his remarks by thanking the convention on behalf of the west for his welcome as the western delegate.

FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1925.

A TRIUMPHAL SUCCESS.

The Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition, the most successful community event in Peterboro's history, is rapidly drawing to a triumphal close.

The people of Peterboro can make the financial success of the event as great as has been its educational and advertising success by taking advantage of the opportunity to visit the Armouries tonight or tomorrow.

It should be remembered that the admission fees do not constitute the entire revenue; much depends upon the patronage given the various attractions inside and the business done by the refreshment booths and other similar enterprises, the proceeds from all of which go to swell the funds of the Peterboro Health Association.

Another big attendance tonight will ensure a new mark being reached in the history of such efforts in Peterboro, and the result will be that the Health Association will be able to maintain all its splendid activities and possibly to enlarge its work.

And if you have any doubt about receiving value for your money, the Examiner suggests that next month when the Jackson Park Camp for children of sub-normal health is in full swing a visit for an hour to that beautiful spot will make you sorry that you did not contribute twice as much.

THE TENTH ANNIVERSARY.

The tenth anniversary of the organization of the 93rd Peterboro Battalion, C. E. F., will occur this summer, and the inquiry has been made as to whether or not the anniversary is to be celebrated, doubtless inspired by the fact that arrangements are being made to observe the tenth anniversary of the founding of several other county battalions.

A re-union of former members of the 93rd Battalion this summer would undoubtedly prove an event of great interest, not only to the members themselves, but to the public generally.

Recruited in Peterboro and district and with a large part of its training done in Peterboro, the 93rd naturally occupied a large share of public attention during the war.

It won the reputation of being one of the best drilled and best behaved units recruited under the county battalion plan, and when it became necessary to break up the battalion and send it to France in drafts to reinforce battalions at the front, the members gave a good account of themselves at all times.

The 93rd's history should be commemorated, and in this connection the idea of a re-union to mark the tenth anniversary has an appeal that may lead to steps being taken to bring the surviving members together in Peterboro in August.

SHOULD BE RE-CONSIDERED.

The Examiner has no desire to spend all summer hammering home the fact that the ban on Sunday bathing is deeply resented by all classes in the community.

Interviews with many citizens, conversations overheard on the street, the letters in the "Voice of the People" column, all are along one line—condemnation of the action of the Council in closing the city's swimming beaches on Sunday.

That being so, it becomes the duty of the Aldermen to rectify the mistake that has been made, and the Examiner urges the city fathers to re-consider the question as soon as possible.

The Aldermen should not forget that they are expected to carry out the views of the people when such views are clearly indicated as they are in this case.

Sometimes there is noticed a tendency on the part of some of the Aldermen to allow their own wishes to govern their vote.

Some of them, in fact, declared that they voted against daylight saving because they didn't like it themselves.

But a Council is elected to administer the affairs of the city as far as possible in accordance with the wishes of the citizens—not to allow their own prejudices or sentiments to outweigh the pressure of public opinion.

There is not the shadow of a doubt as to what is the sentiment of the people in regard to Sunday bathing—the only dissenters seem to be the half-dozen Aldermen who voted to make it impossible.

ANOTHER BUBBLE GONE.

After July 5 none of the old German paper money will be accepted by the Reichbank in exchange for the official "reichsmark," says the London Advertiser. People who are on the spot in Germany are using vans to get the old paper money in to trade for the new, and after making their deposit they find themselves in possession of only a very small amount of new currency.

People abroad who bought up German paper money in the mad hope that it would turn out to be a veritable gold mine are not even in as favorable a position as those who are trucking the stuff to the German bank today and exchanging it for real money of a mere fraction of its supposed worth.

The idea was so palpably impossible in the first place that the wonder is that any person ever considered putting out good money for German paper currency. Buying a million marks for a dollar or so and then expecting Germany or any other nation to become prosperous to the point where they would be worth face value was a hope that simply could not be realized outside of comic opera.

There was not a reputable banker or broker in the country who advised the purchase of German paper money; they did what they could to warn people against it; newspapers issued the same advice, and yet all over the country there were people buying German money. Several instances were recorded of peddlers doing business on street corners or marketplaces.

It is another illustration of the old truth that there is no short-cut to wealth. The price of possession is hard work and thrift, and there are no substitutes.

THE PRICE OF "GAS."

The Ontario Government has empowered Mr. G. T. Clarkson to investigate the price of gasoline and to study the whole field in order to discover, if possible, whether or not the public is receiving a square deal in the purchase of this much-in-demand commodity.

The investigator's task will not be easy; he will find powerful interests allied against him, and it is not wise to be too sanguine as to possible benefits to the public as a result of his inquiry.

Undoubtedly, the wide difference in the price of gasoline at different points has caused the consumers to do considerable thinking, and several communities, Toronto in particular, have been pressing for an investigation.

Meanwhile, the average driver should ask himself if he cannot do a lot in his own account to cut down his "gas" bill.

No product is more generally wasted than gasoline; it is thrown away in a dozen and one ways that will suggest themselves to any car-owner if he will take the trouble to think about the question.

People complain about the price of gasoline, and at the same time they are needlessly wasting a large quantity every week.

A little attention to "gas" conservation by everybody will mean a substantial reduction in the amount paid out by motorists.

ORGANIZATION AND QUALITY.

"Organization is the keynote of success—organization in producing areas, linked up with a central marketing bureau in the United Kingdom," says Mr. C. W. Baxter, in proposing to the Ontario Minister of Agriculture measures for increasing the Province's sales of foodstuffs abroad. Like the Ontario Legislature's Agricultural Enquiry Committee, Mr. Baxter, after an investigation of trade conditions in Britain, favors combined action by the Dominion and Provincial Governments and the farmers of the whole country. If such national effort is found to be impracticable, he believes Ontario should act alone.

In his plan, Mr. Baxter, apparently, does not enter into details of organization that should be undertaken on this side of the Atlantic. The Agricultural Enquiry Committee, for its part, advised the establishment of a Canadian National Export Marketing Commission, representative of the Dominion and Provincial Governments, Canadian co-operative organizations and manufacturing interests. Such a body, possessing storage facilities at Halifax and taking advantage of fast ocean transportation from that port, the Committee held, "would revolutionize agriculture" in this country. It would be able to enter regularly a weekly market in England, develop Ontario's meat trade, stimulate winter dairying, improve fruit growing and "enable agriculture to regard without concern New Zealand competition under the New Zealand Dairy Produce Control Board, or export features of the co-operative movement in the United States." With the aid of Canadian co-operative associations, such a commission, the Ontario legislators believed, could sustain volume in the British market the year round. The Committee, too, suggested that the formation of such an Export Marketing Commission was desirable in view of the British proposal to establish a central department for the purchase of supplies of food and raw materials for the United Kingdom. The Committee also seemed to have in mind the opening of a Canadian marketing agency indicated that Danish producersin Great Britain and "ship to Britain twice a week on reports of market conditions furnished by their own wholesale selling agencies in England." Both the Legislature's committee and Mr. Baxter agree that something else besides a centralized system of marketing farm products is required. The former "recognized widespread need for education in the grading of products, grade to follow the product from producer to consumer." It has emphatically asserted that "without definite grades and education of the public in these essentials, co-operative marketing cannot succeed." Mr. Baxter says that certain Canadian food products have attained great popularity in Great Britain, but that a few others have suffered through the importation of a certain quantity of goods of an inferior quality into the British market or because of their lack of uniformity of quality. Mr. Baxter, therefore, urges the establishment of national export grades and grade designations, adoption of national brands or trade marks and the prohibition of exportation of goods that do not conform to the export grades.

A central marketing agency such as has been suggested would require the loyal support of a large proportion of the producers in order to secure volume of goods for export. It would have to be able to control such a share of Canadian agricultural production as would enable it to avoid glutting the market in Britain and yet to take advantage of opportunities offered in the fluctuation of supplies and prices there. In so far as the grading of foodstuffs for export is concerned, its value has been recognized. It must be obvious that the Ontario producers, if they wish to create a demand for their wares in Britain, must be able to provide commodities of such quality and commodity as appeals to the taste of the British consumer. The success of Canadian pork packers in selling bacon in Britain has been attributed to the fact that they have learned the kind of bacon the British people like. Anyone who proposes to engage in export trade, indeed, must be prepared to furnish goods of the quality and type that his prospective customers most desire.—Mail and Empire.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, June 4.—The usual week-end dull trade at the cattle market today. Over 9,000 cattle have gone over the scales this week. There was a carry of between 600 and 700 cattle when the market opened this morning, mostly stale and rough quality. These were clearing slowly at 25c lower than the week's opening prices. Trade quiet, but carry over considerably reduced before the close. The extreme heat may probably have some effect on the market, but otherwise trade is on the whole good.

Small meats steady.

Hogs steady on basis of $11.75 f.o.b., but lower prices are predicted for week-end loadings.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, June 4.—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 1-2.

Sterling cables $4.86.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, June 4.—The market situation continues very firm. Production is showing signs of falling off in a number of sections. Storage stocks are averaging higher than at the same date last year. Latest cars offered from the West are on the basis extras 30 1-2, firsts 29 1-2, seconds 25 1-2, f.o.b. Manitoba shipping point.

Toronto—Special, jobbing, 38, extra 35, firsts 33, seconds 30.

Montreal—Specials, jobbing 36 to 37, extras 34 to 35, firsts 32, seconds 29 to 30.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 4. — Soaring prices for all grain resulted today from adverse domestic crop conditions, notably torrid winds in Kansas. September and December deliveries of wheat both reached the topmost level yet this season. The wheat market closed strong, 2 1-8 to 4 1-4 cents net higher, July 1.68 to 1.68 1-4, and Sept. 1.63 5-8 to 1.63 3-4, with corn 2 1-2 to 3 5-8 cents up; oats at 1 5-8 to 1 7-8 cents gain, and provisions varying from 25 cents decline to 40 cents advance.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 4.—Extreme dullness marked the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today. There was practically no demand for wheat, while the prices bid for oats and barley were fully 6d. per quarter below working basis. There was no improvement in the demand for ocean grain room and the market was quiet with no change in rates to note.

According to latest cable advices from some of the leading markets, the trade in baled hay is anything but good at present, and prices are ruling very low, therefore the prospects for an increased export business in Canadian hay are not very encouraging at present. A moderate amount of business continues to be done on spot and the tone of the market is steady with car lots of good No. 2 timothy hay quoted at $14 to $15 per ton, No. 3 timothy hay at $11 to $12 per ton, and clover mixed hay at $10.50 to $11 per ton, f.o.b. cars here.

The receipts of cheese were 3,760 boxes, as compared with 3,492 for the same day last week, and 7,454 for the corresponding day a year ago. Owing to the absence of any important demand from English importers, the liberal supplies coming forward and the steady accumulation of stocks on spot an easier feeling developed in the local market yesterday and prices were reduced 1-8 to 1-4 cent per lb.

Beans moved back to $1.70 per bushel.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

It takes healthy gums to keep healthy teeth

Bleeding gums are Nature's first warning of Pyorrhea. Then they begin to recede, lose that rich, pink color. Disease-breeding poisons collect in pus pockets and often drain through the entire system.

If used in time and used consistently, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea, or check its progress—something ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to do. It contains just the right proportion of Forhan's Astringent (as used by the dental profession in the treatment of Pyorrhea). It is safe, efficient and pleasant tasting. Even if you don't care to discontinue your favorite dentifrice, at least start using Forhan's once a day.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

SYRUP PEPSIN

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burto

She got up and came across the room to Dick. She sat down on the arm of his chair and put her face down against his hair.

* * *

"Dick," she said, "I know that Stan's whole body isn't worth your little finger. He's not good like you are . . . But I do miss him! He's a lot of fun. I love to dance and jazz around with him. He's my kind . . ."

Dick held himself together hard.

"All right, all right," he said. "I've heard all I can stand to hear about Wayburn. But he's gone now, thank God You and I can make a fresh start, can't we?"

"I hope so," Gloria answered uncertainly.

Dick pulled her down into his knees and held her away from him by both arms. His eyes searched her face.

"Glory," he said, "while I'm away these next two or three weeks, I want you to think things over. We've been married six months, and we've done nothing but bicker and quarrel . . . I can't live like that. This Wayburn business has been the last straw. It's just about finished me!"

Gloria looked at him in surprise.

She didn't mind a good quarrel. She rather liked it.

In fact, she enjoyed a scene! It was exciting, if nothing more. She was excited now.

"I don't want you to live with me unless you love me," Dick went on. "I couldn't stand that. So you think it over and make up your mind what you want to do while I'm gone. Will you?"

Gloria widened her eyes in astonishment.

"Do you mean to say you're going away and leave me at home alone, Dick Gregory?" she cried. She got up from his knees.

"I thought you said you didn't want to go?" Dick answered.

"I said I wouldn't go if your mother went with us," Gloria explained. "And you've just got to tell her she can't go with us!" She stamped her foot.

"I'm sorry, but she's made all her plans to go. She doesn't think for a minute that we don't want her," Dick said anxiously. "How in the deuce can I tell her that we don't want her to go sick as she is? It would break her heart."

"All right, dearie," she said smoothly. "You go with your mother and leave me here alone, if you want to . . . You do it, and, believe me, you will be sorry for it to your dying day!"

Dick groaned in despair.

"Oh, have a heart, Glory," he said. "How can you be so cruel to a woman as old and sick as my mother?"

"I suppose I'm not sick, myself!" Gloria cried. "I suppose I haven't been in the hospital myself, for weeks! . . . She doesn't need this rest a bit more than I do. Not a bit!"

Dick made no answer.

"If she goes, I don't!" Gloria blazed at him. "I wouldn't go anywhere with her on a bet! Everything I did or said, all the time we were gone, she'd razz me for . . . Oh, I know her . . . And you'll just have to choose between us, Mr. Man!"

Dick sat silent for a few minutes puffing at his little brier pipe. Then he got up, put on his hat, and went out doors. He always went for a long walk, by himself, when he was upset or troubled about anything.

Gloria stood still in the midld of the room where he had left her. A smile across her face . . . the slow, sly smile of Mona Lisa.

"Dick'd never leave me home for two or three weeks," she said to herself. "He's crazy about me!"

She went upstairs and began to sort out the clothes she would need for the trip. She was sure she was going . . .

There was a surprise in store for her.

On Saturday morning, Dick and Mother Gregory went away on an early morning train!

Up to the last moment Dick had begged Gloria to go along. And up to the last moment Gloria had refused to go.

"Not with your mother!" she had said over and over. She was sure that, in the end, Dick would take her instead of his mother.

Even now as she stood at her bedroom window, watching his cab turn the corner of the street, she couldn't believe that he had gone and left her behind.

Thunderstruck, she pounded the frame of the window with her clenched hands, in a fit of rage.

"Oh, I hate him! I hate him!" she cried. "He'll be sorry — for this!"

A knock came at the door. Ranghild stood there.

"Did you call me, ma'am?" she asked. "I thought I heard your voice."

"No . . . Yes!" Gloria said. "Telephone the station, please, to see what time the next train for New York leaves."

She bathed and dressed in a feverish of speed. She packed a suitcase. Before she had finished Ranghild came upstairs with the coffee tray.

Standing by the dresser, Gloria gulped down two cups of the hot, satisfying drink and nibbled a piece of toast.

"My last meal in this house!" she told herself, angrily.

She took her purse from the top drawer of her dressing table. There was $95 in it that Dick had given her to pay the food bills for the month.

Downstairs in the drawer of her little desk, there was another $5 bill that she had put aside for a beauty treatment.

at the desk and wrote a note to Dick.

"Goodby," she scribbled. "I told you, you'd have to choose between your mother and me. And I guess you've chosen. So I'm off in a flutter of dust. I was the wrong wife for you, anyway. You should have married some nice, homely woman like Miss Briggs."

Gloria did not sign the cruel little note. She put it into an envelope and laid it on the table under Dick's ash tray where he would be sure to see it when he came home.

"Ranghild," she called as she heard the girl in the hall outside. "I'm going away. When Mr. Gregory comes back from his vacation, show him this letter I'm leaving here for him."

"Oh, ma'am!" said Ranghild, clasping her hands together. She was sure that something was wrong. "I hope you come rack soon!"

Gloria pretended not to see the distress in her eyes. She picked up her bag, and hurried past her.

She closed the door of the house behind her.

"Goodby to Sing-Sing prison!" she said looking back at it, as she went down the street.

Gloria felt as if she were sleep-walking as she followed the red-cap who carried her bag, through the great noisy railroad terminal.

Outside, she drew a deep breath of air . . . New York air! She shook herself. She was really here!

"Free at last!" she sighed. "I'm glad I came! I'll never go back! Never!"

Her heart beat high and wildly as she hailed a taxicab.

A woman on the train had told her about a clean little hotel in West Eleventh street.

Gloria made up her mind that she would go there first to freshen up. S he was dirty and tired, after her journey.

. . . And then—and then, she would hunt up Stanley Wayburn!

She sat back in a corner of the taxicab and watched New York whirl by outside the windows. In the pale sunshine, the tall buildings seemed rich and wonderful. The very trucks and busses seemed marvellous to Gloria that day . . . She was going to see Stanley Wayburn!

Perhaps she would go on the stage and become a great star!

. . . And this big, careless town, this New York, would be hers to struggle with, to conquer! Perhaps she would write her name in electric lights against the night sky of Broadway yet!

At the little hotel she registered as "Miss Gloria Gordon" . . . a better stage name than "Glory Gregory," she decided.

She went upstairs to the tidy, dehumanized hotel room, and unpacked her bag.

She bathed. She brushed her red-gold hair until it shone like polished copper. She "did" her nails, and rubbed perfume into the palms of her hands, and on the nape of her neck. She rouged her cheeks.

"'When tulips bloom in Union Square . . .'" sang Gloria, happy for the first time in weeks.

She was happy!

And wasn't she pretty, though! She was at herself in the looking glass . Oh she could land a job in a beauty-show all right!

If Stan couldn't help find her a job, she'd go to Kit Cameron!

Kit was a chorus girl in the "Gayeties" . . . the most beautiful chorus in the world! And Kit could introduce her to the great Ginfeld, himself.

Gloria was sure that if Ginfeld saw her, he would give her a place in the "Gayeties" . . . She was sure she was beautiful. Dick had always told her she was the prettiest woman in the world.

Dick! The thought of him made Gloria's heart ache for just a minute. She put the thought of him aside. . . . She closed her heart against him.

She threw back her head, and studied herself with eyes that were like dark stars under their white lids. She smiled into the mirror. She knew shat she was better-looking than Kit Cameron had ever dared to be!

Gloria's spirits began to sink as she stood on the sidewalk and looked up at the dingy, narrow building that was Stanley Wayburn's boarding house.

"I wonder if he'll be glad to see me," she thought.

She was filled with panic as she went up the worn stone steps, and rang the doorbell.

"Is this where Mr. Wayburn lives . . . Mr. Stanley Wayburn?" she asked the tall, black-haired woman who opened the door.

"Yes, 'tis," the woman answered. "Who's wanting him?"

"I'm—I'm his sister," Gloria faltered.

"Well, he ain't home," the woman said. "He oughta be here in a few minutes. Wanta go up and wait for him?"

"Yes, thank you," said Gloria. She followed the boarding-house keeper up the red-carpeted stairs to the second floor.

Stan's rooms were at the back of the house, overlooking a dirty backyard. Upstairs, someone was practising on a doleful saxophone.

But the rooms themselves were cheerful enough.

There were magazines scattered about. A tin box of cigarets and a cocktail shaker stood on the table. Stan's bright silk house-coat was thrown over the back of a chair.

Everywhere there were pictures women . . . the photographs that Gloria first had seen in Stan's dressing room in the theater back home.

DIVORCE BILL AMENDMENT THAT WOULD FORBID REMARRIAGE WAS REJECTED IN HOUSE BY 73 TO 60

Equality for Women in Applying for Divorce Sought by Resolution.

ANNUAL DEBATE

Permanent Legal Separation Proposed by Quebec Member.

OTTAWA, June 5. (Canadian Press).—The bill to place women on the same footing as men where an application for divorce is concerned, came up for third reading in the House of Commons yesterday. The bill is sponsored by Capt. J. T. Shaw, Independent member for West Calgary.

Thomas Vien (Liberal, Lotbiniere(at the outset moved that the bill be sent back to committee with authority for the addition of the following clause:

"In no case where divorce is granted by an act of Parliament or by a decision of any court in Canada or elsewhere, shall either of the divorced parties domiciled in Canada have the right to marry again."

He moved this qualification to the bill, Col. Vien said, with the full knowledge that it would be unpalatable to many people in the House of Commons and in the country generally. He realized that he would be called a bigot; that it would be said that he was "trying to impose upon others a religious belief they did not share," but he hoped to convince the House that he was merely acting as his conscience dictated. If he had his way, he would stamp out divorce altogether. It was because this bill was the first one on the statute books dealing directly with divorce, that he opposed it. Since it had passed several stages of the House, and might become law, he felt it his duty to try to insert a clause against remarriage. Such a clause would have the effect of greatly reducing the number of applications for divorce. It would remove the reason why most divorces were being sought.

Divorce, said Mr. Vien, was "unchristian," because it was opposed to the teachings of the New Testament. It was "immoral," because it was opposed to natural law.

Amendment in Order.

John Evans (Progressive, Saskatoon) objected that the amendment was not relevant to the bill before the House; but Speaker Lemieux ruled that the amendment was in order.

Mr. Vien also referred to an announcement by the General Synod of the Church of England in October, 1921, which, he stated, favored "an indissoluble union for better or for worse of one man and one woman."

Mr. Vien quoted the statements of St. Paul in his epistles to the Corinthians, upon the sanctity of marriage. He read the pronouncement of the Presbyterian General Assembly of 1920, reaffirming its belief in the permanence of the marriage tie. Quotations were also made

BRAVE RESCUE ATTEMPT.

Life Extinct When Body of Boy Recovered.

LINDSAY, June 5.—(Special.)—The King's birthday was marred by a sad drowning accident when Hugh McFadden, aged 11 years and 11 months, son of Mr. Miller McFadden, carpenter, went to his death in the Beaver river.

The little fellow was bathing at the bend in the river near the park when he got into a hole and sank from view. Ted Halward made a brave attempt to rescue the boy, diving three times before he brought the body to the surface. Life was extinct, however.

LIBERALS HAVE 50.

Revised Standing of Parties in Saskatchewan Elections.

REGINA, Sask., June 5.— Reports late Thursday afternoon from outlying polls in Saskatoon county, in the Saskatchewan Provincial elections, put C. Agar, Progressive, in the lead over his Liberal opponent, M. D. Mordon. Mr. Agar has a lead of 11. The standing now is:

SOUGHT TELEGRAPH BAN

CINCINNATI, June 5.—A copy of a resolution of Lancaster (O.) school board, adopted in 1828, recently was read at a convention here. It prohibited debates in the school which concerned railroads and telegraph, because there was "nothing in the Word of God about them."

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

STOVE KILLS BOY

STOCKTON, Cal., June 5.—Touching a gas stove when he stepped from a bath tub Ralph Smallfield, 12, was electrocuted. The stove was charged with electricity by a short circuit in an adjoining light fixture.

FATHER, CALLED BY SON'S DEATH, HURT

Painful Accident to Father of Late George Armstrong.

DOURO, June 5. — A distressing accident occurred on Saturday evening, when Mr. Armstrong, Sr. (father of the late George Armstrong, who was killed in an accident a couple of weeks ago), received painful injuries. A neighbor, Mr. William Tighe, had just finished seeding corn, when Mr. Armstrong asked him to lend a hand to put the cultivator on the barn floor. Mr. Armstrong, who is over seventy-five years of age, grasped the pole, Mr. Tighe pushing the back of the machine. When one wheel struck the floor the pole swerved, striking the aged man on the hip. The doctors summoned did not think a break had occurred, but the patient is suffering great pain. Mr. Armstrong came from St. Catharines to help his son's stricken family. Mrs. Armstrong and the children have been ill, so altogether this family are having more than their share of trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pluard and small son, of Harvey, have been visiting friends here.

Mr. Thos. Forsythe and Miss Ellen Forsythe have purchased cars recently.

Birth—On Sunday, May 24, to Mr. and rMs. Patrick McMurray (West), a son.

Death—On Sunday, May 24, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McMurray.

There are rumors of wedding bells soon to ring.

Visitors have commenced to arrive for the re-union. It will be very difficult for the Examiner to get the names of all visitors, and local people are asked to help. Call 8, Ring 4, Douro, and give the names of your visitors.

The heat of the past few days has made a wonderful improvement in the crops.

Farmers Sowing Corn.

Farmers are preparing corn ground and sowing corn during the past few days. The past three days of extreme heat, with heavy rainfall each night, make ideal growing weather. The heat is very debilitating, coming so early and after such cool weather.

Pastures are splendid and there is a heavy yield of milk.

Monday night's storm was very severe, especially in the northeastern portion of the township. Mr. Michael J. McManus' barn was struck, but luckily did not burn, and Mr. Wallace Anderson's silo was blown down.

Mr. John Maloney has arrived from Alberta, motoring through from Chicago. He is the first of the Old Boys to arrive, and will visit with his family for some time.

Miss Nellie Hogan, who spent the winter with her brother at Barrie, is home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sheehan, Messrs. John and Michael Sheehan, and Miss Mary Begley were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Dennie Begley at Downeyville.

Misses Dolly McMurray and Christina McKeever left on Tuesday for Windsor to attend the graduation exercises at Hotel Dieu on the evening of June 3rd, when Miss Emma McMurray was one of the graduating nurses.

REGINA DRENCHED.

District Soaked By Heavy Mid-week Rains.

REGINA, Sask., June 5.—Regina and district received another thorough drenching Thursday. After a steady downpour that started one hour after midnight and was practically continuous through the night and morning hours the storm ended with a tremendous shower that flooded many basements in the city and left the streets running streams of water.

Slightly more than three-quarters of an inch of rain fell in less than 12 hours. That brings the total for the week ending to-day to 1.37 inches. The greater proportion falling in the last three days.

SPLENDID SUPPORT FOR MISSIONARY

Cobourg District Young People Raised $2,040 During Year.

COBOURG, June 5—Tor several years Cobourg District Young People's Leagues were affiliated with Peterborough District Young People's Leagues in the support of Rev. Dr. W. E. Smith in West China. Later, Cobourg District took over Dr. Smith's entire support. He is the veteran representative of the Methodist Young People's Societies in any mission field, having been appointed to the work twenty-eight years ago, being the first missionary sent to the foreign field, whose support was guaranteed by the Young People's Leagues of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

For the conference years just closed, 1924-1925, Cobourg District has contributed the splendid sum of $2,040.

A GROTTO OF GLOW WORMS

MELBOURNE, June 5—A glow-worm cavern has been discovered in the bush country near Te Kuiti, in Auckland.

Thousands of the small worms cling to the walls of the cave, giving the appearance of diamond studded rocks. For some strange reason, the voice of a person in the cavern will cause the worms to pale their lights.

In daylight the glow worms resemble those of the common grub variety.

MARRIAGE RITE NOT FORMALITY

Anglican Synod Considers Canon to Confine Ceremony to Churches.

SHOULD BE BAPTIZED.

TORONTO, June 5. — Canadian Press. — That the marriage ceremony is not a mere empty formality was made plain at yesterday's session of the Anglican Synod of Toronto Diocese.

A proposed canon which was submitted, urged that the ordinance of matrimony should be held as a sacred rite, and to this end that it was desirable that marriages should not be solemnized except in churches and not between parties "who are either one or both unbaptized."

The discussion which arose was with regard to the question of Baptism, and the upshot of he debate was that the opinion was recorded that marriage should not be performed between parties "neither of whom is baptized."

APSLEY MEMORIAL IS NOT NEGLECTED

Substantial Supports Placed For Ornamental Fence Around Plot.

APSLEY, June 4. — The War Monument has been greatly improved in appearance by the putting in of substantial cedar posts and boards to support the fence supplied by the A.Y.P.A. last year. All the wood work has been painted white to correspond with the ornamental fence. The whole of the work was gratuitously done by Stanley Windsor and reflects credit on his taste and judgment, while A. McColl planed the posts and boards free of charge. The ladies will undertake to plant flowers and keep the plot in good order.

The temperature on Tuesday and Wednesday reached 86 degrees on each day, while the total rainfall in 48 hours amounted to 1.21 inches, almost as much as the total for the whole month of May, which only amounted to 1.55 inches, while April's figures were 1.45 inches for the month. The same two months last year totalled 7.43 inches. Crops are already showing the benefit of the last rains; corn and grain are growing rapidly.

A successful sale of farm implements and stock was held on Saturday at Mrs. Henry Prouty's, Owenbrook, Mr. Fred Bullied being the auctioneer. Good prices were realized, cows fetching between fifty and sixty dollars, and a seven year old horse one hundred and eight dollars.

The 4-4 beer is now obtainable at the Union Hotel and is being fairly well patronized, but it is doubtful if it will be the means of weaning devotees of moonshine from their favorite beverage.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

HAY IS SPARSE CROP THIS YEAR NEAR BURNBRAE

Very Little Growth and Haying Season Near—Pastures Are Poor.

MILK FLOW DOWN.

Cheese Factories Are Not Getting as Much Milk as Usual.

BURNBRAE, June 5.—The scattered showers of the week-end have been of great benefit to the crops generally, but more rain is urgently needed with warm weather following to stimulate growth since the severe frosts of last week. Although grain seems to be growing fairly well in spite of the frost, the grass crops are practically at a standstill. With the haying season only a short month away the prospects are rather gloomy. Pastures are short and where cows have been on pasture for some time, especially on low ground, the feed is scarcer than is often the case in July, the dry month. This is keeping down the milk flow so that cheese factories will probably not have the usual rush until the middle of June.

Inspector Murray is making his rounds with the Babcock tester again, and the May tests show a lower average than April.

Menie cheese factory is now turning out about eight cheese per day, while Brae is around five. Brae recently lost one good herd when Robert Cleugh's cattle were destroyed by fire.

Cheese prices are holding steady, the latest returns being 17½ cents per pound. Hog prices have been slightly lower, around 11½ cents, while veal is back to 7 cents for good stuff. Some buyers are offering 16 cents per pound for live poultry (hens), but few are being sold as the egg prices are holding steady at from 25 cents up, according to grade. The egg market has been very firm this spring, the average being about 4 cents per dozen ahead of last year.

Seeding Finished.

Spring seeding was practically all finished before May 24 this year. Most of the Burnbrae farmers are busy now with their corn and root land. With the prospect of a short hay crop it is likely that the acreage of corn will be greatly increased, in spite of the fact that seed corn is selling at $2.50 per bushel, being higher than for some years. Corn is nearly always a sure crop in the Burnbrae district, and although only about half of the farmers have silos, practically all grow corn, as it provides a large bulk of feed from a small acreage.

At the date of writing, the first whip-poor-will has just been heard. This is the old-timer's sign that the corn planting season has arrived and danger of frost is past. Those who have been suffering from cold since May 20 will hope that this is true.

Alex. Hume recently attended the sale of pure-bred Ayrshires held by Gilbert McMillan of Huntingdon, Que. Sixty head of cattle averaged over $400 per head. These prices show confidence in the future of the Ayrshire cow and the dairy industry at large.

Burnbrae Holstein breeders will be interested to know that Ed. O'Connor, Seymour West, one of the township's enterprising young breeders, recently purchased a fine two-year-old at the dispersion sale of R. W. E. Burnaby's herd at Jefferson, Ont. Mr. O'Connor is a director of the Campbellford Holstein Breeders' Club, and is making a real start toward building up a profitable herd.

CROP OUTLOOK GOOD IN WEST

Officials Bring Encouraging Report From Survey of Grain Belt.

LANDMARK YEAR.

LAKE LOUISE, Alta., June 5 (Special to The Examiner).—The crop outlook in Western Canada has never been better in the history of the country, according to Grant Hall, first vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Charles Murphy, general manager, western lines, who arrived here to-day aboard their special train after survey of the grain belt of Southern Saskatchewan and Alberta. If nothing happens to mar the present excellent conditions of grain in the ground, 1925 should be a landmark year for the farmers of the west, they state.

With the party were S. R. Y. Eaton, Toronto, Pres. Y. Eaton, Toronto, president of the T. Eaton Co., who accompanied the party from Banff to Lake Louise, Andrew Kelly, president of Western Canada Flour Mills, G. Montague Black, of Black and Armstrong, Winnipeg, Charles Temple, superintendent motive power, C. P. R., and J. M. Cameron, general superintendent of the Calgary division. This party of distinguished Canadians formed the first group of guests to be entertained at the new two million dollar Chateau Lake Louise, which will be formally opened more than a mile above the sea next Monday. After luncheon, Mr. Hall inspected the new hotel and proceeded on his special to Vancouver. Mr. Eaton, with N. M. Tucker, manager of the T. Eaton Co., Winnipeg, and J. H. Webster, manager of the Regina store, returned to Banff, where they are spending several days at the Banff Springs Hotel.

SPRAY FRUIT NOW.

Apple trees should be sprayed early to control apple worm and other insect pests. Either the standard lime sulphur solution, or the 3-4-50 Bordeaux mixture may be used.

CLEAN OUT CORN APHIS.

Eggs of the corn root aphis, one of the serious corn pests, are beginning to hatch. Plowing and discing fields can can out the insects.

Farmer Finds Manitoba Maples Are Not Wanted

CAMPBELLFORD, June 5.—A farmer in the vicinity of Keene some years ago planted a small Manitoba maple in his orchard and the rapid growth of the tree was simply amazing. Not only did the tree itself increase in stature but it produced seeds which high winds scattered in every direction and maple seedlings sprung up over a large territory.

Sam. Armstrong of Indian River district, who is interested in the subject of reforestration, noting the above situation, saw new possibilities for restoring the forest wealth of the province. He wrote to the Department of Forestry regarding the matter, suggesting that Manitoba maples be more extensively planted; but, the reply which he received was not encouraging. The Department officials are evidently of the opinion that that variety of lumber is not desirable either for lumber or fuel.

GROWING CORN FOR ENSILAGE

Proper Selection of Variety and Cultivation Are Necessary to Success.

TEST SEED CORN.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

There is much difference in opinion as to the best variety to grow, and the selection generally hinges on two points, viz.—the value of the land and the cost of labor.

If you have to pay high for labor and your land is high priced, then grow the heaviest yielding variety that you can find, taking a chance on its reaching maturity. Production per acre you must have.

If you are on low-priced land, then select a good yielding variety that you know will mature early and also make high-class ensilage.

Big heavy corn, full of juice is hard to handle,—it costs money to make silage out of it,—while the lighter yielding, earyl maturing corn is easier to handle, costs less for labor and makes a richer silage. True, it will not produce as much milk per acre as the large heavy yielding variety, but what it does produce is produced with the aid of less supplementary grain. So if you have abundant land, the early maturing, high quality varieties will be most suited to your need. On the other hand if you have few acres and must get the most out of the area irresoective of labor cost, then you had best select the heavy yielder variety.

Test the Seed Corn.

Test for germination every ear of corn that is used for seed. It does not take very much time to do it. Testing seed is the only insurance you have for a perfect stand. Why take a chance and loose by spending your labor on a field with only half as many plants as there should be. Better test the seed, and get started right. Two weeks before you figure on planting corn prepare a seed box with moist sawdust or sand, plant a representative sample, give it care and watch for the sprouts. Be guided by the performance of the sample tested. Good seed corn is not abundant this year, so be careful in your purchase. Soft or moldy seed corn never produced a strong plant. Don't forget that, first of all, your crop depends upon the vigor of the seed that you plant.

Preparing for Corn.

Clover Sod ploughed in September and surface worked until late October, and then ridged up and left exposed to the frost action, until dry enough to harrow down in the spring is a successful method for corn. The application of not less than 20 tons of good stable manure should be made in early May, and the land re-ploughed and worked down to the fine tilth of a good seed-bed.

Planting.

When the White Oak leaf is as large as a black squirrel's foot (last week in May) plant the seed in check rows 40 inches apart, using machine planter or drill, cover two inches deep and firm.

Cultivation.

Start cultivation by going over the area with a weeder just before the corn comes up. Follow each week with machine cultivation to keep a dust mulch and prevent weed growth, until such time as the corn has grown too large to permit of further tillage. Corn tillage should always be shallow, much damage is done by cutting the roots of the plant.

GRAZERS TAKEN TO SUMMER PASTURES

Grass Is Not Yet Sufficient For Usual Number of Cattle.

BEST'S STATION, June 5. — Some grazers have been taken to their summer pastures, but there is not sufficient grass yet to supply the usual number of herds.

POULTRY NOTES

DON'T KEEP HATCHING EGGS TOO LONG

Spraddle legs and deformity among baby chicks are usually a result of the eggs having been kept too long before incubation. Eggs are at their best when only four days old and depreciate at a rate of approximately 5 per cent daily after they are one week old.

Another condition often responsible traces back to the health and vitality of the hens in the breeding flock. If there had been some disease in the flock or if all of the birds were not in the best of physical condition the consequent lack of vitality often results in an unusually large number of deformed chicks.

One Dose Is Enough.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 5.—Protect your garden truck and other crops by gassing the groundhog.

This is the surest means of getting rid of the burrowing animals that infest gardens and fields. That includes not only the woodchuck, but such burrowing animals as prairie dogs, gophers and ground squirrels.

But avoid killing the skunk, not because of its notoriety, but because it's protected by law. Therefore, before giving woodchucks the gas treatment, be sure no skunks are in the holes. Skunks are valuable fur-bearing animals.

Calcium cyanide and carbon bisulphide are the poisons suggested for the gassing process. Shooting, trapping and poisoning are good enough, says Pirnie, but the gas method is quickest and surest.

How to Do It.

In using either calcium cyanide or carbon bisulphate, plug all the openings but one. With calcium cyanide take about a tablespoonful and place it deep down in the burrow.

In extensive holes, with several openings, it is best to place some cyanide in each of them, closing all the openings. Heavy sods are good for plugging the holes, and the gas liberated from the flakes or granules of cyanide will do the job.

Carbon bisulphide works the same way, except that it is a liquid. Soak a small wad of cotton or old rags with the bisulphide and shove it well into the burrow.

It is well to fasten the cottonto the end of a stick or a stiff wire. Then after it is placed, as in the cyanide treatment, plug the hole or holes tightly.

Some persons say exploding the carbon bisulphide gas gives surer results. They reopen the hole after about half an hour and set it off with a torch fastened to the end of a pole.

Carbon bisulphide is so explosive and inflammable that it is unwise even to smoke while placing it.

These precautions should be strictly observed:

Carbon bisulphide is explosive and must be kept from flames and heat. Calcium cyanide is very poisonous and must never be scatterd where poultry can find a single particle.

Cyanide cans must always be opened outdoors, for a concentration of the gas from it can prove fatal to humans as well as to woodchucks. The hands should always be washed after using cyanide.

CROP REPORTS

Crop reports compiled from various sources show that the continued cold weather retarded the growth but no harm was done and the warm weather of the past week will soon cause the loss to be made up.

Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:—

The cold days and frosty nights of the past week have retarded the growth which was expected to follow the rain of a week ago and has caused some injury, particularly to early garden and fruit crops. The frost damage on the whole, however, is considered slight. Fall Wheat generally looks promising and while there has been very little growth of spring grains the condition of these is such that satisfactory growth is anticipated should more favorable weather come soon. Alfalfa is leading the field in hay and pasture crops, being noticeably in advance of other clovers. Its luxuriance when compared with the almost bare timothy meadows is striking.

ALGOMA—There were heavy showers throughout the district this week, and growth will be rapid if the weather turns warmer.

BRUCE—According to a summary which was made of the hogs shipped from this county from the first of the year until the present time, it was found Kincardine, Hanover and Lucknow shipped the largest percentage of select hogs, and the smallest number of off weights.

DUFFERIN—Farmers are fairly well advanced with their work in fact much ahead of the average year. Weather conditions have been unsatisfactory so far as growth is concerned and heavy frosts have done some damage. Observation through the district shows that sheep raisers have taken seriously the warning re cut on "buck" lambs and it would appear that a very high percentage of lambs in the county have been trimmed.

ELGIN—A good rain on Saturday will help the county generally. Beekeepers report very little loss during the winter but some loss in the spring. The frosts at night have been hard on the early vegetable growers, many having their plants frozen.

GRENVILLE—We have had frost the last three nights and much damage has been done to small stuff which had been set out. Last night (May 22nd) a heavy rain and rain turning to sleet did some damage to fruit blossoms.

HURON—Fall wheat and clovers are improving daily. We had a nice little shower on Saturday, May 16th, when one-third of an inch of rain fell. This has helped out considerably. We are, however, in need of further showers. Orchards are coming along very nicely and a large percentage of the orchards recieving attention in the line of spray have received their pink spray. It is quite a noticeable feature this year the number of orchards that are being pruned, sprayed and cultivated and otherwise cared for. Many of these orchards had not received attention for many years. Considerably large quantities of spray material have been sold and several new spraying machines.

A large number of stacks of last year's hay are still to be noted in the county, these bearing evidence to the large crop of hay last year and the poor market during the winter.

KENT—On the clay land growth has been very uneven, largely due to lack of moisture. Pasture is also making slow growth. Early potatoes are up and have already been touched with frost which will naturally retard their growth somewhat. Early sown sugar beets are up and being blocked. Late sown beets are slow in coming through the ground. The majority of the corn has been planted. Many early tomato plants have been put out and tobacco planting will be general next week. Many acres of onions were blown out by late storms but have been reseeded generally other onions not affected by the winds are doing very well and the cultivation of same is in progress.

MIDDLESEX—There is plenty of blossom but the real early fruits were badly frozen by the heavy frost of May 17th.

NORFOLK—Fruit growers got a bad scare by the heavy frost of last Sunday. Some injury has been done. In some orchards the buds of the earlier varities have been almost completely killed by frost. There also has been some damage done to Snows, Macintoshes and Wealthies. The later varieties are not so far advanced and did not seem to be much injured. All the early bloom of the strawberry plantations has been killed. In some cases the buds on sour cherries, plums and pears have been killed. The same fate has met some of the black currants. Taking everything into consideration, however the damage has not been nearly as heavy as was at first anticipated. Rain and warm weather are now urgently needed for all vegetation.

NORTHUMBERLAND—The timely rains of last night and this morning will do much towards insuring good crops in this county this year. With favorable weather next week there should be a good set of fruit in the better cared for apple orchards in the district.

NORTH SIMCOE—Wheat and clovers were injured somewhat on May 23 by a rather heavy hail storm, however, the set back should not be very serious from present indications. The wheat has done exceptionally well during the past week.

Bank of Montreal.

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the Head Office of the Bank of Montreal from its Branches. The Branch Managers have complete and intimate knowledge of each local situation and are in close touch with Crop conditions in all sections of the districts mentioned.

GENERAL.—In the Prairie Provinces, conditions are favourable. The seeding of wheat has been completed, and the seeding of coarse grains is nearing completion. General rain during the past week has been beneficial. In Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces the weather during the past month, has been cool, with some frosts but no serious damage reported and conditions are favourable. In British Columbia, crops are making good progress under satisfactory conditions, but rain is needed

Prairie Provinces.

EDMONTON DISTRICT—Conditions excellent in western section and very fair in eastern sections where more rain would be welcome.

CALGARY DISTRICT—Conditions excellent. Some damage cut worm in the middle and northern sections but recent rians have been of great benefit.

LETHBRIDGE DISTRICT—Ample moisture western section. Some damage cut worms north and east. Only fair conditions Medicine Hat. No rain this month and early moistute drying out.

NORTHERN SASKATCHEWAN DISTRICT—Wheat all sown. Seeding of other grains well advanced and likely to be completed in a week's time. Sufficient moisture for present needs. Season well advanced, and prospects en couraging.

SOUTHERN SASKATCHEWAN—Wheat seeding completed and grain showing three inches above ground in many districts. Seeding of other grains should be completed shortly. Rain to date light but sufficient moisture at present although no great reserve.

WINNIPEG DISTRICT—All wheat seeded and sowing of coarse grains nearing completion. Wheat acreage will possibly show slight decrease and coarse grains corresponding increase. General rain last week beneficial. Wheat fields now green. Frost on the 15th damaged coarse grains in some localities, otherwise conditions favourable.

Province of Quebec.

In the eastern and southern districts recent cold, wet weather with occasional frosts has retarded farming operations, and only about half of the seeding has been done. No damage from frosts has been reported. Hay is showing up well so far, but like all other crops, needs warmer weather. In the northern and lower St. Lawrence districts, the season as usual is about two or three weeks later than in other districts. Ploughing is about finished in most places, but seeding has been delayed owing to the cold weather.

Province of Ontario.

Apples, pear and peach trees show abundant bloom and prospects for a good fruit crop are bright. Fall wheat is in good condition, but spring crops are backward. Corn planting is delayed as farmers are waiting for warm weather. Hay is only fair, and prospects are for a short crop. Grass pastures are backward for this season of year. Wamrer weather and rains are greatly needed.

Maritime Provinces.

Seeding in progress. Conditions generally satisfactory, but season now somewhat backward due to continued cold weather. Hay and grass pasture doing well, but warm rain needed. Apple trees look well and show promise of a large bloom in about ten days.

TEACHERS OF AGRICULTURE IN SCHOOLS WOULD GAIN GREATER SUCCESS BY OPERATING PLOTS

Farmers Sons Won't Make Use of Facilities Provided in Schools.

SOME PREJUDICE

Feeling Exists That Teachers Could Not Make Living on Farm.

(By Alex. McGregor)

In Renfrew, where they have a new Collegiate Building which cost the taxpayers considerably over $200,000, and which is fitted out with all departments required by the regulations, the board is having trouble with that branch in which home making and agriculture are taught. At a recent meeting of the committee in charge of the work it was reported that not more than eight or ten students were taking the vocational course and that if the attendance did not improve there was a probability that difficulty would be met with in securing the government grant. Last year the encumberance of this department, it was stated cost $5,000, an expenditure which it was felt was out of all proportion to the number benefitted. Dr. Merchant had visited Renfrew to ascertain if possible why it was that so few students are taking both the academic and vocational course.

A Practical Farmer.

Renfrew is situated in a thriving agricultural community, where, it would be natural to suppose that there would be plenty of farmers sons anxious to take a course in agriculture as well as attending the regular academic classes.

It remained for John B. McLaren, one of the most successful farmers in Renfrew County to give the councillers of which he is a member a real explanation of the difficulty. According to a report in the Renfrew Mercury, Mr. McLaren said that the teacher of agriculture should take a piece of ground and without experimenting with it make it pay. If the teacher could show dividends for anything done, farmers' sons would be interested at once. At all farm homes, Mr. McLaren said, there was a feeling that the boy who went to High School was away from home for keeps. This had been the general experience, the boys feeling that there was an easier way of making a living than by working on a farm. He thought that on the school farm there should be grown what every farmer raises—oats, hay, wheat and peas and the like and, if, in the production of these, dividends could be shown, all would become interested.

Why Prejudice Exists.

There is no gainsaying the fact that among the farmers of Ontario there exists a deep rooted prejudice against the Agricultural schools and colleges and especially against the teaching of the theory of farming in the High Schools and Collegiate Institutes. In the Agricultural School at Kemptville the home of Premier Ferguson, who secured that institution for his constituents a few years ago there are 11 teachers, all high salaried theorists, and only 40 students. Renfrew Collegiate Institute is not alone in its failure to secure an adequate attendance in its agricultural department.

To what extent is this prejudice justified? The professor of agriculture, either in school or college, is backed up by substantial financial resources and is in receipt of a salary which settles for him the problem of living. He demonstrates what can be done, by proper cultivation of the soil, in the production of vegetables, grain and the like, but, the most important question of all, could he make a farm pay if placed on one under the same conditions or those which face the average farmer?

The professor is not troubled by the labor problem. He has no hired man's wage to make up, no interest payment to make on a mortgage; no landlord calls on him half-yearly to collect rent. Almost any business can be made to present a high showing if its capitalization is generous and no attention is paid to the question of paying dividends on the investment. A government-owned railway may be operated to the satisfaction of those who patronage it—but then comes a day of reckoning when such a matter of fact circumstance as a deficit takes all the glamour from the service.

There is, unfortunately, a social distinction between the town and rural residents of Ontario, a conition for which there is really no justification, and which is slowly dying out. That social distinction exists in a high school or collegiate, just as it does in the wider field of life. The classical or mathematical master regards himself as a step higher in the academic scale than the teacher who takes off his coat and instructs a class of boys in the best methods of caring for a plot of land sown to turnips. Going further down the line the student taking the academic course regards highly the ambition of the boy who is earnestly striving to fit himself for the original of all human vocations, the back bone of the industry of the world.

It is worthy of note that while the vocational committee was wrestling with their problem, a prominent farmer was addressing the Rotarians of Renfrew on ways and means to bring about a better understanding between town and country. That speaker, Robert G. Wilson, should be an authority on the true situation as he was the U.F.O. candidate in the Federal election of 1921, and it was in the town that he met his Waterloo.

SPRING DAYS

MISS EVELYN BURGESS.

After the long backward spring this bright warm weather which we are now enjoying is all the more appreciated. Once more this grand country of ours has adorned herself with her bright coat of green, the birds have all returned and are busy building up new homes for themselves. In fact, Mother Nature seems to be right at our doors working her marvelous little schemes, and at the same time calling us one and all to come out into the bright sunshine where we may listen to the sweet music of the birds and drink in the subtle fragrance of which the air is so full.

At the same time we may take a stroll to the woods and gather a magnificent bouquet of wild flowers, or watch the squirrel hurrying to and fro about his work. Oh! there are numerous things to do and see and hear just now. The stately old maple tree is a complete picture by itself with its leaves just opening out into maturity. It seems sad to think that many of our people are so busy with other affairs that they fail to take the time to study Nature and enjoy it, for truly they are missing a great deal of the beauty in living.

VITALITY TESTS SPEED RETURNS

Shows in Twelve Hours What Has Formerly Required Years.

SEED GERMINATION.

YONKERS, N. Y., June 5.—A new method of testing seed for its vitality has been devised by Professor W. E. Davis.

The new vitality test is said to show in 12 hours what heretofore required from five to two years.

According to William Crocker, director of the institute, Dr. Davis' test is an important scientific contribution and a practical advance in seed testing.

"Professor Davis' work in throwing seeds into and out of the dormant condition is an important advance scientifically, explaining why stratification fails and probably how dormancy is produced in nature," says Crocker. "This finding is the very crux of our nursery troubles.

"Also he has made an advance in showing how daily alternations in temperature bring about the germination of certain seeds. Some seeds that have given gardeners and nurserymen much trouble can be easily handled by the use of proper daily alternating temperatures."

Sheep At Warsaw Increase Rapidly. Twins Are Common

WARSAW, June 5.—There are several quite small flocks of sheep, but they seem to be multiplying. One with four ewes has seven lambs, three twins and one single. Another of three ewes has one with three lambs, one with two, and one with a single lamb.

BUSYNESS OF BEE IN DOUBT

Lifetime Collection of One Bee Amounts to Eight-tenths Grains.

MAKE 32 TRIPS.

WASHINGTON, June 5 — If the far-famed busy bee is really busy, she doesn't show it by actual results.

This is the conclusion formed by scientists, who sought to answer the question, "How busy is the busy bee?"

They found, after close and patient observation, that it took 567 bees all of their lives to produce one pound of their precious nectar.

Reduced to one bee, this means an average of only eight-tenths of a gram of nectar collected during its entire life.

And a bee makes an average of 31.65 trips to and from the hive before death overtakes her.

These facts were ascertained by actual count of bees leaving and entering a test hive. Gate arrangements were made, so that only one bee could leave or enter at a time, enabling a counting device to keep tab on them.

Knowing the total amount of nectar gathered in any one day, and the number of bees returning to the hive, the observers could tell how much each bee carried on an average. This was decided upon as about 25 milligrams, or about as much as will go on a pinhead.

In the course of the study it was learned that of the 2,434,666 bees that left one hive, 3.16 per cent failed to return. From this the observers deduced that the average bee makes about 31.65 trips before it dies.

A bee may make a trip lasting anywhere from eight minutes to one hour and 54 minutes, depending on the honey flow. The figures seem to show however, that even in a heavy honey flow the bees spend more time in the hive than they do on the trip itself.

SEPARATE COCKERELS AND PULLETS.

Remove the young cockerels from the flock as soon as the sexes can be determined. The male birds being heavier and stronger crowd the pullets away from the feed and water, and thereby delay the development of the pullet flock. Young male birds should be marketed as soon as they reach the broiler stage. Any young male birds saved for breeding purposes should be reared on the range by themselves.

FARMERS DISAPPOINTED.

ORLAND, June 5.—Many farmers were much disappointed at the recent cold snap which further retards the very slow growth of grain and garden seeds.

Mr. Willet Simpson is moving his saw mill to Wooler where a large cut of custom-sawing awaits him.

WATER GLASS IS GOOD METHOD TO PRESERVE EGGS

The Dominion Government Farm Conducted Tests on Many Plans.

LIME WATER USED.

Eggs Should Be Perfectly Fresh and Sterile For This Purpose.

Cheap eggs in winter—Many families, even of farmers and other poultry keepers, have very few eggs to use from October to February, when prices are high. It would be easy for them to preserve and store as many as required, if they would but take the trouble to do so.

Experiment at Cap Rouge—In order to secure information regarding the best methods of preserving eggs, an experiment was started in 1916 at the Can Rouge Experimental Station. Eight methods were tested: 1, wrapping in paper and leaving undistrubed; 2, wrapping in paper and turning daily; 3, packing in oats; 4, packing in sawdust; 5, Compose Gaulin; 6, Armstrong paste; 7, lime water; 8, waterglass.

Results—It was soon found that the two best methods, by far, were the lime water and the waterglass. These have been continued to date and very little difference has been found, though different lots of eggs are tested each year by the Dominion Chemist and the Dominion Poultry Husbandman, at Ottawa, and by the Superintendent of the Cap Rouge Experimental Station.

Best methods—Use one pound of good, freshly burnt quicklime to five gallons of water. Slake the lime with a small quantity of water, just about enough to cover it, and then stir the milk thus formed into the water. Keep well stirred for a few hours, allow to settle, and pour the saturated water over the eggs. With waterglass, use about four pounds in ten gallons of water.

General advice—All eggs used should be perfectly fresh and, if possible, from flocks having no male birds. The eggs should be completely immersed during the whole period of preservation, and the vessel should be kept covered. The best temperature, though not absolutely necessary, is from 40° to 45° F.

BEAN LEAF-BEETLE.

The small beetle that eats holes in the leaves of bean plants is called the bean leaf-beetle. To combat it dust with one pound calcium arsenate thoroughly mixed with nine pounds hydrated lime. Or spray well with a mixture of calcium arsenate, ¼ pound; hydrated lime, 1½ pounds; water, 50 gallons.

SOYBEANS FOR HAY.

Soybeans have been found to make a good hay crop for dairy cattle. The plant is popular in many places because of its heavy yield, amounting to two tons on fairly good land, and its high feeding value.

Province of British Columbia.

Hay and grain promise average yield although the grasshopper menace severe in the interior. Potatoes above average. Hops making good growth. Early estimate of apple crop indicates light yield. Apricots, peaches and pears almost a failure. Cherries and plums about half crop. Small fruits variable, probably below average, especially strawberries. Pasturage good.

HOW TO CARE FOR GARDEN PLANTS

Beans	Insect Pests	What to Do	When and How to Do It
	Aphis—(Plant lice that suck sap from leaves, mostly on under side).	Nicotine Sulphate—(1) 1 pint to 100 gal. water plus 4 lbs. soap. (2) 1 teaspoonful to ½ gal. water plus small bit of soap. Soap spray—1 lb. soap to 6 gal. water, 1 lb. gold dust to 6 gal. water.	Spray plant thoroughly when first insects occur. Get the leaves wet. Use good upturned nozzle and high-pressure. Repeat in 10 days. Note: Thoroughly wet under sides of leaves.
Beets.	Aphis.	Same as for beans.
	Webworms — (A small greenish worm which webs the leaves together).	Arsenate of lead—1½ lbs. powder to 50 gallons of water.	Spray leaves until thoroughly wet when worms first appear. Use high pressure so as to force sprays through webs.
Cabbage and Cauliflower.	Aphis.	Same as for beans.
	Cabbage worms—(Greenish worms which eat the leaves).	Arsenate of lead—(1) Spray: 1¾ lbs. to 50 gal. water. (2) Dust: 1 heaping tablespoonful of Paris green or two of powdered arsenate of lead to 1 qt. flour or hydrated lime.	Begin soon after setting plant or soo after first appearance of white butterflies. Repeat every 10 days until head is two-thirds formed.
	Cutworms — (Smooth grayish, fleshy worms).	Poison bran mash—5 lbs. bran, ¼ lb. arsenic, 1 orange, 1 pint syrup, 1 gal. water.	Scatter broadcast over garden very thinly, late in evening on first warm nights of spring.
	Harlequin cabbage bug — (A triangular orange and black colored bug that sucks sap from plants).	Trap crop of turnips.	Plant early for destruction.
Cucumbers, Cantaloupe, Squash, Watermelon.	Striped cucumber beetle — (Small yellow and black striped beetle which cuts holes in leaves).	Hand pick bugs and eggs.	First warm days get the first one that arrives.
	Squash bugs — (Large brown bugs).	Screen boxes 12"x12"x4" covered with cheese cloth.	Cover plants just as soon as they come up.
	Aphis.	Tobacco dust, lime or sulphur. Arsenate of lead powder.	Keep plants well covered after removal of canvas box. Spray thoroughly when insects first appear.
Onions.	Thrips — (Very tiny black insects that cause elongated white spots on plants).	Hand pick bugs and eggs. Wet gunnysacks make good traps.	As soon as bugs appear.
	Onion maggot — (Small whitish maggots attacking bulb).	Same as for beans.	Same as for beans.
Potatoes, Egg Plant, Peppers.	Colorado potato beetle — (Terrapin shaped yellow striped beetle, and reddish larvae).	Sprays as for aphis.
	Flea beetles — (Small black or brown beetles that jump quickly).	Trap the adults, which are two winged flies, by spraying nearby vegetation with sweetened arsenical.	Spray or dust plants just as soon as old bugs appear. They lay eggs on plants. Repeat about time eggs begin to hatch.
	Jassids — (Leafhoppers that cause tip-burn of leaves).	Arsenical spray—(1) Arsenate of lead powder, 2 lbs. to 50 gal. water. (2) Paris green, 1 lb. to 50 gal. water plus 2 lbs. fresh stone lime. Arsenical dust — 1 tablespoonful Paris green or 2 tablespoonfuls arsenate of lead to 1 qt. air-slaked lime or flour.
Sweet Corn.	Corn ear worm(Striped worm in tip of ear).	Arsenate of lead in Bordeaux mixture—1 lb. to 50 gal. of 3-4-50 Bordeaux.	Spray early and strike underside of eaves.
Tomatoes.	Aphis.	3-4-50 Bordeaux mixture plus 5 lbs. slaked lime.	Spray about the first week in June.
Any kind of garden truck.	Cutworms.	Arsenate of lead powder—3 lbs. to 1 lb. flour or sulphur.	Dust silks while they are fresh. Cheese cloth bag or powder gun is good to use.
	Grasshoppers.	Same as for beans.	Same as for beans.
		Poisoned bran mash.	Apply in evening.
		Poisoned bran mash.	Apply in early morning.

PRESENTATION TO REV. M'CONNACHIE

Stewart Hall and Centreville Congregations United to Honor Minister.

The home of Mr. Stuart Thompson was the scene of a friendly gathering last week, when the friends and neighbors of the community gather to give Mr. and Mrs. Finnie a farewell presentation.

Mr. and Mrs. Finnie are leaving South Monaghan to reside in Peterboro. The following address was read by the Rev. R. M. Patterson:

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Finnie.

Dear Friends,—The author of that beautiful hymn, "Abide With Me," says in one of his verses, "Change and decay in all around I see," and we have no doubt as to the truth of his statement. The change and decay he reminds us of are the slow imperceptible kind, but there are changes that come to us which are somewhat of a shock to the even tenor of our way. Decay is slow and often unobserved but most changes are very sudden. Some at least are of this nature, and while we are quietly going about our daily tasks with no thought as what may happen next week or next year we are suddenly confronted with an experience which interrupts the quiet of our lives and in a short time we find ourselves in comparatively new surroundings, making new friends and adjusting ourselves to new conditions.

It is in just such an experience we find ourselves to-day. You are trying to adjust yourselves to new conditions and circumstances, while we, observing this process, are wondering how we are going to adjust ourselves to the conditions in which we find ourselves when you have taken up your residence in another community. Your many years of faithful, loyal and efficient services to our church and community have so endeared you to us that your places will be extremely hard to fill. In all departments of church and community life you have been an ever present help. However, our sense of loss is somewhat compensated by the knowledge we have that you will not be a great distance from us, and also that the fact that another community will come to know and value you for your true worth and help and services which have been so cheerfully given here.

We would not presume to even attempt a reward, but we do wish to express our appreciation of you and what you have done. So we ask you to accept from your friends of Bensfort Church and community this silver tea service, and may it often prove a pleasant reminder of happy days gone by and a token of well wishes and sincere prayers for you and yours that you may be spared for many years to come, to enjoy the quiet of a well-earned rest.

Signed in behalf,

Mrs. Jno. Emberson.
Mrs. E. J. Barnard.
Mrs. Wm. Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. Finnie thanked their many friends in a few well-chosen words, after which Rev. R. M. Patterson, who was also a guest of the evening, and who is leaving the township for Janetville, was presented with handsome field-glasses and an address by Mr. Wm. Emberson, steward of Bensfort Church.

Dear Mr. Patterson,—As the time is at hand when your ministry among us must close, the members and other attendant hearers of the Bensfort Church, desire to express in some measure their appreciation of your labor of love.

In all sincerity, we can say in the words of the poet, "A man he was to all the country dear." We believe that every one who has listened to your teaching and guidance has been benefitted and blest thereby, and brought nearer to the kingdom of Heaven.

As a memento of our regard for yourself and Mrs. Patterson, we ask you to accept this small tribute of the high esteem in which we hold you both.

We are pleased to have found in you a firm adherent, and a strong and vigorous advocate of the cause so lately espoused by our own and sister denominations; we hope your further efforts toward that end may be blest with success; and also pray that ere long the day shall dawn when all the Church of the Living God shall rule triumphant under one Lord, one faith and one baptism in the true sense of the word.

Signed in behalf of the congregation,

W. C. Wood.
Wm. Emberson.

Mr. Patterson thanked his congregation and friends, saying that he had enjoyed the work at Bensfort very much.

The evening drew to a close when a dainty lunch was served by the ladies, and all joined in community singing.

TRUCK DRIVER KILLED.

Kingston Taxi Man Had Joined Travelling

KINGSTON, June 5.—It was established Thursday that the right name of the man who was killed while performing stunts with an automobile at New Westminster on Monday is Ross Jackson and not Ross Swayne, the name given in despatches. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson, Alfred street, this city, and left here some time ago to work as a taxi driver in Sturgeon Falls, where he became efficient as a trick driver, joining a travelling show, he was with the show to which he belonged in North Bay for some time, leaving for British Columbia on March 27 of this year.

His mother knew nothing of his death until shown a despatch this afternoon and was quite overcome.

A GOOD BARGAIN

INDEPENDENCE, Kas., June 5.—When this city decided to repave a street, it received $7 per 1,000 for the old bricks. The bricks cost the city only $6 per 1,000 17 years ago.

THE BOY THEY CAN'T HANG

BERNARD GRANT

(By Roy Gibbons.)

CHICAGO, June 5.— Fate, shuffling the deck again, dealt an ace to Bernard Grant.

The 21-year-old youth, whose hair is turning snow white, laughed.

For almost three years he has occupied a cell in condemned row at the county jail here.

Five times the wardens have erected a gallows to hang him.

And as many times he has escaped by reprieves from the governor.

So they call him "lucky Grant," and "the man they cannot hang."

Cells Filled When Grant Came.

When Bernard, as a youth of 19, came to death row the cells were pretty well filled.

He and a companion were found guilty of killing a policeman in 1922 during a robbery.

The court which originally sentenced him to die fixed the date of execution months ahead.

Grant spent the intervening days in the usual way. He played cards and grew expert at them.

Now in the cards he reads his fate.

Preparing For Hanging.

They were preparing to hang him once more the other day when he got a new stay.

The hammers had been busy on the scaffold and he could hear the weighted bags dropping, in testing the rope end on which the law again planned to snap out his life.

But through the ordeal the youth with the white hair never quavered.

"I'll get off again," he told the death patrol set to watch him.

"See the aces in this hand!"

And Grant's prediction came true.

By a ruling of the supreme court his partner in crime, Walter Krauser, convicted of the same murder, was granted a new trial.

Until that is over Grant shall live, though others less lucky, who cannot "read the cards," pass through the dreaded green door at the end of the runway—the door swings but one way—into eternity.

HOLD FORTY-HOUR DEVOTION SERVICE

At St. Paul's Church—W.M. S. Members Hear Reports of Presbyterial.

NORWOOD, June 5.—A forty-hour devotion service is being held in St. Paul's Roman Catholic church, Norwood.

The Unionist members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church held a meeting in Tuesday afternoon at home of Mrs. Hugh Robb. A report of the Presbyterial held in Cobourg on Wednesday and Thursday of last week was given by (Mrs. Rev.) T. M. Wesley. Refreshments were served after the meeting by the hostess.

A meeting of the non-concurring members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. John E. Roxburgh on Tuesday afternoon. A report of the Presbyterial held in Cobourg was given by Mrs. W. D. Robson.

Rev. W. P. Rogers, pastor of the Methodist church, Norwood is in Belleville this week attending the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Rev. T. Wesley left on Wednesday for Toronto to attend the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in Canada now being held in that city.

Laying Oil.

The car load of oil ordered some time ago by the village council has arrived and workmen are busily engaged giving the streets a coating of the fluid.

W. Lytle of Peterboro has a gang of men engaged at putting in some concrete work on the war memorial plot. The work is being done for the 40th Northumberland Chapter I.O.D.E.

Norwood was deserted on Wednesday afternoon. A large number of the citizens attended the big celebration held in Havelock, while others went fishing and picnicking.

Severe electric storms visited Norwood the first of the week but no damage has been done other than a few fuses blown out.

CONDITIONS IN SOVIET RUSSIA CAUSED RETURN

Envoy of Doukhobors Brings Adverse Report to Senders.

WERE TO RETURN

System of Land Tenure Intolerable and Lawlessness Rampant.

SASKATOON, Sask., June 5. — (Canadian Press). — Thoroughly disillusioned with regard to conditions in Soviet Aussia, Sam Semenoff, of Kinley, Sask., returned to the West recently, after a three months' trip, which he took as representative of 100 Doukhobor families, former residents of Russia, who contemplated returning there.

Mr. Semenoff had the advantage of meeting practically all the heads of the Soviet Government at Moscow, and in addition, was privileged to spend a month with the peasantry in their village, a privilege not extended ordinarily to foreign investigators.

"I do not know what action the people who sent me will take after I have made my report, but I will never leave Canada to make my home in Russia under such conditions as I saw," said Mr. Semenoff.

Two Doukhobor representatives had visited Russia two or three years ago on the same mission as Mr. Semenoff and had brought back glowing accounts of the beauty of the country, its fertility and freedom accorded the people. Mr. Semenoff's mission was to see if this report was correct, and if it was still advisable to migrate.

In the southern part of the country, along the Don river, he found the land all that it had been described; much of it better than in Western Canada; black loam nine feet deep and level. Sometimes good water was difficult to get. But beyond these natural advantages, little favorable could be said. The sysem of land tenure was intolerable, and was largely responsible for the peasants being on the verge of starvation. In the cities lawlessness was rampant, industry was practicaaly dead and the commercial life of the country at a low ebb.

It was when he got out among the peasantry that Mr. Semenoff obtained a true picture of agricultural life in Russia today. The farmers had no chance to make a living. They had not votes, only Communists having the franchise and were unable to exercise any influence on the government to improve their conditions.

Mr. Semenoff was shown beautiful land, virgin prairie, once the property of the gentry, which he and his people could obtain. But though there were millions of acres of such lands, all the government would grant was a life interest in seven and one half acres per head, counting each member of the family. No definite parcel would be allotted a different parcel in the same district would be given each year. This was the system on which those now engaged in agriculture, occupied the land.

This obviously objectionable system, Mr. Semenoff declared, reflected itself in the mode of living of the peasants. Their diet for the most part was coarse bread and water. The season had been dry last year and the potatoe crop failed In addition to the bread, they made soup by boiling cabbage, rice or wheat with water. It contained no meat or fat of any kind. The children were mere skeletons. In one village, the people he had once known were so emaciated he did not recognize them.

He found the Doukhobors, he visited, anixous to migrate to Canada. These were not community Doukhobors, but ordinary independent farmers, interested in the education of their children, and of an altogether progressive type. Needless to say, he remarked, there were no schools there.

Mr. Semenoff found the Russian government anxious to buy horses in Canada.

TORONTO ELEVENTH

Competition in British Isles to Name Progressive Cities.

LONDON, June 5.—(Canadian Press.—In a competition throughout the British Islands in aid of the hospital competitors were required to name, in order of merit, the twelve most progressive cities of the British Empire.

The voting resulted as follows: 1. London, 2. Liverpool, 3. Birmingham, 4. Manchester, 5. Glasgow; 6. Sydney, 7. Montreal, 9. Melbourne, 9. Sheffield, 10 Calcutta, 11. Toronto, 12. Bombay.

AND A JOKER, TOO

LONDON, June 5.—King Feisall of Mesopotamia is just learning the western game of poker. In a recent game, he announced he had four kings. When he laid down his hand, he had only three, and a player had nerve enough to call his attention to it. "Ah, I'm the fourth," the king replied.

ALBERT COLLEGE AT BELLEVILLE WILL COST A MILLION DOLLARS REPORT TO QUINTE CONFERENCE

$80,000 Must Be Raised By July 1 to Obtain $27,500 Promised.

FIRST SESSIONS.

Rev. C. W. Barrett, of Stirling, Elected President of the Conference.

BELLEVILLE, June 5 (Special)—The Bay of Quinte Conference now assembled in Bridge Street Methodist Church, held Albert College night on Wednesday evening. The statistical report given by W. B. Deacon, chairman of the board, was as follows: The college site of 52 acres, and valued at $28,000 was given by the city council and is along the highway leading from Montreal to Toronto, and close by the Bay of Quinte. Dr. E. N. Baker, B.A., D.D., and principal for the last twelve years has been instrumental in securing an average of $50,000 per year for the last nine years Two men have donated $50,000 each and two others $25,000 each to this work, while several others have given $5,000 each. Approximately $500,000 has been spent; $207,000 is needed before the enterprise of the New Albert will be far enough advanced to permit occupation, which is expected will take place in September 1926. The sum of $80,000 must be secured before July 1st, 1925, to obtain $27,500 which has been promised on the ground that the balance be forthcoming before the above date. The new buildings when completed, will house 325 students, the auditorium will accommodate over 700 and the dining room 312. The entire equipment will equal the best in Canada. The total cost when all is completed is estimated at $1,000,000.

Solid for Union

In the Pastoral address on Thursday morning it was pointed out that Methodism has 414,000 members, 240,000 families and our annual income of $10,000,000. Rev. J. S. Inson of Brighton, who gave the address said, Union is an urgent necessity. In not one conference has there been a congregation that has taken a vote and not a minister in the whole connection has taken a non-concurrent stand. Methodism carries her principles, her history and her ideals with her into the new United Church.

A message was read from Dr. S. D. Chown general superintendent, who found it impossible to be present and who urged his people individually "To think of what a man ought to be, and be that man."

Seventy-five laymen and 117 ministers registered on Thursday morning. Rev. Charles W. Barrett, of Stirling, and chairman of Campbellford District, was elected President of the conference on the first ballot; 179 ballets wore cast, Mr. Barrett received 91, which was considered excellent considering that more than fifteen members of the conference were in the running.

Personality in Ministry

Rev. J. E. Hughson, D.D., of Hamilton, addressed the conference on "The Man with a Mission and a Message." The ministry, he said, is a call to play the man. Character will count more than cloth. The ministry will fail if there is not a man back of it. Personality is the greatest thing in the world. Ministers must be men among men. What ministers do will count for more than what they say. The most important thing about a man's ministry is himself. What kind of man is he.

Men should enter the ministry not because they seek opportunities of doing good but because they have heard a call from God. On the so-called weak and insignificant field the minister should be seized with the vision, "Am I big enough to lay the foundations for future achievements in this place?" When a man is sent by God he would sooner preach on a mission field than be Premier of our Dominion.

The real man sent of God feels that the gospel is the only remedy and solution for all world problems. Other forces fail, but the gospel wins. The world moves on with Jesus or back to confusion. Men to lead must have their eyes open to the light and be willing to learn new truths. They must forge their way onward even in the face of obstructions, believing Jesus to be the solution of it all. This century will discover the moral and spiritual forces at work and will realize them in the practice of the "Golden Rule" and "The Sermon on the Mount."

The church must reveal the unselfish and sacrificial spirit of Jesus. The secret life of the minister will be revealed in all he does.

The present calls ministers to be their best and the future calls them to do their best.

SERMON ON HOPE BURNBRAE CHURCH

"The Last Thing in the World" Was Theme Taken by Minister.

BURNBRAE, June 5.—"The last thing in the world, Hope," was the Rev. Mr. McKenzie's sermon theme on Sunday last. His text was Romans, 8:24, "For we are saved by hope.' This was the second of a series of three sermons. On Sunday, May 24 his theme was, "The first thing in the world, Faith." Next week his topic will be "The greatest thing in the world." Next Sunday is also the regular communion service.

The Young People's Guild meeting was not held on Monday evening owing to the severe storm. Next Monday the Guild visits the Epworth League at Campbellford.

This district, fortunately, escaped serious damage in Monday night's violent storm. The worst feature in the eyes of the sporting element was the postponement of the baseball match with Seymour West. The game, which was played on the Fair grounds, was called at the end of the third inning, owing to darkness, caused by the approaching storm. At this time the Burnbrae team were leading 10 to 1, and looked like sure winners. Eagleson was pitching great ball the westerners only obtaining two hits, one being decidedly scratchy. Burnbrae hitting the opposing pitchers, Atkinson and West, hard and often. It is expected that the game will have to be replayed at the end of the season.

The heavy rain accompanying the electric storms of Monday and warm weather following, have combined to start a rapid growth and the fields which looked withered and bare last week, are now beginning to look like a real crop.

MEMORIAL SERVICE AT GORE'S LANDING

Late Edwin Harris Was Well Known at Rice Lake Resort.

COBOURG, June 5.—St. George's Church, Gore's Landing, was filled with friends and relatives from this district on Monday when a memorial service was conducted by the rector for the late Edwin Harris, general merchant and for many years a prominent citizen of that place. Mr. Harris was in his 80th year and his life, personality and business acumen are inseparably linked with the community life and progress of that pretty Rice Lake village. Mr. Harris is survived by his widow, a daughter of the late Thomas France, a Junior School teacher in that locality and by one son, Pascoe Harris, Gore's Landing. A sister, Mrs. Braethwaite resides with her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Currie in Toronto, and brother, Thomas Harris, also resides in Toronto.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN MURRAY.

MARMORA, June 5. — There passed away on Tuesday evening, June 2nd at the residence of her son James in Marmora township, Mary, relict of the late John Murray, at an advanced age. She is survived by four sons, which are James and John, farmers of Marmora township, Martin, resident in Saskatchewan, and Joseph, medical surgeon of Ottawa. Three daughters also mourn her loss in the persons of Mrs. McDonald of Orillia, Mrs. Clinton Meljel, of Stirling, and another who is a Sister in the House of Providence, Kingston. Other children predeceased her. The funeral takes place on Friday, leaving her late residence at 9 a.m. and proceeding to Sacred Heart church for requiem mass. Interment will be in the R. C. cemetery. Deceased was very highly respected by all who knew her.

KILLS BUMPS

This man, Alden L. Putnam, inventor of the balloon tire, may be the center of an extensive patent ligitation in the next few months. He hurried to Lansing, Mich., from the west last week to assist the Motor Wheel Corp. in defense of the right to collect royalties for the invention.

MANY CASES IN COBOURG COURT

Railway and Highway Accidents Contributed to Large Docket.

DAMAGE SUITS

COBOURG, June 5.—The County Court and General Sessions of the Peace will open here next Tuesday, before His Honor Judge Cameron, and an interesting docket is at hand.

Bingham vs. Jarvis is an action from Hope township. The plaintiff and defendant live on adjoining farms, and plaintiff claims $400 for deprivation of land and loss of some trees on the boundary line, and other damages. D. C. Chisholm, Port Hope, for plaintiff, W. F. McMahon, for defendant.

Male vs. Canadian National Railways. The plaintiff in this case is a resident of the village of Brighton, who claims that while he was driving a truck near the depot in that village, on the 21st of July, 1924, a freight train struck the rig and he was thrown out into the caboose of the train and was seriously injured. Bicknell, O'Brien and Forgie, for plaintiff, R. E. Laidlaw, for the defendant railway.

Quick vs. Canadian National Railway, is an action in connection with the same accident, brought by Grant Quick of Brighton for damage to truck which George Male was driving on July 21, 1924. Mr. Quick is asking for $200 damages. The same counsel are engaged in this case as in the previous one.

John T. Gordon, a manufacturer in the village of Colborne has brought action against Geo. Pearce, a gardener, and the latter's wife, Alice Pearce. Plaintiff claims $100 damages from defendant for use and occupation of part of lot 126. W. T. Payne, K.C., Colborne, for plaintiff, Kerr and Cochrane, for defendant.

Smith vs. Graham is an action from Bewdley. Plaintiff keeps motorboats for hire and acts as a guide for fishermen. He claims that on August 17, 1924, he was walking on the Provincial Highway in Bewdley and defendant was riding his bicycle and collided with him and caused him serious injury. He was unable it is alleged to operate his motorboat for fourteen days and claims $140 damages from loss of revenue, for pain and suffering, $75, doctor's bills, $33.50, making a total of $248.50. W. F. McMahon, for plaintiff, D. C. Chisholm for dependant.

Samuel James Henry vs. Hardie Manufacturing Company of Petrolia, Lambton county. In this the plaintiff claims $535.62, commission on sale of spraying machines and accessories, in accordance, it is alleged, with a contract entered into at Bowmanville by plaintiff with the defendants in August, 1921, whereby plaintiff was appointed sales agent, and was also to receive certain commissions. E. S. Sinclair, Bowmanville, for plaintiff, J. Greenigan, for defendant.

Suspended Sentence for Tyler.

When Henry Tyler, formerly of Hastings, who was found guilty last week on a charge of bigamy, came before Judge Cameron for sentence, he was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Found Not Guilty.

Judge Ward presided in place of Judge Cameron at a session of the County Judge's Court last Friday, when an alleged theft case from Bowmanville was ventilated. Mrs. Theresa Burgess was charged by her husband, Charles Burgess, with theft of some furniture, and John Barrett was charged with assisting her. Mr. and Mrs. Burgess apparently did not live happily together and an altercation arising some time ago, it was alleged, that the husband told his wife to get out. She went away but is alleged to have returned, and with Barrett's assistance, removed some furniture from the house, hence the charge. Mrs. Burgess claimed the furniture was her own, and she and the other defendant, Mr. Barrett, were found not guilty.

Judge Ward, however, delivered some sound advice in giving his decision. W. F. Kerr, K.C., for the Crown; F. D. Boggs, K.C., for Mrs. Burgess; A. R. Willmott for Mr. Barrett.

Gets Trial June 22.

J. W. Wheeler came up before Judge Cameron and was arraigned and is to stand trial on June 22 on a charge of bigamy.

WHEEL CHAIR TOURIST.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 5. — James Thompson, an invalid for 10 years, is propelling his way across the country from Clovis, N.M., to New York, in a wheel chair. On arriving here, he said he sometimes makes 35 miles a day with the assistance of lifts from trucks.

A British scientist has figured out that there is approximately 80 cents worth of gold in 25 tons of sea water.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY SEES GAMBLING GROWING IN CANADA

Social Service Board's Recommendation Lacking "Teeth and Claws."

BACK TO COMMITTEE.

TORONTO, June 5.—(Canadian Press).—Strong expression of the belief that something should be done by the church to discourage gambling in Canada was voiced in the Presbyterian General Assembly this afternoon. The board on social service had recommended that the federal government be asked to reconsider proposed amendments to the criminal code which, they said, would permit of the operation of wheels of fortune and other games of chance at exhibitions and agricultural society fairs.

Rev. J. S. Henderson of Vancouver objected to the proposal as lacking in "teeth and claws." "In Canada," he said, "we are developing very rapidly a race of gamblers, whoever is responsible. It seems to be a public scandal that the religious forces have not sufficient moral courage to rise up and press the governments of Canada to do something to stem the tide of gambling which is corrupting the youth of the country." A lay delegate declared it was time the church was speaking out and igving the people leadership. Agricultural society fairs were becoming kindergartens for the racing meets, he said.

Rev. Dr. J. W. Gordon of Winnipeg told the Assembly a new race track was being built in Winnipeg to take "a few more millions" from the people. He moved, and the Assembly adopted the suggestion, that the resolution go back to the committee for a clause to be added expressing more adequately their condemnation of gambling.

The Assembly declared itself against the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage; urged increased instruction on the harmful effects of alcohol as an "imperative necessity"; and expressed the belief that recent amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act introduced "a dangerous experiment certain to aggravate rather than diminish the evils of intemperance."

Reference to Union.

There was only casual mention of Church Union during the day, but there were cheers for incidental mention of the pending consummation in addresses by Rev. J. W. Pedley and Rev. A. L. Richards, fraternal delegates from the Congregational Union of Canada. Mr. Richards said Congregationalists viewed the pending union with "joy and passion," an they felt they were going to be intensely happy in the fellowship of the United Church. Mr. Pedley remarked that while his denomination was a small one, yet it had made its mark on the religious life of the past three centuries. He loved his church and it would be hard to give it up. He understood the argument of those who gave such a reason of opposition to Union, but the argument was not good enough.

Another reference to the pending changes came when J. K. Macdonald presented the report of the committee on aged and infirm ministers, of which he has been convenor of forty years. A commissioner pointed out that they might not have the opportunity again of expressing appreciation of Mr. Macdonald's services during that period, and so a very codial resolution was passed. Annuities paid from this fund during the year amounted to $75,705.72. The Assembly decided to continue for another year the bonus of 25 per cent.

Home Mission Work.

The report of the home mission board, with it coupled the report on social service, was presented by J. H. Edmison, the secretary, who touched briefly on various aspects of the work. "Our church believes in the doctrine of the second chance," he said, referring to girls' rescue homes. He said a recent survey showed 1,113 school sections in Saskatchewan, nearly all English-speaking districts, without church or Sunday school. They could use 140 missionaries in that province alone. Mr. Edmison said this was his fourteenth report, and probably his last. Two superintendents had resigned as from June 10 over the Church Union controversy, he told the Assembly, and the board was given authority to make temporary provision to fill their places. They are Rev. Wm. Simons, superintendent in Northern Alberta, and Rev. W. A. Cameron, superintendent in Northern Saskatchewan.

Dr. Colin Young, who is in charge of the board's work among non-Anglo-Saxons, said there were 65 nationalities represented in Canada, meeting on the common ground of Canadian nationlaity. "We can look forward to the time," he said, "when a great people will be born into the citizenship of this country, combining the best qualities of all of these races." Was the organized church doing its best to reach the non-Anglo-Saxons? he asked. He said that not more than 10 per cent. of Italians in Canada ever went to any place of worship, and not more than 20 per cent. of Hebrews. What was the future for the Protestant church if it failed to make an appeal to these new Canadians? There was none, he answered. There would be great stretches of Western Canada where no Protestant church would live unless they made a successful appeal to the non-Anglo-Saxons.

A resolution expressing deepest regret at the death of Rev. Dr. J. G. Shearer was adopted by a standing vote. Rev. Dr. Gordon called him "a great Canadian, a distinguished Presbyterian."

Reaffirm Doctrine.

The Assembly sent on to various committees for consideration and report, a number of overtures from synods and presbyteries. One, from the synod of Manitoba, considered but not passed by that body, set out that it had been alleged that "some of the text books used in theological colleges in Toronto are modernistic in their teaching," and asked the Assembly to "reaffirm its faith in the great fundamentals of our Church as set forth in our Confession of Faith and Catechisms." The Assembly was asked also in the resolution to require all those in representative positions to be loyal to the doctrinal standards of the Church, and all text books used in their theological colleges to be in conformity with the same standards, or to adopt "such other measures as shall be most effectual for guarding against the teaching of modernistic doctrines in our theological colleges." There is no certainty that the resolution will be brought down for debate.

Another overture, this from the Presbytery of Montreal, asked for the removal of Principal D. J. Fraser of the Presbyterian College in that city, because he was publicly identified with the anti-church union movement, and the appointment as acting principal of Rev. E. D Welsh. The Presbytery of Calgary asked for the creation of an immigration board, with synodical boards, "for the purpose of promoting Protestant immigration in Canada." The Alberta Synod asked that public opinion be educated to demand that war be made a crime, and that there be a quarterly Sunday School lesson on the questions of war and peace.

FIT TOURISTS' CARS WITH TRACK WHEELS

Enable Railways to Transport Them to North Country.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 4.—(Canadian Press).—A procession of tourists driving into the picturesque northland on their own family motor cars, fitted with flanged rims to grip the rails of the Hudson Bay line, is the ingenious scheme proposed by R. M. Haultain, a railway construction engineer of Winnipeg.

Mr. Haultain believes that such traffic over the government railway will present no difficulties. To obviate any danger of accidents, he would placard the line to the effect that the add days of the month would be reserved for northbound traffic and the even days for southbound. Each car would be required to carry a light derailing shoe, to provide for emergencies.

The investment on the part of the railways company in flanged rims, trailers, steering gear locks, etc., would be negligible, declared Mr. Haultain, when compared with the increased revenue obtained from freighting cars to different points along the Hudson Bay line.

Mr. Haultain has complete confidence in the feasibility of the scheme and maintains that the North country would ultimately become the mecca of sport lovers and attract tourists to the profitable advantage of the Canadian National system. The line could be placed in the revenue producing class as the "World's Most Unique Motor Highway," he contended. Mr. Haultain proposes to submit his idea to the railway authorities.

Hogs shipped from here yesterday railway authorities.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

MAJORITY REPRESENTATION

The Editor of The Examiner:
Dear sir:

I do not swim, and I have no soul for music, but this argument seems to be open to anyone and I wish to have my say. Last January, like a good many others, I voted for the Aldermen on the supposition that I was voting for men who would represent me and the other citizens of Peterboro'. It is humiliating to think that majority rule has lost its place in this city and that ten men can impose on 21,000 people any regulations their freakish minds conceive.

Let the Aldermen look to the wishes of the people. Let them forget their own small ideas and endeavour to get a broader outlook on life. There's lots they can do within their own spheres without going out looking for trouble.

ONE OF THE MAJORITY.

SUPPORTS COUNCIL?

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The City Council was quite right in closing the bathing beaches on Sunday. And in stopping band concerts too. And I don't have to give reason any more than the Aldermen do. That's the rule of this game. It's up to the audience to guess what's behind the move.

It's a good Summer pastime and everyone can join in.

GUESSER.

P.S. I haven't found the answer yet myself.

LET THE TRY AGAIN.

The Editor of The Examiner,
Dear sir:

The City Council should open the question of Sunday bathing again, and the Mayor should call a special meeting immediately to deal with it. There is no use in their beating around the bush in a case like this. They had better come out into the open and display their wares.

If such atrocities as stopping Sunday bathing at beaches the people pay for, and stopping Sunday concerts that the people pay for are to be perpetrated by the members of the Council, then the sooner we have a different form of government the better. That is not representation of the people. It is a display of narrow-mindedness by a party of men who happen to have the authority to temporarily put over their schemes.

There is only one honorable thing for Mayor Turner to do. That is call the Council together in special session, explain the rights of that body and tell of its limitations, and let every man declare himself.

Aldermen Phelan and Denne are to be congratulated in their lone stand for the people's rights, and the remaining eight should be given an opportunity to get wise to themselves.

J. F. B.

HOW ABOUT IT, PARENTS?

The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—The question of Sunday bathing and Sunday band concerts resolves itself into a question of comparative evils, evidently. The problem—if there is any problem—is whether the parents of Peterboro would rather have their children swimming at one of the beaches or attending the band concert, or, as an alternative careening over the highways in car-loads, parking by the roadside, risking life and soul. Surely there is safety for young people and security for children, and assurance for parents, when the crowded Victoria park is a rendezvous on Sunday nights.

And the voice of the people should prevail. Let the City Council give what the majority of the people so obviously desire, or show reason why they should retain their seats.

SAFETY FIRST.

D. R. FLETCHER PRESIDENT OF BELMONT RELIGIOUS COUNCIL

Township Convention of Ontario Religious Educational Council in Havelock.

NEED OF TRAINING.

HAVELOCK, June 3.—The Belmont Township Convention of the Ontario Religious Educational Council was held on Monday evening in the United Church. The meeting was opened at 8.20 with Mr. Fletcher in the chair. A hymn was sung and Rev. Mr. Seymour led in prayer. The scripture reading was given by Mrs. James Freeman, followed by the chairman's address.

An address was given by Rev. Mr. Herrington of Cordova Mines, President of the Association for the past year. This address emphasized the importance of experience and the necessity of trained leaders in religious education. Training shows the leader the religious life of individuals so as to enable him to know what particular message to give to the group with which he is dealing. For instance the "Religious Experience" of the hardened sinner who becomes converted is entirely foreign to the life of young children, therefore it is futile to try to give them a lesson involving this. More important than training are consecration and interest on the part of the leader.

The Christian Adventure.

After another hymn was sung an address was given by Rev. Mr. Harris of Toronto entitled "The Christian Adventure." The Christian Adventure calls for a spirit of devotion. This spirit is exhibited in patriotism, scientific research, and is necessary in religion in particular and in the ordinary work of life in general. The Christian Adventure also calls for a spirit of fellowship. The spirit of fellowship is a result of the natural urge of humanity for companionship. The spirit of fellowship in Christian life must not be carried to the point of exclusiveness as this defeats its purpose.

The third requirement of the Christian Adventure is a spirit of freedom. A great deal too much is made of the "don't's" of religion. Jesus said "I am come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly." The "don't's" are necessary only as provisions for safety. The freedom of one who knows what he should not do as well as what he can do is greater than that of one who has no knowledge.

A short discussion followed this address.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected:—President—D. R. Fletcher; vice-President—Mrs. James Freeman; Secy-Treasurer—Gordon Denike; Department Superintendents: Children's Dept.—Mrs. (Dr.) Holdcroft; Girl's Work—Mrs. C. H. Roberts; Boy's Work—A. C. Denike; Young People's Work—Earl Pollock; Adult Dept.—Mrs. (Dr.) Thompson; Home Dept.—Mrs. A. Anderson; Teacher Training Dept.—Miss G. Brewster.

The closing hymn was sung and the meeting closed with prayer by Mr. Herrington.

Floglaze

The Finish that Endures

Painting Is a Paying Investment

The best investment for the protection of property is a good paint or varnish. Fire may never touch your buildings, but the destroying elements of the weather are constantly attacking exterior surfaces. Floors and interior surfaces are subject to wear. Paints and varnishes are the only effective means of giving protection against wear and the weather. Both have become a necessity in economical upkeep of property. Investment in their use pays in conserved property and improved appearance.

THE BEST PAINT PAYS BEST

Floglaze Paints and Enamels

25% Better Painting 25% Greater Paint Value

You can buy other paints at a lower price per gallon than FLOGLAZE, but you cannot obtain anything like FLOGLAZE paint value.

One trial of FLOGLAZE will soon prove this. FLOGLAZE finishes show no brush marks. Each one self-levels to a smooth enamel-like surface that does not gather or hold dirt. FLOGLAZE gives a denser and greater covering capacity by 25%. FLOGLAZE durability has proven beyond a doubt that it gives by far the lowest annual service cost per thousand square feet of any paint, no matter what its price per gallon may be.

There Is a Floglaze Line for Every Purpose

Exterior Paint for inside and outside Painting.

Porch and Veranda Paint for interior and exterior floors.

Flat Shades for furniture, woodwork and floors.

PORT HOPE CHURCH HAS CALLED PASTOR

Father of Rev. J. B. Skene Was Pastor at Havelock for 16 Years.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HASTINGS, June 5.—Rev. D. A. Thomson went to Port Hope Wednesday morning to attend a special meeting of the Peterboro' Presbytery, summoned to deal with the call to the Presbyterian Church of that town to Rev. J. B. Skene of Huntsville. The ministers in attendance were: Rev. J. S. Ferguson of Baltimore (moderator); Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings (clerk); Rev. W. A. Bremner of Cobourg; Rev. G. I. Craw of Springville (interim moderator); Rev. G. W. Goodwill of Cobourg; Rev. P. McCord of Havelock, Rev. C. F. McIntosh of Campbellford, and Hugh Conner of Cobourg, and H. Walker, of Port Hope, elders.

The call was unanimous, being signed by 229 members and 59 adherents. The congregation, which has decided to remain out of the union, guarantees a stipend of $2,000 a year with a manse and one month's holidays.

To Rev. G. I. Craw was left the duty of dealing with the call before the Presbytery, to which Mr. Skene now belongs, as well as arranging the date for the induction. At that induction the moderator of the new Presbytery will preside and address the minister, the sermon will be preached by the most recently inducted minister, and Rev. G. I. Craw will address the people.

Rev. J. B. Skene is a son of Rev. James Skene, who was pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Havelock for 16 years.

CLERGYMAN LEAVES WARSAW CHURCH

Rev. W. L. Atkinson is Returning to Toronto—People Are Undecided.

WARSAW, June 5.—Next Sunday morning, Rev. W. L. Atkinson will preach his last sermon to Warsaw people, as he is returning to Toronto. Just what the Warsaw Presbyterian congregation will do is as yet undecided.

Sunday evening last Rev. F. G. Weir preached from "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life." The preacher dwelt more on the eternal life, which is God's continual gift. He spoke of the means of obtaining eternal life, and showed that that life began here, is all around, if the Master is obeyed.

Next Sunday will be a historical day for the Methodist Church. It will be the last Sunday of the Methodist Church as a Methodist Church; after that it will be the United Church of Canada. Because of this Mr. Weir plans to return from Conference in Belleville and take the Sunday services.

There was the regular service in the Anglican Church.

The play given by the St. Luke's young people, "Adventures of Grandpa," in aid of St. Mark's Church, on Friday evening last, was a great success. Those who saw it report that it was the very best entertainment that had ever been in Warsaw. The house was full of pleased spectators. The young people gave some songs and recitations, as well as the play, and the Warsaw orchestra assisted. At the close of the evening's entertainment, those who took part were entertained for about an hour, and the visitors went away much pleased with their reception.

Pastor Pinkerton preached in the Baptist Church to a fairly good congregation.

Mrs. Alex. Watts returned home on Saturday.

Eggs on Saturday were bringing an average of 26c in the stores.

Scarlet tanagers and orioles were seen last week. The foliage came out very rapidly when the warmer days had come. By the end of the week many apple trees were white. The blossoms opened slowly, and seemed to remain a long time, but they seem to have gone on all right after their chilling a week ago. The only thing reported as really being injured is corn that was up and clover. The latter was not killed but apparently stunted.

Potatoes were planted largely last week, also some corn. Some early potatoes are up.

Mrs. Thos H. Crowe entertained the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid, as well as her near neighbors, on Thursday afternoon. No special business was done. Work was continued on the quilt and house dresses. An invitation was extended to all the members of the Aid to attend an open meeting of the Methodist Missionary meeting in the Methodist basement on Thursday afternoon of this week.

At the next meeting of Warsaw Women's Institute Wednesday afternoon, June 10, to which all the ladies of the district are most cordially invited, Miss Ethel Martin, Departmental delegate, will speak on "The Family Table as a source of Happiness and Health," also on "Young Canadians as a Constructive Force in Rural Life." Light refreshments will be served at the close. The ladies, especially the members, are urged to be present at 2 o'clock, so that the annual business may be done and leave full time for Miss Martin.

Many will remember, with kindly feelings, Mrs. Stark's sister, Miss Smith, who spent a couple of summers here. Word came that, after a lingering illness, she passed away last Friday.

Mrs. Henry Little, after being ill for some time, is now in the hospital.

Mrs. James Hawthorne and two children are visiting relatives in Toronto and other places.

Miss Menzies is spending a few days with Mrs. Choate.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther and two sons visited friends in Warsaw Sunday.

In 1863 it required 1831 hours to make 100 pairs of shoes by hand. Now a modern shoe factory can turn out 50,000 in 24 hours.

WOMEN'S PAGE

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Misses Lillian Holyman and Bernice Hall Present Reports.

The annual birthday party of the Volunteer Bible Class of Knox Church was held last evening at the home of their teacher, Mrs. A. McKenzie, 544 Bolivar Street, when about twenty of the members gathered for supper and an enjoyable social evening, during which reports of the recent Cobourg convention of the Young Women's Missionary Auxiliary were read by the two delegates, the Misses Lillian Holyman and Berenice Hall. During the evening, the presentation of a handsome fern stand was made to Mrs. McKenzie, whom the girls honored at the conclusion by singing "Mother McKenzie" to the tune of "Mother Machree."

WHISPERS.

Dumb Doralinda, who has been trying to fathom baseball this spring, thinks that "After the Ball Is Over" had something to do with a home run.

"All statements about me appearing in print are misleading or untrue," says Bernard Shaw, and the supposition is that that statement is included.

Left-handed Compliments — My dear, you looked so nice I didn't know it was you.—Miggs.

Mr. Linotypist, You Are Fired!

Personal: After this date, I, Howard Hose, will not be held responsible for debts contracted by my wife's Rose Hose.—Woody.

Domestic Economy.

He: "But don't you cook much more dinner than we use, darling?"

She: "Of course, silly. If I didn't, how could I economize by making left-over dishes?"—Windsor Magazine.

LEFTHANDERS.

Lefthanders in 20 boys and 20 girls out of 6,192 children examined has been reported by A. Kapustin, a Russian physician. The condition was hereditary in a third of the cases. There was no evidence of diseases, but the lefthandedness seemed simply to indicate predominant activity of the right hemisphere of the brain. Special training of the left hand was favored, instead of any attempt to develop righthandedness.

Tobacco Safety.

In experiments by Dr. Georg Wolff, contact with tobacco smoke prevented the development of disease germs on media upon which they had been inoculated, but failed to kill any but the most sensitive of the germs in fully developed pure cultures.

LINGERIE COLLARS.

White crepe or lingeries collars and cuffs are featured on plain blue and black frocks. The jabot, too, is universally liked.

SOCIETY

Items for the Society Column must be received before 1 o'clock daily. Telephone numbers 1600 and 1601.

ARRANGE PARADE.

Members of Queen Alexandra Circle, A.O.F., Hold Meeting.

Members of the Queen Alexandra Circle, No. 136, A.O.F., held a meeting at the home of the District Deputy, Mrs. Wm. Stevens, Brock Street, last evening, when arrangements were made to attend the church parade at the Baptist Church in Port Hope on Sunday evening at seven o'clock.

TURBAN HIDES POLA'S BOB

When Pola Negri got to Paris she found her short bob wasn't quite the latest thing. So Pola got three jumps ahead of everybody else by introducing this silver band turban, which not only concealed her bob but put her right in fashion's front rank. And that's that.

PAPA LOVE MAMA? MAMA LOVE PAPA?

My husband accepts engagements and then leaves me to break them.

He simply can't say "no" to people who call up and ask us to come to little parties they're going to give next week. Instead, he tells them he's delighted to accept.

And then, about an hour later, he begins to realize what he's done. He says he just won't get all dressed up and spend the evening playing cards with the kind of a crowd he knows the Simpsons will have.

"I tell you what!" he always shouts at this point. "You call up Mabel Simpson to-morrow and tell her I made a mistake. Tell her you've had an engagement for that night for more than a month. Tell her—"

He's just full of ideas. He can think of a dozen excuses for me to use. He's positively enthusiastic on the subject.

And then he sulks for the rest of the evening when I tell him that the only way I know of to get out of engagements is to use a little brainwork just before you make them.

MEN HAVE DREAMS OF IDEAL WOMAN

Marriage is Rough Road at Best—Give Some Time to Your Husband.

There is scarcely a living man—no matter how rough he may seem—but has his dream of an ideal woman.

Most men marry their ideals. The disillusionment of married life comes when the wife falls short of the ideal.

She may start out sweet, soft-voiced, sympathetic and filled with understanding—as a bride.

But marriage is a rough road at best. It is filled with hard work and dullness and responsibility for any woman. And it isn't the easiest thing in the world to remain sweet and gentle under the circumstances, as any woman who wears a plain gold ring can tell you!

The wise wife is the one who makes up her mind that no matter what happens she will give some time to her husband every day. If he is tired at night, she might try reading aloud to him, or talking to him about interesting things — not household worries!

Cooking and darning and ironing are important parts of home-making. But none of them is as important a job as just being a pal to the man who picked you out for his life partner.

So many letters come to me from women who complain that they have lost their husband's love. I wonder if they ever really tried to keep it—in the right way? By holding their husband's interest? Try it, wives! It works.

BRAINLESS

It is told of a certain school professor that a girl student once asked him whether peroxiding the hair is injurious to the brain.

"No," replied the professor, positively.

"Why, I've heard it is," said the student.

"No," repeated the professor. "Any person who peroxides the hair has not any brain to injure."—London Tit-Bits.

NEED NOT SERVE BEER TO WOMEN

License Holders Are Not Compelled to Have Women in Parlors.

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 5.—(By Canadian Press).—Beer parlor-license holders are not compelled to serve women customers unless they so desire, according to word the proprietors have received from Hugh Davidson, liquor board controller. Advice has been sought in the matter by the government and the opinion received in that the beer parlors are not compelled to serve any customer.

This removes the objection of license holders who were at first of the opinion that the law compelled them to serve women. Some proprietors have aready taken advantage of the ruling by putting up signs stating that they are not prepared to serve women. Others have gone to considerable expense in furnishing quarters ostensibly for women customers and unless orders are received from the liquor board to the contrary they will no doubt continue to cater to the women's trade.

At a meeting of the fire and police commitee Alderman H. F. Almond urged that some way be found of making the license holder responsible for the proper conduct generally of the premises. He explained that where there was no connection between the beer parlor and the hotel of which primarily it was a part the proprietor of each part disclaimed responsibility, and the liquor commissioner had no control over anything but the beer parlor itself. "Vancouver is getting as bad as Mexico", he said. Women are brought here from across the line for immoral purpose, because we haven't anything in the shape of a 'Mann Act' such as they have on the other side.

EQUAL RIGHTS FOR WOMEN IN DIVORCE

Bill Passed Dominion House For Courts of Western Provinces.

OTTAWA, June 5. (Canadian Press).—By a majority of 51 votes, the House of Commons passed the third reading of a bill sponsored by J. T. Shaw, Independent, West Calgary, placing women in the four western provinces on an equality with men in so far as grounds for divorce are concerned. The vote was 112 to 61.

HER 103RD BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Robert Moffatt Married Eighty Years Ago in Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 5.—(By Canadian Press).— Mrs. Robert Moffatt, oldest resident of Hamilton, Ont., celebrated her 103rd birthday at her home, built by her late husband and which she entered as a bride eighty years ago and where, for that long period she has made her home. She received congratulations from all parts of the country.

Hedda Hoyt Talks About Things That Interest The Busy Woman Of 1925

Silk Ensemble Suits

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, June 5.—(United Press).—Each warm day brings out a new line of spring gowns and wraps. Today women on Fifth avenue are wearing silk ensemble suits with coats extending within an inch of the hem of the frock. Coat and frock match in color, whereas the lining of the coat is brilliantly figured in contrasting colors. Due to the warmness of the afternoon, coats are worn open, displaying these brilliant linings.

Many wear frocks without coats. Some of these have little elbow-length capes attached to the frock. Where the short cape is used the sleeve of the frock is long and slender. One attractive gown was made of navy repp with a slight circular flare at the hem. The elbow length cape was made in three semi-circular tiers. A wide red belt was worn rather low on the hips. Completing the costume was a small untrimmed navy felt hat.

It seems that felt hats refuse to go out of style. Fully half of the women in New York are still wearing them. Instead of bright colors, they are choosing hats to match the costume or hats to correspond with shoes and hosiery.

Navy blue is one of the leading colors this season, although it has not been considered as smart as other staple colors, such as black or brown, for some years. Many summer sports costumes combine navy and white and there is a freshness about the two colors which can not be equalled. For resort wear the combination is cool and beautiful.

The wearing of large or small hats becomes a question of time and place. For strect wear, the small hat of felt, silk or straw combination is certainly more chic than the large hat. For afternoon occasions, where a dressy frock is worn, a large horse-hair hat is more appropriate. For evening wear, both the large and small hat may be worn. If one intends to dance the small hat of silk is more comfortable than a large hat. On the verandahs of country clubs the large hat for some undescribable reason seems more attractive.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

TO BROWN HASH

To brown hash add two teaspoons of milk and let the hash cook un-stirred until brown on one side, then fold over like an omelet.

WILL REMOVE ODOR

Boil vinegar in any utensils in which strong smelling foods have been cooked, and the odor will be removed.

SAVE LAUNDRY BILLS

Luncheon sets of white oilcloth, decorated in colors are inexpensive and save much laundry if used for breakfast and luncheon.

DON'T MIX FURNITURE.

Be careful not to use mahogany or walnut furniture against an oak background if you wish a room to suggest harmony and beauty.

AFTER A SHOWER

A gown that has been spotted by rain should be covered with a clean damp cloth and pressed with a moderately warm iron.

CLEANING FINE WOOD

Kerosene oil is useful for cleaning polished woods that would be injured by soaps containing alkalies.

Is This Your BIRTHDAY

FRIDAY, JUNE 5.—If today is your birthday, the astral influences will cause your life to be one of many ups and downs. You should have many joyful disappointments, but also many sorrows, although the former will be in the majority. On the whole your life will be eventful. You will have many love affairs, and the signs of the zodiac indicate you should marry a person born in November or February. One of your faults is that you are rather dull. Cultivate the knack of being more entertaining.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

A recipe with the enticing name of taffy tarts is the contribution of Mrs. R. J. Geddes, 5 Wolseley street:

Line patty pans with tart paste, and fill with the following mixture: 2 eggs well beaten, 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1 cup corn syrup, 1-2 cup broken walnuts. Flavor with nutmeg. Mix well and bake in moderate oven until firm.

Cynthia Grey Says

When you see the word "vampire," don't you think at once of a beautiful, triumphant woman with men tied to her chariot wheels?

Certainly you do. The movies have photographed her as that .... and so has Rudyard Kipling in his famous poem, "A Fool There Was."

But a 'vamp' is only a moral coward, so the doctors tell us.

A great English psychoanalyst says that a vampire is a woman who couldn't get the one man she wanted, and so she tries to win the heart of other women's husbands ....just to prove to herself that she still is attractive!

Sometimes the vampire type marries.

house. She always wants all the sympathy and attention and admiration she can coax from the other members of her family.

She's the kind of woman who tells her husband about the snubbing she's had from other women. When she can't get attention any other way she pretends to be sick or "headachey."

She constantly fears she will lose her attractiveness, and this causes her to use all her resources to attract attention.

Her face may wear a smile of gloating triumph, but underneath this mask she is nothing but a coward.

She's afraid to be her true self.

"Buy only pure laundry soap — it's real economy"

says Mrs Experience

"Many women, I've found, choose their laundry soap merely because it is extra hard or because the bar is big and bulky—regardless of the soap's quality.

"As for myself, I always insist on Sunlight Soap, because I learned many years ago that it is more economical to use only pure laundry soap, and I believe that Sunlight is the only pure laundry bar soap made in Canada. Every bar of Sunlight carries a $5,000 Guarantee of Purity.

"And as every bit of Sunlight is pure cleansing soap, it cleans quickly with very little rubbing, and a little of it goes a long way. For washing clothes, dishes and general housework give me Sunlight every time. Sunlight doesn't make the hands rough and red, either." Lever Brothers Limited, Toronto, make Sunlight.

NATURE LORE

By Wallace Havelock Robb.

Did you ever start a barrel rolling down hill? You never can tell just where it will land.

I remember hearing, once, when I was a little lad, about a boy who got inside a barrel and rolled down hill, but he made a mistake in adding his own weight, for the barrel only went a little way when empty, but with him in it, the thing went crashing across the field and through a woodshed door and knocked over a churn full of buttermilk and the old woman working the butter was so upset that she made the boy and herself a mess of butter and milk and dirt before he got out of there.

Well, birds are about as endless as that.

One woman read in Nature Lore about feeding birds in winter, so she tried some on her own account. She did not think to ask what to put out, but stuck out a lot of peanut butter. Birds don't like experiments, but some of them will try anything once, and an old catbird found out what a soft snap it was to winter on peanut butter, so he stayed all winter and let the woman take care of him.

Sometimes she would get up in the morning and wonder if he survived the cold and stormy night, but it was all in the game for him. He had a warm hole in a tree not far away, and what more does a guy want but bed and board? Now, this particular catbird fell in love with the woman; at least that is what she says, but I suspect it was love for peanut butter; however, we won't argue about it—I guess he liked her because she was so good to him. Anyway, he was there all winter, and when the nice warm days came he disappeared to look after himself. Then the unexpected storm came. The woman wondered if it had been worth while to feed that bird all winter and he must surely be dead in the storm, for he had departed. But, like the barrel, the story goes rolling on, for when the catbird found the turn in the weather so dangerous, he went back. No peanut butter was there. It was no time for hesitation. He flew through the storm to the house and was noticed at once. When the woman opened the door, he told her in very angry language what kind of love he had for her. In five minutes he was eating peanut butter.

What You Get For The Last $10

YES, there are lower-priced bicycles than the C. C. M., but the C. C. M. is by far the cheapest in the long run.

That last $10 you pay for a C. C. M. is the most important part of your purchase. It assures you—extra years of easy riding, extra reserve strength, extra durable finish,

fewer repairs,
a higher selling value for your "used" C. C. M.

For that last $10, you get, among other things—
the smooth-running Triplex Hanger, a frame of English Seamless Tubing, reinforced at the joints, extra coats of rich, lustrous enamel,
rustproof nickelling over copper,
the classy Gibson Pedal with rustproof aluminum frame,
the new improved Hercules Brake,
a bicycle with everyone of its 1761 parts made with watch-like accuracy, a bicycle "trued up" at the factory.

And, remember, five years from now your "used" C. C. M. will easily bring $10 more than a five-year-old inferior machine—if the inferior machine has not already reached the scrap heap. You simply cannot lose by buying a C. C. M.

Prices Are Again Reduced

They're now $20 to $25 less than the "peak" prices. This year C. C. M. bicycles are the biggest values since pre-war days.

ANGLING IN NORWAY.

No other country in Europe possesses anything like such natural possibilities for angling as Norway.

From the Swedish frontier in the South right up to the Finnish frontier in the north, salmon go up in practically every river all along the coast, if not too small or obstructed by impassable waterfalls near the outlet. Altogether there are no less than some 200 rivers where salmon go up regularly.

Lots of the best known rivers have been let on long leases to British and American sportsmen, but there are plenty of less known rivers, where excellent sport can be had, and there are usually some boats, even in the very best of rivers, which can be had at some time of the season. Several hotels have fishing rights in the adjoining rivers and visitors are allowed to take advantage of these rights on paying a small fee, in many cases with no fee at all.

TRY DENMARK

I cannot say too often to this jaded world crying out for something new and not too expensive—try Denmark. "But I don't speak Danish!" Neither does the writer, all he can say is that getting about Denmark is like shelling peas, for almost everyone there does two things, one speaks a bit of English, and the other, rides a bicycle. And, by the way, if you want to offer an insult to any little Danish boy (or girl) of seven years of age, ask him if he can ride a bicycle.

There are no old hens in Denmark. This is a fact. You never get a tough chicken at the table. Why? Because the Danes have learned that chickens are most profitable the first year. After that they are killed to make room for others.

AGE OF MIRACLES IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Supposed Vision Cost Peasants of One Village a Million Rubles.

By WILLIAM HENRY CHAMBERLIN.

MOSCOW, June 5.—(United Press).—The age of miracles is far from over in Soviet Russia. The peasants are noted for their veneration of supposedly sacred images and relics, and every now and then news comes from some remote district of a man who claims to possess miraculous powers or to reveal wonders.

A case of this kind has just come up in the village of Galichenko in the south-western part of Russia. The summer there was hot and dry; the crops were threatened with drought and the minds of the peasants were predisposed for some sort of miraculous intervention. At this moment a shepherd named Micik announced that he had seen the Virgin as he was sitting beside a well in the pasture.

Later it appeared that the "Virgin" whom the shepherd saw was simply one of the village girls. But at first his story gained widespread credence. A procession was organized, and priests led the peasants with crosses and ikons to the well, which was now considered sacred. Several acres about the well were set aside as sacred grounds.

The story spread rapidly and peasants from the whole surrounding countryside poured in with gifts of money, goods and food for the sacred well. In the sacred grounds they planted a forest of 17,000 crosses. The end of the world was predicted and some enterprising and sceptical peasants seized disputed pieces of land which were abandoned by more superstitious claimants.

Finally the bubble burst; eleven individuals who had been most active in promoting the imposture were brought before a court and the disillusioned peasants began to take down the crosses and use the wood for their houses. But it is estimated that, before the legend had run its course, it had cost the peasants a million rubles in the shape of votive offerings.

Baby Born In Mid-Ocean Must Pay Half His Fare

PARIS, June 5. (Special). — A baby born on board ship is to pay his fare half way across the Atlantic, the distance he traveled. That is the ruling passed on John Leviathan Kuben, aged eight days, who to-day was summoned to pay $9.25 passage money aboard the Leviathan on its last trip to Cherbourg from New York.

John Leviathan was born aboard ship, half way over. Usually babies born aboard ship are carried free, but, according to a statement issued here, the "new economy plans of the United States lines make it necessary to demand that John pay the full fare for half the trip."

Babies are usually charged $18.50 steerage from New York to France.

HAVELOCK HAD BIG FIELD DAY

King's Birthday Marked By Sports and Entertainments Aplenty.

GREAT DAY.

HAVELOCK, June 5.—A large crowd of spectators watched a good programme of sports at the celebration on the King's birthday, namely: A relay race won by Norwood, motor cycle races, high jumping by both boys and girls, 100 yard races for both sexes, cadet drill under the direction of Lieut. J. Evans, a softball game between Peterboro and Havelock, in which Havelock came out winners by a very small margin, and last of all, a lacrosse game between Campbellford and Havelock which Havelock won by a score of 7-4. The game was fairly clean throughout, with the exception of a few minor penalties, but nothing very rough occurred during the game which at times was fast.

The financial results were very gratifying, as the gate receipts amounted to about $460.

The I.O.D.E. had two booths on the grounds and disposed of all their stock, their receipts amounting to $203.

In the evening the young people of St. John's Church repeated their play, "Back to a Country Store," and although this play had been successfully produced before, it was again accorded an enthusiastic reception by a large audience.

62 LETTERS IN NEW ALPHABET

Lexicographer Says His Scheme Would Eliminate Confusion in Words.

DR. VIZETELLY

By GEORGE BRITT.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Persons who learned their A-B-C's on their nursery blocks and have been employing them ever since will be surprised to learn that the letters are suffering from overwork.

They are, terribly so, and for this you have the word of Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, famous lexicographer and managing editor of the Standard Dictionary.

"Six English vowels are used to indicate 47 separate and distinct phonetic sounds," Dr. Vizetelly tells you. "And 21 consonants indicate 70 different sounds. Furthermore, 22 of the 26 letters are silent in certain combinations.

"What is a foreigner to do, for instance, in spelling from sound such words as cough, dough, slough and tough?"

The remedy, Dr. Vizetelly believes, is a revised alphabet. He would provide reinforcements and supplementary burden bearers. Tentatively, he suggests a new set of 62 arbitrary symbols, modifications of the present alphabet.

"One symbol for one sound throughout the language is the ideal upon which the revision should be based," declares the word expert.

"Having agreed upon a new alphabet, its use could be obtained in time through adoption by educational institutions throughout the world. A necessary accompanying step would be the convening of an international committee of experts in spoken English to agree upon a standard of pronunciation for words which now are variously pronounced.

"Such a dream may be but a theory after all. But theories have become facts far too often for anyone with his wits about him to say that the ideal of a uniform standard for sound values of sounds is impossible of attainment. Can we standardize our speech? In theory, 'Yes.' In practice, at least 'Perhaps.'"

Then the lexicographer smiles and points out glaring tangles and contradictions in English pronunciation and spelling:

You must write precede, recede and secede, but likewise exceed, proceed and succeed. You may know why you use "e" indolence, obedience and science, but why "a" in admittance, appearance and sufferance? And "e" in permanent, indolent and reticent, but "a" in attendant, defendant and tenant? There are approximately 450 words that end in "-ance" and "-ence," and 650 that end in "-ant" and "-ent." The correct use of the suffixes "-able" and "-ble" and "-er" and "-or" adds largely to the problem.

Then there are sectional difficulties in pronunciation. For "parse," the Englishman says "parz" and the American "pars"; there is "obleek" and "oblike"; "skwall-er" and "skway-ler"; "bean" and "bin"; "patent" and "paytent." Furthermore, it is a fact, although not generally known, that the Department of Education of Scotland has forbidden the teaching of southern English. Australian, Canadian and American English have their own characteristics.

"We Americans," continues Dr. Vizetelly, "have earned for ourselves the reputation of being a mumbling, jumbling, whanging, twanging, whining people who flirt with the vowels and shuffle around with the consonants. Our speech has become a ragged, shiftless and limping medium for expression instead of the outward and audible sign of an inward and spiritual harmony.

"In spite of this I still hold that the level of English speech is higher in the United States than it is anywhere else in the world."

YOUR OWN HEALTH.

Insects are not only a nuisance, but they are oftentimes carriers of disease germs.

When General Gorgas conducted his fight against the mosquito in Panama he was well on his way in coverting the Canal Zone from a pesthole to one of the most healthful spots on the face of the globe. His eradication of these insects saved 70,000 lives.

In a lesser degree Canadians must fight the insect life of the temperate zone to protect the health of the community. In the summer months, when insects of all kinds find their greatest activity, they constitute a grave menace.

Especially is this true of the house-fly, which is a notorious carrier of disease germs. The flies swarm garbage heaps, on every dunghill, pick up the germs therein, and carry them into the houses, light on food ready to be served and leave the germs there. As a result illness occurs in those persons whose physique are not sufficiently strong to throw off the bacteria.

Screening of homes, therefore, becomes most important in the protection of the health of the individual and the community.

In the Southern States, malaria is spread by mosquitos. In Canada where the mosquitos are not recognized as carriers of disease germs, they frequently cause much havoc by biting people who scratch the irritated part with resultant infection.

To guard against these pests, the breeding places of flies and mosquitos should be cleaned out. Garbage should be kept in closely covered containers and should be frequently collected by cities, or in small towns or villages where garbage disposal is not taken care of by the municipality, garbage should be burned or buried. Swamps and pools of water should be drained if possible, or spread with oil to prevent mosquitos from multiplying as an alternative.

Other insects are dangerous menaces, but in more restricted districts. The hook-worm may enter the body through the soles of the feet or through any body abrasion. It germinates in the human excreta, deposited on the ground. Adequate sanitation is the only sure means of prevention from this malevolent disease, which is found in the southland.

For the average home, proper screening is one of the easiest and safest means of protecting health from marauding insects in summer.

SCOTTISH BOYS LEAD MOVEMENT FOR COMMUNISM

Comprise Vanguard of Revolutionary Army, Says a Greenock Boy of 12 Years.

NUMBERS ARE FEW.

Adherents In Britain Only 5,000—Held Convention in Glasgow.

LONDON, June 2.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Although a certain section of the press here gives lurid accounts of the British communist congress held at Glasgow other sections announce that the whole communist movement in Great Britain has only 5,000 professed adherents whose actions are followed with tolerant amusement by the ordinary working man and scornful contempt by the old-fashioned trades union leader.

The speeches at this convention appear to have followed lines already familiar to the public. One orator, a Greenock boy of 12 years of age, headed his Greenock contemporaries and proudly announced that they comprised the vanguard of a revolutionary army.

The youthful communists of Greenock were indignant because the authorities of their city would not allow them the same freedom in the matter of street processions as they did with boy scouts and girl guides.

According to one observer of the proceedings at the congress at Glasgow, so far as the youthful communists were concerned, they failed to reveal on their faces any sign of that horror at the class struggle in which they professed to be such earnest participants. Neither did they betray indications that the proletarian Sunday schools of which so much has been said by speakers from Conservative platforms had set their indelible mark upon their young countenances.

The more matured speakers alluded to the detectives outside of the hall where the congress was held as another sign of the dastardly tactics of the capitalist gang. Close scrutiny was given everyone seeking admission to the congress and this proceeding rather laboriously elaborated. Indeed in arranging such a mountain of precaution the authorities seemed to be providing the delegates to the congress with additional enjoyment in the belief that, in very truth, they were daring devils.

The convention was indignant, however, on learning that somebody had upset evil-smelling fluids in the congress hall. The mischief was eradicated though in time to prevent the delegates' nostrils from being actually offended by the odor.

EARLY EDUCATION INFLUENCED THE LIFE OF A GREAT PREMIER

Early Schooldays Were Spent in U.E.L. Settlement of Adolphustown.

LEARNED CONTROL

Important Lessons Learned Among the Strong Willed Sons of the Loyalists.

In a few days, on June 6th, flowers will be placed on the grave of Sir John A. Macdonald, at Cataraqui Cemetery, near Kingston, to commemorate the 34th anniversary of his death soon after the strenuous campaign of the general elections of 1891.

Sir John was born in Glasgow, Scotland, on Jan. 11, 1815. His father, Hugh, who emigrated to Canada with his family, moved from Kingston up the Bay of Quinte in 1823, and settled on Hay Bay, in Adolphustown. Just a century ago therefore John A was a school boy in that historic U. E. Loyalist settlement, learning valuable lessons in self-control.

There was a store already at the village at the front, so Hugh Macdonald chose a location at the rear, on the south shore of Hay Bay. He obtained a small frame house near the shore on the farm of Paul Huff, one of the original U. E. Loyalist settlers of 1784. Here the Macdonald family dwelt with one small room devoted to the stock of a general store.

The Paul Huff farm was the second place of importance in the settlement when the Macdonalds first lived there. In 1792 the Methodists had built a frame church on the opposite side of a little cove from where stood the Macdonald home. Here crowds gathered on the Sabbath, including all denominations and a sprinkling of Indians.

The Macdonalds, of course, were devout Presbyterians, but John A. always in later years liked to tell about his habit of walking over to the Methodist church every Sunday to worship, led by his beloved mother, and of listening to wonderful sermons while seated by her side He always declared those to have been his happiest boyhood days when he and his sisters walked every day to and fro to the village school.

These polite refined children were a great acquisition to that rural school. The tall, black haired, long-nosed Macdonald was not only full of tricks and jokes, but studious and clever. Rough discipline of the school yard proved wholesome, however, and John A. learned the salutary lesson in those early days amongst a lot of good natured, but strong willed sons of a virile people that he must control himself in order to win their respect and to become a leader.

Hugh Macdonald did not succeed in business any better there than in Kingston, and after a few years' trial moved his family across the Bay of Quinte to Stone Mills, at the foot of the Lake-on-the-Mountain, in the County of Prince Edward. That afforded Sir John the opportunity to return to friends in Kingston, where he had the privileges of the Grammar school till 1830, when at the age of 15 years he became articled to his father's friend, George MacKenzie, and began earning his living in the latter's law office. Six years later in 1836, John A., was called to the bar, in the same year that Abraham Lincoln, his senior by six years, was admitted at Springfield, Illinois.

During his apprenticeship John A. looked after a branch law office in Napanee for his chief, and later one in Picton for his uncle. Becoming a full-fledged lawyer John A. opened an office in Kingston, and soon in association with Sir Oliver Mowat, had a clientele extending westerly to Napanee, Adolphustown and Picton. In the meantime the family returned from Stone Mills to Kingston where the father soon after died. One sister married Professor Williamson of Queen's, While John A. married Miss Isabella Clark in 1843, and at once established his own home. The living issue from that marriage is Sir Hugh John Macdonald of Winnipeg, ex-premier of Manitoba, and now nearing the octogenarian borderhood

All Sir John Macdonald's biographers refer to the family life in Adolphustown only to point out their wanderings and failure to obtain a foothold. None of them, apparently have been sufficiently impressed with the importance of those three or four years of John A's early school days amongst the hardy U. E. Loyalists of Adolphustown. He there heard the Loyalist grandfathers and grandmothers tell their vivid tales of standing firm for Great Britain in the midst of cruelties, sufferings and sorrows for years until they safely reached Canada. He lived over again with them the hardships and struggles that they experienced in pioneering in the forests along the Bay of Quinte. He heard of their glorious defence of their country during the war of 1812-14 and saw the old guns and swords hanging on the walls.

Those experiences and friendships and examples of true loyalty settled deep into the mind and soul of this awakened Scotch lad. He determined then and there to be true to those Loyalist people. In due time John A entered political life and always maintained the perfect and loyal support of that great constituency bordering on the Bay of Quinte, the centre of which to Sir John Macdonald to his dying day, was that favorite spot, still guarded by the old Methodist Church, where he spent his happiest boyhood days.

The house has long since gone but the stone foundation and massive Lombardy poplars of the half acre plot still mark the place which some day may be adorned with some suitable memorial.

Cars Stop And Wait For Train That Never Comes

There are towns where they take in the sidewalks at night.

And in others curfew rings at 8 p.m.

But Cincinnati is the only place where trainment wait to let railroad trains pass three months after the trains have stopped running.

Cincinnati conductors yearn for the sight of the train that never comes.

A railroad crosses a certain car line. Under the law all street cars must stop before crossing it.

The conductor must walk in front, look up and down the track for locomotives, and signal the motorman to come on.

But the railroad abandoned these tracks months ago.

And the street cars still have to stop, and the conductors have to look for trains they know aren't coming.

The Ohio railroad commission says so. The picture shows a conductor searching in vain for a choo-choo car.

TALK TARIFF AT CONVENTION OF MANUFACTURERS

Some Had Such Strong Views That Private Session Was Held.

MEETINGS ENDED.

Annual Banquet Last Night Brought Proceedings to a Close.

HAMILTON, June 5. — Canadian Press. — All phases of the tariff were discussed throughout yesterday's sessions of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Some members held such strong convictions on the matter that they wished to give them expression only behind closed doors. Their request was complied with and a private session was held yesterday afternoon instead of a golf competition at Burlington.

The resolutions presented to the convention were all adopted yesterday including one on tariff, which question loomed large in the minds of the delegates.

The convention was concluded last night with the holding of the annual banquet.

Whites of Eyes Tinged With Yellow? Muddy Complexion? Your Liver is Out of Order!

Mrs. Wm. Bourque, Fox Creek, N. B., writes: "I have been troubled with my liver for a long time, and was so bad I could not do any work. I had severe pains in my stomach that were so bad, at times, I could hardly stand them. My tongue became coated; I had a bad taste in my mouth, especially in the morning; the whites of my eyes were tinged with yellow, and I had a muddy complexion.

I had read a great deal about MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS, so decided I would try a vial, and after taking three of them I was greatly improved and felt more like living, and I can now do my own work without any trouble."

DUNLOP HELD IN BAIL FOR THEFT FROM PROVINCE

Inspector of Prisons Committee By Magistrate For Trial By Jury.

$40,000 BAIL.

Accused Is Said to Have Transferred Money to His Own Account.

TORONTO, June 5. (Canadian Press). — Charges of the theft of sums totalling some $40,000 were faced by W. W. Dunlop, former Provincial inspector of prisons and public charities, when he appeared in Police Court yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Browne, who after hearing the summary of the case for the Crown, presented by E. J. Murphy, assistant Crown attorney, committed the accused to trial by jury. Bail was raised from $10,000 to $40,000, following the request of the Crown that the amount be fixed at $50,000, but the Magistrate took into consideration the $11,000 already refunded to the province by Mr. Dunlop. Bail bonds were provided. The original charge of theft of $3,000 was retained against Fred. C. Williams, assistant inspector, who, through Craig McKay, his counsel, entered a plea of not guilty and elected trial by jury. He was admitted to bail for trial without any preliminary evidence in his case.

"Mr. Dunlop, the accused, as inspector of prisons and public charities in connection with the Provincial Secretary's Department, had charge of certain monies of the Government," said Mr. Murphy in opening the case. "Two particular accounts are involved, the contingent account of the brick and tile plant, and a revenue account in the same branch. We intend to show that monies transferred from these accounts under the signature of Dunlop were deposited in his own account and the money disbursed in matters pertaining to his own personal affairs."

RUM BOATS ARE STILL TRYING

Boat Seized Recently Had Liquor Worth $200,000 on Board.

OFF LONG ISLAND.

NEW YORK, June 5. — Canadian Press. — That the rum runners have not given up attempts to run the blockade was shown yesterday with the announcement of the seizure of the steam trawler Blairmore No. 1, with 2000 cases and 130 barrels of liquor on board, in a desperate attempt to run into Long Island sound.

Blairmore No. 1 was seized in the early morning two days ago, less than a mile off Fisher's Island by the New London coast guard.

No announcement was made until yesterday, when the ship, which is of Canadian registry, was towed to New London.

The liquor on the vessel was worth $200,000 at bootleg prices. It is the first seizure of a major craft since the blockade.

ROYALISTS HAD MANY WEAPONS

Revolvers, Brass Knuckles and Loaded Canes Carried to Meeting.

MEN ARRESTED.

PARIS, June 5. (United Press).— The arrest of 30 Royalist members of the League of Action Francaise last night followed a meeting of the Order to which many had carried concealed weapons, including revolvers, brass knuckles and loaded canes.

Marice Pujo, editor of Leon Daudet's newspaper, "Action Francaise," attempted to explain the action by stating that a meeting of Communists was being held simultaneously with the Royalist assembly and that the latter feared an ambush such as recently occurred in Montmartre.

J. H. Burnham Says Repressive Legislation By Council is Dangerous.

J. H. Burnham remarked to The Examiner that the action of the Council, like that of prohibitionists in general, is so manifestly a rebuke of God Who has established no system protection of people from the consequences of their "sins' that the general public has grown to believe that so-called Christians do not put faith any longer in God and are superseding that faith with their own management. This is what is bringing on what is rapidly becoming the fury of revolution. It will come as all these things do on some other pretence, but temperance will be at the bottom of it. I suppose many prohibitionists know enough to know that Sovietism is spreading like a forest fire in the East, and they are preparing the oppressed to welcome it here."

Weak, Lost in Weight

WM. E. BRUSH

Windsor, Ont.—"For over six months I was in ill health—was not able to do a day's work. I got very weak and lost in weight, could not eat, suffered from poor circulation, chilly all the time and had a slight cough. I doctored but still kept going down and everyone thought I was going into a decline. I finally began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and thru the use of this medicine I was completely restored to good health. I gained in weight, my circulation improved and I could eat. Then I went back to my work and never felt better. I have been a strong and healthy man ever since, which I owe to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."—William E. Brush, 450 Dougall Ave.

ENTHUSIASTIC ANNUAL MEETING

late this most lucrative business.

Activities of any organizations are limited only to the market for selling its product and the extent to which it is financed. In the former, I think it is agreed that the possibilities for development of tourist traffic, particularly from the country to the south of us, are exceptional.

In the latter we find that, although the Association has been limited in funds, considerable work, I mean publicity, has been carried out at practically no cost to the Association. I refer to the generous use of newspaper columns, magazines and pamphlets issued by the railway companies, distribution of moving picture films, and not forgetting the generous co-operation of the Dominion Government and during this year, the Provincial Government, in placing in New York exhibits of the Trent Waterway for the past four years, and the issuing of charts of the Waterway.

Good Work Done.

The amount of money placed at the disposal of your directors for five years has been approximately five thousand dollars ($5,000.00), surely not a large amount. With this amount we have been able to supply every yacht club in the eastern states with illustrated charts of the entire waterway; three months full page advertising in three leading motor boating magazines in the United States, publication and distribution of almost one hundred thousand pamphlets and the Association's expenses in connection with the exhibits in New York.

Your head office affiliated with the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce has received over one thousand direct enquiries, issued over seventy sets of navigation charts, two hundred guide books of the Waterway and eight hundred road maps.

It must be remembered that fully ninety per cent of activities have been carried out in the United States where the greatest possibilities exist.

As a comparison I wish to point out that the Southern Highway Association representing a similar number of municipalities as our own Association had at its disposal for last year only approximately six thousand dollars. From the expenditure of approximately $1,000 per year for five years we can definitely point to a marked increase of foreign water-craft using the Trent Waterway and I think you are all agreed that the automobile and railroad traffic has shown also an evidence of marked increase.

I will leave to you to decide whether or not the five thousand dollars expended during the past five years has been made a good investment and as to whether it has proved a very small almost insignificant percentage of the monetary benefit derived from tourist traffic in our district. If your decision is in the affirmative, which I believe it will be, for further benefits and in consideration of the existing competition by other organizations it is for us to increase our efforts.

Following the resolution adopted at the last directors' meeting your Association has become affiliated with the Tourist Association of Ontario. It is possible through that action that our activities may take a different form presuming that the Tourist Association will assume the work of getting the tourists from outside the Province.

It will nevertheless devolve upon this Association to keep the Trent Waterway on the map so that tourists coming to the Province will be attracted here and given every service possible when they are here.

May Publish Book.

It was decided by your directors during the past year to publish a comprehensive booklet on the Trent Waterway district which would include reproductions on a small scale of navigation charts, road maps and general descriptions which could be sold at a nominal cost, but it was found impossible for your office to spend sufficient time to complete it. A certain amount of work, however, has already been completed, and it may be possible if sufficient support is forthcoming to have it published in 1926. In the meantime pamphlets are still being distributed and we are securing publicity through various magazines.

Of these I would draw your attention to articles appearing in "Canadian Motor Boat," "Motoring," "The Ontario Tourist Guide," "Smily's Summer Resort Guide," "Ontario Sport and Touring Guide," American Publications, "Motor Boating" and leading daily newspapers.

In the March issue of Motor Boating a serial story covering the entire summer commenced, known as "By Waterways to Gotham," descriping a trip made by Lewis Freeman War Correspondent for the British Navy, from Milwaukee to New York via the Trent Waterway a two thousand mile journey with a skiff and an outboard motor. This story will appear in book form in the near future published by the Elto Outboard Motor Company.

Valuable Publicity.

Articles are now appearing in all leading newspapers in the United States describing the first transcontinental motor boat trip ever made. This will be a three months five thousand mile cruise from Astoria, Oregon, to New York City, and is being taken by three Los Angeles men, J. E. Hoag, F. S. Wilton, and Val Woodbury. An article which has already appeared states as follows: "In Lake Huron they expect to follow the Canadian shores into the extreme southern end of Georgian Bay to Port Severn, Ontario. At that point the conventional Great Lakes route will be abandoned in favor of the shorter and more scenic Trent Waterway across the Province of Ontario. The Trent Waterway is a chain of rivers and inland lakes that have been joined together by artificial canals for purposes of navigation and hydro-electric power development. This route provides a short-cut for vessels of light tonage between Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario. The eastern terminal is Trenton, Ontario on the Bay of Quinte, an arm of Lake Ontario, directly across the lake from Oswego, New York."

Mr. Hoag, who conceived the cruise, is a writer for nationalmagazines and metropolitan daily newspapers and included the Trent Waterway in the cruise after reading an article with sketch map in the June 1924 issue of "Motor Boating," N.Y. Prior to reading the article he did not know that such a waterway existed.

Mr. Wilton is a motion picture camera operator and has just returned from eighteen months in Africa with his machine.

The adventurers will be at the entrance to the Trent Waterway at Georgian Bay about July 15th. This cruise can be made of extreme value to this district, or otherwise, according to the way in which these men are treated while here.

I think you will agree that this form of advertising is inestimable.

Develops District.

In five years it has been conclusively proved that the practically unfinished Waterway has been a means of development for this district: what will be the possibilities if the Waterway is completed for all water navigation?

I think we all agree that we passed through the most trying years of depression owing to post-war conditions and the way ahead looks bright and we can now look forward with optimism.

It is now time that we should take definite action in securing the completion of the Waterway. Manufacturing establishments on the route have established themselves in the past with the hope and we might say promise that the Trent Waterway would be completed for commercial navigation. Some have said that the capacity of the Waterway is insufficient for commercial purposes. In reply we can only point to canals in the United States of a smaller capacity than that of the Trent Waterway and are being used extensively for commercial purposes. We believe that Ontario will retain the lead against all other Provinces as the largest manufacturing Province, and with the development of the entire Dominion, Ontario will develop industrially and this district must be prepared to offer every facility possible to the prospective manufacturer.

It is certain that the construction of the Trent Waterway has furnished electric power to all municipalities adjacent to it and a further supply can be assured for the future by the completion of the Severn division and at the same time give us through water navigation.

Let us consider then in the near future requestion the Dominion Government to at least adopt a programme of construction on the Waterway so that we may be assured of its completion by a certain time.

Recognize Support.

The completion will also assist to develop a greater amount of tourist travel by water, the marine railways already being taxed to the limited capacity by craft travelling between the States of Illinois, Michigan, and New York State. Many of the larger craft are waiting anxiously to learn when navigation will be possible for them.

We have in the Trent Waterway a connected group of lakes and rivers unexcelled for beauty and attractiveness in the North American continent, but it must continue to be advertised nd this Association must take the lead.

The generous support of all municipalities rendered the Association during the past five years has been thoroughly appreciated by your Directors, without which nothing could have been done, and it is hoped that with the evidence of energetic competition by other district organizations, your support may continue and even be increased. We can look forward to a large development in tourist traffic and it remains with us to see that a fair share sees and enjoys our beautiful lakes and rivers.

In closing I wish to express my appreciation for the support given to me by each successive Board of Directors during the past five years and also for the honor you conferred upon me in electing me to the office of President. It is my sincere hope that our efforts in the future will be even greater than in the past and that the results therefrom will at all times prove that your activities will be the best investment ever made.

KIWANIANS HEAR OF GREAT ENGLISHMAN

A. A. Bond, of Toronto, Told of Gilchrist Thomas, Who Made Germany.

"The Unknown Greatest Englishman" was introduced to the Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon to-day by Aubrey A. Bond, of Toronto. Mr. Bond gave a long and interesting talk on the life of Sidney Gilchrist Thomas, who invented the process for the dephosphorization of iron in Bessemer convertors. When English iron masters refused to consider his invention, as they had a large supply of hematite iron ore to make steel the Germans took up his process for their large mines which were of heavily phosphorised iron, and were enabled to develop from an over-populated agricultural nation to an industrial and military nation able to support the great struggle into which they were hurled by the "mad Kaiser of Potsdam."

A complete history of the life and discoveries of this great man was given by Mr. Bond, who was lead to study his life, when he saw his name on so many streets and buildings in Germany, although he had never heard of him.

A tribute to the late W. E. Conway, who had been a charter member of the club, was read by Kiwanian Rev. Doug. Paterson, who eulogised the departed member for the great work he had built, as a business man and as a citizen. A moment of silence was observed as a tribute to Mr. Conway.

The booster for the day was Jack Dewart grain merchant, and the prizes were won by Carl McLean, Hugh Niven and Ray Scott.

TO PRESENT PRIZES.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Toronto Trading Dull With Small Price Range

TORONTO, June 5 (Canadian Press.—Trading on Toronto stock exchange continued somewhat dull this morning with few sales and the range in prices varying little. Consolidated Smelters opening at 78 1-2 closed a half point lower. Brazilian opened at 53 and also dropped a half, but recovered and closed at the opening figure. Dominion Canners closed at 107, a loss of two points from yesterday's close. Preferred was also weak, selling down 1 1-2 to 103 1-2.

Another drop was shown by Mackay, which closed 1 7-8 lower, at 120 3-8 on transactions of 82 shares. Preferred showed fraction reaction.

Selling Pressure Acute On Wall Street To-day

NEW YORK, June 5 (Canadian Press.—Selling pressure increased in Wall Street as trading progressed with considerable significance attached by market observers to the fact that several of the standard industrials had broken below their previous resistance. U. S. Steel Common, which had been meeting strong support around 114 for several days, dropped to 113 5-8 before noon. American Can slipped back to 185 1-2, and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe broke 3 1-2 to 159 1-2. Spirited bidding for Woolworth in apparent anticipation of special dividend developments, put that stock up nearly 4 points to 138 3-4, the highest price since the old stock was split up on a four to one basis. Oils, which had failed to participate extensively in the recent advance, bounded upward under the leadership of Pan American B. Call money renewed at 3 3-4 per cent.

Chicago Grains Active Under Unfavorable News

CHICAGO, June 5 (Canadian Press).—Active trading and much higher prices developed early on the wheat market today. Hot dry weather, unfavorable for wheat growth, was widely prevalent. September and December deliveries here both touchd new high price records for the season. Chicago opening prices 3-4 cent to 4 1-4 cents higher; July $1.69 to $1.70 1-4, and September $1.65 1-2 to $1.66 1-2, were followed by an additional upturn that carried July to $1.70 3-4 and September to $1.69 1-2.

Corn and oats went up with wheat. Buying was based largely on the ground that a short crop of wheat would necessitate substitution of all other grain. After opening at 1-2 cent to 4 1-4 cents gain, September $1.18 1-2 to $1.18 3-4, and December 99 cents to $1.02 1-2 the corn market steadied at around $1.17 1-2 for September.

Oats started 3-8 cent to 1 1-4 cents up, September 51 1-4 to 51 1-2 cents and later showed further gains.

Crop Prospects Better After Montana Snowfall

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 5 (Canadian Press).—Montana farmers were jubilant today over a four-inch snowfall, which blanketed most of the northern portion of the state, in freakish contrast to the heat waves which caused suffering in other parts of the continent. The downfall improved crop prospects generally.

200,000,000 Bushels Less Than 1924 U. S. Prediction

NEW YORK, June 5 (Canadian Press).—The 1925 grain harvest will be 200,000,000 bushels less than that of a year ago, is predicted for the United States by The Wall Street Journal.

Market Tightness Sent July Wheat A-Soaring

WINNIPEG, June 5 (Canadian Press).—Acute tightness of the market here today sent July wheat soaring for a gain of $ 1-8 on the maximum bulge, the price reaching $1.83 1-4. With the demand moderately keen, there was almost a total absence of offerings, the general opinion prevailing that a "corner" had been worked on July delivery. The undertone was unusually strong, and indications pointed to further price advances.

Standard Mining Active With Losses Recovering

TORONTO, June 5 (Canadian Press).—Trading on the standard mining exchange was fairly active this morning, Hollinger Con. opening at 14.83, two points lower than the close of yesterday, recovered its loss at the close at noon.

Kirkland Lake opened a half higher at 39, closing a half lower. Teck Hughes, opening at 132, advanced one point. Mining corporation, opening five points lower at 242, made an advance of three points. Victory Silver opened 1 1-2 points higher, at 22 1-2 and repeated again today, closing at 124.

Index Number Rose During Month of May

OTTAWA, June 5 (Canadian Press).—The index number of wholesale prices computed by Dominion Bureau of Statistics and weighted according to commercial importance of 236 commodities included, rose 2.6 points in May, being 159.1 as compared with 156.5 in April.

SCHOOL CADETS WELL TRAINED

Splendid Showing Made By Public School Boys at Annual Inspection.

400 IN LINE.

The Public School Cadet Battalion, 400 strong, was inspected this afternoon by Captain Heron, district Cadet inspector. The companies from the six public schools of the city marched on the grounds from their various directions, A Company, Prince of Wales' School, escorting the colors. The battalion marched past under command of Battalion Commander Harold Coleman. The company commanders are: A Company, Prince of Wales' School, C. Thomas; B Company, King Edward School, L. Pugh; C Comnany, Queen Mary School, R. Amys; D Company, Central School G. Nesbitt; E Company, Queen Alexandra School, G. Kingdon; F Company, King George School, H. Ellis; color party from Prince of Wales' School, R. Chandler.

The Cadet instructors from the various schools were on hand to steady the boys, but kept themselves in the background, leaving all the work in the hands of the Cadet officers themselves, who proved in every way capable of handling their duties.

After the march past the various companies were put through company drill in competition for the Denne Cup at present held by D Company, Central School

METHODIST GAINS.

Bay of Quinte Conference in Healthy Condition, Reports Show.

BELLEVILLE, June 5. (Canadian Press).—A membership of 44,130, a gain of nine; missionary givings, gain of $3,153; W. M. S. contributions, a gain of $417; connexional fund givings of $194,511, a gain of $1,583. These indicate the healthy state of the Methodist Church in the Bay of Quinte Conference as told in statistical committee report issued to-day.

Amongst the illumination effects at Wembley is a miniature garden of Eden, complete with apple-tree, apples and a big green and orange serpent.

FAIR EXTENDS.

Dancing Pavilion at Chemong Is Given For Saturday Night.

The managers, Messrs. P. Gettas, N. Douros and W. Coros, of the Dancing Pavilion at Chemong, have offered the use of the pavilion for the benefit of the Health Association on Saturday night, June 6th. The pavilion will be under the auspices of the Made-in-Peterboro Fair for the night, and the net proceeds will go toward the funds to enable the Peterboro Health Association to continue its good work. The Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. will have charge for the evening. Remember when you are dancing that you are having a good time and you are also helping to lighten the burden for others less fortunate than yourselves. The generous offer of these gentlemen is greatly appreciated. 1d-132-970

The huge Wembley poster by Fred Taylor, R.I., measures 40 feet long by 10 feet high and is the biggest poster ever seen in this country.

GOOD BUSINESS AT EXHIBITION

Made in Peterboro Fair Attracts Big Crowds—Many Amusements.

HELPERS BUSY.

There was a good attendance at the Made-in-Peterborough Fair at the Armories last evening, and thriving business was done at the various sections devoted to amusement and recreation. The big Fair appears to be making an impression on the community that brings it renewed patronage every evening.

In the Cafe Chantant, the musical programme included selections by the Peterboro Juvenile Jazz Orchestra, vocal solos by Dorothy Cooney, Newton Staples and Leslie Dyer, with accompaniments by Miss Mathilde Masson, Miss Cora Smith and Miss Marjorie Turner, a reading by little Marion Dryland, a pianoforte solo by Miss Marjorie Turner, and a dance by four of Miss Littlefield's pupils from the Y.W.C.A.; "Katinka," danced by Dorothy Pogue, Helen Burns, Grace Burns and Marion Moore. Miss Madeline Willis acted as accompanist.

In the music stand, several numbers were given by orchestra members under direction of Professor R. Gliddon with a special selection in a cornet solo by Mr. Joseph Minicolo. About forty of the children from the public schools also sang three choruses, arranged by Miss M. Rannie, and given under the direction of Mr. O. M. Steer.

Silhouette Program

In the stage room a very interesting programme of silhouettes was presented by the Women's Art Association, the entertainment being in charge of Miss Cameron Edwards and Miss Maude Rush, assisted by Mrs. J. E. R. Munro and Miss Mayme Montgomery.

The silhouettes, which proved very entertaining to the audience, included a presentation of "I Don't Want to Play in Your Yard," "Pierrot and Pierrette," "The Long and the Short of It" and "Old King Cole." Those taking part in the silhouettes and the songs which accompanied them were Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, the Misses Mamie Boucher, Mamie Drope, Margaret Borbridge, Helen Ross, Dorothy Cooney, Frances Dawson, Mary Brooks, Messrs. Alan Munro and Walter Blackwell. Miss Margaret Widdess and Miss Mathilde Masson acted as accompanists, Miss Trucie Pearson sang, Mrs. P. Hooper played the violin and Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland recited. This programme will be repeated this evening, after the presentation of the one act comedy, "The Right Word."

In the fortune telling booth of the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League, a section which has enjoyed considerable patronage since the opening day, additional helpers were Mrs. Ipsa Weir and Mrs Davis The Catholic Women's League had charge of the card party yesterday afternoon, and had a very successful afternoon of bridge and euchre. Mrs. G. H. Giroux and Mrs. J. P. Finn acted as general convenors, assisted by Mrs. F. La Plante. Twelve tables of cards were played, the prizes going to Mrs. W. R. Hunter for bridge and Mrs. J. Carroll for euchre. Afternoon tea was served by the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., which is taking charge of refreshments in the card room during the week.

C. G. E. Booth.

The booth at the Made-in-Peterborough Fair which is conducted by the Canadian General Electric Company, Limted, has an interesting array of the products of the big works. These include induction motors, made in the city in sizes from fractional horse power to 4,000 h.p. sizes, industrial control apparatus, protective lightning arresters, oil circuit breakers, and illustrations of the variety of uses for Mazda lamps. There is also an exhibit of porcelains, wires and cables from the local works.

Around The City.

Mr. Fred Stinson, veteran fruit grower in North Monaghan, was heard to say a few days ago that if the month of June is a wet month, no matter if other months of the year are short of moisture, that all kinds of crops will be exceptionally good. If June keeps up as it has started out this year the harvest this year should be a banner one.

An outstanding feature of the Indian Pavilion at Wembley is a reproduction of the Chandni Chauk, the famous bazaar-street of Delhi.

DRESS REFORM IS A REALITY

No Need for Further Reforms by Mrs. C. C. Catt.

THAT DAY IS PAST

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, June 4.—(United Press).—"Women's clothes need to be reformed," said Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, at a recent woman's suffrage meeting in Washington.

"The pioneers couldn't reform clothes. Today we have the vote, we have education and everything else they fought for. It's up to women to reform clothes!"

"What," may we ask, "is dress reform?"

To reform clothes would mean to make them more healthful, more comfortable and more beautiful. Physicians are of the opinion that women are dressing more sanely today than they ever have. First, they have shed the old type corset and this alone is largely responsible for the present-day health of women. Everything has been done to make clothes more comfortable. Dresses are collarless, many are sleeveless, skirts are short and there is no attempt to display the lines of the body in tight-fitting garments.

The days when clothes needed to be reformed are past. When high collars, corsets, bustles, hippads, high-laced shoes, itchy underwear, dress shields, skirt trains, hair rats, pinched waists, etc., passed out of style we reached the N'th degree of reform. What would Mrs. Catt have us do? Don uniforms, or go back to long oily locks?

Women who scoff at the clothes of today should look over the fashin plates of a decade ago to witness the strides we have made toward sane dressing. There is no binding of the body today. Women wear as little underwear as possible, hosiery is sheer and the actual weight of the clothes worn by a woman is less than the weight of her petticoats a few years back. Savages proved that humans did not require much clothing to combat weather and women are continuing to prove it.

Certainly bobbed hair is a step toward sanitation. Long, oily hair that was knotted to the head was the cause of many scalp diseases. Not only are women's clothes sane—they are beautiful! In no country do women have more dress freedom than we do in America. Chinese woman toddle about in unbecoming trousers. Their chests are bound until they are as flat as a man's. Japanese women wear loose kimonas, but their obis are more binding than the old type of corset. To protect their head-dresses they sleep with their heads on wooden racks. Their hair reeks of oil.

Next to the Zulus, we wear fewer and saner clothes than any other race of women.

"Clothes are made by men, sold by men, and we women buy any old fool thing they give us," was a portion of Mrs. Catt's argument.

All we can say to this is that we'd hate to wear clothes designed by reformers. Sackcloth and ashes are not the type for glorious American womanhood.

THE ANNUAL SURPRISE.

If you're feelin' like me, you will surely agree, there's a kick in the thought of a swim. You can't call it rash when you're achin' to splash in the water with vigor and vim.

When comes the hot weather folks gather together and talk of a picnic or two. While beach ads you're scanning, you're hurriedly planning on what is the best thing to do.

Of course, in the end, you can always depend that you'll motor or walk to a beach. A swim is the thing that is certain to bring all the people who live within reach.

Then you gladly recall that, quite late in the fall, a garment for bathing was stored. So out comes the trunk where the suit has been sunk and it's due to be quickly explored.

You hunt and you hunt; it's the annual stunt. Then you find it and shortly you don it. But then you're confused for it cannot be used 'cause the moths have been dining upon it.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

"FIGHTING ADVENTURER," Good Entertainment — Clever Subtitles—Pat O'Malley and Mary Astor Starred.

In the introductory title of "The Fighting Adventurer," the film presentation at the Royal last night, Carl Laemmle, President of Universal Pictures Corporation, explains that the production is not one to tax the mentality of the spectators, who must look upon the narrative as nonsense. This story was written by William Edwell Oliver, and was selected as the winning manuscript in the Laemmle Scholarship contest. It was first called "The Throwback," and its incidents are mindful of a modern comic opera book. Hence one might set it down as rather pleasant nonsense.

As an instance of the stuff or stuffing in this story, reference might be made to the ignoble individual with a terrific thirst for firewater, who after being pointed out as a horrible example, reforms—at least we surmise he does—and one eventually meets him in a small community in China where he wears the insignia of an exalted General. One has almost forgotten about him when his comic head pops out of the conveyance, and therefore the audience laughs heartily at his unexpected and quite impossible situation.

Pat O'Malley has a busy time playing the part of Bill Pendleton.

Raymond Hatton is quite funny as Danny, and Warner Oland is a Machivellian monster whose eyes and false eyebrows count for much in his clever acting. Miss Astor is dignified in spite of the story, suiting the the role of a missionary's daughters. This is a pleasant pot-pourri which must not be taken seriously.

AMATEUR NIGHT AS GOOD AS EVER AT ROYAL.

Last night the audience at the Royal thoroughly enjoyed the programme and the amateurs were all up to the mark. In the order of their appearance Katie Cherney sang "Chili Bean." Mary Turner danced a sailor hornpipe; Roland Gilbert started the big applause with his flute, and had a big time supplying the demand. Kelough strummed a uke and sang a couple of popular songs to good results, and Mar. and Emily Hemphill did a song and dance number in true professional style. A pie eating contest caused gales of laughter. Mr. Harris officiated as well as singing Katrina, by request.

AT THE CAPITOL

The Capitol for this week-end has one of the ludicrous Larry Semon comedies, with the white-faced star appearing in "The Cloud Hopper," in a series of hairbreadth stunts that aroused great enthusiasm in the audience last evening.

"Beyond the Border," the new Harry Carey picture which is the feature this week and delighted a huge audience last night at its premiere, gives you a first hand look at a local election with all its riotings, drinking, shooting and whatnot. No one who has ever lived in a Main Street town will gainsay that this scene as it appears in the Hunt Stromberg production is a faithful reproduction of an election in a typical one horse town.

Carey, as a hard riding, fast shooting officer of the law who befriends his prisoner because he believes the boy is not bad at heart but merely the tool of some rascal, gives a rugged, tense portrayal and by sheer force of his profound histrionic ability carries over to a glorious finish a story which does not depend, as do so many westerns, merely on fast riding and plenty of shooting.

Mildred Harris as the heroine is more whimsically beautiful than ever and she virtually permeates the entire film with her gentle charm and soft appeal. One could not ask for a lovelier screen personality, and on a horse or off one she is equally delightful.

The film is a screen version of Meredith Davis' magazine story, "When Smith Meets Smith" adapted to the screen by Harvey Gates who proves by the finished product that he was entirely capable of the job. Though the action of the story is always rapid and though the tense situations would seem to absorb every ounce of attention, one finds that he does take account of the unusual backgrounds against which the story is set and one cannot but remark on the perfection of the photography.

AT THE GRAND.

"RED NEWMAN, THE STRENUOUS

From what source "Red" Newman derives his splendid vitality, not even he can tell. Yet it is that same superabundance of "pep" that has placed him where he is, one of the foremost character singing comedians on the stage today, and he has done it all in the last ten years.

His every entrance is a signal for the audience to sit up and take a deep breath. He speeds up the action of every scene he appears in. His vitality is contagious. What a wonderful athletic instructor he would have made! A football coach, for example.

"Red" has several solutions as to the source of his animation. The first is that he revels in his work. He would rather be an actor than a king. Another is that he was considerably of a fighter in his youth, hailing from Bermondsey, where many of England's best fighters got their start. In 1905 he was the amateur lightweight champion of England. The rigid training of those days still stands him in good stead.

In the Dumbells' latest and greatest re , "Oh, Yes!" "Red" has the biggest opportunity of his shining career, and he makes the most out of it. His two songs, "Let's Keep the Money in the Country," and "How Does the Milk Get Into Cocoanuts?" are both sure-fire. Then, he has a part written for him in A Home from Home," the first comedy sketch. He also sings, "Oh, It's a Lovely War," for good measure.

The Dumbells will offer this entirely new revue at the Grand Theatre for two nights, Monday and Tuesday, June 8 and 9.

Here's the Tire You Want!

THAT'S exactly what the Goodyear Selected Dealer will say when you go to him for a tire.

No matter whether—for some good reason of your own—you want a low-priced tire or whether your eye is set on the finest quality—a big Balloon or another size—he has a Goodyear for you .... at a price you are glad to pay.

The Goodyear line is complete, in both price and type, because Goodyear must provide for sales all over the world—must meet the tire needs of all people with all kinds of cars running under all kinds of conditions.

Goodyear prices are low because Goodyears are the largest-selling tires in the world. Buying raw materials in huge quantities, Goodyear pays lowest prices. With vast factories operating steadily, day and night, Goodyear builds better tires at lower cost. The Selected Dealer plan of selling through only about one dealer out of four cuts down waste. You get all these savings.

So, no matter what type or price of tire interests you, see your Goodyear Selected Dealer. He gives you value and service none but a Selected Dealer can give.

EASY FOR BURNBRAE.

Defeated Rylstone 23-7 in Seymour Circuit.

BURNBRAE, June 4.—The game between Rylstone and Burnbrae at Campbellford last night was featured by heavy hitting on both sides, the fielding was loose in several cases, resulting in additional hits and runs. Sine, starting in the box for Rylstone, was hit for ten runs in 3 innings, while Heath yielded 13 in 4 innings. Heath's "3 times around" wind-up gave Burnbrae runners several stolen bases. Hume provided a sensation by stealing home. Rannie, pitching his first league game yielded 6 runs in 4 innings, but was steady with men on bases, the side being retired with the bases full on two occasions. Eagleson was touched for 1 run in the 3 innings he worked. Fifteen extra base hits were recorded; 3 by Rylstone, and 12 by Burnbrae; 3 of the latter being triples.

Buffalo Outhit Rochester in Slugging Match for Extra Bases.

SYRACUSE, June 4—Niebergall, Syracuse catcher won the most thrilling ball game witnessed here this season today when he hit the first ball pitched to him in the tenth inning over the left field fence for a home run. There was one out when Niebergall broke up a pitchers battle between Walter Stewart of the Leafs on one side and "Wild" Bill Hallahan and Art Reinhart on the other. The final score was Syracuse 2, Toronto 1. Score:

Jersey City 7; Baltimore 5

BALTIMORE, June 4—Baltimore today met its eighth defeat in nine starts, Jersey City winning 7 to 5. The Skeeters came from behind in the seventh, a double by Malone tying the score and a home run by Wallie Simpson giving the visitors a lead they never gave up. Best pitched fine ball for the Skeeters. Before the game the Orioles announced they had purchased Maurice Archdeacon from the Chicago Americans on option and the sale of Catcher Lew McCarty to Reading. Score:

Reading 8; Providence 5

PROVIDENCE, R.I., June 4— Reading made it three straight over Providence today, winning a heavy batting game full of errors, by a score of 8 to 5. The Grays tried out a local high school boy in the box and after the fourth inning he was hit hard and often. Reading made eight errors on all sorts of chances, but the locals were too weak in hitting to take full advantage of them. Score:

Reading.. .. ..200 031 110—8 13 8

Both Kingston and Peterboro are at full strength for tomorrow's important Central Ontario League game at Riverside Park and the fans should see one of the best contests of the season.

The Ponies' new players, Halbert at short, Quinn behind the bat and Walker in left field will be in action, along with Purvis, Somerville, Batstone, Cherry and Teeple, while the pitching staff consists of Gallagher and Cairns southpaws and Young, righthander, none of whom have been beaten this season.

Gallagher is expected to draw the assignment, although the Kingston camp has made no announcement as to who will start against the Petes. The veteran left-hander has not been on the mound since Victoria Day when he let Oshawa down with three hits and it is his turn to do the heaving tomorrow.

The Petes are all in good shape and "rarin' to go", anxious to extend their winning streak to four games and to take a fall out of the far-from modest Ponies.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock sharp with Colling of Belleville and Dell of Oshawa in charge.

A record crowd is likely in view of the general interest in the struggle.

INSIDE GOFL

By CHESTER THORON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

One of the best ways I have found for bringing about a good shift of weight at the beginning of the back swing is this: Just before starting the back swing let the weight pass mostly to the left leg and, let the right heel lift an inch or two from the ground. Then, as the back swing starts, let the right heel go back into place. As it hits the ground stiffen the right leg as the club goes on up. This will quickly give you a correct idea of what the weight shift really is and at the same time will have a tendency to help you hold the body in line. From the top of the back swing, move forward through the body first, letting the clubhead swing, then throw the clubhead through the ball.

COBOURG SPORT IS FLOURISHING

Players of Many Games Have Made a Good Start.

A GOOD SEASON

SPORTS IN COBOURG

COBOURG, June 5.—Cobourg Soft Ball League has now got down to work. Two games scheduled for the week-end were postponed, but on Tuesday night the Kilties' Band outfit defeated the Hydro Sparks hustlers, 8 to 4.

On Monday night the Canadian National Railway won from the Knights of Columbus, 7 to 4.

Play, it is expected, will be fast and furious from now on.

Green in Fine Shape.

Sports of all kinds have got off to a good start here. Bowlers state that the green at Victoria Park is in better shape than it has been other seasons a month later than this. Rinks are being arranged, but to date the skips have not been chosen, although playing is going on every day. The clubhouse has been repainted and presents a very tidy and nice appearance.

Cobourg Team Defeated.

A picked baseball team from Cobourg went out to Roseneath on Saturday, where they met the Northumberland County League team of that place, and were defeated by a narrow margin in a close game.

Cobourg Scouts Win.

In a game at Port Hope on Saturday afternoon, Cobourg Scouts won from the Port Hope boys 4 to 1. The next game is to be played here on Friday evening of this week.

Junior 7; Dyeing Company 4.

The Cobourg Junior Baseball team is the real stuff and are looking for a good season. In a Town League game at Victoria Park, they defeated the Dyeing Company 7 to 4, and so got off to a good start.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The eve of the most important Central Ontario League game of the season finds both the Kingston Ponies and Manager Johnston's Petes supremely confident of a victory at Riverside Park tomorrow. The Kingston crew indeed carry their confidence to the point of chestiness; they are inclined to under-rate the opposition at all times, and perhaps to unduly stress their own ability, and for that reason they have never been very popular with Peterboro fans, and the local enthusiasts are looking forward to seeing them taken down a peg in tomorrow's fixture.

• • • • • • • • • •

Neither line-up has been definitely announced, and probably won't be until game time tomorrow. Gallagher is expected to do the gunning for the visitors, although Manager Daley may take the notion to test the Petes with some right-hand stuff for a change and shoot in Young, instead of the ancient southpaw. Young has not started a game this season for the Ponies, but he finished the Belleville fixture in fine style after Lefty Cairns had been shelled off the mound in the first inning.

• • • • • • • • • •

For the Petes Whitehouse is heralded as the likely starter, but Shiner Johnston may also decide before 3 o'clock tomorrow to try right-handed twirling and to turn Al. Heckman into action against the Ponies.

• • • • • • • • • •

With the Ponies and Petes leading the Central Ontario parade and already acclaimed as the likely finalists, tomorrow's game between the two rivals is interesting fandom all over Eastern Ontario, and there will be an unusually large attendance from all over the district. Towns like Lindsay, Port Hope and Cobourg, once franchise-holders in the Central loop, have never lost interest in that circuit and contribute big quotas of fans when an important game is on the cards. Tomorrow's fixture being in that category, the real enthusiasts will all be on hand when Umpire Ken Colling sends the teams away at 3 o'clock.

• • • • • • • • • •

Belleville and Oshawa provide the other Central Ontario League attraction tomorrow, clashing at Oshawa, with Alex. Kay and George Sullivan in charge. Belleville have lost four straight, while the Motorists have dropped their last three—so you can do your own picking as to the result.

Cardinals Lose First Game Since New Manager Took Charge Sunday.

BEATEN BY GIANTS

Lindstrom, Cooney and Bancroft Out of Game With Smashed Fingers.

ST. LOUIS, June 4 — Manager Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals went into a tie with Bob Meusel of the New York Yankees for major league home run honors by polling his 14th and 15th circuit clouts of the season, but the Cardinals lost to the Giants today 11 to 10 in a free hitting game.

It was the first defeat of the locals since Hornsby assumed directorship last Sunday.

Third baseman Lindstrom of the Giants received an injury to his hand from a pitched ball and shortstop Cooney of the Cardinals injured his finger in catching a fly. Both may be out of the game several days. Score:

New York... ..021-002-411—11 12 2
St. Louis .... ..202 200 112—10 17 2

Pirates 16; Phillies 3

PITTSBURG, June 4—Pittsburgh pounded a quartet of Philadelphia pitchers for a 16 to 3 victory in the first game of the series today. Cuyler led the attack with a single, double, triple and home run. His catch of Harper's drive, which he turned into a double play, was a feature. The score:

Philadelphia ...001 010 100— 3 10 3
Pittsburgh ....123 402 40x—16 18 0

Knight, Betts, O'Neal, Ulrich and Wilson, Wendell; Meadows and Smith, Gooch.

Reds 7; Braves 6

CINCINNATI, June 4—Cincinnati broke its losing streak today by defeating Boston in an extra inning game by the score of 7 to 6. The Reds pounded Barnes and Marquard for 18 hits. Bancroft regular shortstop for Boston, broke his left thumb in the first inning and had to retire. He will be out of the game for at least two weeks the physcian says. Score:

Boston .. ..010 031 010 00—6 11 1
Cincinnati ...000 022 002 01—7 18 1

Barnes, Marquard and Gibson; Donohue, Rixey, May and Hargrave, Bruggy, Wingo.

Cubs 11; Dodgers 9

CHICAGO, June 4—Chicago defeated Brooklyn 11 to 9 in a slugging match in which 14 hits went for extra bases, five of the blows were home runs scored by Taylor, Grimm, Griffith, Frigeau and Fournier. Score:

MILLBROOK LOST BASEBALL GAME

Port Hope Banks Defeated Cosmos Club on Wednesday.

MILLBROOK NEWS

The Bankers of Port Hope played a friendly game of baseball with the Cosmos Club of Millbrook on Wednesday evening, the former winning out by a score of 17-6.

The line up was:

Port Hope—McCannell, p; Bradley, c; O'Neil, 1b; McAndrews, 1b; Palmer, 2b; Spicer 3b; Horgan, rf; Mellville, lf; Westaway, cf; Lawrence, ss.

Millbrook—B. B. Dawson, p; K. Larmer, c; F. Russell, 1b; R. Hutchinson, 2b; A. Miller. 3b; G. Russel, rf; H. Jordan, lf; B. Richards, cf; H. Lancashire, ss.

Umpires: On bases Tozer (Port Hope), At plate A. McCorry (Millbrook.)

This was the first ball game of the season here; the second will be played on Thursday at 5.30 sharp between South Monaghan and Millbrook.

Successful Dance

The Cosmos Club held a successful June dance in the Armouries on Monday evening. The heavy thunderstorm interfered considerably with the attendance, but about one hundred couples were present, and a most enjoyable time was spent.

Hoopers' six-piece orchestra, of Lindsay, furnished music to the satisfaction of all. The patronesses included: Mrs. T. H. Bradley, Mrs. H. J. Grassett, Mrs. J. N. McGill, Mrs. J. C. Kells, Mrs. A. J. Fletcher, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Mrs. W. E. Russell, Mrs. Winslow. Supper was catered for by Lambert.

The Young People's League took a further study of Sherwood Eddy's book, "Facing the Crisis", at its regular meeting this week, the devotional committee, Miss Jean Burnham, convener, being in charge.

The unfavorable weather interfered with the usual attendance to a noticeable degree.

Miss Mary Howard, who has had the privilege of personally hearing Mr. Eddy lecture during her student course at Toronto University, discussed in a very interesting manner, the chapter, "Is our religion worth exporting?"

Next week, as other local events are likely to interfere on both Monday and Tuesday evenings, the League will probaby hold only a brief meeting at an earlier hour than usual, leaving the members free to take in an entertainment later in the evening if they so desire.

The C.G.I.T. programme will also be postponed until the following week because of counter attractions.

Dr. A. Jemison motored to Bobcaygeon on Sunday and visited relatives for the day.

Mr. G. Sanderson has moved this week to the house on Main street recently occupied by Mrs. A. Hanna. T. J. Lang purchased Mrs. Hanna's home, and re-sold to Mr. Sanderson. Mrs. Hanna has gone to Peterboro, and will make her home with her son, Mr. E. Hanna.

Mr. Allan Mitchell has taken the house on Tupper street vacated by Mr. Sanderson. T. J. Lang purchased this house also, and made ready sale to Mr. Mitchell, whose place of business is practically next door.

Rev. Canon and Mrs. Allen motored to Toronto this week, and will remain in the city for a few days Mr. Allen's heath is still far from satisfactory, and necessitates visits to Toronto at intervals for consultation with the specialist who has his case in charge.

Mrs. McClung of Midland is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. Forsyth. The latter is still seriousiy ill, with noticeable improvement in her condition now for some weeks.

Millbrook council held a brief session on Monday evening, few items of importance coming up for discussion. The June meeting is the time when the Court of Revision convenes, but no appeals on the question of assessment came before the "city fathers" this month.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Thoms, and little daughter, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lord, this week. Mr. Thoms conducted a barber shop sixty miles north of Winnipeg, the entire settlement, practically, being foreigners largely from Iceland. Having sold his home, and business, Mr. and Mrs Thoms motored to Millbrook, a distance of nineteen hundred miles, experiencing not even the minor mishap of a flat tire on the entire journey.

Mr. Thoms is considering purchasing a business in Beaverton, Mrs. Lord and two daughter, Miriam and Winnie, accompanying the party on their trip to this attractive summer resort on the shore of Lake Simcoe early in the week.

Mrs. J. McKnight and Mrs. Offa Williamson are in Oshawa this week attending the annual Branch Meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Special features will be introduced at the gathering, the last of its kind, as the Methodist church becomes a part of the great United Church of Canada on the tenth of this month. The convention is being held in the Simcoe Street Methodist church.

Dr. A. Jemison attended the convention of Dental Surgeons in Toronto last week.

Mrs. A. McIntyre of Peterboro, Mrs. I. E. and Miss May Needham, recently motored to Embro and were guests of Mrs. (Dr.) W. Montgomery over the week end. The party visited Toronto friends on the return trip.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston were guests of friends in Lakefield on Sunday.

TWO SOCCER GAMES TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Woollens and Quakers at the Oval — Masseys Vs. De Laval at King Edward.

Three straight! This has been the portion served upon the two teams to participate in a soccer league game between the Quaker Oats and the Canadian Woollens on Saturday afternoon at Nicholl's Oval. Kick off at 3 o'clock. Referee J. C. Russell.

ed likewise last Saturday in the Phelan Charity Cup tie two weeks ago, when the Woollen boys won by odd goal, then fate again decided likewise last Saturday in the Gordon Cup game by the small margin of one goal which was of the opportune kind in favor of Woollens, while Quaker boys have had no breaks throughout the struggles, but perhaps tomorrow's ninety-minute encounter may terminate the winner's winning streak. At any rate fans can always depend on excellent sportsmanship.

The local Thistle team travel to Warkworth to entertain Warkworth boys in a friendly game. This is the necessary thing to encourage the fast becoming universal sport.

Local junior soccer fans are talking about the DeLaval versus Massey game that will take pace on Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park at 3 o'clock. Frank McKinley referee.

Dummer and Warsaw meet at Dummer in a junior game. S. Calladine referee.

Canadian Woollens team for tomorrow will be: C. Griffin goal; J. Cridland and J. Chambers backs; A. Sayers, H. Mann and G. Blowers, half backs; J. Mitchell, A. Mitchell, W. James, J. Gaskill and A. Burgess forwards.

Canadian Woollens Juveniles and North Ends play at King Edward Park at 1.30 to-morrow. Woollens team: Mitchell, goal; Walsh and Goldie, backs; Markham, White and Saunders, half-backs; Kellar, McPhail, Vinette, Rose and Sturgeon, forwards. Reserves: Pammett and Paige.

BANKERS 'PIED' PRINTERS TEAM

Examiner Squad Kicked in Ten Errors in Mercantile Game.

The Examiner players put up a shameful exhibition of so-called baseball behind the pitching of Duggan and Marchen, while they were unable to get their hurlers enough runs off the pitching of Casey Masterson to make up for those they gave away. The net result was a victory for the Bankers by the score of 10-4. The Bankers got only three hits off Duggan and two off Marchen but they injected them after the newspapermen had put runners on the sacks through errors. When the printers put men on the sacks the punch to score them was lacking, and they were left stranded. W. Collins, performing in a Lakview outfit, was a disgrace to the uniform, fumbling three easy. Scates' glass arm, kept him out of the battery. Score:

Bankers—Taylor, ss; Payne, rf; Freeman, lf; Fraser, 2b; Masterson, p; Kennealey, c; McWilliams, 3b; Baird, 1b; Wensley, cf.

Examiner—Dugan, 3b, c; Taylor, 1b; Collins, ss; Marchen, 2b, p; Franks, lf.; Delahaye, c; Baker, cf; Scates, rf; Duggan, p, 2b.

RAGGED GAME WON BY KING EDWARD

Defeated Prince of Wales 21-2 at Monaghan Road Grounds.

Last evening on the Prince of Wales' grounds, a most ragged game of baseball was played, in which the King Edward school team did nearly all the hitting and the Prince of Wales team made nearly all the errors. This accounts for the very one-sided score of 21-2. In the former game between these teams the score was 8-6 in favor of King Edward team. The teams:

Prince of Wales—Cotton, c; Wilson, 3b; Hollingsworth, s.s.; Rightmeyer, rf; Golden, cf; Craig, 1b; Cuthbertson, lf; Lucas, 2b; and Holmes p.

King Edward—Austin, 2b; Battle, cfl Pugh, 1b; Cripps, p; Solmes, s.s.; Steer, 3b; Kearns, lf; Moffat, cf; and James, rf.

SOFTBALL GAME A FAST AFFAIR

Thunderstorm Kept Number of Spectators Down — Speeders Lost to Sluggers.

OMEMEE, June 5—On Monday evening a fast game of softball was played on the Athletic Park between the Wide Awake Mission Band (Speeders) and a team of High School girls (Sluggers.) As this was the first exhibition game, many spectators had planned to witness it but shortly after the game commenced, a severe electric storm was brewing and there were only a few people present. The game was a little one-sided although both teams worked hard. The "Sluggers" proved too much for the "Speeders" and the score resulted in a win for the former by 35-10.

Rev. E. W. Rowland acted as umpire.

Steamer Up

The steamer "Lintonia" of Lindsay, came up around the lake to Lowe's landing on Tuesday and towed a crib of logs to Carew's mill, Lindsay.

On Sunday next a union service will be held in the Presbyterian Church owing to the Methodist pastor being absent at Conference.

TUNNEY EXPECTS TO BEAT GIBBONS

Will Be Next Heavyweight Champion If Dempsey Will Fight.

TO-NIGHT'S BOUT.

NEW YORK, June 5. — "Somebody has to succeed Jack Dempsey as the heavyweight champion of the world, and I might just as well be the one," Gene Tunney of the marines, and the American light-heavyweight champion, said yesterday.

Tunney meets Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul heavyweight, to-night, in a 15-round bout at the Polo grounds, and he believes that the winner will be entitled to claim a position next to Dempsey in the class.

"I feel confident that I am going to be the next champion," he said. "I know that I can beat anyone who wants to claim the title and I believe I can beat Dempsey if he ever fights again."

Tunney did his training on the banks of the lake at White Sulphur Springs and he looks to be in the best condition of his career. He is heavier than he has ever been before and probably is stronger, as he has filled out all over his frame.

"I'm through with the light-heavyweight class," Tunney said. "The title meant very little as it isn't seriously taken and I never got any real money out of it. The big money and the honors are in the heavyweight title, and I'm going after it.

Very Confident.

"I'm confident that I can beat Gibbons. I'm bigger than he is, I am stronger, and although he is ten years older than I am, I know that I have had enough experience in the ring not to be a sucker for any one. Gibbons went 15 rounds with Dempsey when the champion was rusty from idleness, and he lasted the route because he remained entirely on the defensive. If he fights that way against me I know that I can outpoint him because no decision can be given justly for a defensive fighter. If he opens up and fights I am sure I'll knock him out. I know that Gibbons never has been knocked out or knocked off his feet. Neither have I."

Tunney, who finished training yesterday will weigh around 185 pounds when he enters the ring. Gibbons may be a couple of pounds lighter.

BRIEF SKETCHES OF BIG STARS

by ART CARLSON

STANLEY COVELESKIE
Washington
Right-Handed Pitcher

Born—Shamokin, Pa., July 11, 1891.

Major League Career—Joined Philadelphia Athletics in 1912, coming from Atlantic City club, Tri-State League. Released end of season to Spokane, Northwestern League. Transferred to Portland, same league, in player agreement at end of 1914 campaign. Transferred to Cleveland in working agreement start of 1916 season. Traded to Washington Dec. 12, 1924, for Pitcher Speece and Outfielder Carr Smith.

Outstanding Feats — Won three games in the 1920 world series with Brooklyn, equaling record. Won 24 games and lost 11 in 1919. Topped the 20-game figure in victories four straight seasons, 1918 to 1921, inclusive.

Puzzle Plays in Baseball

THE PLAY.

There are runners on second and third and one out. It is Jones' turn to bat, his place in the line-up being third. However, Smith, who occupies the fourth position in the batting order, goes to bat and doubles, scoring the runners on second and third.

The team in the field, realizing that Smith has batted out of order, calls the attention of the umpire to the play before a ball has been pitched to the next batter.

Do the runs count and what is the proper handling of the play?

THE ANSWER.

The runs do not count. No runs can score on any act of an improper batsman. They scored on Smith's double, who had batted improperly.

When there is a batting-out-of-order play, and it is discovered in time, the umpire must always call out the proper batsman, the man who should have batted.

In this case the proper batsman was Jones. He is called out for Smith's act of batting out of order. The runners are sent back to their original bases, second and third. Smith, who batted improperly and doubled, is removed from second.

The next batter must be the player who follows Jones in the batting order. In this case it is Smith. He must come back and bat over.

In batting-out-of-order plays that are properly discovered, the proper batter is always called out and no bases can be run on any act of an improper batsman.

BOBBY JONES IN FINAL OF GOLF

Tied MacFarlane's Score in 72 Round Open Championship Match.

PLAY OFF TO-DAY.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 5. (Canadian Press)—North and south, tall and short, thin and stocky, middle age and youth, met on the links of the Worcester Country Club to-day to decide who shall be open golf champion of the United States.

Willie MacFarlane, veteran professional from Tuckahoe, N.Y., and Bobby Jones, young in years but old in competition, are foes, for yesterday they had outscored 92 rivals at the end of the allotted 72 holes—a battle fought in wilting heat for the greater part of the time.

The struggle was sensational and the tired crowd flocked to the home green as each noted exponent of the game came into view. It was Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge professional, who was expected to lead at the end of the day. Then came the news that indomitable Walter Hagen, conqueror of hundreds on the links, was moving toward the homeward stretch with deadly accuracy, and would require only par figures to win.

With the Hagen threat the topic of discussion among the thousands gathered to witness the play, Jones came to the last hole, playing steadily and assured of a score to equal that of Farrell. Drive, chip and two putts took him down—a 291.

But MacFarlane, who had led them all the previous day, played desperately. He needed a four at the last and he obtained it with some nerve-wracking play that made the throng gasp. His second lay forty feet from the pin on the second terrace of the green, fully two feet higher than the hole. Two strokes would equal Jones, one would bring him untold fame. He took two.

Cyril Walker, of Englewood, N.J., the champion, had been left in the ruck, MacDonald Smith, a great favorite, broke under the test, and Leo Diegel, after pushing his way into the foreground on the first game, stumbled in his last nine holes.

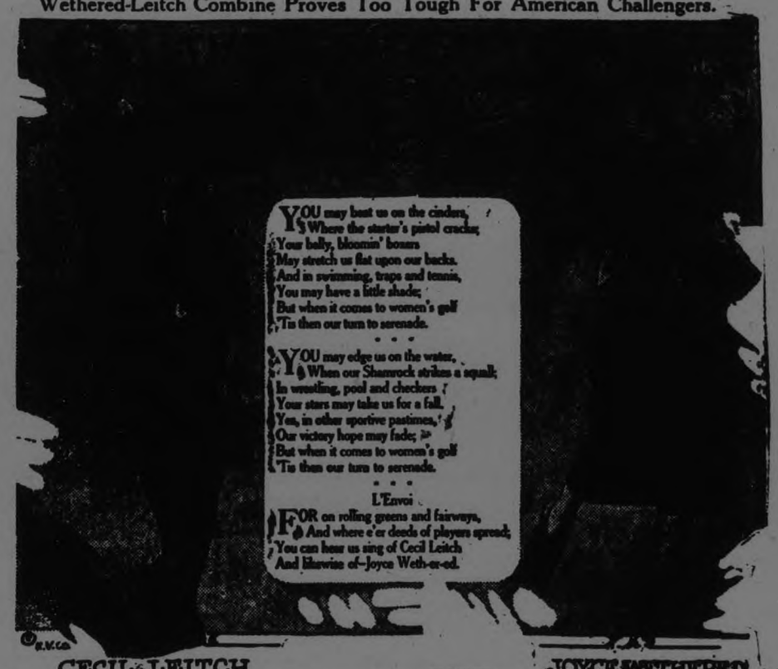
The twelve top scorers were:

Robert T. Jones, Atlanta	147	144—291
Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N.Y.	141	150—291
Johnny Farrell, Namaroneck	145	147—292
Francis Ouimet, Auburndale, Mass.	143	149—292
Gene Sarazen, Jamaica, N.Y.	144	149—293
Walter Hagen, Pasadena, Fla.	148	145—293
Mike Brady, Namaroneck	146	148—294
Leo Diegel, Glen Oaks, N.Y.	141	155—296
Al Espinosa, Chicago	143	154—297
Laurie Ayton, Chicago	146	151—297
Joe Tournesa, Elmsford, N.Y.	150	149—299
Al Watrous, Grand Rapids	151	149—300

Among the veteran golfers, Jock Hutchison had 156, 150—306; Joe Kirkwood, 154, 161—315; Pat Doyle, of White Plains, 155, 155—310; and Tommy Armour, of New York, 160, 152—312.

BRITISH WOMEN STILL HOLD SWAY IN GOLF

Wethered-Leitch Combine Proves Too Tough For American Challengers.



CECIL LEITCH JOYCE WETHERED

NEW YORK, June 4—Joyce Wethered and Cecil Leitch.

What a pair in the realm of women's golf!

If it isn't one it's the other or both who put a decided crimp into the foreign golfing ambitions of talented American damsels.

Within the past few seasons America has sent several of its best linkswomen across the pond in quest of British laurels. But the invasion has thus far always proved futile.

And mainly because of that brilliant Wethered-Leitch combine.

On the list of invading forces have been three of the greatest players this country has yet developed—Marion Hollins, Alexa Stirling and Glenna Collett.

Competition Too Tough

Back in 1921 Marion Hollinse and Alexa Stirling sought to tame the British lioness, Cecil Leitch, in her den. They didn't cause any undue furors, however.

The other day, Glenna Collett, the pride of Providence, R.I., met the usual American fate. She fell before the other British great, Joyce Wethered.

Like her predecessors, Marion and Aexa, likewise several other lesser lights, she found the competition a few precious strokes beyond her reach.

Marion, Alexa and Glenna have all been American crown-wearers at some time or other. For five straight seasons they divided the honors.

What better competitive force could America send against Britain's best? The correct reply is "none."

Virtually year after year Cecil Leitch and Joyce Wethered have ranked one-two in British women's play. It has been a party for two to a great extent. Cecil and Joyce have upheld the British standards nicely against America's representatives.

Form Great Combine

In boxing, swimming, tennis, polo, track and field, yachting and horse racing, British entries have usually left the battle scene defeated. Even in men's golf Uncle Samuel's contestants have occasionally crashed through the field on foreign invasions to reach the top heights.

But to date the success of America's women golfers in England and vincity has been conspicuous by its absence. And, as mentioned mostly because of oyce Wethered and Cecil Leitch, a pair of golfing queens.

They're a mighty tough combination to dethrone.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

THE BOSTON BRAVES.

Along with the Phillies, include the Boston Braves in the list of National League surprise teams. For like Fletcher's club the Bancroft entourage has been playing stellar ball.

Last spring critics were picking the Beantown gang to start around the bottom of the heap. And to stay there. There was nothing much to get excited about in so far as the Braves were concerned. Like the Phils, they were doomed.

But the Braves have rather upset the dope. Thus far, at least. The club has been hitting and it has been getting good pitching. Several of the youngsters have shown to advantage, too.

Marriott, at third, has been playing exceptional ball both at the plate and afield. He looks like a comer.

COONEY AND KAMP.

Cooney and Kamp, pitchers, have turned in some nice games.

Cooney has been on the Braves' roster for the past few seasons. But this year he looks better than ever.

Kamp's a tot, up in the main tent for the first time. He was well spoken of during spring training season. And he seems to be living up to advance notices.

Burrus, at one time with the Athletics, has been holding down the first base cushion nicely, and has been hitting timely, too. At short, Bancroft appears to be the same old Dave despite the added responsibilities of being a major league manager.

The outfield, composed of Neis, Harris and Felix, likewise has kept pace with the performances of the rest of the team.

HAND GIANTS BEATING.

Recently the Braves rather surprised the wiseacres by handing the Giants three straight defeats. They did it when the McGraw gang was travelling along at a good clip, too.

Incidentally, the whippings cut the lead of the Giants considerably, and made the race look like something more than a procession.

Of course, Bancroft may not be able to keep his outfit going in the same manner in which it has started. It may do a complete reverse and hit the stride it had been doped to follow last spring.

But to date it has done far better than had been anticipated and may add further surprise by adhering to the pace.

Like the Phillies, many have opined that the Braves have been playing over their heads, and along with the Quakertown ensemble are due to tumble.

Whether or not such will be the case remains to be seen. But you've at least got to give them credit for making a far better getaway than the most enthusiastic Boston rooters were willing to concede before the opening of the chase.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARTHA McMILLAN.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha McMillan, wife of Wilbert McMillan, who died on Thursday morning, will take place on Saturday at 3 p.m., from her late residence, 595 Division street. Interment will be made in the Little Lake cemetery, Rev. W. Harold Young officiating.

RICHARD SHEEHY.

An announcement that came as a distinct shock to the city this morning was that of the death in the early hours of this morning of Richard Sheehy, Senior. The late Mr. Sheehy, who hass been a prominent member of the life of this community for many years, suffered from a sudden attack of angina pectoris at noon on Saturday, and lingered until about twenty minutes past two o'clock this morning, when he passed away at his residence, 751 George Street, the former home of the late Hon. J. R. Stratton, purchased by the deceased some years ago. He was sixty-six years of age.

Mr. Sheehy was born in County Tipperary Ireland. He came out to Canada in 1863, and has resided in Peterboro for practically the entire period since that time, with the exception of two or three years spent in residence at different times in California.

He was a member of the local Council of the Knights of Columbus, and president of the St. Alphonsus' Lyceum Association. He was interested in a quiet but always effective fashion in civic and charitable endeavors of many sorts, and took an unobtrusive part in those things which worked for the good of the community in which he lived.

As founder and head of the Sheehy Construction Company, the late Mr. Sheehy has left behind him enduring monuments of the work of his hands. Of him it might be said that he "builded well that which was good," for many handsome churches of the faith of which he was a loyal member stand as a memorial of his endeavors. Of the worldly substance which rewarded his efforts, he returned a portion toward the furtherance of good works. For the sound foundations of many a noble church, for the stout walls that will withstand for generatons to come the shock of age and elements, for the careful planning and honest construction of numerous fine scholastic and community buildings, the late Mr. Sheehy was responsible. His memory will be preserved for many long years to come in enduring tablets of steel and brick and mortar, well and truly laid.

Among the buildings for which Mr. Sheehy and his sons were contractors were The Sacred Heart Church, the House of Providence, the Peterboro Collegiate Institute, the Henry Hope factory, the Church of St. Martin's at Ennismore, the Catholic church at Port Arthur, the Sacred Heart Church at Wolfe Island, St. Mary's Church at Campbellford, the Post Office at Deseronto, the Queen Mary school and the Prince of Wales schools, the Colonial Weaving Company's factory, St. Lawrence Church in Hamilton, St. Francis' Church in Toronto, the Church of the Angel Guardian at Orillia, and additions to All Saints' Church, Mount St. Joseph, the Nicholls Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital.

The late Mr. Sheehy who was also president of the Lakefield Lumber Company, was responsible for the construction of the first cement sidewalks in this city and had a great deal to do with civic drainage work.

Survivors are his sorrowing wife, six sons: Dr. Richard Sheehy, Sarsfield, James, Michael, Emmet and Fergus and one daughter, Dorcen, all of Peterboro. Three sisters and one brother also survive: Mrs. Margaret Flynn of Boston, Massachusetts, Mrs. Michael O'Brien of Toronto, Mrs. John Corkery, senior, of Peterboro, and James J. Sheehy of Chicago.

The funeral will be held from his late residence on Sunday afternoon, at half past two o'clock, with services at St. Peter's Cathedral and interment in St. Peter's Cemetery.

The Presbyterian Church Assembly

By R. E. KNOWLES

(SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER)

A country parson's sons visited a circus and avowed their purpose to "Be clowns; it's such fun." Later, after attending Assembly they said "We're going to be Presbyterian ministers, it's more fun."

TORONO, Ont., June 6.—here is reason to fear that the General Assembly has reformed. During the great debate on the use of organs, in the Irish General Assembly, a country parson brought with him his two youthful sons. Improving the time, the morning was given to a circus, as a result of which both of his boys avowed their purpose to "be clowns, it's such fun." But at eventide, after they had accompanied their reverened dad to debate, they announced: "Father, we're going to be Prebyterian ministers, it's far more fun."

But vanished seem such attractions now, here is reason to fear that there will never be any more rows, no more sanctified scraps, in our great church court. For everything yesterday was favorable for such an explosion—but "no storms ever broke on that beautiful strand." The day was intolerably hot—("My Brethren, this is a melting occasion," wailed the late moderator, Dr. R. F. Burns, to the Assembly at Winnipeg back in the eighties, the mercury in the nineties.) Yesterday was hot, the church crowded, the material till the evening, soporific; the street cars held their annual picnic outside—The eight-hand reel and Sir Roger de Coverly their favorite diversion—but the hotter it grew, the more cool seemed the moderator; and, like the old dyer's hand (too hot yet to trace the analogy) the Assembly kept cool likewise and staggered cheerfully along its sweltering, fanning brow-mopping way. Several of the brethren from the back concessions, after vainly and irreverently seeking to raise the wind with the "Globe" desperately and unashamedly flung off their coats, well aware that Gandier has not yet returned and that A. B. Winchester is far away, the novel spectacle provoking no visible mark of displeasure from the moderator, though he could be seen eyeing the divested brethren yet with such a look as said: "Oh, what must it be to be there."

Put Something On.

One notable exception to this process of elimination was Sedgewick, of Hamilton who put something else on. For he last night presided in a handkerchiek carefully wrapped about his not abbreviated neck and falling with fine vestal effect upon the ebony garb of his generous breast, a kind of reversed hood, doubtless some new thing in homiletic millinery which he was trying out amid the humble surroundings of Cochrane's throne preparatory to its finished glory among the splendent surroundings of the Metropolitan pulpit and Metropolitan church, both of which he is soon to fill.

But let us speak no more of the sartorial estate of the clerical members of the Assembly. Its glory has departed. Even the scarcely yet convalescent moderator, fair, funloving, fascinating Clarence, appeared yesterday morning ,after all the rich foliage of the night before, in the most worldly of greys. This is no wise to be palliated by the fact that W. J. Clark, erstwhile our most canonical, flashed upon the Assembly in a tweed which did we not know how clerical he is inside would have suggested the unholy and equine Thorncliffe which, let us hope, has nothing to do with the now mundane garb of R. P. McKay and Ralph Connor and scores of others of the brethren who have abandoned the crape dickie and the dog collar in such numbers that the sombre E. A. Henry of Deer Park, reverendissme and unionist is now almost the only black hope left to us.

Youngest Moderator.

Well, as has been said, Pidgeon is a lovely Moderator. His wholesomeness of appearance, urbanity of manner, patience toward the incapable, heroism under the interminable, humility despite exaltation suddenly appearing, all endear him to the Assembly and the Church.

Surely he is a fine example of a man who has ripened under abuse and aspersion. It is said that in Lincoln's early lawyer days there might often be seen, as a P.S. to his brief, a "skin defendant." Many an anti-Union speech, I am sure, might have had at its base the miscellaneous programme: "Skin Gandier and Pidgeon." But both have emerged unruffled and ensweetered and with kingdom enlarged and enlarging. Dr. Pidgeon is, by the way, the youngest Moderator in the Church's history, looking even younger than he really is.

Psalmody the Rock.

Dr. Alexander MacMillan, convenor of church praise, too, of melodious life and labor, appeared again, each appearance more acclaimed than the last. The Assembly is only beginning to realize the vast importance of Mr. MacMillan's work. How great it may be, at this transition period, it were difficult to estimate. The old adage about making "the songs of a nation" is tenfold true of the songs of the Church. Indeed—and this will stand some thinking over—the axis of cleavage in all this bitter controversy over Union, in a hidden but very real way has been the question of psalmody. Not recognized by the antis themselves it is yet deeply there; that is to say, our denominational consciousness articulates itself more, and more voices its identity in our ancient media of song than in any other way. Nothing else has been so distinctive, outwardly, of the Church which alone has, which nobly it alone could discoin, the beauty and the rugged grandeur of those unadorned cliffs of stately melody on which Scotchmen, like climbers of the Hill of God, have for centuries found a congenial pathway to those heights beyond the hills of time. And, further, Dr. MacMillan has done more than any other to obviate and relieve what has long been a scandal of the Church, to wit, this—that choirs and choir leaders, consecrated to harmony, have yet done more to engulf ministers and congregations in the vortex of discord than all other agencies combined. There is no demon like the singing demon—and, for every one minister who has gone forth from his flock on other wings there are ten who have gone forth on the wings of melody.

Ladies Without Hats—And Men Without Coats Invited To Murray Street Church

The lady worshippers in Murray Street Baptist Church during the hot weather will be welcome without hats. It is hoped that this will not be considered an invitation to wear furs. The men will be equally welcome without coats.

CROP PROSPECT BEST IN YEARS

Conditions Are Ideal in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

LOCUSTS IN ALBERTA.

WINNIPEG, June 6 (Canadian Press)—The crop prospects are the best since 1887. Recent rains have given moisture to carry to July 1. The probable rapid growth and early maturity minimizes the hazards of rust, frost and insect pests. There are some scattered complaints in Alberta of locusts, dry areas and cut worm. Saskatchewan and Manitoba are ideal. With the United States accepted as out of the export field for the next twelve months, Canadian farmers are sure of a satisfactory price even should a bumper crop be harvested.

There is general optimism here.

When Fascisti Suppress Edition They Find Way to Defeat Purpose.

ROME, June 6.—(Associated Press).—Italian newspapers devoted to espousing the cause of political parties opposed to Fascism, have initiated a novel method of serving their readers with news and opinions criticizing the Government.

Each time an edition of an opposition newspaper is suppressed by the censors, a subsequent edition prints a modest item setting forth the title of the article which caused the suppression. But each title is significant enough to explain the context of the offending article.

For example, the Mondo says, "Our second edition was suppressed because of an article entitled 'Responsibility,' commenting on a similar article in the Popolo d'Italia. Our third edition was suppressed because of a comment on the reply of Minister Rocco on the interrogation of the Facist Deputy De Marsico about the transfer of cer-

HEAT WAVE HAS TAKEN TOLL OF HUNDRED LIVES

Hundred Dead in the Middle West—140 in East; 15 in New York.

84 DIED FRIDAY.

Fifteen Thousand People Fought For Sleep in New York Parks.

NEW YORK, June 6 (Canadian Press)—The worst of six successive days of torrid heat has added 69 victims to the eastern states' heat death list bring the total to 140.

Fifteen Victims

NEW YORK CITY, June 6 (Canadian Press)—Gasping for breath in a temperature of 96 degrees, recorded 15 deaths due to heat yesterday. More than fifteen thousand persons slept in the parks last night.

CHICAGO, June 6 (Canadian Press)—The second week of the middle west's heat wave which has caused more than a hundred deaths from Nebraska to Ohio opened today with the outlook for a still higher temperature.

GRAIN OFFICE FOR WINNIPEG

Headquarters of Commission Transferred From Fort Williams With 50 Employees.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., June 6—The action of the Agriculture Committee of the House of Commons Friday in transferring headquarters of the Board of Grain Commissioners to Winnipeg caused quite a stir here.

Former Commissioner J. P. Jones declared that if it were desirable to place the commission in touch with The heart of the grain fields, the change should have been made to Regina or Moose Jaw but he believes that from his experience the commission was better situated at the head of the lakes.

Private interests in the city will be affected owing to the fact that the building which is now occupied by the commission was built for the purpose of housing the commission and it was understood that this was their permanent location.

The change will involve the transfer of upwards of fifty employees from here, many with families and the abandonment of practically one whole floor of the Grain Exchange building.

SUNDAY FISHING NOT FORBIDDEN WITHIN CANADA

Nova Scotia Member of Commons Suggested Restriction to Protect Fish.

ALSO DAY OF REST.

Not More Immoral Than Golfing or Motoring, Another Comment.

OTTAWA, June 6. — Canadian Press. — Followers of Izaak Walton, who are prone to wield the rod and line and indulge in sport fishing on Sundays in Nova Scotia, came under discussion in the House of Commons Friday afternoon, when an item for civil government administration in the Fisheries Branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, was under consideration.

"Was there ever in existence," asked L. H. Martel (Liberal-Hants) "a regulation which prevented fishing on the rivers or streams on Sunday and if so is such a regulation still in effect in Nova Scotia?"

"There is none," replied Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Harm to Fish.

"Has the Department ever taken into consideration,' Mr. Martel again asked, "the advisability of making Sunday a closed time both in the interests of the fish themselves, in order that the fish may be able to get to their spawning grounds. I think that would aid the fish generally, apart from the moral side. I think more harm is done by Sunday fishing than by all other fishing through out the week. People go off in the morning and whip practically every stream."

"They are also the cause of setting fires. Moreover, there is a day set set aside for rest—and that is the seventh day."

"How about Saturday?" interjected R. B. Hanson (Conservative-York Sunbury) to the amusement of the House.

"You can take it from the Scripture, or in any other way," retorted Mr. Martel. "One day in seven is necessary physically as well as morally."

Nets Prohibited.

Hon. Mr. Cardin interjected to say that net fishing was prohibited on Sunday, and in reply to a suggestion from Mr. Martel that he take into consideration the same restrictions in respect to sport fishing in Nova Scotia on Sunday, Mr. Cardin said he would consider the matter.

Mr. Hanson interjected to say that he agreed with Mr. Martell "from the view point of the fish themselves.' He did not see any more harm in sport fishing on Sunday than in Sunday golfing, motoring or a dozen other healthful recreations.

Two Million Automobiles Brought Tourist Parties Into Dominion Last Year

OTTAWA, June 6. (Canadian Press)—Nearly two million automobiles were admitted to Canada last year with tourist parties from the United States. Of these, 2,344 took out permits to remain from one to six months, 361,630 entered for two to thirty days and 1,534,885 entered for twenty-four-hour visits.

A statement issued by A. W. Campbell, Federal Commissioner of Highways, shows that the number of motoring tourists from the United States has nearly trebled since 1920. It is calculated that these visitors spent some $143,405,906 in Canada last year.

Canadians motoring into the United States for tourist purposes are estimated at 162,475.

TWO BEAR CUBS ADDED AT OVAL

Came From Rouyn District of Quebec—Thanks to C. H. Ackerman.

THEIR STORY

At Nicholls Oval, in charge of Walter Kitney, there are two little black bear cubs "Nancy" and "Patsy" which arrived in town from the Rouyn district of Quebec, yesterday.

A prospector in the employ of C. H. Ackerman found the mother bear and cubs when on his morning route. Due possibly to the hot weather ,the great brute became infuriated and rushed at the miner who managed to beat off the attack with a pick axe.

The cubs during the fracas shinned up a convenient tree to await developments and were surprised to see their valiant parent beat a hasty retreat, pursued hotly by the prospector who had wielded his pick axe so effectively.

When the prospector returned to the theatre of war the cubs were still in the tree so he stationed his sons on guard while he hied himself afer an axe whereby to retrieve the frightened Teddies.

Being a friend of Mr. Ackerman he wrote concerning the catch whereupon Mr. Ackerman advised crating the little fellows and sending them to Peterborough where they woud amuse many kiddies by their clumsy gambols, throughout the summer months.

Mr. Ackerman suggested that the council take steps in securing an appropriation in Jackson's Park for the establishment of a small menagerie, being of the opinion that a good one could be recruited in a short time and that the animals would be invaluable in the study of nature by the children.

The cubs were taken to the Oval in Mr. Ackerman's car and on their arrival were treated to a liberal drink of water and a succulent comb of honey, which members of the ursuline family can truly appreciate.

Mr. Kitney has also a pair of raccoons which together with the cubs should prove an added attraction to the Oval.

GERMAN ARMY MUST BE REDUCED AND KRUPP PLANTS DESTROYED IF ALLIES TO EVACUATE COLOGNE

Breaches By Germany of Versailles Treaty Emphasized in Allies' Note to Berlin—Industrial Factories Regarded as Easily Convertible For Production of Munitions.

SECURITY POLICE A MILITARY FORCE.

General Staff Must Be Modified and Short Term Enlistments Suppressed—German Evasions a Menace to Peace.

LONDON, June 6 — Germany's failures to carry out the disarmament requirements of the Versailles Treaty were outlined in detail in the note the Allied powers have presented to the German government, the text of which was made public here Friday. The note was handed to Chancellor Luther in Berlin Thursday morning by Baron D'Abernon, the British Ambassador, representing the Council of Ambassadors.

Germany must comply with an extensive list of rectifications and demands before the disarmament obligations of the treaty are considered fulfilled justifying the evacuation of Cologne in accordance with Article 429 of the Versailles pact.

The chief of these sweeping demands includes radical modification of the Reichswehr's general staff, reduction of the country's military forces to 100,000 men and suppression of short term enlistments. The military character of the security police must be abolished and the force itself reduced from 180,000 men to 150,000. Wholesale destruction of industrial plants of the Krupps and a dozen other big concerns which in their present state are held adaptable for the production of war material is demanded.

Note Is Brief

The note itself is not a long document but it was accompanied by very long detailed annexes setting out in tables and in minute details what the Allies consider Germany's defaults, and the requirements which alone will justify the commencement of evacuation and the withdrawal of the Allied control commission.

After referring to previous communications and the report of the control commission which established Germany's short comings, the note states the allied governments "consider it of capital importance to place in the foreground of their argument that the defaults unless promptly rectified would be in the aggregate enable the German government eventually to reconstitute an army modelled on the principals of a nation in arms.

Contrary to Treaty

"This would be directly counter to the treaty of peace," continues the note "under which the German army was to be used exclusively for the maintenance of internal order and for the control of the German frontier. It is this circumstance which, while it demonstrates the importance of each individual default, renders the total of these defaults so serious a menace to peace."

"It should be clearly realized that the breaches of the treaty thus specified constitute the most serious but not the only evidence of Germany's non-fulfillment of this essential portion of the peace treaty."

Germany's Obligation

After referring to the accompanying memorandum of defaults and requirements the note says: "The Allied governments are convinced it merely requires good will on the part of the German government to see that the rectification of the defaults are carried out in a relatively short period. In fact it now rests with the German government itself to create conditions under which

CADET BANQUET ON FIELD DAY

Captain Heron, Inspecting Officer, Was Entertained Last Night.

JOLLY OCCASION.

Captain Heron, who inspected all the local cadets yesterday morning and afternoon, some members of the Board of Education, and the cadet officers and non-coms. of the P.C.I. Cadet Corps, were the guests of the P.C.I. Literary Society at the Cadet banquet in the Assembly Hall of the school last evening.

It was a jolly occasion. Songs and jokes passed down the tables. Harry Ebbs, president of the Literary Society, was toastmaster, and he proposed the toast to the King. This was followed by a toast to Captain Heron, proposed by Alden Bookhout, O.C. of the P.C.I. Cadet Corps. In replying, Captain Heron made a strong plea for cadet training and the maintaining of the esprit de corps of the local cadets.

Alan Neal next proposed a toast to the guests. Mrs. Morris spoke heartily in favor of Cadet training in the schools, since it adds something to the character of the boys that they could gain in no other way. Dr. F. C. Neal also expressed himself in like vein. H. R. H. Kenner gave a very fitting talk to the boys. He spoke feelingly of those 58 former cadets of P.C.I. who gave up their lives on the vine-clad hills of Flanders and shell-torn Belgium and he pointed out strongly that this was an example to the present-day cadets and that they had a standard to follow. Fred Blackwell, a pupil of Lindsay Collegiate, and officer commanding the cadets of that school, was also present. He gave a neat little speech and aided much in cementing the friendly feeling between the Lindsay C. I. and the local Collegiate.

Captain Jamieson, instructor of the cadets, spoke, thanking the Literary Society for the banquet, also Mr. Kenner and the officers for their co-operation with him in making the inspection a success.

After the banquet the evening was spent in dancing. It is likely that a cadet banquet similar to the one of last evening will become an annual event.

WEATHER

Yesterday's highest temperature in Peterborough was 89 degrees in the shade. This is the highest to the present writing (Saturday morning) but may possibly be exceeded to-day. Last nights lowest point was 68 degrees—another warm night. Many places gave higher temperatures than here yesterday, and not a few have chided me for not adding a few more degrees for good measure. However, I have never done so, and never intend to. In keeping a daily record if it is not absolutely accurate it is useless, and anything you may see over my initials you may depend upon as being correct to the best of my knowledge. Yesterday's 89 degrees as the same figure as July 29th of last summer, which was the warmest day of 1924. The air this morning is much drier than for some days, and though the thermometer may rise to a high point it will not be so oppressive as we have experienced lately.—W.P.

ITALY CANNOT PAY DEBTS YET

Finance Minister Announces That She Is Not in Position to Pay.

BURDEN IS HEAVY.

ROME, June 6. (Canadian Press). — Finance Minister De Stefania announced in the Italian Senate yesterday that Italy, at the present moment, was not in a position to consider the funding of war debts.

"No systemization of the inter-allied war debts can be accepted," he declared, unless subordinated to the possibility of payment, and such possibility can only be offered by the financial situation of State and by a burden of international payments when the budget to-day cannot support any further burden

WOMEN JOIN PROTEST CHORUS TELLING CITY COUNCIL VIEW OF PROHIBITORY LEGISLATION

Class Consciousness Shown in Action of Aldermen, Say Those Interviewed.

"IT'S A SHAME."

Man With Car and Lawn Should Not Bar Pleasures From Others.

The consensus of opinion among the feminine residents of the city with regard to prohibition by the Solons of the City Council of Sunday bathing beaches and Sunday concerts is strikingly similar. With only one exception the ladies of the town think it is a "shame" to prohibit either or both of these aids to mental and physical relaxation and rest.

There is a peculiar similarity also about the viewpoint of the ladies. One and all agreed when interrogated separately that there was a certain element of class consciousness in the projected legislation.

It was not intimated in so many words but appeared to be the underlying opinion of those interviewed. The situation as it strikes the feminine observer of the city is this: A group of men who are all fairly well fixed in the world and who possess the facilities for all the recreation and amusement that they wish for in short owners of "a nice lawn and a nice car" as one woman epitomized it in a pithy sentence, have united to prohibit their much less fortunate brothers and sisters from a recreation that could hardly be called, even in its jazziest aspects, entirely frivolous. Beach flirts may have made the bathing centres of larger cities obnoxious to the sensibilities of moralists, but as yet, as far as has been observed, they have not made their appearance in Peterborough.

"It's a Shame."

"I think it's a shame," was the usual answer to an enquiry as to opinion on the matter. For children especially, the prohibition of Sunday bathing, always, of course, within proper hours and with proper supervision, was regarded as being a rather cruel and unnecessary piece of civic legislation. "The old days when children were supposed to do nothing on Sunday but read Bible stories, and consequently become so irritable that they spent most of the time in quarrelling among themselves, have gone forever, said one woman, who was of the opinion that the Almighty would not look with disfavor on those of His creatures who wished to enjoy the water on Sundays.

"People with motor cars and summer homes, like some of us have, remarked a woman who has both, "can have such pleasures without any trouble, an any day of the week. But there are many who enjoy Sunday as a day of rest and recreataion, as well as spiritual benefit, and it seems a terrible thing to deprive them of the little pleasure they might get for nothing. "In a country with such fearful heat waves as we have, what can people do who havent an opportunity to get away from the hot city on Sundays.

As for Sunday band concerts, they also appeal to the women, one and all, as desirable. "Those who cant afford to go to concerts, can enjoy these musical affairs on Sunday, in an innocent and pleasant manner.

Even the one lady who remarked, without stating the specific reason, that she did not approve of Sunday bathing, was of the opinion that Sunday band concerts were desirable.

Among the representative women asked for an opinion, selected at random from the telephone directory, were Mrs. S. T. Medd, Mrs. Gerald McClelland, Mrs. J. J. Pollock, Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Mrs. C. J. Snider and Mrs. E. H. Howson.

PICKETS CLOSE LAST COLLIERY

Two Hundred Invaded Power Plant and Stop Maintenance.

FOLLOWED ARRESTS.

SYDNEY, N.S., June 6. (Canadian Press).—Following the arrest of seven members of the United Mine Workers of America, District 26, charged with unlawful assembly at New Waterford and Dominion last night, a body of pickets, between two and three hundred strong, invaded the power plant at No. 6 mine, the only remaining colliery where maintenance work had been carried on yesterday, and, driving out the officials, shut down the pumps and fans, with the result that the wage dispute between the British Empire Steel Corporation and its twelve thousand employees to-day entered its fourth month with every mine in the southern Cape Breton coal field closed down tight.

G. N. Gordon Opens Subscription To Continue Bathing on Sunday

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., who returned to the city from Ottawa today, has found a way to suppy the people with Sunday bathing without expense to the City Council or the City. He expressed indignation at the thought of depriving working men and children of Sunday bathing facilities, and donated $10 as the nucleus of a fund to pay the caretakers for their work on Sundays throughout the summer.

Mr. Gordon also informed The Examiner that a number of prominent citizens are willing to add their subscriptions for the sake of the community health and happiness, and to save the good name of Peterborough from ridicule.

The subscription list is:

G. N. Gordon $10.00

Transactions Few And Trading Quiet To-day

TORONTO, June 6 (Canadian Press)—Trading on the stock exchange today was very quiet with transactions few in number. The outstanding feature was that of Do-Dominion Canners with 1415 shares traded in. Opening 4½ points higher than yesterday's close, this stock declined five points and rallied again two points, closing at 110. Brazilian opened ⅜ higher and after fractional decline closed at opening figure of 53½. F. N. Burt opened half point higher but lost its gain closing at 52. B. C. Fishing was ⅛ higher at 39¼ as was also Bell Telephone at 139⅛. C.P.R. was ⅝ lower at 139⅜.

READY RESPONSE AT CONFERENCE

Rev. E. N. Baker Appeals For Funds—$7,500 Promised Quickly.

BELLEVILLE, June 6.—Rev. E. N. Baker, M.A, DD., Principal of Albert College, addressed the Laymen's Association of the Bay of Quinte Conference on Friday morning, and made an appeal for finances, with the result that $7,500 were promised to that work. F. E. O'Flynn led the contributions by pledging $1,000, to be paid in half-yearly instalments of $100 each.

The doctor is hoping to secure at least $2,500 during the conference.

Rev. C. W. Barrett, president of the conference, was compelled to return to his home in Stirling, as a result of illness. Latest reports state that he will probably be able to attend the session on Saturday afternoon when the stationing committee will begin working on the last draft of stations.

Rev. Stillman A. Kemp, of Warkworth, and Mr. W. H. Hooper of Cobourg, were elected members of the Annual meeting of the Social Service and Evangelism Board.

Rev. Andrew McLaughlin, of Keene, and ex-president of the Conference, was elected Conference archivist.

The conference staff, the president's insignia of office, made from wood taken from the old Hay Bay Church in Adolphustown, is to rest in the archives of Victoria College. The staff was presented by Rev. Richard Duke, in the early days of the Conference.

On suggestion of Rev. Jessie Arnup, assistant secretary of Home Mission, a motion was carried accepting $10,000 as the Conference's share of the budget for connectional fund purposes.

A memorial service was held at four o'clock on Friday in honor of Rev. George and Rev. Mr. Benson.

On Friday evening, Austin G. Gay and Gordon W Gardiner were received into full connection. Rev. S. P. Rose, Professor of the English Bible in Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal, gave the address of the evening.

FORGER TAKEN WITH BIG PLANT

Scotland Yard Officials Took Biggest Plant Ever Found.

FORGE MONEY ORDERS.

LONDON, June 6 (Canadian Press)—Scotland Yard detectives have raided the biggest and most elaborate and probably the most proficient forgers' plant ever discovered in the history of the country. A raid on a den in the west end of London was carried out last night, the police having to break the door locks with revolver shots. Three and one half tons of apparatus were taken to the station. A clue to the existence of this plant was gained yesterday in the arrest of William Henry Harrison, who is charged with the possession of the apparatus found in the raided quarters. The warrant described the plant as used for the purpose of forging Post Office British money orders and advices.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Mr. A. O. Norton, the millionaire Jack Manufacturer, of Boston, who recently died, was a great "booster" for Zutoo Tablets.

He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped these headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effect, he began recommending them to his family and friends. In an unsolicited letter, Mr. Norton says in closing:

"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

REVISION OF RAILWAY FREIGHT RATES ORDERED BY GOVERNMENT WITH OBJECT OF EQUALIZATION

Railway Commission Given Free Hand in Its Investigation.

GRAIN EXCEPTED.

Government's Desire to Facilitate Interchange of Commodities Throughout Country.

OTTAWA, June 6. (Canadian Press).—The Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada has been instructed by Order-in-Council passed yesterday, to make a "thorough and complete investigation of the whole subject of railway freight rates in the Dominion." The Order-in-Council authorizing investigation sets forth "that the policy of equalization of freight rates should be recognized to the fullest possible extent as being the only means of dealing equitably with all parts of Canada and as being the method best calculated to facilitate the interchange of commodities between the various parts of the Dominion, as well as the encouragement of industry and agriculture, and the development of export trade."

The Order-in-Council, while granting to the Railway Commission freedom in its investigation, makes one stipulation in regard to rates. The maximum rate on grain and flour fixed by the Crow's Nest Pass Act is not to be exceeded. "The committee are of the opinion that as the production and export of grain and flour forms one of the chief assets of the Dominion, and in order to encourage the further development of the great grain-growing provinces of the West, on which development the future of Canada in large measure depends, it is desirable that the maximum cost of the transportation of these products should be determined and known," the order states.

"The committee is therefore of the opinion that the maximum established for rates on grain and flour, as at present in force under the Crow's Nest Pass agreement, should not be exceeded."

Authority of Commission.

In order that the Railway Commission may "be unfettered by any limitations other than the provisions as to grain and flour," the Government will introduce legislation next week to establish definitely the jurisdiction of the Board over all railway rates, with the exception of the one mentioned.

The Board is directed to conduct its investigation "with a view to the establishment of a fair and reasonable rate structure, which will, under substantially similar circumstances and conditions, be equal in its application to all persons and localities, so as to permit of the freest possible interchange of commodities between the various provinces and territories of the Dominion, and the expansion of its trade, both foreign and domestic, having due regard to the needs of its agricultural and other basic industries, and in particular to:

(A) The claim asserted on behalf of the Maritime Provinces that they are entitled to the restoration of the rate basis which they enjoyed prior to 1919;

(B) The encouragement of the movement of traffic through Canadian ports;

(C) The increased traffic westward and eastward through Pacific coast ports owing to the expansion of trade with the Orient and to the transportation of products through the Panama Canal.

Appeal From West.

The Order-in-Council is in the form of a ruling by the committee of the Privy Council (the Cabinet) on the petition presented by the Government of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba by way of appeal from the ruling of the Railway Board which set aside the Crow's Nest Pass rates. The order relates the history of the case, the proceedings before the Supreme Court and the judgment of that court and then proceeds:

"The committee observe that the agreement in question was made at a time when the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was the only company having a through line of railway extending through the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia, and before the creation of the Board for the control of railway rates under the provisions of the Railway Act of 1903 and subsequent Acts; and further, that the underlying purpose of the rate control inaugurated by the Railway Act of 1903 was to do away, as far as possible, with all unjust discriminations and undue preferences, and to secure a fair and reasonable rate structure, which, under substantially similar circumstances and conditions would be equal in its application to all persons and localities."

The Order-in-Council concludes: "The committee further advise that legislation be introduced at the present session of Parliament, making it clear that the provisions of the Railway Act of 1919 in respect of tariffs and tolls shall, save in the particular above mentioned, be operative notwithstanding any special acts or agreements and removing all doubts as to the validity of tariffs heretofore filed."

The Crow's Nest Pass Act, it is intimated, will still stand on the statute books. The coming legislation will, however, modify it, except in regard to the rates on grain and flour, in such a way as to give the Railway Board authority to proceed with a complete investigation.

SIXTEEN HUNDRED YEARS AGO GENERAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH MET IN TOWN IN ASIA MINOR

On Same Date This Year Gathering is in a Toronto Concert Hall.

IS DEMOCRATIC

United Church General Council is Based on Equal Representation.

TORONTO, June 6.—(Canadian Press).—Sixteen hundred years ago, on June 10, A.D., 325, a General Council of the Church was in session at Nicaea, an ancient town in Bithynia, Asia Minor. On June 10, 1925, the General Council of the United Church of Canada holds its first session in a concert hall in Toronto. At Nicaea "the deeds sanctified the place." Of Toronto all may judge after the event.

The purpose of the General Council, which is about to convene in Massey Hall, Toronto, is to constitute and dedicate the United Church of Canada. As the first General Council of the United Church it will have to discharge such duties as have been prescribed for it by decision of the uniting churches. Its opening session will be religious rather than legislative in character.

The Council will be popular in its origin and representative of the leadership of the three uniting churches. Its powers will be strictly limited and defined by the terms of the Union. It will not have power to alter those terms. Its duties are specifically set forth in the "Basis" upon which the Congregationaliset, Methodist and Presbyterian Churches in this country have agreed to become organically one, and in the United Church of Canada Act, 1924.

Council's Composition.

Composition of this General Council, as of all subsequent General Councils, is based on equality of representation between ministers and laity. In the first Council there will be 150 members elected by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, 150 members elected by the General Conference of the Methodist Church, 40 elected by the Congregational Union of Canada and 10 elected by the General Council of Union Churches.

These 350 members will be the only persons in attendance with voting powers or with rights to be heard except as a matter of privilege, although larger numbers of persons will be in the city of meeting for the occasion. All members have been elected in advance, and vacancies on the roll will be filled by the inclusion of alternate or reserve members to fill the gaps.

The roll of members, when signed by the presiding officer and the secretary or clerk of the bodies which elected them will be final and conclusive as to their status. Thus it will be seen that membership is on the basis of election by one or other of the uniting churches. Only as properly chosen representatives of the hitherto existing churches will anyone sit within the bar of council and only as officers of the present churches will the Moderator of the General Assembly, the President of the General Conference and the Chairman of the Congregational Union certify to their eligility and attendance.

The Union Churches to be represented in this first General Council of the United Church are those congregations in the West which have formed local union charges and banded themselves together for mutual benefit and for the furtherance of Union prior to the consummation of the more general union of denomination.

A Democratic Body.

Democratic, representative and with powers defined with some strictness, the General Councils of the United Church of Canada may be expected to continue the highest tradition of church parliaments.

The chief business of the first Council is to determine the number and boundaries of the conferences which are to be set up under provisions of the basis of Union. Another item will be to decide on the number of ministers and non-ministerial representatives to be chosen by the conferences to constitute the next General Council. Other things may be done by the first General Council, but these provisions for the convening of a second and subsequent Councils are imperative, according to the constitution of the United Church.

In case the first General Council is unable to complete its business in time, an adjourned session is provided for, such session to have the same powers as the first session. Everything done by the Council, except where contrary to the basis of Union or the United Church of Canada Act, will be valid until a second Council. This is provided because the first Council is to be composed differently from subsequent Councils. While its members have been selected as representatives of one of the three uniting churches, the members of all later Councils will be representative of the United Church of Canada.

Among the secondary powers to be exercised by the forthcoming General Council is that of appointing committees of enquiry into every phase of the United Church's work. These committees are to report, not to any adjourned session of the first Council, but to another General Council. This means that within two years a thorough survey of the institutions, funds and missions of the United Church may be completed and ordination undertaken.

So cautious a procedure in reorganizing the vast enterprises of the three uniting churches may be accounted for by the fact that the second General Council will have a far more direct mandate from the congregations constituting the United Church.

MOST OLD FOLKS REQUIRE A HEART AND NERVE TONIC

After middle age little sicknesses and ailments seem harder to shake off than formerly as the heart action becomes weak and uncertain and the nerves are not as steady as they were in the younger days.

Now is the time when all aged people who wish to maintain their health and vigor and retain their energy unimpaired should use

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. M. O'Connor, Whitestone, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled, most of my life, with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, and fainting spells. I was advised, by a friend, to try Milburn's H. & N. Pills, which I did, and at once found relief, and I have never had a really bad spell since. I am 80 years of age and I always keep them in the house, and feel that with their help I will see many years yet. I always recommend them to anyone who is suffering from heart trouble."

GERMAN ARMY

evacuation can speedily be effected."

The note then takes up Germany's complaints about non-evacuation of the Cologne zone. It declares the allies intend scrupulously to observe the terms of article 429 of the peace treaty, and declares the Allies cannot leave unchalelnged the German allegation that the non-evacuation of the Cologne zone on October 1 constituted a measure of reprisals. Furthermore, the Allied governments do not admit their decision was an act of severity out of all proportion to the imporance of military bligations still remaining unfulfilled.

Military Activity

In this connection the note points out new serious infractions of the treaty committed by Germany. These are the incorporation in the Reichswehr of short-term voluntary recruits, the authorization of numerous associations to carry out the military training and the encouragement of certain kids of factories.

The note concludes with an earnest appeal to the German government to "liquidate with the necessary goodwill all outstanding matters, the settlement of which controls the gravity of the situation. This is the only way by which the German government can in its own words, bring alleviation to Germany by liberation of a portion of the occupied territory.

MANY OLD JAPANESE NONAGENARIANS

TOKIO, June 6.—(Associated Press).—In connection with the imperial gifts distributed to persons over 90 years of age, on the occasion of the royal silver wedding, the authorities found 19,500 persons in Japan who were eligible. Sixty per cent. of these were women. Two women, 111 years of age each, held the longevity record.

COMING OUR WAY

LONDON, June 6—Special cheap trips to Canada and America this summer are being advertised by steamship companies. For slightly less than $200, a tourist can get a round-trip steamship ticket and spend five days in the United States with hotel expenses paid.

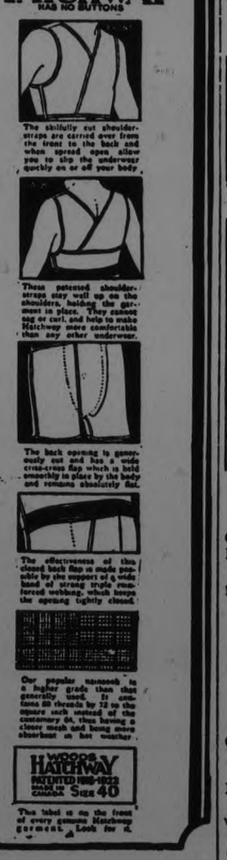
5 Reasons why you should wear WOODS HATCHWAY
HAS NO BUTTONS



The skilfully cut shoulder-straps are carried over from the front to the back and when spread open, allow you to slip the underwear quickly on or off your body.

These patented shoulder-straps stay well on the shoulders, holding the garment in place. They cannot sag or curl, and help to make Hatchway more comfortable than any other underwear.

The back opening is generously cut and has a wide criss-cross flap which is held smoothly in place by the body and remains elastically flat.

The effectiveness of this closed back flap is made possible by the support of a wide band of strong triple reinforced webbing, which keeps the opening tightly closed.

Our popular nonsuch is a higher grade than that generally used. It contains 50 threads by 72 on the square inch instead of the customary 64, thus having a closer mesh and being more absorbent of heat and weather.

SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1925.

AN OLD CITIZEN PASSES.

The sudden passing of old and well-known citizens is furnishing Peterboro people with a tragic demonstration of the uncertainty of life.

The Angel of Death has been unusually busy among prominent residents, the demise of Mr. Richard Sheehy, closely following upon the sudden taking off of Dr. F. L. Robinson and Mr. W. E. Conway, coming as a fresh shock to a community already depressed at the loss of valuable citizens.

Mr. Sheehy, a life-long resident of Peterboro, enjoyed the affection and regard of a peculiarly large circle of friends.

A prominent contractor, his name had been associated with the erection of some of the city's largest buildings, and his relationship with his associates in business and with his employees were always as happy as was his association with citizens generally.

Genial, friendly and charitable, Richard Sheehy was a most popular resident, and his death will be received in many circles with a distinct sense of personal loss.

THE CADET INSPECTION.

Even Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., nervous as she is about the development of a spirit of militarism in Canada's schools, could not have failed to be impressed by and to enjoy the inspection of Peterboro's Collegiate Institute and Public School cadets yesterday.

There was nothing that savoured of the goose-step in the affair, but there was much to suggest a clean-cut, healthy, virile manliness in the spectacle of hundreds of boys taking part in the manoeuvres.

No one could look at the honest, wholesome faces of these boys and feel dubious about Canada's future.

A city's best asset lies in its children, and spectators at yesterday's inspection, if they had any imagination at all, must have felt that Peterboro is indeed rich in its potential citizenship.

The behaviour of the boys from the smallest lads up to those approaching the threshold of manhood was splendid throughout.

The cadet movement, if it had done nothing else for them, had instilled in them some idea of discipline, of respect for those in authority, and in these days when children seem to have more license than is good for them, it is well that there should be some counteracting influence.

In fact, Miss McPhail and those who think with her notwithstanding, it may be claimed with a good deal of reason that the cadet movement, if only because of the discipline it teaches, is well worth the money that is expended upon it.

AN ELECTION COMING?

All signs seem to indicate that an early appeal to the country by the Federal Government may be expected.

The success of Premier Dunning in Saskatchewan, where the Progressive and Conservative forces were badly beaten, will undoubtedly lead to a fresh demand upon the Ottawa administration to put their fortune to the test, and the snowing under of Mr. Meighen's high protection resolution will add pressure to that demand.

The resolution itself is, in fact, another evidence that an election may not be far off.

It is patent that Mr. Meighen did not expect any other reception for his motion than the vote it actually received.

In other words, he was not appealing to the House, but to the country, and his high protection resolution and the speech with which he endorsed it were intended for no other purpose than for use in the campaign he seems to regard as inevitable.

With the Progressive leader warning his followers to keep their powder dry, Government members unusually active in making speeches throughout the country, candidates being nominated here and there and the Conservative leader sounding his high protection slogan in the face of a hostile House, there is reason to believe that before the next visit of Santa Claus the electors of Canada may have a chance to mark their ballots in a general Federal election.

A SUCCESSFUL ORGANIZATION.

The Trent Waterway Development Association, a union of the municipalities along the route of the Trent Canal and organized in 1920 for the purpose of advertising the charms of this district, is worthy of the nice things said about it by its President, Mr. G. K. Fraser, in his address yesterday.

The association has not only accomplished much for this district by attracting thousands of tourists, but it has done considerable for other sections of the Province by blazing the trail for the organization of similar associations elsewhere, and finally, by being responsible for the establishment of the new Province-wide Ontario Tourists' Association, which is expected to do on a large scale what the Trent Waterway Association has been successful in effecting along the route of the canal.

The officers of the association deserve all credit for the progress that has been made.

They have had to work in the face of somewhat lukewarm support from the municipalities served by the association, whose grants have not been as substantial as they might well have been in view of the fact that the financial aid supplied was an investment from which rich returns have been received.

The city of Peterboro, the largest municipality along the canal, and by reason of its location certain to reap a full share of the revenue from an increased tourist traffic, whether by water, motor or railway, it must be confessed has not been as generous in its attitude toward the organization as some other centres, having regard to the difference in population.

However, the association has carried on successfully and is today able to point to concrete results of its energetically executed policy of publicity for the Trent Waterway.

The Made-in-Peterboro Show ends tonight, but the community spirit it has developed should live on.

STABILITY IN TRADE.

The Financial Post is authority for the view that we have reached a state of relative stability in the matter of prices. If that judgment is sustained by the course of events, it will be a happy ending to rather a long period of uncertainty; and uncertainty is always an exceedingly adverse factor in the trade situation, says the Kingston Whig. It is perhaps unreasonable to look for the persistence of $2 wheat, or even $1.90 wheat; but all competent authorities on the subject are agreed that low levels are improvable for an indefinite period. That will mean much to Canadian commerce in general; for our agricultural interests are basic.

There is a more or less general expectation that fair prices for farm products will have a favorable effect on all branches of trade; and that is a sound view to take. The improved purchasing power of the farmers is fundamental, and back of that is the psychological influence of comparative prosperity. Since 1920 the rural communities have been depressed, both financially and mentally. That state of discouragement was reflected in practically all channels of commerce. It spread to the political field, and led to ugly, even if silly and meaningless, talk about secession. It would therefore be a very happy thing indeed if the betterment in market values which has taken place, and which seems likely to endure, should be the one thing needful to restore universal confidence and cheerfulness.

The Post evidently takes an optimistic view as to the outlook. Summing up a review of all the factors in the trade situation it says:

"Retail and wholesale business has not changed materially, although the volume of sales is reported to be very satisfactory in certain trades. The increase in grain and livestock prices is having a beneficial effect on Western business, and collections there continue to improve. Sales programmes are being pushed with greater than ordinary effort through instalment sales and other methods. For the most part, the crop outlook in the West is excellent. Moisture is abundant in most sections, and the outlook for a large fruit crop is favorable."

Of course, the foreign situation comes in as a strong qualifying force. Our foreign trade is very important. But, happily, prospects in Europe are steadily growing brighter. They were very dark until Germany accepted the Dawes plan; and there are still grounds for anxiety in certain directions—France for one. On the whole, however, steady and real progress toward the strengthening of fundamentals is taking place. Great Britain's return to the gold standard is pivotal. It is bound to have a steadying effect on all Europe. Therefore, while we should all be immensely heartened by the betterments which have occurred in the domestic realm, we must not take our eyes off the situation abroad.

FIGURES ON BETTING.

A writer in the New York Herald-Tribune last Sunday made the arresting calculation that a billion dollars was wagered annually on horse races in the United States and Canada. This included both the betting at the tracks, which in most places is legal, and the illegal handbook betting, which seems to have permeated almost every centre of population. The total was made from official figures and from estimates by racing men. It means that 120,000,000 people, the populations of the United States and Canada together, wagered a billion dollars on their judgment or lack of judgment in about the most risky investment so far devised.

It is interesting to see how Ontario fared in this billion-dollar gamble. Calculating the population of this Province at three millions, our pro rata share of the billion would have been $24,000,000. That is, if the people of this Province had bet on horse races in just the same proportion as the people all over the two countries we would have wagered $24,000,000. Instead of that amount, big enough in itself, there was wagered at the race-tracks alone in this Province last year $34,000,000. This is aside from the handbooks, which operate all the year round, instead of only during the racing season. Some time ago a modest estimate of the amount placed on horses through the handbooks in Ontario was given at $15,000,000 annually. This estimate has never been challenged, so far as we have noticed. That would bring Ontario's horse-race betting total to $49,000,000 last year. The average over two countries would allow Ontario $24,000,000 for betting, but so dearly do the people of this Province love the chances of a horse race, or the more doubtful chances with the handbooks, that they just doubled the average.

The New York Herald-Tribune authority gives the annual amount bet in Britain as $750,000,000. Giving Britain a population of 45,000,000, this figures out just about the same proportion as in Ontario. In Britain leaders of thought are gravely concerned at the spread of betting, and yet the statistics show that the people there are no worse in this respect than we are right here in Ontario with regard to the actual amount of money wagered. Doubtless many smaller bets are made in Britain than in this Province, indicating that more people are participating, but no person who has gone in and out among Ontario folk during the past few years could have failed to notice the increasing desire to place a few dollars on the horses.

Admitting that it is an Anglo-Saxon characteristic to back one's judgment with money, it will be conceded that Ontario is rather straining the characteristic when betting here is twice that of the average over two countries on this continent. Without moralizing over the spectacle of $49,000,000 being wagered on horse races annually, it can at once be stated that such wagering is an economic drain which the people of this Province cannot afford. Of course, some of it comes back to those who bet. There are winners at every race-track, and sometimes even with handbooks, but the greatest plungers are unanimous in their verdict that no person "can beat the horse, no matter how much money you have."

The betting evil in Canada and in Ontario calls for a drastic remedy. The best measure of prevention is to forbid the publication of betting odds or prices. The publication of these odds or prices placed daily after the names of winning horses is the constant incentive to bet. So long as these are published in racing sheets or daily papers, so long will the betting evil exist and grow, and so long will handbook agents play their wasteful trade in every city, town and village. The Globe believes that the passage in the Lapointe bill at Ottawa, which is designed to prevent such publication, is an economic necessity for this country, and, as such, urges its passage at the earliest possible moment.—Toronto Globe.

A THOUGHT.

"GET AWAY FROM THE CROWD."

Robert Burdette, in a talk to young men said:

"Get away from the crowd for a while, and stand and think. Stand on one side and let the world run by, while you get acquainted with yourself and see what kind of a fellow you are. Ask yourself hard questions about yourself. Ascertain, from original sources, if you are really the manner of man you say you are; and if you are always honest; if you always tell the square, perfect truth in business details; if your life is as good and upright at eleven o'clock at night as it is at noon; if you are as good a temperance man on a fishing excursion as you are on a Sunday School picnic; if you are as good when you go to the city as you are at home; if, in short, you are really the sort of man your father hopes you are and your sweetheart believes you are. Get on intimate terms with yourself, my boy, and believe men, every time you come out of one of those private interviews you will be a stronger, better, purer man. Don't forget this, and it will do you good."

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, June 5—Trade opened on Monday with a good active demand for cattle, both export and domestic. Local packers were in the market for heavy fat beef cattle, and for a time were competing with the export buyers for the heavy steers. As a result of active trading for the first two markets, and up to noon hour of Wednesday, prices were firmer at an average of 25c higher than last week's average on choice butcher stuff, and from 15c to 20c higher for export. From Wednesday noon the market slackened and and the earlier prices getting back to about level with last week's average.

The export trade for the week was better than for some weeks past and as space is expected to be available, the trade should continue active for the next few weeks.

Butcher cattle trade has continued good, but it is just possible that the prevailing spell of hot weather may have some effect on the market and shippers are advised not to go too heavy and overloading the market.

Shippers of hogs are also especially warned about overloading hogs on the cars. Already quite a few dead hogs have been found in the cars on arrival here.

PERTH CHEESE 17 15-16 LB.

PERTH, June 5—The offerings of the Board were 1,331 boxes of Colored Cheese and all sold at 17 15-16c per lb., which price shows an advance of 5-16c per lb. as compared with a week ago, and 2 7-16c per lb. above the same date last year when 1,316 boxes sold at 15½c per lb.

QUEBEC CHEESE PRICES

CHICOUTIMI, June 5 — At the meeting of the Board 160 boxes of cheese were offered and sold at 16 15-16c per lb.

IROQUOIS, June 5—At the session of the Cheese Board 890 boxes were boarded of which 550 boxes were white and 343 boxes colored. The bidding started at 17¾c to 2c per lb. and advanced to 17⅞c to 2c per lb. with a year ago when 589 boxes sold at 16c per lb.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 5—Little export business was transacted on the Montreal grain market today owing to the fact that prices bid were out of line with local views.

The receipts of cheese were 14,244 boxes, as compared with 8,380 for the same day last week, and 4,940 for the corresponding day a year ago. The feature of the trade continues to be the strength prevailing in the markets at counrty points and the offerings at Pictou sold at an advance of 3-16c per lb., as compared with a week ago in spite of the indifferent attitude of foreign buyers and the lower prices ruling on spot. The volume of business here was small.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, June 5—Receipts continue to be much below this period a year ago and in consequence supplies of some grades are not very plentiful. Some dealers state they are not getting sufficient to meet their requirements.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 5 — Scorching weather and reports of widespread damage to crops hoisted the wheat market today to a new high price record both for September and December delivery. Heavy profit-taking sales, however, wiped out most of the gain. Wheat closed unsettled at quarter to half cent advance, July 1.68½ to 1.68¾ and Sept. 1.64¾ to 1.64⅞, with corn ranging from ¾ decline to an equal upturn, oats ¾ to 1¼c higher and provisions varying from 32c set-back to a rise of 10 cents.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, June 5—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling Demand—4.83½
Sterling Cables—$4.86.

ONTARIO CHEESE AUCTION

MONTREAL, June 5—At the United Dairymen Cooperative Auction Sale of cheese held here today there were 2,540 boxes of Ontario cheese offered and the price bid for the different lots of No. 1 white and colored was 18 3-6c per lb. with 18¼c per lb. asked. This bid price was ¾c per lb. higher than a week ago.

ANOTHER BOMB PLOT.

Priests to be Implicated in Attempt to Kill King Alfonso.

BARCELONA, Spain, June 5 (Canadian Press)—Series of bomb plots to kill Alfonso has been revealed and sovereigns return to Madrid is being postponed. Fourteen arrests have been made.

Priests Arrested

LONDON, June 5 (Canadian Press)—A despatch to the evening from a point on the Franco Spanish border says it is reported that a bomb was found in Barcelona Cathedral just before Alfonso attended mass there. The despatch says four priests were arrested.

A MARTYR TO CONSTIPATION

"Fruit-a-tives" brought early relief

MRS. C. W. THOMPSON

"I first heard of "Fruit-a-tives" through a friend of mine living in St. Johnsbury, and as I was troubled with very high Blood Pressure and Constipation, I decided to try the fruit treatment. The result is that I am feeling very much better, and I am glad to recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to anyone". Mrs. C. W. Thompson, Lyndonville, Vermont.

All your physical and mental energy is drawn from your blood stream. If the bowels and kidneys do not function properly, poison enters the blood-stream, and the heart, brain and nerves are all affected. "Fruit-a-tives" clear the system of all waste matter, purify the blood and tone up the whole system. They are made from the intensified juices of luscious healthful fruits combined with tonics. Sold everywhere 25c & 50c.

ESCAPED CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

Lambton County Council Asks Attorney-General to Investigate.

SARNIA, Ont., June 6.—The Attorney General of Ontario is requested to have a thorough investigation made as to why James Burns of Detroit, was only charged with criminal negligence in connection with the death of nine year old John Henry Bunyan of the town of Petrolia on May 2, in a resolution passed by the Lambton County Council Friday.

The resolution also points out the finding of the coroner's jury that the boy came to his death through the actions of James Burns. The proposer of the resolution, Reeve A. E. Shaunesey, of Petrolia, told the council that he had been informed that a charge of manslaughter had been written out by the high constable but it had been put aside by somebody for some reason or other and that what was the resolution was aimed to find out. The Bunyan boy died of injuries received after he had been struck by an automobile said to have been driven by Burns. The latter pleaded guilty to a charge of criminal negligence and was sentenced to from 3 to 6 months. A similar resolution was recently passed by the Petrolia town council.

BROUGHT 624 FAMILIES.

Canadian Colonization Association's Work Last Year.

EDMONTON, Alta., June 6. (Canadian Press).—Six hundred and twenty-four families from across the ocean settled in the West, 187,000 acres of land sold in the fiscal year ending May 31, is the record of the Canadian Colonization Association, of which Col. J. S. Dennis, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is the president, according to figures given out here yesterday by the manager, T. O. F. Herzer, of Winnipeg. This organization has been working steadily in bringing new settlers to the West under the auspicse of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and at the present time an average of sixty families a month are [illegible] settled.

MEN ARE LIVING MUCH TOO FAST

Leaders of Commerce Die at What Should Be Prime of Life.

DOCTORS MEETING.

LONDON, June 6.—Presiding at a dinner given by the Pilgrims in honor of the visiting Canadian and United States doctors last night, the Duke of Connaught voiced the nation's warm welcome to "all that is best in surgery and medicine in the United States.

Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary paid tribute to the self sacrificing, invaluable services of the medical profession to humanity.

King George's physician, Lord Dawson of Penn, added his voice to the increasing chorus of medical men on both sides of the Atlantic who are condemning the speed of modern life, in his address this afternoon, before the final scientific session.

One of the big problems of the future, declared Lord Dawson, would be to prevent men, especially men of affairs from overworking, with the result that their lives are done when they should be at the heighth of their intellectual power.

"A leader of commerce dies at the hey-day of his achievement," said the King's physician. "Men today are in the same high key in work and at play, and say theirs is fixedity of life, not flexibility.

MYSTERY OF DEATH IN CAR IS SOLVED

Body Identified as Quebec Boy Who Sought Work.

LINDSAY June 6 (Special to The Examiner).—The mystery in connection with the finding of the body of a boy in a box car at Port McNicoll about a month ago has been cleared up. Mrs. C E. Pounden, of Outremont. Quebec, who spent a week at the Port awaiting the exhumation of the body in the belief that it might be her son, returned to Quebec, and interested her self in a search for relatives of the unfortunate lad.

It has been definitely established that the body was that of a son of a poor French widower named Le Seige, who has a large family. The boy, it appears, left home on the 21st of March, in search of work, and never returned. The pearl button on the lapel of his coat led to the identification of the body.

THEY ARE BEST SHE EVER TRIED

So Says Alberta Lady of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. L. Lippa suffered for three years with kidney trouble.

St. Kilda, Alta., June 5.—(Special.)—"I have suffered for three years with kidney trouble. I have been to the Doctor and have tried many other remedies, but they did me no good. I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and they were a great help to me. I could hardly do any housework. Three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me much good. They are the best remedy I have ever taken." This statement comes from Mrs. L. Lippa, a well-known resident of this place.

Kidney trouble is very common amongst all classes of people, and usually a lot of valuable time is lost by using unsuitable treatments. A good plan is to watch the kidneys and keep them healthy. Dodd's Kidney Pills stimulate and strengthen weak kidneys. They are used and recommended all over the civilized world.

AUTO PINNED TWO.

Mrs. J. S. Black, of Peterborough, in Lindsay Hospital.

LINDSAY, June 6 (Special to The Examiner).—Mrs. James S. Black, of Peterboro, and a former resident of Victoria County, is in the Ross Hospital suffering from injuries sustained when a car in which she was riding overturned near the Riverside Cemetery. Accompanied by her husband, Mrs. Black was on her way to Janetville when the accident occurred. Both the occupants were pinned under the car. Mr. Black escaped unhurt, but Mrs. Black's left arm was broken. She also sustained bruises and suffered from shock.

HATCHET MURDER

see ing saw up down and george street

See-sawing up and down George Street I saw Mayor Turner, who has taken part in every good work in Peterborough for years and says he cannot recall anything quite so good as the Made-in-Peterborough Fair. After talking with him I pondered long on the question of what brings success, and decided there was no one person or organization to be credited in this case. So many helped with time, money and exhibits, and probably the secret is the splendid co-operation that prevailed.....Saw Alderman Phelan who fought last Monday for open bathing beaches on Sunday and he is still puzzling over the debacle .....Saw hat and frock windows full of purple and much of that shade being worn on the street by fair ladies, yet it seems a color out of keeping with these warm days....Saw I. A. McKone, chairman of the Board of Education, who has had a busy week with the big Fair and yesterday he took time to congratulate the cadets on their splendid turnout on inspection ....Saw Mr. Brodie advance agent for the Maple Leaf Shows, who took a chance on asking Council for the rights to park in East City and was soaked $250 instead of the $175 he paid last year .....Saw pictures in Roy's window of the Normal school students and was reminded that there will soon be another flock of teachers looking for jobs .....Saw the town clock pointing to three to one and striking the hour .....

Feeding Peterborough is like stoking a railway engine pulling up a stiff grade. Food is piled and shovelled into the city at an amazing rate, but is disposed of as quickly as it arrives. Cars are whizzing everywhere carrying Sunday food to the houses—and men are stumbling homeward from their offices carrying bundles.

This is not to be a column of critical comment, nor can the writer as the owner of a three tube set pose as an authority on radio. Still and all it does seem to me that there is a great deal too much squawking in the air these nights and something should be done about it. —J. R. H.

THE ONE SURE WAY TO GOOD HEALTH

Is Keeping the Blood Pure By Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Impure, weak blood is the cause of most of the troubles that afflict people. This is the cause of the wretched feeling of langour and faintness, pains in the back and side, headaches and breathlessness, that afflict women and make her daily life a torture. To get new health and strength the blood must be enriched. What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do in cases of this kind is told by Mrs. Augusta Emery, Woolford Station, Alta., who says:—"Living on the prairie, and knowing that there are thousands of women like myself miles away from a doctor, I want to tell them what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. After my first baby was born I seemed to have little energy. I felt weary and run-down and unable to do even the ordinary household duties. I felt I needed a tonic and as I had long seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised I decided to try them. I got a supply and carefully followed the directions and before very long the result was wonderful. Day by day I regained my former strength and energy. The pills seemed to give me a keen appetite and I gained in weight and soon was able not only to do my work about the house but to help with many chores on the farm. For this reason I would advise women, particularly those on the prairie or the farm, to keep a supply of these pills always on hand. One trial will convince you of their worth. I have recommended them to many of my friends and never have they failed to produce good results."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FORCE GERMANY INTO DISARMING

Allied Note Points To German Failure on Thirteen Counts.

NO EVACUATION.

LONDON, June 5.— (Canadian Press.)— "Germany has failed in thirteen conditions to comply with the disarmament requirements of the Versailles Treaty, declares the Allied note to Germany, the text of which was given out here tonight.

In order to obtain evacuation of the Cologne area, Germany must, among other things, suppress the present general staff and reduce the number of German police from 180,000 to 150,000. The strength of the German army must be reduced to 100,000 fighting men.

"The military character presented to-day by the German security police must entirely disappear," says the note.

The note demands alteration of certain factories in order to make impossible the manufacture of war materials. All existing munitions in excess of amounts to be stated by the Allied Control Mission must be surrendered, including spare parts for small arms, bomb throwers, machine guns and blank cartridges also must be surrendered.

INDIANS OBJECT TO BOUNDARY LINE

British Columbia Tribes To Protest Migration Ruling By U. S.

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 6.—Protest by the Allied Indian Tribes of British Columbia will be made to Ottawa with the request that it be carried to Washington, against the ruling of United States' immigration officers against Indians crossing the boundary line from Canada.

Andy Paul, secretary of the Allied tribes, declared Friday that the Indians recognized no boundary line. They had come back and forth from time immemorial and the blood relationship between the Indians of each side of the border rendered it imperative that they continue unrestricted to go back and forth.

The sub-executive otf the Indian organization will meet in Vancouver as soon as arrangements can be made to draw up a vigorous protest against the United States' ruling, said Mr. Paul.

Mr. Paul stated that the Dominion Government was the trustee for the Indians in Canada and the exclusion ruling must be ratified by the Canadian government before the Indians could recognize it.

RAISING FUND FOR MEDICAL RESEARCH

Banting Foundation Will Consist of $500,000 to Provide Annuity.

TORONTO, June 5 (Canadian Press)—An official announcement of which it is planned to raise $500,000 to provide an annuity to meet the expenses of general medical research in the province, was made yesterday afternoon by Sir William Mulock, Chancelor of the University of Toronto, before the Alumni Federation and at the same time he made an appeal for their assistance in raising the necessary funds. The Alumni approved the move and by resolution pledged its support and co-operation, particularly in the work of raising money, outside the city of Toronto..

MAY CONFISCATE CAR WITH LIQUOR

Whether Driver Owns It Or Not, Calgary Court Ruling.

CALGARY, Alta., June 6.—Any motor car seized by the police in an unlawful act committed under the Liquor Control Act of Alberta, is liable to confiscation no matter whether the driver is the owner or not, ruled Magistrate A. Sanders in police court to-day when he ordered the automobile owned by W. L. Camp, taxi service proprietor, confiscated by the government, following the conviction of Roy J. McKay, an employe, on a charge of keeping liquor for sale.

McKay was fined $750 in addition to the confiscation of the auto and two cases of liquor and Arnold Lewis, a railway porter, who brought the liquor in from the Pacific coast and handed it over to McKay, was fined $300 and costs.

CAT AND DOG FIGHTS

VIENNA, June 6—In two divorce cases recently brought in courts here by women, the husbands claimed that a pet cat and a lap dog were the cause of marital trouble. In one instance, the husband said his wife always fed her dog first and therefore, he deserted her.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burto

She looked at them, again.

Then she saw that there was a new one among them!

It stood all by itself in a Dutch-silver frame on a table in one corner. The pictured face in it was broad and foreshortened. It was framed by a swirl of blond hair . . . was Sonya Chotek's face!

Live pangs of jealousy stabbed Gloria like two-edged knives at the sight. She wondered if Stan was in love with that face . . . She wondered if he thought Sonya Chotek was beautiful.

Was she beautiful? . . Gloria picked up the picture of the actress and studied it closely. Then she crossed the room to a mirror that hung there against the wall, and looked at her own face. Under the deep coppery waves of her hair, it smiled back at her . . . vivid and sparkling.

"Pooh!" she said aloud, "I make her look like thirty cents!"

She put Sonya Chotek's picture back on the table, so that it faced the wall.

It was then that the telephone in Wayburn's bedroom rang.

Gloria flew to it and unhooked the receiver.

"Hello," she said.

The voice that answered her had a foreign accent. It was a women's voice. It was Sonya Chotek's voice, Gloria knew at once.

"Who is this speaking, please?" it asked.

Gloria didn't answer. She banged the receiver back on its hook, and turned away from the phone. Then she stopped dead-still.

Wayburn had come in. He was standing in the doorway between the two rooms. Of course, he must have been listening . . . .

He stared at her as if she had been a ghost. "For the love of Mike! Where did you drop from?"

Gloria's voice was wistful when she answered. "From home, of course—Aren't you glad to see me?"

Wayburn ignored her question.

"Who was that on the phone just now?" he asked harshly.

"Oh, just some Jane who wanted to talk to you," Gloria replied. She managed to ripple a laugh at him, flippantly, as she walked past him into the sitting-room.

She was hurt—bewildered. What was the matter with Stan? The Stan who used to catch her hands in his, give her a look that was like a caress, and call her "Russet"?

"Aren't you going to ask me to sit down, or say you're glad to see me or anything?" she asked.

She dropped into a chair, and watched Wayburn through her lashes. He took off his overcoat and hung it up. He lighted a cigaret with a steady hand. He drew up a chair and sat down.

And not until then did he answer her.

"Well," he said, "as a matter of fact, I'm not exactly tickled to death to see you, Gloria . . . What have you done? Left your husband?"

Not exactly tickled to death to see her! Stan not glad to see her? . . . She tried to speak but her lips would scarcely move. They were white and drawn.

"I suppose you'd call it that—" she said at last. Her voice vibrated high

She wanted to tell Stan how empty life at home had been for her since he dropped out of her life—how terribly she had missed him.

But his coldness froze her. She couldn't tell him anything. Her voice was congealed in her throat.

"Does your husband know you're here with me?" Wayburn asked. He gripped the arms of his chair with both hands as he leaned forward, hanging upon her answer.

"Suppose he does know it? What difference would it make?" Gloria's voice was a dull whisper.

"Difference!" Wayburn shouted. "It would make a deuce of a difference to me!" He began to dash up and down the room like a caged tiger.

He stopped suddenly before her chair, and glared down at her.

"Do you suppose I want to be dragged into your troubles?" he asked violently. "Do you suppose I want that husband of yours to hunt me up and shoot me, eh? —What could I do with you, anyway—"

Gloria saw in a flash how his mind was working. She shook with cold anger that was like an icy chill. And when she answered Wayburn her voice came between clenched teeth. She couldn't get them apart.

"I see what you're driving at, Stan," she said. "You think I'm asking you to take care of me—well, I may be cheap, but I'm not so cheap as that!"

Her anger broke over him suddenly like flooding waters bursting through a dam.

"I'm not such a fool as to expect help from you!" she cried. "Why, you can't take care of yourself!—I'll bet you're still living on that $200 you borrowed from me!"

She could see Wayburn wince. That had got under his skin!

"Don't worry, I'll pay every red cent of it back!" he said.

Gloria sneered. "I'll frame it when I get it," she said. She wanted to hurt Wayburn. She hated him, suddenly, as she had never hated anyone in all her life before—

• • •

The telephone in the other room rang sharply. Wayburn slammed the door after him as he hurried in to answer it.

Gloria tiptoed to it, and laid her ear against the panels of it to listen.

"Hello, Sunshine," she heard Wayburn say. Her lip curled. That was like Stan—to call Sonya Chotek "Sunshine," as he had once called her "Russet."

Pet names were part of Stan's love-making, part of his "line" with women! Little caressing names that were like kisses on his lips as he whispered them! And they meant exactly what his kisses meant. Nothing! Nothing at all!

Oh, she had found Stan Wayburn out at last. He was a coward and a cad.—Why, hadn't she seen it long ago?

Wayburn came back into the room He sat on the arm of Gloria's chair, and laid his hand on Gloria's shoulder.

"Now, let's talk this over quietly," he said.

At his touch, all the fury went out of Gloria. She hated him, yes, but with a kind of misery. She turned in her chair and looked up at him, pleading with her eyes.

"Don't send me back home, Stan!" she begged. "If you knew how lonely I've been! . . . If you only knew! Look here, I'll get a job on the stage. Maybe Kit Cameron can get me into the show she's in. . . ."

Wayburn got up.

"No, you'd detter go home," he said brutally. His voice cut like a whip, And Gloria went mad for a moment.

She crossed the room and picked up Sonya Chotek's picture. She held it above her head, and brought it down hard on the back of the nearest chair. The glass broke in a hundred pieces. . . . Above the crash of it, Gloria heard the sound of Wayburn's laugh.

"Well, that's about all you can do about it!" he said. "I married Sonya Chotek yesterday!"

How Much for Insurance?

WHEN you draw up your family budget, do you set a stated percentage of your income aside for life insurance protection? If so, how much? Is it anywhere near adequate?

Life Insurance should provide protection not only for children while they are dependent but for the assured's old age.

It is not an easy matter to determine how much insurance a man should carry in proportion to his income, his expenses and his family responsibilities. That's a matter upon which you may need professional advice. Mutual agents are equipped to give well considered counsel in such matters.

Write to-day for The Mutual Book, which explains the principle of Mutuality.

A PRESENTATION

BAILIEBORO, June 6—A somewhat unique function took place at Mrs. Cardwell's, Wallace Point, on Thursday night, when friends from Stewart Hall and Centreville congregations met to do honor to the Rev. A. H. and Mrs. McConnachie, on their leaving this joint charge.

Mr. O. B. Johnson of Centreville took the chair, and after a short programme and excellent lunch, called on Mr. and Mrs. McConnachie to come forward. Mr. Ronald Deyell then read the following address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. McConnachie:

We, your friends of South Monaghan and Stewart's Hall, are assembled here this evening to honor you previous to your exodus from our midst.

We have often gathered together on similar missions, but the immensity of the crowd here tonight, in spite of the inclemency of the weather, marks it as a very special occasion.

We, of your congregations, feel that we are losing a pastor of whom we are justly proud, and whom we are going to miss exceedingly. We, who are members of other congregations, in this district, feel that we are losing a true citizen, a man who not only teaches by precept but also by example.

For eleven years you have labored unceasingly amongst us; for eleven years you have been a part of our community life; for eleven years you have been a guide and a helpmate to us. You have performed the last rite over many of our dear ones, married our lovers, baptized our babies, comforted our bereaved. Is is any wonder then that this large gathering has assembled here this evening to do you honor ere your departure

When you came into our midst, you and family were strangers in a strange land. We, as a community, felt for you and we tried to make your first impression of our Dominion a pleasant one. We believe we have succeeded, for you have remained with us for eleven years.

Each year, each month, and each day is bound to bring its joys and sorrows. We have rejoiced together and we have sorrowed together, and thereby we have grown to love and respect you and your family.

Progress often arises from differences of opinion, and Nature has wisely ordained that men should not always think alike, so that progress might be made. Therefore ,in the best ordered families and societies differences of opinion often arise. God has ordained them and they are sure to come.

But, in spite of the fact that men differ, they may respect and honor each other. Our country needs men of personality, men of conviction, men who will not turn back. The conscience is the official guide of each of us, and although we all may not be agreed, we respect your opinion and honor you for having the courage of your conviction.

As you go out from amongst us we know that you are leaving us of our best—not only in wishes, hopes and prayers, but also by leaving behind your daughter, who will add so materially to our community life. Thus the bonds between you and us will ever be made stronger and stronger.

We ask you, Mr. McConnachie and Mrs. McConnachie, to accept these little gifts in the spirit in which they are given, and with them goes our best wishes and prayers for you and your family. We would like to be able to enforce upon you all that you have meant to us for the last eleven years, and we shall never forget you. We hope that thoughts of us may prove a pleasant memory to you, and an inspiration and help to you in your western home. You are going to a country of big men, and big opportunities, and we know that you have been called to a great work, and that the great work will be assumed and handled nobly by you.

Thou gracious God, Whose mercy lends
The light of home, the smile of friends
Our gathered flock Thy arms enfold,
As in the peaceful days of old.
We thank Thee, Father; let Thy grace
Our loving circle still embrace,
Thy mercy shed its heavenly store,
May peace be with you evermore.
—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Gifts Presented.

The gifts presented by Mrs. Levi Byers and Ormus Stewart were: Mrs. McConnachie, a beautiful cut-glass vase, and to the minister, a lovely gold Elgin watch and chain, also a gold-plated umbrella.

On behalf of Mrs. McConnachie (who could not be present) Miss Connie made a suitable reply. Mr. McConnachie replied in a reminiscent mood, comparing his old country charge in Ayr, Scotland, with a rural charge in Canada. He thanked them for having made his settlemen in Canada easy and pleasant. He thanked them too, for this "timely" for he just needed such a watch. It was hard to leave. He would like to steal away over-night, in the spirit of the lines.

"Friends we have been long together
Through sunny and in cloudy weather,
'Tis hard to part, when friends are dear,
Perhaps will cost a sigh, a tear,
Then steal away, give little warning,
Choose thine own time, say not god-bye,
But in some happier time
Bid me good-morning.'

Other speakers were: Messrs' J. C. McRobert Livingston Stewart, Beecher Matchett and Jas. Campbell who all voiced appreciation of the services o fthe minister, and regret at his departure.

After the singing of Auld Lang Syne many took opportunity to bid Mr. McConnachie good-bye and wished him well in the West.

Miss Vioa White presided at the piano and Mrs. Cardwell was heartily thanked for the use of her lovely grounds and premises for the occasion, on motion o Mr. Ronald Deyell.

CHEMONG NEWS

A very enjoyable picnic was held at Chemong Park on Wednesday, June 3, by over fifty pupils of Omemee High School.

The day was spent in games and dancing at the Rendezvous Pavilion. The new Rendezvous Orchestra from Toronto supplied splendid music for the occasion. The party was in charge of popular teachers, Miss Bantley, principal, and Miss Meredith, assistant principal.

A party from Toronto that was spending the holiday at Dr. Morgan's cottage spent the afternoon dancing at the Rendezvous and was laud in praise of the new Rendezvous Orchestra.

Mrs. Burnham and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Darling have opened their cottage for the season.

Mr. Harry E. Wolff has arrived from New York city to spend the summer at his cottage, "The Hamilton."

Mr. Paul Trussler and Mr. Pat Larone are camping for the season in the park.

Mr. Gregour has opened his cottage for the season.

There are ninety-five different kinds of Brussels sprouts, 120 kinds of lettuce and 194 varieties of carrots.

Stamps His Genius On Maxwell Results

Canada's enthusiasm for the new good Maxwell can be scored among the many triumphs of Walter P. Chrysler.

Since this master manufacturer of motor cars directed his genius to the greater development of the Maxwell, the advance of this car in popularity has formed one of the most impressive chapters in Canadian automobile history.

No man was ever better equipped by training, experience and ability to perform a revolutionary task.

And revolutionary it proved to be, for in his determination to make the new good Maxwell the finest among fours in results, he produced a car with a score of outstanding performance qualities that no other four combines.

Walter P. Chrysler stamped his genius on the new good Maxwell as he stamped it on the Chrysler Six and buyers of this car are profiting by the invaluable contributions this man has made to finer four-cylinder motoring.

Unquestionably, the new good Maxwell occupies the preferred position among fours throughout the Dominion and its sales are mounting to new heights each month.

Before you buy a car get first hand information on the finer four-cylinder qualities Walter P. Chrysler has built into his product.

MILTON E. MAYBEE NOMINATED BY PARTY FOR ANOTHER TERM REPRESENT NORTHUMBERLAND

Complete Harmony Marks Conservative Convention at Warkworth—Choice Unanimous.

HONOR COL. BOGGS.

Harry B. Phillips Retires From Presidency and Col. Boggs Elected.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, June 6. — Milton E. Maybee received from his constituents an enthusiastic expression of confidence when at the convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of Northumberland he was unanimously re-nominated to represent that riding in the Federal Parliament for another term. All through the proceedings there was not a shadow of opposition to the popular representative. His renomination did not take up more than two minutes of the time of the convention and the greater portion of that short period was occupied by the applause with which Mr. Maybee's selection was received by an audience that filled the town hall to capacity, sweltering in a temperature of over 90 degrees, without a sign of faltering in their interest.

Harmony Marked Proceedings.

There was harmony manifested at every stage of the proceedings and everything was put through without the necessity of a division, although at one time it looked as if a vote would be required to settle the question of the presidency. Some of the friends of Harry B. Phillips, of Brighton, who has held that position for the past four years, insisted that he be elected for another term, and Colonel F. D. Boggs of Cobourg, was the choice of another section of the delegates for the head of the association. There was however no personal rivalry between the nominees. Colonel Boggs said it was not good policy to part with an official whose services were so satisfactory as those of Mr. Phillips, but the latter maintained that the honor was one which should be passed around, and in this he was upheld by that Conservative warhorse, Sam Nesbitt, of Brighton. Mr. Phillips retired and Col. Boggs was elected unanimously.

Ready for the Fray.

Optimism was the keynote of all the speeches. The men who spoke, whether in the ranks or in office, do not profess to know whether the next Federal election will be held in a few months or next year, but all agree that when the country is next called upon for a verdict, the Ki Government will be overthro and the Conservatives restored power. Northumberland County is counted upon as one of the ridings that will help bring about that result. Sam Nesbitt, who has earned fame as an estimator of the size of majorities in this riding in former contests, stakes his repuation as a political prophet upon the forecast that Mr. Maybee will win out by a lead of at least 1,000.

Only One Issue.

There is, according to the speakers, to be only one outstanding issue in the next election—the tariff. While all the countries that took part in the late war are striving to build up their shattered finances by imposing higher tariffs Canada alone has let down the commercial barriers.

Hon. S. F. Tomlie, ex minister of agriculture at Ottawa, who was the main speaker yesterday, said that the Progressives were really responsible for this policy, as they dominated the King Government and the only hope of salvation for the country was to kick out both Liberals and Progressives.

Premier's Alleged Object.

Major Belford, M.P.P., for Northumberland East, went a step further along this line. After reviewing the war record of Premier King, he declared that where his treasure was his heart was there also, and that the real object he had in view was to hand Canada over to the Americans.

No Reference to Temperance.

There was no direct reference to temperance question, but leadership of Premier Ferguson was endorsed as heartily as that of Hon. Arthur Meighen in the Federal field.

President's Address.

When President Phillips called the meeting to order, he invited the following to take seats on the platworm: Col. F. D. Boggs, of Cobourg; Mr. Maybee, Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Sam Nesbitt, ex-M.P.; George F. Vanvolkenburg, of Seymour, president of the East Northumberland Conservative Association; Major J. F. B. Belford, M.P.P.; W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., of Trenton, chief whip of the Conservative in the Legislature and Thomas D. Chalk of Port Hope, president of the Durham Association.

"Such a splendid gathering as this," said President Phillips, "recalls a great many things, great men and great deeds and a political history which the King Government has not been able to jar."

Mr. Phillips said that the convention could send back word to ex-Premier Meighen by Mr. Tolmie, a former member of the cabinet, that when the next election is held, Northumberland County will be found again in the Conservative column.

Letter from Ex-Premier.

A. R. Willmott of Cobourg, read a personal letter from Hon. Arthur Meighen in which he congratulated Northumberland county upon standing steadfast in 1921 when the Conservative government met with reverse and he was sure that the riding would maintain its record in the next election.

"It is an honor indeed for us to receive such a letter from our leader," said President Phillips. He looks to us to remain true to the party and that we are remaining true to Canada and the Empire."

Leads is Endorsed.

Mr. Maybee submitted a resolution which was enthusiastically adopted, endorsing the leadership of ex-Premier Meighen and Premier Ferguson. The constitution as drafted in 1923 by the Provincial Association was accepted.

Another resolution tendered a vote of thanks to I. A. Humphries, late of Campbellford, for his services as secretary. Mr. Humphries has been appointed Inspector of Legal Offices in Ontario and is now living in Toronto.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were then elected by acclamation:

Honorary Presidents: Hon. Arthur Meighen and Premier Ferguson.

President—Col. F. D. Boggs, of Cobourg.

First Vice-President—George S. Vanvolkenburg, of Seymour.

Second Vice-President—Mrs. Sam Nesbitt of Brighton.

Third Vice-President Mrs. D. Ewart of Cobourg.

Secretary-Treasurer — A. R. Willmott of Cobourg.

Auditor — H. L. Walker of Warkworth.

Sees Danger Ahead.

On taking the chair Col Boggs said that the condition of Canada to-day is serious and this is a time when all should be united. There are only two courses—the voters are to be a free state in the British Empire or to be swallowed up industrially by the United States, and the latter fate will be Canada's destiny if Premier King's olicy is followed Canada's only hope for salvation is in protection, the only policy that will preserve this country as a part of the Empire.

Vice-President's Choice.

The following ... were chosen for the various municipalities in the riding:

Cobourg—Harry McGuire.
Alnwick—Charles Riggs.
Brighton Township—Sam McColl.
Brighton Village—W. W. Porte.
Campbellford—R. Lowery.
Colborne—D. C. Matthews.
Haldimand—John Esher.
Hamilton — John A. Noble.
Hastings—Dr. J. H. Hess
Murray—Nicholas Hartt
Percy—F. H. Moore
Seymour East—W. S. Grills
Seymour West—John Locke
South Monaghan—Alex Anderson

The executive committee will consist of the officers of the various municipalities. It was decided to admit ladies as honorary members of the Association.

A Graceful Tribute

A graceful act of courtesy seldom witnessed in political conventions was performed when ex-President Harry B. Phillips read a resolution expressing sympathy with Mrs. Clarke and family on account of the serious illness of her husband, Sam Clarke, M.P.P., of Cobourg. Mr. Clarke was a fearless fighter as we all know," said Mr. Phillips, "and he is now probably putting up his last battle." The resolution was carried unanimously by a standing vote after Col. Boggs had praised Mr. Clarke as a man and neighbor.

The Nomination

When the president called for nominations for a candidate, Alex. Hume of Seymour presented the name of Milton E. Maybee and J. A. Anderson of Campbellford and A. W. Thorne of Brighton were simultaneous on their feet to second the nomination. The entire audience broke into a storm of applause and as no other name was submitted Mr. Maybee was declared the nominee.

The choice of the convention made a brief speech of acceptance and after expressing appreciation for the honor conferred upon him took up protection as the great issue of the day, showing intimate knowledge of that question, especially as it concerns the farmers. He would increase the tariff on the early fruits and vegetables coming from the United States, and also raise it on eggs and other commodities from the same country. Protection is to be the issue in the next election.

Canada is exporting raw material which should be manufactured at home. A cord of pulpwood brings $8 in Canada and when it reaches the United States it takes $50 worth of labor to convert it into paper. The government is spending money to bring in immigrants and these people soon drift to the United States but the loss of our own sons is a more serious matter.

Mr. Maybee, while by no means pessimistic, realizes that he has a fight ahead to retain his seat as he believes that the Liberals are to make a supreme effort to carry Northumberland. He called on every voter in the party to do his duty on election day.

Mr. Tolmie's Address.

Mr. Tolmie's address was an argument for Protection. Canada is the only country to lower its tariff since the war, and Canada is the only country that is not paying off its war debt. The only way to stop the drift of population to the United States is to pay as high wages here as across the line, and in order to make this possible, the man who pays the wages must be protected from competition coming from countries where wages are lower.

The Canadian who produces vegetables out of season at heavy expense under glass cannot compete with the importers from the Southern States.

What Canada Must Do.

In order to prosper Canada must establish a stable Government in which the people have confidence. A home market must be devoloped and a market in Great Britain must be assured. Overhead expenses in the management of national affairs must be cut down. It is foolish to purchase expensive public buildings in Paris and London while times are so hard.

The only way to remedy conditions is to kick out the Liberals and Progressives and elect a Conservative Government.

Mr. Tolmie said that in his circle round the country, he found there were two opinions. One was that Arthur Meighen has the confidence of the people, and that the public are losing all faith in Premier King.

The speaker gave his hearers some practical hints on how to organize for and contest a campaign.

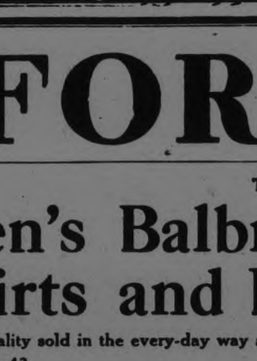
Tribute to Mr. Maybee.

Mr. Tolmie, who has sat in Parliament with Mr. Maybee for the past four years, paid him the following tribute:

"Mr. Maybee is not always jumping up in the House, but when he takes the floor, he is given a respectful hearing. He has done good work in the committee room. You have a good representative, a man who has the respect of his colleagues, and I hope you will send him back."

After short addresses by Major Belford and Mr. Ireland, the convention broke up with cheers for the King and for Mr. Maybee.

UNANIMOUS CHOICE.



MILTON E. MAYBEE, M.P.

Of Trenton, who was unanimously re-nominated at the convention at Warkworth as the Liberal-Conservative candidate in Northumberland county.

OBITUARY.

MRS. J. S. KNAPMAN.

The death occurred last night, in Toronto, at the family residence, 223 Lauder avenue, of Annie Gould, beloved wife of J. S. Knapman.

There are left to mourn her loss, her husband, Mr. J. S. Knapman and three daughters, Mrs. Walter T. Belleghem and Mrs. W. Dalliday, both of this city, and Ruth, residing at home, also two sons, Harold and Jack at home.

The funeral will take place from the family residence Monday, June 8th, at 2 p.m., to Prospect cemetery.

BRUCE RIDPATH.

LAKEFIELD, June 6.—The funeral will take place to-morrow of Bruce Ridpath, formerly of Lakefield, who died in Toronto.

He was born in Lakefield about forty years ago and was the son of the late Mr. S. Ridpath. He spent his boyhood in the village and received his education here, and it was on the Otonabee river at Lakefield and in the old Lakefield rink that he did his first canoe stunts and played his first games of hockey. As a trick canoeist he had no superior and few if any equals. He appeared in several countries of Europe and before many of the crowned heads, who complimented him highly on his truly remarkable performance. He organized the first professional hockey team in Ontario and played two seasons in Ottawa with the professional league and with them winning the world's championship. When his career was at its peak he was the victim of a serious motor accident about twelve years ago, which for months kept him confined to bed and it was feared he would be a confirmed invalid, but he partially recovered and has lived an active business life for years till a stroke of paralysis about three weeks ago laid him low. He never recovered and on Thursday morning he passed away. Undoubtedly the motor accident was primarily responsible for his early demise. He was a universal favorite, his unfailing good humor winning him many friends wherever he went. About a month ago he paid a visit to Lakefield friends after a business trip through the west, where he met many old Lakefield friends.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. S. Ridpath, of Toronto, two sisters, Mrs. Podger of Vancouver, and Mrs. Chas. Winrow of Toronto, and five brothers, James W. of Lakefield, Thomas of Lethbridge, Samuel of Elizabeth, N.J., and John and Gordon of Toronto.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of his brother, J. W. Ridpath, Concession street, Lakefield, and will proceed to the Lakefield cemetery for interment.

EZRA BONGARD.

NORWOOD, June 6.—The death occurred on Thursday, June 4, of Mr. Ezra Bongard at the advanced age of eighty-three years. The deceased had been a resident of Norwood for a great many years, and was highly respected by all who knew him. He leaves to mourn his loss four sons: Mr. Nelson Bongard of Toronto, Eddie, David and Claude of Norwood, also one daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) Pocock of Toronto. The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon from the home of his son, Mr. Claude Bongard Hastings Road. Interment will be made in the Norwood Cemetery.

WON'T USE FIRE ENGINE

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 6.—This city's fire loss is so heavy that it is virtually rebuilt every 50 years. The only fire fighting apparatus is a small hand-pump attached to a garden hose. The former kaiser tried to introduce modern apparatus, but his gift of a bright red fire engine was placed in a museum.

KICK MAY BE FATAL.

Victoria Road Hotelman Kicked By Horse.

LINDSAY, June 6 (Special to The Examiner).—John McNaney, hotelkeeper at Victoria Road ,is at death's door as a result of a kick he sustained from a horse which he was watering in the hotel yard. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Connolly, of Digby, had driven to Victoria Road to spend the night, preparatory to attending the funeral of Mrs. P. Clancy at Lindsay, and while Mr. McNaney was looking after their horse, the animal kicked him in the stomach. Little hope is held out for his recovery.

NOTHING TO DO BEFORE UNION

Presbyterian General Assembly Adopted Report of the Church Union Committee.

HOPE FOR OTHERS.

TORONTO, June 6. (Canadian Press).—Nothing now remains to be done by the Presbyterian General Assembly before the consummation next Wednesday of organic union with the Methodist and Congregational Churches. Yesterday the decks were cleared. The final report of the Church Union Committee was adopted. The Assembly went on record as declaring that it entered the Union by corporate and constitutional action as an organized and living body—this in an endeavor to refute the claim of the non-concurrent Presbyterians that they constitute the continuing Presbyterian Church. Belief in the "essential unity of all Christ's people" was reaffirmed, and the hope expressed that the present Union might lead to others. Those who have been prominent in Church Union work were publicly thanked for their services. Finally the Assembly dismissed from office Principal D. J. Fraser, of Montreal College, and Prof. Thos. Eakin, one of his staff, because of their activities in opposition to Union. Mr. Fraser being president of the Presbyterian Church Association.

For the second time that saucy and ungrateful and greedy catbird left its winter qparters and seemed gone for good. The kind hearted lady who had fed it, was just about giving it up for a bad job again, when who should arrive in the back garden, now beautiful in its new dress of early folliage and flowers, but our dapper young Mr. Catbird.

He sang and sang and sang. And his lady friend, the woman, heard him with delight and surprise, for a good catbird singer takes his hat off to nobody, when it comes to singing. All most folks know about a catbird is that it is a uniform grey colour, has a black cap and meows like a cat, but during the courting and the nestling season, he is some singer, imitating the songs of any and all birds weaving them into an endless jumbled melody all of his own.

Our catbird is first cousin to the mockingbird and should be called the Canadian Mockingbird and I have heard Canadian Mockingbirds that outmock the famous California mocker. However, the particular catbird we have our eyes on in the garden, seemed very pleased to see the lady come to look at him. He strutted about, fluffed his feathers and gave forth a wonderful mixture of half a dozen songs. The woman thought it was affection for her, but in a second or two she saw that it was a mere matter of showing off, for who else should appear on the scene, a little more quiet and modest but a new lady love, the new Mrs. Catbird

So things took on a new meaning. This dapper dan of a catbird had deliberately gone off and found a very innocent young lady catbird and filled her ear full of sweet nothings, married her and brought her to this garden of easy eats, to set up housekeeping. Of course they would more than earn their way, by eating bugs and keeping the place free from insects, but the whole summer was more or less like one long movie.

Actors came into the scene that were not supposed to be in the show at all and there was something doing all the time.

My Six Little Ones Used Baby's Own Tablets

Mrs. John A. Patterson, Scotch Village, N.S., says:—"There are six children in our home, and the only medicine they get is Baby's Own Tablets, and I have not known the Tablets to fail when a medicine was needed. No mother should be without the Tablets in the house." Like Mrs. Patterson thousands of other mothers are quick to praise Baby's Own Tablets for bringing health and comfort to their little ones. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the stomach and bowels, thus banishing constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers, and making teething easy. They are guaranteed to contain no opiates and are perfectly safe for the youngest child. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CUTS GASOLINE COST TO 10 CENTS A GALLON

SIOUX FALLS, S. Dak. — James A. May, of 4039 H Street has perfected an amazing new device that is enabling car owners to cut their gasoline bills in half by doubling their mileage from gasoline used. Many owners have made over 40 miles on a gallon. It also removes carbon, increases motor power and pep, prevents spark plug trouble and overheating. Anyone can install it in five minutes. Mr. May wants agents, and is offering to send one free to one auto owner in each locality. Write him to-day.

DOING BRUGES IN FOUR DAYS.

To "do" Bruges properly, that is to say, to see all its churches, museums, monuments, old buildings public places and so on at least four days are necessary. This is, of course, allowing only just the time needed for a mere glance at the scores of wonderful paintings of Jean Van Eyck, Lancelot Blondeel, Memlinc, Pierre Pourbus, and Gerard David, to mention only a few.

There is only one way to get a real idea of the architecture of the city and that is to take a trip along its sleepy canals. There is, it is true, no Bridge of Sighs, but there are the Bridge of the Blind Ass, the Donkeys' Bridge, and the Lake of Love or Minnewater.

No mention of Bruges would be complete without a word or two devoted to the concerts which ring out over the town during he summer from its carillon. The carilloneur, perched high up in the belfry, gets some wonderful music out of the 47 bells he manipulates, of which the Bourdon, or Triumph Bell, is the biggest.

Should you care to climb to the top of the belfry—there are 402 steps—you will find your labour had got been in vain for you will discover a great part of Belgium unrolled before you and Ostend Ghent and Courtrai may be picked out with ease.

JAPAN DENIES SENDING HARSH NOTE TO CHINA

Will Take No Action Except in Conjunction With Other Powers.

MARINES LANDED.

No Other Steps Taken Nor Are Drastic Actions Intended.

(By J. Francis Misselwitz, United Press Staff Correspondent)

TOKIO, June 6—Japan will continue a policy of "watchful waiting" toward the Shanghai strike situation.

This assurance emenated in positive form from the foreign office today, apropos of London reports yesterday that Tokio had sent a brusque not threatening the landing of forces off Shanghai, and the reoccupation of Tsing Tao. That any such comunication had been forwarded was strictly denied. Japan, it was explained, would act in the Chinese situation only in agreement with the other powers and she desires only the fullest coo-peration with them.

A handful of marines from the cruiser Tatsu has gone ashore at Shanghai but the government is optimistic that there will be no further Chinese riots there, though it anticipates peaceful demonstrations at Canton and other cities.

The Government deplores that "irresponsible student" had been permitted to disturb the peace. The London reports referred to above claimed that Japan had sent a note virtually threatening China with a re-introduction of the famous twenty one demands, the upshot of which would have been strong Japanese domination in Chinese affairs. The dispatch from the United Press correspondent lends further support to recent indications that the great powers do not intend any drastic actions against Chinese new national movement.

Great Britain let it be known yesterday that she intended to adhere to the generous principles of the Washington nine-power treaty. These two moves are significant in view of the pressure from Shanghai interests to force strenuous intervention against China.

Jones, of 267 Perry Street, was held yesterday by his family, when Mr. Jones was taken by his children and grandchildren to the scene of his birth, in Seymour Township, on the farm at present occupied by Mr. Locke. A picnic was held at Trent Bridge by the assembled family, the party including two daughters, Mrs. J. A. Black of Omemee, and Miss Jessie Jones, of Peterboro; and two sons, R. Jones, of the Turnbull Company's staff, and H. W. Jones, of the Gallagher Remedy Company's sales force. Two other sons who were not present at yesterday's outing are Will, of Trenton, and David, of Eldorado. A number of grandchildren were present also. Of a family of seven children, Mr. Samuel R. Jones, the eldest boy, and one brother, in Brantford, are the only survivors. Mrs. Jones, whose wife, formerly Miss Jennie Wilson of Percy Township, died about twenty-five years ago, has resided in the city for the past seven years, coming here from a residence of sixty-nine years at Oak Hill, near Percy.

If You Want to be Stylish CAMOUFLAGE Disguise Liabilities, Bring Out Assets, Says Bendel, Famous Fashion Authority

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Learn to camouflage your figure. That is one of the secrets of being stylishly dressed, says Henri Bendel, fashion authority.

Disguise your liabilities and bring out your assets.

"In clothes, as in conversation, if you have nothing important or appropriate to say, it is better not to flaunt your opinions," Bendel says.

"If you can't be eloquent with your clothes, it is better to maintain a discreet silence by conforming to the mode and giving your attention to perfection of detail.

"In the art of fashion camouflage, there are many ways of lengthening short lines and breaking up those that are too long without the slightest suggestion of obviousness.

"A cape just the right length, a jabot skillfully handled, a ruffle raised or lowered, a sash tied on the front instead of the side, a broken hemline, instead of a straight, uncompromising one, a high waistline, instead of a low one—all these and several others may make all the difference in the world in your appearance.

"Notice the lines on the gowns of well dressed women. When you buy a dress that satisfies you find out what makes it different from those you don't like, and look for that feature next time."

It is safer in most cases to be a conservative rather than a radical, Bendel says.

To illustrate his point, Bendel referred to the gown illustrated with this article.

It is one of the most unusual and loveliest for afternoon wear that he has exhibited this season. It is of sand colored canton crepe with a cape of blond crepe and a hood of the same material as the frock. The front is caught with a tortoise shell buckle that concentrates the fullness in front and gives the straight silhouette and flat back. It has the graceful flowing line that Paris decrees.

But this gown, Bendel says, should be worn only by a woman with a slender, willowy figure, narrow hips and small ankles. On the woman inclined to be stout it is a failure.

NEW AFTERNOON GOWN DESIGNED BY BENDEL. SKETCH SHOWS THE HOOD AND CAPE EFFECT IN THE BACK.

LONDON GIRLS FIND NEW GAME

Famous Author Gives Interview on Woman's Dress—And is Fooled.

SOCIETY GOSSIP

LONDON, Eng., June 6 (By Canadian Press).—Trust the Bright Young People of London to find a new game. You remember the Treasure Hunts, and the Night-Time Days. Now they've found something that requires not only skill and ingenuity but a good deal of luck as well.

This is it. They arrange between themselves to interview a number of famous people by telephone, as if they were newspaper reporters, and see just how much a person's views on this and that can vary during 24 hours. The actresses have fallen for it beautifully. Gladys Cooper, Beatrice Lillie and a few others have all been interviewed by the Bright Young people—and no doubt are still looking for their views to appear in various London papers—but the typed out interviews are reposing in a certain escritoire in Mayfair.

The other day one famous author and playwright who has three plays running in London at the moment was rung up by a sweet young voice and asked for his views on "Women's Mannish Modes of today." It took up 15 minutes of his time, and he nearly stopped his wife's dress allowance when she presented him with his interview that evening.

INDIAN RAJAHS

English princes may be scarce this season, but there are plenty of Indian Maharajahs here, and very exalted Potentates indeed. In the "millionaire hotels," and occupying the Imperial suites are no fewer than four Indian princes and Maharajahs. These are the Rajahs of Kapurthala, Rajipipla, Vizianagran, and the Prince Karamjit Singh of Kapurthala.

Rajpipla is the youngest and handsomest of them all, and, as many a debutante will bear witness, dances divinely. All the Rajahs have brought long Suites with them, and some of the latter keep their Eastern dress. When the Rajah of Kapurthala dines in the restaurant or the Cafe a seven-foot high Indian retainer stands behind his chair and makes a pretence of tasting the foods and wines before the Rajah begins his meal.

MILLION DOLLAR BEAUTIES

The interesting problem "Is money the great breeder of good looks" has been propounded by the English author G. V. Lendrum, on seeing a number of debs who are visiting London this season. "Girls grow prettier and prettier as their fathers grow richer and richer," declares Mr. Lendrum, "Some of the London society girls, despite all their ancesters, will have to keep a close eye on their rivals—and perhaps take a hint or two."

EASTERN PRINCESS TO TELL STORIES OF THE HOLY LAND

Princess Rahme Comes to Peterboro With Wonderful Entertainments.

AT GEORGE STREET

Daughter of Ancient House in Palestine is Noted Interpreter.

Few lecturers speak with such authority on the Bible and the Holy Land, as Princess Rahme Haidar, daughter of an ancient house, who comes to Peterborough on Wednesday and Thursday, June 10 and 11 at the George street church. For these entertainments, the Princess, who speaks charming and cultured English, will wear her Oriental and native dress. She will be accompanied by her secretary, Miss Lucille Burgess, who will provide the beautiful and typical eastern music which will form a picturesque background for the recitals.

It is unusual to find in this western world, a daughter of an ancient house in Palestine, who has come out from the land of dreams and romance to build for herself a place among the artists of the New World and to interpret correctly those beautiful stories of early times that so often to us read like myths. The story of her people she brings to the western world in an effort to promote an understanding that will correct the false impressions of her native country.

A brilliant lecturer, she is also a dramatist and her Bible story dramatized are famous. On Wednesday evening at 8:15 she presents her unique recital "Syria, the Light of the Orient," and on Thursday, the dramatized story of "Ruth and Naomi." Lectures and dramatizations are "different." They bear the authoratative hall-mark of the East for the East is fittingly explained and illustrated by a royal daughter of the East.

What's Your BIRTHDAY

SATURDAY, June 6—If to-day is your birthday, you have a simple, child-like trusting nature. You have an entirely wrong picture of the ways of the world and someday some big "bump" will disillusion you. Since your early youth you will have strong convictions and generally live up to them. The first marriage of people born this day result in happiness in only about half the cases. Whether you are a man or a woman you will abhor flirting.

SUNDAY, June 7—If today is your birthday, unusual events will occur in your life, during three years. These are the years when you are 18, 36 and 54. At least two of these unusual occurrences should bring you great happiness. Whether you display it or not, you have a kind and compassionate nature, which causes you to desire to aid all classes of people. Your marriage, which probably will occur at an early age, should result in great happiness.

This morning a brief business session was held for the consideration of reports from the Church and Manse Board and the Historical Committee.

Hedda Hoyt Talks About Things That Interest The Busy Woman Of 1925

Season of Chiffons

NEW YORK, June 6 (United Press).—This is a season of chiffons. Those who can afford such luxuries are using complete wardrobes of chiffon, including ensemble suits, afternoon frocks, evening wraps, long coats, etc. And those who felt that they are not in the chiffon class are utilizing other silks which have a little more durability.

One of the most attractive evening wraps seen this week was made of light gray crepe de chene, the silk being knife-pleated and in three-tier effect. The home seamstress could make such a cape since all that is required is a plain slender cape upon which are posed three knife-pleated capes, each overlapping the other. Each of the three tiers is of equal length.

Only one woman in five wears gloves on the street these days, although as if to offer the suggestion that they have them, they carry them in their hands.

A few straw hats trimmed in flowers are appearing. One model of navy blue straw has its underbrim faced in tiny violets. Facing the underbrim in small flat flowers is to be a popular mode this Summer.

One New York shop has a window filled with navy blue georgette frocks trimmed in wide bands of beige lace. Beige lace is also used a great deal on black frocks this season, giving the lingerie effect. Lace is generally used in yoke effect and as banding on the skirt. Usually the banding is placed in front of the skirt.

Old fashioned gold jewelry is again in vogue. Huge link bracelets similiar to the slave bracelets of last season are being worn. Necklaces of gold links with old fashioned gold lockets are being sold in the best shops and to the better class trade. Wide gold band bracelets with sets of semi-precious stones or with large buckles of gold are also in vogue.

Shoes trimmed with silver piping and appliques are among the newer footgear. At present there is a tendency to match the evening slipper with some accessory such as fan wrap, scarf, etc.

HOME TOWN RECIPE

Here is a recipe that found such favor with the young son of the family that he turned it in to an American magazine and received a dollar for it. It is a white nut cake, and comes from Mrs. J. Comstock, 356 Rubidge street:

Cream one-half cup butter with one and one-quarter cups white sugar, 2 cups flour, sifted, and 2 teaspoons baking powder. Add one cup chopped walnuts, three-quarters cup of sweet milk, and whites of four eggs or two whole eggs, well beaten. Flavor with vanilla and ice with butter icing.

BONNY BABIES

Photographs of Canada's Best Will be Hung at Exhibition.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 6 (By Canadian Press).—An announcement has been received from the Secretary of the National Baby Week Council, Piccadilly, London, England, that photographs of the best entries from Canada are to be displayed in the Empire's Bonniest Baby Photograph Gallery which is being arranged fo Imperial Baby Week, July 6th to 11th at the British Empire Exhibition, and that a handsome silver shield is to be awarded to the township from which the champion baby and mother are entered.

SPOONING IS LEGAL SAYS MAGISTRATE JELFE

HAMILTON, Ont., June 6 (By Canadian Press).—"People have a legal right to spoon wherever they please in my opinion," declared Magistrate Jelfs of the Hamilton police force, "providing they are not breaking any city by-laws and are not married to anyone else."

"And providing their parents know about it?" the magistrate was asked.

"No, that is not necessary," replied the magistrate.

This opinion was delivered following the edict of the London magistrate that spooning in itself was no legal offence.

Gold leaf was used on the tombs [illegible] Egypt.

NOBODY LOVES A MERE IMAGE

The Spirit Behind the Beautiful Face Makes True Love.

Mind controls love. Likewise it makes love.

This despite the fact that the physical seems to predominate.

You hear a man say:

"She is lovely. She has beautiful eyes. Her hair is dark brown. Her ankles are trim."

Occasionally you hear:

"She is intelligent. She knows everything. I can talk to her. She would make a wonderful wife."

Yet the flesh is not all. No man could love a beautiful image. There must be life. It is the spirit—the animation of being that attracts.

Through the mind alone can companionship be given. The personal equation controls the degree. The greater the intelligence the greater the companionship. It is all a matter of contrast and comparison.

True love may be dumb as it is mated. But true love is never wedded to the flesh. Such things are fleeting.

The heart may thump, but the mind must rule. A trim ankle may attract. But it is the spirit that holds.

A snake would starve rather than eat anything except living prey.

The palatable way to take Yeast

Soak a cake of Royal Yeast with a little sugar in a quarter of a glass of tepid water over night. Stir well, strain and drink the liquid. Many people prefer to take it in orange juice.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

TO CLEAN CHANDELIERS

A soft brush should be used for cleaning the ornamental portions of chandeliers and wall fixtures.

SO IT WON'T SCRATCH

When filling gem pans with muffins or cake dough leave one section empty and fill it with water and the cakes will never scorch.

SALT ON STRAWBERRIES

A little salt added to the crushed strawberries for short cake will bring out their flavor.

TO FLAVOR SOUPS

Dry celery tops in glass jars and use them to flavor stews and soups.

TO DRY LETTUCE

Dry lettuce in paper toweling if you must use it immediately after washing it.

WASHING PLANTS

Wash house plants in soapsuds occasionally to keep the insects away.

TO REVIVE COLORS

A spoonful of vinegar to each quart of rinsing water will often revive faded colors in wash goods.

PAPA LOVE MAMA? MAMA LOVE PAPA?

My wife expects me to carry packages. Big, soft packages and small, heavy ones. Packages wrapped in thin paper that tears, and packages done up with string that slips off.

I've carried every kind of package that they put up, and more of them at one time than any six delivery boys.

When my wife and I go shopping she always says that there won't be anything for me to carry home. She's sure of that, but I'm not.

And I'm right, too. She always remembers that if she waits until tomorrow to have that green velvet delivered, it will come too late for the dressmaker to start in on it first thing in the morning.

And so I have to carry it. And the new carpet-sweeper she decides to buy (that store doesn't deliver). And a new rubber mat for the vestibule, and a double-boiler she promised the cook to bring home, and just a few other things.

Talk about beasts of burden—they look like frisking rabbits beside me when I get loaded for the homeward journey.

Crocodiles grow quickly for the first few years of their lives then their rate of growth slows down to about one inch a year.

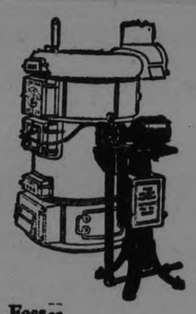
Fess-Holden Morgan Automatic Oil Burning Favored by Women

WOMEN favor and understand Fess Automatic Oil Burning Equipment. They like it because it is so downright simple and free of complications and troubles. In the living room or hall there is a little thermostat (heat regulating thermometer). When more, or less, heat is required a simple adjustment of the thermostat does the work.

They like Fess equipment because it goes right along with its job of keeping the home cosy and warm, doing its work thoroughly, quietly, reliably! Women don't have to worry about it, fuss over it—in fact, they do not have to think of it at all. To them, it is as simple and logical as electric light.



Fess-Holden Morgan Automatic

Men Folk Like Their New Freedom

As for the men of households heated by Fess or Fess-Holden Morgan Oil Burners! The men boast to their coal-burning neighbors how much better their houses are heated the Fess way.

Men luxuriate in their freedom from having to shovel coal, carry heavy cans of ashes, sweep and scrape; they like the idea of going to the cellar only once a month perhaps, instead of three or four times a day in the wearying years of coal heating. Owners of larger Fess-Heated homes do not have to employ a furnace man!

Children's Health is Better Now

In Fess-Heated homes children have fewer colds, coughs and other little illnesses. The secret of this is that no matter how viciously cold or mild it is outside you can keep your home uniformly, evenly heated, the Fess way. Grandma and Grandad like the nice, even warmth. And because oil is so wonderfully clean it doesn't create any dust or grime; this means far less cleaning to do.

And that is the whole family!

SAFETY! All Fess equipments have been approved by the Hydro Electric Commission and accepted by the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association. The entire line of Fess equipment, which is the largest and most complete manufactured, has been tried out under severest conditions and has proved its worth for all cases, both in homes and commercial institutions.

Don't order coal! Obtain from us the Fess-Holden Morgan list of 2,000 Canadian homes oil heated the Fess Way. We will gladly give you a demonstration with no obligation to you whatsoever.

BRIGHTON WON AT ROSENEATH

Both Teams Showed Lack of Practice in Rather Ragged Game.

SCORE WAS 13-10.

ROSENEATH, June 5 — Roseneath and Brighton played their first game in the Northumberand league on Wednesday at the former place when Brighton went home with the big end of a 13-10 score. The game was very ragged at times which showed the lack of practice, neither team having much on the other in the error column. Either team when they get going will make the rest of the league step to beat them. The large crowd present were treated to a rather crude exhibition of umpiring behind the plate. Umpire Adams failed to please either team.

The battery for Roseneath was Wilson and Leach. Leach pitched the entire game and with the exception of the third and ninth inning had the Brighton batters helpless. In the third the bases were full with two out and on a force play at the plate the umpire ruled that Wilson, the Roseneath catcher, was not on the plate. This sarted the fireworks and ill-feeing and before Brighton was retired they had scored eight runs. Again in the ninth with two on a foul ball to right which passed outside of the foul stake went for a three bagger and this proved the winning of the game.

McCullough started on the mound for Brighton and pitched a good steady game until the seventh when he weakened and allowed Roseneath to score 4 runs and tie the game. He was then relieved by Frise a player who can turn in a credible performance anywhere on the diamond but was never seen on the mound before. He apparently had nothing but speed but lots of that and after allowing one run he held the homesters scoreless for the balance of the game. Mr. Gordon Lapp of Brighton, past secretary of the league, officially opened the league here when he gave a short address to the fans in which he advocated clean sport for this season, saying to put clean sportsmanship ahead on winning the game. After this he pitched the first ball with C. W. Varcoe, president of the league, doing the receiving. Mr. Geo. A. Dawe, president of the Roseneath club, was the batter and he proved that he had not lost his eye when he hit the first ball pitched for a high fly to the infield.

The line-up:

Brighton—Cameron c.m.; Solomon, rf; McKee, ss; Frise, 1b; Scriver 2b; Archer c; Samis 3b; W. Brown, f; McCullough p; Carwall r.f.

Roseneath—Davey, ss; A. Zufelt, rf and 2b; K. Zufelt, cf; B. Thackery 1b; Turner 3b; Dawson lf; Leach p; Wilson c; Baker rf; Shearer 2b;

Umpires—Adams behind the plate and Macklin on bases.

VARSITY LACROSSE TEAM WINS SEVEN

Defeated Lehigh University 3-1 in Hard Fought Game.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 6.—The University of Toronto lacrosse team won its seventh straight victory when it defeated the University of Lehigh here Friday by the score of 3 to 1. It was one of the hardest fought on the whole tour. The Toronto team scored their three goals before Lehigh secured their lone tally. In yesterday's game the defence field gave a splendid exhibition of defensive lacrosse while the home position displayed some very pretty stick handling ability. The whole team starred, but special mention should be made of McCauley, Graham and Beatty. The line of the Toronto team was as follows:

Goal, McArthur; point, Brunt; cover point, C. P. McAuley; first defence, Blair; second defence, Smart; third defence, Day; centre, McGee; third home, Graham; 2nd home, Hall; first home, Robinson; out home, Wallace; inside home, Beatty. Spares, Irwin and Ferguson.

HOCKEY STARS IN LACROSSE MATCH

Several hundred lacrosse fans at Central Park last evening saw Irvin Bailey and Wilfred Ranger, two of Peterboro's senior hockey stars, on opposite sides in the grand old Canadian summer game, and the spectators generally agreed that these two players were nearly as shifty and skilful on the sward as they were on the ice last winter. Ranger's team squeezed out a 5-3 victory in the charity exhibition which netted a small sum for the benefit of one of the Peterboro lacrosse team of three years ago who has been long and seriously ill.

The game demonstrated that there is sufficient material to give the Havelock—Norwood an Cambellford Hastings combinatins an argument this year. It was clean and fairly fast in spite of delays that are unavoidable at Central Park. The teams were as follows:

Ranger's: Goal, L. LeBarr; point, Goodfellow; cp, Taylor; 1st def, White; 2nd def., K. Miller; centre, J. O'Toole; 2nd home, D. Millen; 1st home, D. White; outside home, "Lefty" White; inside home, Ranger.

Bailey's: Goal, Murdock; 1st Geo. Mein; c. point, A. Hatton; 1st def., J. Ward; 2nd def., M. Neary; centre Bailey; 2nd home, Gene Donovan; 1st home, J. Jones; outside home, Jim Dwyer; inside home, F. Jones and Ira Dundas.

TOMMY GIBBONS TOOK COUNT IN TWELFTH ROUND

Made Gallant Stand Against Gene Tunney Until Midway of Bout.

TUNNEY STRONGER.

Champion Light Heavyweight Proved His Ability Against Clever Boxer.

POLO GROUNDS, New York, June 6.—Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, knocked out Tom Gibbons, of St. Paul, in the twelfth round of their scheduled fifteen-round match here last night. Tunney had two pounds and a half on his rival, he tipping the scales at 181½, while Gibbons weighed 179.

Round One: Gibbons came from his corner with a rush and landed left hook to the stomach. The men quickly came to close quarters, and there was a sharp exchange of short punches in Gibbons' corner. They sparred, feeling each other out, Tunney jabbing with a fast left at long range and Gibbons countering with a left to body. Gibbons jabbed lightly with left and Tunney replied with left and right to body. It was apparent at the start that the fight would be a contest between two super-boxers, both men sparring cleverly and blocking or side-stepping most of the leads.

Round Two: The men opened at a livelier clip in the second round and Tunney shot a series of short swings to Gibbons' body. Gibbons appeared content to permit Tunney to lead boxing his man craftily and tying up his hands in the clinches. As they came to close quarters in the centre of the ring, Gibbons chopped Tunney with a short left to the jaw. They exchanged stiff rights in Tunney's corner. They were exchanging rapidly at the bell, but little damage was being done.

Round Three: Both men appeared willing to open up and there was a series of rapid exchanges as they fought at close quarters. Tunney sent over stiff rights and lefts to Gibbons' body and landed three lefts to Gibbons' head. Gibbons replied with two choppy lefts to the face. Gibbons grinned as he missed a sweeping left, but leaped in again with another hook which went home to Tunney's face.

Round Four: Gibbons went to the attack and landed a stiff left and right to Tunney's chin. The men boxed cleverly, making each other miss many leads and repeatedly coming to clinches. Tunney forced Gibbons to the ropes. Gibbons landed two right to the body and a left to the face. Tunney landed his best punch of the fight, a hard right to the chin, but Gibbons came back with a rally as the round ended.

Gibbons on Run.

Round Five: Tunney shot over a left and right to the chin. Gibbons backed away and turned, running into the ropes. Tunney rushed at Gibbons and landed a volley before the St. Paul man could protect himself. Tunney outboxed Gibbons at long range. Tunney shot stiff lefts at the St. Paul man and compelled the latter to come to close quarters for protection. Gibbons jolted Tunney with short inside lefts and rights. Tunney appeared to be going strong in this round.

Tunney Draws Blood.

Round Six: Tunney rushed at Gibbons with a stiff left to the body. Another Tunney left to Gibbons' face partly closed his left eye. Tunney chopped Gibbons with short jolts to body and head. Tom lashed out wildly with left and missed as Tunney ducked. Tunney landed a left to the body. Gibbons crossed over his right, cutting Gene's lip. Tunney shot a series of hard blows to Tom's mouth, and Tom was bleeding as the round closed.

Round Seven: Tunney led with a left to the body. The punch was a trifle low. Gibbons merely smiled, shook hands and they continued fighting at a fast clip. Tunney shot a stiff left to the head and brought over his right to the body. Tunney appeared by far the stronger of the two. He made Gibbons' head bob back wth sharp jabs. The St. Paul man was forced to cover repeatedly as he retreated. Gibbons landed sharp right to the chin at the bell.

Tunney Dazed.

Round Eight: Tunney opened with a repetition of his jabbing attack. Gibbons crossed over a right to Tunney's face. Tunney landed a heavy left hook to the stomach. Gibbons missed a hard left as he backed away from the aggressive New York man. Tunney shot three stiff punches to the body. Gibbons turned on Tunney and jarred him with two terrific rights to the jaw. Tunney was slightly dazed as he went to his corner.

Hit On Sore Eye.

Round Nine: Gibbons followed up his advantage of the previous round, going to the attack and landing two stiff lefts to the face. Gibbons shot over two rights to the face. Tunney came back with a heavy right to the stomach. Gibbons held up his hand and drew to one side, indicating that he had been hit low. After a brief rest they continued boxing. Tunney shot over a hard left, cutting Gibbons' injured eye as the round ended.

Gibbons Tiring.

Round Ten: Gibbons was boxing craftily to protect his damaged eye. Tunney sent over a sharp left to the chin. Tunney landed short lefts and rights on Gibbons' jaw as the latter went back against the ropes. Gibbons chased Tunney about the ring, the latter covering with both hands. Tom appeared tired during this round, and made little effort to reply to the New York man's attack.

Round Eleven: Tunney hooked over a left and a right to Gibbons' face. Gene followed up the advantage with a left hook to the body. Tom appeared content to let Gene do the leading, and the crowd began to clap for more action. Tunney landed a left and a right to the body. Tunney forced Gibbons around the ring, landing both hands to the face. He chopped Gibbons with short hooks as they came to close quarters for in-fighting. There was little real fighting during the round and the crowd booed as the bell rang.

Round 12 — Tunney landed two lefts to the body as Gibbons covered. Tunney backed Gibbons around the ring and floored Gibbons with a right to the chin. Gibbons was up at seven and Tunney rushed in, crashing over another right. Gibbons fell in his own corner and was counted out. At the count of seven he strove vainly to raise himself to his feet with the aid of the ropes but was unable to summon enough strength to rise.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Pat Jennings, Trenton's sporting impressario, has volunteered to swim from Belleville to New York bearing an invitation from the Mayor of Belleville to New York's chief executive to attend the peace celebration in Belleville this summer. There are three celebrated sporting men in Eastern Ontario who love publicity. Pat Jennings is one and Orme Gamsby of Orono is the other two.

The benefit lacrosse game in Central Park last night disclosed the fact that Peterboro has considerable material for a good team, and demonstrated that Irvin Bailey is as elusive and clever at Canada's national summer pastime as he is on the steel blades in the winter.

* * * * * * * * *

The one best bet today is that if Duke Dainty is selected to pitch for Oshawa this afternoon against Belleville he'll pitch the old left flipper off in trying to beat the Railroaders. He has as much use for the Quinte team as the House of David ball players have for a safety razor.

COGS WON FROM LAKEFIELD BOYS

Yesterday evening the Cognawagas and Lakefield met in the Exhibition grounds in a fast game in the East Peterborough League, which was won by the "Cogs" by the score of 11-2. Billingsley was in the box for the "Gogs," while Woodhouse did the throwing for the visitors. The catchers were: W. Cripps for the home team and McManus for the Lakefields. Both teams put up some real good baseball and both pitchers did fine work on the mound. Billingsley walked 3 and put out 11, while his opponent had no walks and put out 5. The fielding was also good on both sides. The box score:

SYRACUSE WIN THREE IN FOUR FROM TORONTO

Stars' Eighth Victory in Last Nine Games—Runs Were Scored on Passes.

SKEETERS BEATEN.

Birds Evened Series—Providence Clouted the Reading Pitchers Like Real Team.

SYRACUSE, June 5.—Syracuse captured its third victory in four stunts against Toronto and its eighth victory in the last nine games here today by the score of 3 to 2. The contest was a pitching bout between Grabowski and Satterfield. Grabowski had one bad inning in the third when he passed two men, filling the bases, but he recovered after the Leafs scored a run and breezed along in effective fashion thereafter. All three Syracuse runs were the result of passs by Satterfield. Score:

KEENE BEATEN BY CURVE LAKE

Indians Won Good Game by Score of 15-8 at Otonabee Village.

HEAVY HITTERS

KEENE, Ont., June 6.—Keene again went down to defeat on Wednesday evening to Curve Lake by the score of 15 to 8.

Both teams hit the ball hard but the Keene players were unlucky in their drives. Although hitting the ball hard most of their blows were right at the Curve Lake fielders, who fielded in excellent style. Jean McCarthy, a youngster, started in the box for Keene, but was yanked in favor of Robertson after walking the first three men.

McCarthy is a coming pitcher and with a little better control, will be a help to Keene in future games. He has a fast breaking curve, but could not control it in his first start, but should do better in future years.

Keene go to Cognawagas on Monday, and should come back with a win, as the team is capable of playing much better baseball than it has in the last two games.

The line-up:

Keene—C. Wilson, cf; C. Robertson, c; H. Renwick, 3b; M. McCarthy ss; A. E. Fletcher, 2b; M. Robertson, 1b, p; J. McCarthy, p, 1b; R. Comrie, rf; W. Fletcher, rf; F. Halle

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER THORON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

At this time, the beginning of another great golf year, is a good season to admonish again that now is the time for all good golfers to resolve anew to shorten the back swing. If golfers could only grasp that a full back swing is short—usually about half of what the ordinary golfer calls a full swing—the game with thousands of players would improve wonderfully. Watch the par players and in nearly every case you will see the woods stopped up short in the back swing, with the arms about shoulder high and close to the body. Near the top of this back swing let the wrists break the club over the top or let the club break the wrists—usually the latter is the best practice—and let the left arm stretch out until it is straight. This back swing will be very short if you have been using a longer one, but if it does just remind yourself thta it is long enough for MacDonald Smith, and also plenty long for Chick Evans and Walter Hagen.

TO-NIGHT IS THE NIGHT

If you do not feel well there is some reason for it. In nine cases out of ten it is due to your liver. So start tonight and take two Tanol Calomel Tablets or take one before meals and a glass of hot water in the morning to wash all poisons from the system. Calomel, as you know, is the only drug known that acts upon the liver and that is why there has been such wonderful results from the use of it in the new form called Tanol Calomel. Just get a few of these sample tablets from F. C. Webber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and you will be surprised how effective they are. m.-w.s.

CUP CHANEGS HANDS AGAIN

Queen Alexandra Cadets Won Denne Cup for Best Drilled Company.

BEST IN DISTRICT

"The Peterboro battalion is the best public school battalion in Eastern Ontario," said Captain Heron, District Cadet Inspector, at the annual inspection of the local Cadets yesterday. Captain Heron complimented the instructors for the splendid success they had had with the boys, and congratulated the boys on their good showing. He announced that it had been difficult to pick out the best company, that he might award the Denne Cup, because, while one would excell in physical drill, another would show excellence in marching, and taken all in all, the six companies were very equal. One minor point had decided the issue. In placing the caps on the ground for physical drill the cadets of E Company, Queen Alexandra School, had laid them down, all turned the same way, and in good alignment. This attention to a detail, was the deciding factor among the companies, so evenly were they matched.

J. A. McKone, chairman of the Board of Education, told the boys, in a short address, that if they worked as hard, and made as much of a success in life as they had in drill, they would be most successful men.

Mrs. Morris congratulated the boys on their showing, saying on behalf of the Home and School Associations of the city: "We are proud of our Cadets."

After the addresses cheers were given for the King, the instructors, Captain Heron and Sergeant-Major Thomas, and then Captain Heron announced that the boys might have a holiday till Monday morning.

CAN MINISTER HOLD TWO JOBS?

British Cabinet is Puzzled Over Standing of Lord Birkenhead.

WRITES FOR PAPERS.

LONDON, June 6. — (United Press.)—Members of the cabinet sub-committee are racking their brains trying to decide the question of allowing any one to function as a journalist and a cabinet minister at the same time.

Lord Birkenhead is the case in point. He gets $25,000 a year as Secretary for India, and supplements that with $60,000 for writing newspaper articles.

He chooses subjects carefully and refrains from writing on anything which gives away official information. It is reported that if the cabinet decides to prohibit the Earl from writing, he will resign.

PRIZE WINNERS.

Last Night's Winning Numbers at Made in Peterborough Fair.

The numbers that drew the prizes on the door tickets last night are as follows:

3266, drawing the electric toaster, donated by The Canadian General Electric Co.

18031, drawing the Big Ben clock, donated by the Western Clock Co.

14001, drawing the 20 lb. pail of lard, donated by the Canadian Packing Co.

And the lucky numbers on the raffle tickets were:

881, drawing the marten choker, donated by Wm. Lech & Sons.

48, drawing the ladies' silk umbrella, donated by Richard Hall & Son.

204, drawing the box of towels, donated by Robt. Fair & Co.

209, drawing the year's subscription to the Examiner, donated by the Peterborough Examiner, Ltd.

318, drawing the pair of silk hose, donated by Dicksons.

The prizes for to-night on the door will be:

1st—1 silk umbrella.

2nd—1 fireplace basket, donated by the Peterborough Lock Co.

3rd—1 set of tire chains.

4th—1 canoe paddle.

On the raffle tickets:

1st—Alcohol stove, donated by the Peterborough Hardware Co.

3rd—Fancy flower pot, donated by J. C. Turnbull Co.

4th—24 lb. bag of flour, donated by the Quaker Oats Co.

LAKEVIEWS WON BY GOOD HITTING

Defeated Hillcrests 8-3 at Dufferin Park in Junior Series.

MANY DOUBLES

The Lakeviews visited Dufferin Park last night and returned across the river with an 8 to 5 victory over Hillcrests, the hope of East City. Heavy hitting by last year's champions, who made 11 hits, 6 of them for two bases, with good pitching by Wood, who turned back 13 and was in difficulty in only one inning, tell the whole story. This ground, which is used by the East City teams through the kindness of Rev. Father Powers, is situated in a natural amphitheatre, but has not yet been made perfectly smooth, and the four errors made were really excusable. The Lakeviews started right in the first inning. Marchen got a life when McDonald missed his bounder. Jack LeBarr moved him to third with a two-bagger over the short left field fence. Marchen scored on a wild pitch, LeBarr taking third, to score on Delahaye's infield out after Collins had been hit. Johnston struck out but Vinette dropped the ball and had to throw to first. Collins, who had reached third, tried to score on the play but Calladine's fast return throw caught him at the plate, in a nice double play.

In the third the winners scored four more. Marchen walked and stole second, LeBarr came through with his second two-bagger to score Marchen. Collins moved him up with an infield out and Delahaye crashed a two-bagger through the fence to score LeBarr. Johnston scored Delahaye with a single and took second on the throw to the plate. Hilliard was walked and then Scully hit to Kearns. With a force play at hand by touching his base, the third baseman threw to first. Johnston was slow in starting from second and it would have been a close play on Calladine's good return throw, but Kearns missed the ball, allowing Johnston to score. McLeish lifted to Holland to end the inning.

In their half of the third the Hillcrests also scored four runs. After Mesley hand fanned. Clancy hit safely over second. Delahaye tipped Guerin's bat with the big glove, allowing him his base. Holland filled the bases with a single and then Vinette shoved a double through the left field fence, scoring two. Kearns struck out, but McDonald also contributed a double to score the two base runners. Ralph fell before Wood's fast ones to end the party.

Each team added one in the fourth. The Lakeview's counted on Marchen's single, LeBarr's third double and Collins single. LeBarr and Collins were left stranded. For the Easterners, Calladine singled and moved up when Mesley was hit. It looked as if they would be stranded when Clancy and Guerin heard the third strikes thud in Delahaye's mitt, but Holland dropped a single over second to score Calladine. Holland make a break for second and was run down by Marchen and McLeish. Mesley took his time running in from third and crossed the plate after the third out.

The winners got the last run of the game in the fifth when Hilliard singled and stole second, to score on Scully's double. After McLeish had struck out, Wood was walked, putting two on with one out. Marchen dropped what should have been a hit into left field, but Scully was slow in going to third and Holland made a good throw, catching him for the force-out.

Every member of the winning team got a hit, and LeBarr got three, all doubles. Clancy with a double and a single and Holland with two singles led the Hillcrests with the willow.

BRAVED DEATH TO "SHOOT" BIG GAME PICTURE

Do you recall the amazement you felt when your parents first took you to the circus and you gazed upon the mammoth beasts known as elephants? Well, if they thrilled you, you are in for more thrills and a great surprise when you see the elephants in the feature production, "Hunting Big Game in Africa," which was photographed by H. A. Snow and Sidney Snow. It comes to the Grand on Friday for an engagement of two days.

Elephants supply the thrill of the picture. They are far removed from the circus or zoo animal that we are all acquainted with. The African elephant, Mr. Snow states, is the most dangerous of all wild animals, and the elephants he found in the bed of an extinct crater, three miles in width, compare with captive animals as the proud racing Shetland thirty feet high, their tusks measuring more than six feet. The ears are great flaps fifteen feet wide. And in addition they know their power and how to make us of it.

A dramatic scene in which a herd of forty of these wild beasts head for the camera, while the natives flee into the tree-tops supplies the climax of the picture. Ten of the great beasts were shot, but Mr. Snow excuses the slaughter by saying that the wild African elephant is a desperate man-killer and deserves instant death wherever met.

For those that are squeemish about killing it is explained that the animals were shot down only when it was desired to obtain rare specimens for the Oakland Museum or in self-defense.

It is interesting to note that this production established a new long record run when it was shown in

For three months from 18,000 to 20,000 persons visited the theatre weekly and only prior contracts for the theatre prevented a longer engagement. It received wonderful criticisms from the metropolitan newspapermen. Unlike other pictures of this type the educational value is the smallest part. No story could ever be written, or be enacted that contained one one-hundreth of the thrills of this production. At the Grand next Friday and Saturday.

AT THE GRAND.

THE ART OF ROSS HAMILTON

What is it that makes Ross Hamilton the world's greatest impersonator of the fairest of the fair sex? That he is the greatest has been conceded by every one of the sixteen dramatic critics of New York; the leading theatrical writers of London; every man in the Canadion armies overseas and the nine-tenths of the population of Canada who have seen The Dumbells at one time or another.

Hamilton, off stage, is the last man in the whole Dumbells Company that one would single out as the famous "Marjorie," even after having seen his performance and with some ideas of his features. He stands well over six feet tall, has broad shoulders and wears a number nine boot. He plays hockey like a professional, rides like a cowboy, shoots with the best of them, whether it be the traps, target or out in the woods where the live targets are found.

Being the kind of a he-man that he is, it must be his art, rather than any natural aptitude, that has placed him at the head of his particular line of endeavour.

The first evidence that proves him an artist is his make-up. He gets to the theatre a full half-hour ahead of any other member of the company, and after first shaving before every performance, he puts on a make-up that makes the average flapper of today look like a totem pole in the bright sun. Even the dowagers, who spend hours in prolonging and enhancing their youthful beauty, seldom get the artistic results that Hamilton achives nightly and twice on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

That the type of women with whom he has associated and from whom he gained his knowledge of their innermost artifices, must have been both well-born and beautiful goes without saying. It is the infinite refinement the almost old-world gentleness and courtesy of his characterizations that gives them their delicate charm.

In the newest and best of the Dumbells revue. "Oh, Yes!" which comes to the Grand theatre for Monday and Tuesday, June 8, 9, Hamiton gives three new and delightful characterizations in his songs, "I Love Them All," "Lips I Have Kissed," and "Sunrise and You."

"Age cannot wither nor custom stale his infinite variety" might have been written of Ross Mamilton and his beloved creation, "Marjorie."

AT THE ROYAL

AGNES AYRES AND PAT O'MALLEY IN MATRIMONIAL COMEDY BY SOPHIA KERR, ROYAL MONDAY.

"I now pronounce you man and wife!"

—and the curtain is rung up on the drama, comedy or tragedy, as the case may be, of newly-married life.

In "Wordly Goods," at the Royal Monday, it's a combiantion of the first two almost resulting in the last. In other words, "Worldly Goods," starring Agnes Ayres, is a comedy-drama of matrimony, the screen version of the novel by Sophie Kerr which opens at the Royal next week, with a happy ending, even though the final scene is in the divorce court.

Pat O'Malley has the leading man's role opposite the star in the production, and Victor Varconi and Edythe Chapman are also well cast.

The story has to do with money as a factor in married life. It is said that two can live as cheaply as one. "Did you ever try it?" asks Fred Hopper (Pat O'Malley), if not in just so many words. His wife is afflicted, as Hopper sees it, with the usual femnine longing for the niceties of life—worldly goods, and Fred isn't able to supply them. So Eleanor goes out to earn enough money to help him—and that almost finishes their marital bliss.

Wage-earning and home-making don't mix, and "Wordly Goods" shows what happens when a young wife attempts to do both— and shows it in just about the most pleasing and novel manner you could hope for.

Here's one picture you shouldn't miss, whether married, unmarried or undecided. It's bound to please!

"COUNTRY STORE NITE" MONDAY AT ROYAL

Monday night will again have the popular "County Store Nite" on the programme at the Royal. New prizes and surprises. Every prize is worth while, and worth more than the admission price.

AT THE CAPITOL

"SAUCY SOUBRETTE" IS NORMA'S NEW ROLE.

Screen Star to Be Here Monday in Latest Picture, "The Lady."

"The Lady," Norma Talmadge's latest photoplay, reveals her in a new guise — that of a pert, pretty and vivacious soubrette of a musical show of the Gibson Girl period.

Norma wears the typical soubrette costume, short fluffy skirts, tights, bare back a la Kitty Gordon and a huge feather hat.

Like so many soubrettes of old, she struts saucily across the stage, does a buck and wing, jauntily sings a song as she tosses flowers to the Johnnies in the first row and takes her exit "cartwheel" fashion into the wings.

It's a new Norma the world will see in "The Lady," a Norma who plumbs the heights and the depths of human happiness and despair.

From being the toast of the theatrical world, Norma plunges from the heights of gay Monte Carlo society into the toughest dives in Europe, becomes a half-demented, bedraggled flower "girl" in the streets of London after she has lost both husband and baby and finally ends as the head of a cafe just back of the world war front, where the soldiers of all nations call her "the little mother of all the world."

"The Lady" is a First National attraction produced by Joseph M. Schenck. It was directed by Frank Borzage from Frances Marion's story.

The picture will be shown at the Capitol Theatre Monday.

NO CALL MADE BY ST. PAUL'S

Contemplated Summons to Rev. W. Allan Prevented By Circumstances.

FRIDAY SERVICE.

The preparatory service of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was held last night with Rev. G. I. Craw of Springville, the moderator during the vacancy in the pulpit, taking the service.

There was a fine congregation and an interesting discourse was heard.

The umber of communicants joining at this time was 109 by certificate, 9 by profession of faith, and many more had joined but for the fact that they had not yet received certificates from their respective churches.

Congregational Meeting

At the close of the preparatory service Rev. Mr. Craw called the congregation to order and read from the Blue Book the rules governing a congregation regarding the calling of a minister. W. A. Logan was secretary.

A motion was moved and seconded after some discussion: That this meeting do not proceed with a call at this time. The motion was carried unanimously, after explanation had been made why a call to Rev. William Allan, who conducted the recent anniversary and special services in St. Paul's Church, could not be submitted until his transfer from the United States to the Canadian Presbyterian Assembly had been ratified.

A further motion, by James Connel and W. H. Hill, "that the matter of seeking a stated supply by Rev. Mr. Allan, if possible, for one year, be left in the hands of the Court of Session," was carried.

NEED VACUUM CLEANER.

WINDSOR-ON-THAMES, June 6.—(Associated Press).—Of all the spring cleaning jobs in the houses of royalty, that at Windsor Castle is the most difficult because of a two-ton carpet which covers the floor of the Waterloo Chamber, and which has to be taken outdoors and beaten by hand.

The Waterloo Chamber is used as the royal dining-room during Ascot week, when King George and Queen Mary make Windsor their headquarters. A force of about 60 men is required to carry the massive carpet down stairs to the lawns. It is 80 feet long and 40 feet wide and was woven in India by the prisoners of Agra, who were engaged on the task seven years.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Now that the summer seems to have finaliy found the right station to get off at, and is bathing Peterboro in 90 degrees-in-the-shade perspiration, it seems time Summer Pestimes. to deliver a little dissertation on "Summer Pestimes." There having been several books written on the subject of "How to Spend your Summer Though Broke," and "Where, What and Who to do on your Summer Vacation," we shall not show up the writers by covering the same ground. Independent, if anything. That's us all over.

CANOE TILTING: This is a form of aquatic imbecility popular with persons who fall off high buildings in their infancy and who are otherwise mentally queer. As restful as shooting the chute at the Peterboro dam.

HIKING: There is a real jolly thought behind this pastime. You are supposed to wear leggings and sport shirts and go hatless and carry a tool box on your back. If you get home without being ambushed by squirrels you win the game.

CROSS-COUNTRY WALKING: This is Boy Scout hiking with collegiate complications, corns and a purpose. You move from one given point to another, bearing letters from from the Mayor, Chief of Police and M.O.H. These are in case a scout from the big Cobourg building finds you. Outside of this there are few grave perils. You are fully protected by the game laws administered in this district by Cap. Carson, and there is a national tendency to be kind to all dumb and strange looking animals.

PICNICKING: This is a popular form of outdoor nonsense handed down by the amalgamated order of hoboes. The main purpose is to see how many ants can be accumulated on (1) Swiss cheese sandwich; (2) bananas, and (3) stuffed tomatoes, between the hours of 9 a.m., and the hour rain falls, which is usually about 10 minutes before Aunt Katy is ready to pass the paste board salad forks.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBING: This is nothing more or less than a passing fad and you'll soon get over it. Good practice may be obtained at the Lift Lock.

TOBOGGANING: Ordinarily this is a sport reserved solely for the east end of Hunter street bridge (the name is enough to make us shudder) in winter. It remained for teams like Belleville to show what an exact science it can be made from one summer to another.

And that's that!

Just in case you didn't notice it, the temperature yesterday at 4 o'clock was 90 in the shade. Jot that down in your diary for February, 1926.

* * *

There have been complaints of the promiscuous trimming of trees in Peterboro. The happy individuals, who do the cutting refer Bobbing Trees. to it as "pruning," but we are informed upon good authority that there is more to pruning than merely taking the shears or a knife and cutting wherever your eye hapens to see a branch sticking out. In fact, pruning trees is a science.

All one has to do to learn the foolishness of cutting here, there and everywhere is to take a walk along some of the streets and observe the straggly, half-dead trees that adorn them. And if the tree is not actually harmed by the indifferent trimming, its symmetry is lost.

It would be a good thing for Peterboro if the bylaw requiring all tree-trimming to be done under supervision of capable men from the City Engineers office, were enforced.

Yesterday we talked about straw hats, which makes us think to-day of bottles. The idea of bottles started at the dawn of civilization. Then they were in the form of goat-skin containers, but as civilization progressed a more durable and sanitary container became desirable. It is not known just when glass blowing started. Pieces of glass have been found however which are said to have been made 2000 years before Christ. The first use of glass containers was as fancy bottles and it is still used extensively for that purpose. It is claimed that when the first glass containers were produced they were looked upon with suspicion as being made with black magic. Bottles are still looked upon with suspicion as being the abode of spirits.

DEGREE GIVEN KNOX ORGANIST

Degree of Mus. Bac. Conferred on Charles Peaker of Peterborough.

HONOR STANDING.

Charles Peaker, brilliant organist of Knox Presbyterian Church, returned yesterday from Toronto, where he received the degree of Mus. Bac. on Thursday evening.

In his course Mr. Peaker took honors in counterpoint, double counterpoint, canon and fugue, harmony, orchestration, history, acoustics improvization, transposition at sight, and score reading.

As his thesis he set the 84th Psalm for choir and orchestra, the movement being in the form of a five-part chorus, a recitative and aria for soprano solo, an unaccompanied quartette and a four-part fugue for chorus.

The examiners were Doctors Healey Willan, Albert Ham, Herbert Fricker and Ferdinand Moure.

After the choir practice last night the choir had a social evening, refreshments being served by the social committee. Mr. Pitchford presided, and with Mr. McCannan and Mr. M. Park, properly expressed the choir's pride in the organist's distinction, and extended congratulations. Rev. M. C. Mackinnon, Mrs. Mackinnon and Mr. Peaker gave brief addresses. A happy social hour was spent.

WEDDING BELLS.

FORESTELL—O'CONNOR.

MARMORA, June 6. — Marmora was quite astir on Tuesday, June 2, when the wedding took place at the Sacred Heart Church of Mr. George Forestell to Miss Elizabeth Veronica O'Connor, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard O'Connor. Father Farrell was the officiating priest. The bride was given away by her father and looked charming in her dress of ivory canton crepe with trimmings of pearls and Limerick lace. She wore a veil with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of pink ophelia roses and lily of the valley. Miss Anna O'Connor, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Hilda O'Connor, niece of the bride, made a very dainty little flower girl. Mr. Charles Forestell of Niagara Falls was best man. Solos were rendered by Miss Genevieve Shannon, Mr. Harry Dunlay and Mrs. H. A. McNally. Miss Marion Shannon was organist.

A noon hour dinner was served to some forty guests. There were many costly and beautiful presents. The happy couple later left for points west by motor. On their return they will reside on Madoc Street. The bride having been a member of the church choir, was presented by the choir with a handsome jade glass buffet set. The bridegroom being a member of the Trustee Board of the Continuation school, received on the previous Friday, a handsome chair from the teachers and pupils.

ARE YOU FAT?

Eat Lettuce—Beginning of Meal is Best Time to

Here are some simple facts worth remembering:

Vinegar renders beets indigestible. Use lemon juice instead.

In nutritive value the parsnip excels all other root vegetables. It is best prepared by stewing or steaming.

Carrots, turnips and parsnips are chiefly valuable for their fresh juices, which contain mineral salts.

Sweet apples will leave the stomach in one and one-half hours after they are eaten; sour apples in two hours.

Colds are caught at the dining table more often than from draughts.

Baked potatoes leave the stomach three hours after they are eaten; mashed potatoes in two hours.

Children should be trained early to make use of sweet fruits instead of cane sugar.

Lettuce furnishes valuable salts and vitamines. It is especially effective in the diet of those who are fat.

Such persons should eat large quantities of lettuce at the beginning of every meal. As dressing use lemon juice only.

Wrong eating and wrong drinking aggravate ill-temper, while correct eating and correct drinking facilitate improvement in one's disposition.

RECEIVED DEGREE.

Mr. Charles Peaker, Organist of Knox Church, is Bachelor of Music.

FORTUNE TELLERS DO BIG BUSINESS

Good Attendance at Made-in-Peterborough Fair—Many Attractions.

There was a very good attendance at the Made-in-Peterboro Fair at the Armories last evening, with a crowd that disregarded the heat and patronized the various attractions with enthusiasm. The refreshment booths and the dance hall did good business all evening. A centre that has been doing a rushing trade all through the week is the fortune-telling booth maintained by the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League. Starting with six fortune-tellers, the ladies progressed to a round dozen in numbers and said they could have found patrons for many more assistants. Two small rooms have been opened as annexes for the busy fortune-tellers, whose former number was augmented last evening by the presence of Mrs. K. S. Wightman and Miss Alexandra Howson.

This attraction, as well as other recreation sections of the Fair will be continued up until closing time this evening.

In the stage room, the silhouettes presented by the Women's Art Association on the previous evening were repeated last night, and an added attraction was the one-act comedy, "The Right Word," written by Miss K. L. McCarthy, of The Examiner staff, and produced under the able direction of Mr. John J. Southern whose excellent coaching of the players resulted in the production of a snappy little play. Those taking part in the comedy, whose theme centres about a cross-word puzzle entanglement, were the Misses Mathilde Masson, Jessie Hodgson, and Alma Goselin, Messrs. W. E. McWilliams, James Dixon and Gordon Cornish. Miss Masson sang very prettily as an opening number, "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise," and Miss Hodgson made a real hit with a solo dance, incorporated into the action of the play, receiving much applause for the Irish step which she gave while under the presumable influence of a hypnotic spell.

In the music stand, the orchestra played several selections under the direction of Professor Gliddon.

The Cafe Chantant programme consisted of instrumental selections by a three-piece orchestra, composed of piano and two violins, played respectively by Miss Marjorie Turner and Miss K. Taylor and Billy Gaskin; songs by Miss Mathilde Masson and Miss Mackey, with accompaniment by the Misses Margaret Widdess and Alma Blanchard; instrumental duets by the Misses Alma Blanchard and Musa Cox, Helen and Mildred Morphet; a Spanish dance by Miss Jessie Hodgson, in costume, with accompaniment by Mrs. F. Hodgson; and a Spanish dance by a quartette of girls from the Y.W.C.A., pupils of Miss C. Littlefield; the Misses Myrtle and Elda Bradley, Lily Gregory and Florence Waudby. Miss Madeline Willis acted as accompanist for this dance.

The afternoon of bridge yesterday was conducted by the 57th Regimental Chapter, I.O.D.E. Owing to the extremely high temperature of the afternoon, only a few tables of bridge were played. Prizes were won by Mrs. T. W. H. Young and Mrs. J. H. Eastwood (consolation). Tea was served by the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. Ladies who acted as general convenors were Mrs. T. W. H. Young and Mrs. C. E. Jamieson.

MARKET LISTLESS IN SUMMER HEAT

Eggs 27 and 28 Cents; Butter 35 Cents; Bananas 20 Cents.

Habitues of the farmers' market sweltered in the sun this morning. Upstairs, the long hall was fairly cool, with plenty of air from opened windows. In the open section, the auctioneers had listless audiences for their sales, one man failing absolutely to arouse the enthusiasm of his crowd over the merits of a fine, warm woollen mattress. Over against the curb, a loquacious gentleman expatiating on the causes of various internal ulcers and cancerous conditions held his hearers in the apprehensive spell that always seems to attend the recital of disorders of the innards. With perspiring fluency, another orator detailed he advantages of possessing the gems "which look like a diamond, wear like a diamond and only differ from a diamond in price."

Upstairs, the good qualities of an ingenious little package that contained a parer, a slicer and a garnisher were demonstrated on cabbages and oranges by their perspiring vendor.

The ice cream cone man parked his light vehicle in the middle of the open market and dispensed frozen wares from within.

Eggs were selling at 27 and 28 cents a dozen this morning, butter at a general price of 35 cents a pound, and chickens at 25 and 28 cents. Big rhubarb leaves wrapped the butter prints, and there was ice in the baskets.

Bouquets of garden flowers were on the tables this morning; iris and snowballs, pansies and odd white garden narcissus at a half dozen for fifteen cents.

Potatoes were 60 cents a bag this morning, asparagus two bunches for a quarter, and little pigs were $8 apiece. One dealer had bananas at 20 cents a dozen.

Her ever-patient, worn-out frame
Has found sweet rest at last.
The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still.
But death has left a vacant place
The world can never fill.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

There are very few who have received the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ, Who is the image of God; yet Christ is "the true light," which lighteth every man who cometh into the world. John 1. 9. This shows that the due time for the world in general to come to a knowledge of the truth is not now but in the age to come; then after receiving the light and knowledge necessary, each will severally be responsible. Ezek. 18. 1 to 32. The work of Christ is not only releasing all mankind from "death," the penalty for sin, but giving them opportunity of being saved from wrong doing, and being made fit to obtain everlasting life. Those who continue to preach "Satan's lie," thou shalt not surely die, are to a great extent responsible for the darkness of error, that pervades in the minds of men to-day. Darkness now prevails, but joy cometh in the morning of the glad day of judgment. Error of belief, dogma, and creed will then be a thing of the past.—M. T. Butcher. 1d-133-236

The Presbyterian Church Assembly

By R. E. KNOWLES

(SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER)

The greatest event of this Assembly — of all past Assemblies— must ,by the irony of art, command the smallest space. After 21 years of struggle the thing is done. The final vote has come, the great controversy is at an end.

TORONTO, June 8.—Saturday was visiting day at the Assembly. Age-long custom has rendered this making and return of ecclesiastical calls an established feature, and one mutually pleasurable. Each church represented seems to have sent of its best, the delegations composed almost exclusively of deans, provosts, chancellors. The new Chancellor of McMaster, Dr. Widden, maintained his high reputation as a graceful and effective speaker, with charm of personality acknowledged by all.

The first spokesman for the Anglican Church, the calm but intense Provost Seager, reminds one in many ways of our own once familiar Herridge, both in personal make-up and in style of delivery. The Provost's speech was a model of caution, no word escaping his lips to betray the slightest knowledge on his part that the Assembly stood at the portal of one of the most portentious events in the history of the Christian Church. This was regretted rather generally, since, after all, while the non-concurrents are entitled as a yet unincorporate body to all the respect they deserve, the Presbyterian Church in Canada is still the Presbyterian Church in Canada, her General Assembly still the only General Assembly known to the nation and its findings still the final policy of the entire Church. It was generally affirmed yesterday that the Anglican Synod had, tacitly or explicitly, forbidden reference in its approach to the Assembly to the only question anybody thinks about, when Canadian Presbyteriasmism is mentioned, and on the ground that the protesting minority would also merit consideration. This takes one's thoughts back to 1861 and the keen struggle of that day over British recognition of the belligerents in the confederate states of the American Union, a recognition which Britain finally and very properly refused. It would appear that the Synod was under the impression that there are two Presbyterian Churches in this land. But the speech of the strong and earnest Provost, as the speeches of our Anglican brethren always are, was characterized by all good taste and delicacy of expression, even if we did miss "De Rousements" as the old negro preacher was wont to define the emotonalities of public speech. If the Synod had really fettered its delegates in advance, however, Dean Falconbridge proved sublimely indifferent to his bonds; for he spoke of nothing else but Union, its opponents and proponents, acknowledging the merits of both alike, and dealing at length with the judicial duties entrusted to him by the Government; duties which all agree will be faithfully and impartially performed.

Gripped the Assembly.

The honors of the day were undoubtedly to Chancellor Bowles. It was fine to see him toss his audience on his horns. Informal, even funny, in beginning, there was great charm in the gradual awakening of his passion and the stealthy grip which tightened on his audience till he had every man in the custody of a great soul and an original mind. His pen-picture of that sort of "haystack prayer meeting" when he and another clerical supernumerary of the Presbyterian stripe, sickening at the farce of the predatory piety of their little Ontario village churches, resolved that one or the other must break the wretched deadlock, was powerful in the extreme. It brought flashing to my mind the cry of the blue-jeaned Lincoln when he first saw slaves sold on the block; "by the living God, if I ever get a chance to hit that thing I'll hit it hard." By the way, when the Chancellor convulsed the house with his solemn assurance that it was just the same distance from Methodism to Presbyterianism as it was from Presbyterianism to Methodism, he might have quoted the dictum of the same great child of nature who, when once asked how long a man's legs should be, replied "just long enough to reach from his body to the ground."

"Greatest Movement."

The afternoon sederunt was given over to settling accounts with the brethren whose outstanding zeal and labors had helped toward the consummation of what the always apt Ralph Connor characterized as "the greatest movement in the Christian Church since the Reformation," in a fine speech that voiced the Assembly's appraisal of Dr. George Pidgeon's labors. Kilpatrick of Ottawa, distinguished by deliberate renunciation of our "richest" congregation, seconded. Pringle of the Yukon, a witness of the Union solemnities of 1875, an auditor, too, of the then abounding prophecies, just as now of future disaster that seems to be somewhat behind schedule time, supported the motion in a rather miscellaneous speech whose world-wide scope the Assembly forgave because of visions of Yukon snows and blizzards that couldn't quell the fiery spirit of this great apostle of the north. Rev. J. R. MacLeod, of three Rivers, a surviving commissioner to the Church's first conclave of fifty years ago, profoundly moved the Assembly by a speech of real eloquence, considered from the standpoint of the elemental. There is no orator like the heart.

Then came W. J. Clark with a universal eulogy of Pidgeon's brother, Leslie, at whose christening it would seem the fairy godmothers were tippy, every one. Equestrian, motorist (he can devote himself to the pursuit of happiness at a pace of fifty miles an hour), golfist, Rotarian, preacher, promoter, Fortune has come to him with both hands full. By the way, when he came to speak on the Fraser case, he kept both of his in his pockets for the first half of his speech; finally withdrawn, they proved full of thunderbolts, hurled with deadly aim.

"Harry" Edmison, unlike the pushful Roosevelt of whom it was said that he could make more suds and do less washing than any other living man, has by an almost underground passage worked his way to a very separate place in the affections of the church, here is no man in the official dominion of the church who has made as much headway, and done as little elbowing as the altogether authentic Edmison. A well deserved expression of gratitude was also tendered Mr. R J Wilson for his abundant and successful labors. It was a delight to see in the chair, for these pleasant amenities, the familiar form of Professor A. B. Baird, the greatest man in the church, I have for years contended, if considered compositely, that is to say is dissembled, his various gifts and powers considered seriatim. He has everything, except perhaps mystic fire, and his wealth of delicate expression was never better illustrated than when yesterday he turned its verbal kaleidoscope this way and that in the discharge of his assorted duties.

Principal Removed.

One of the most distressing episodes in the history of the church was the removal on Saturday afternoon of Principal D. J. Fraser, from his post in the College of Montreal.

Few men are held in higher esteem than this gentleman and scholar. It must be a matter of grief to all his friends that the only serious attempt at his defence was at the hands of Dr. Banks Nelson of Hamilton, whose glittering blade yesterday once more flashed in the light of battle. It is wonderful how youthful and unworn, despite the years of constant conflict, this genial Irishman still appears. Throughout the entire struggle Dr. Nelson's health and vigour have been preserved, for which all friends of the union cause may well thank God.

The painfulness of this case is intensified by the fact that Dr. Thomas Eakin, scholar, orator,leader, was also relieved of his charge.

The mystery of which a consoling solution will yet be forthcoming, is as to why, when definitely approached on the matter, Principal Fraser, whose delicate susceptibilities and sensitive honors are known to all, as definitely declined to relinquish his position as head of one of the colleges under the control of a church toward whose policy is own opposition is fixed and unalterable.

The standing mystery of the Assembly to-day is thus voiced: "Why did Fraser not resign?"

Impulse Denied.

The finest deliverance on this perplexing matter was from the lips of Dr. L. Pidgeon, who openly admitted that never more than now had he been compelled to sacrifice his inclination to his conscience and his judgment—an adjustment, by the way, which is characteristic of the great bulk of the ministers who stand for union. Had impulse and "feeling" had their way, defiant of judgment and conscience and duty, the Unionists of the General Assembly would have been unable to muster a corporal's guard.

The greatest event of this Assembly, of all past Assemblies, must, by the irony of art, command the smallest space. After 21 years of ceaseless struggle, unhasting, unresting, the thing is done. The final vote has come; the great controversy is at an end. Perhaps the words are unappropriate, but yet their martial fitness bids me set them down as a southern soldier wrote them:

"The neighing troop, the flashing blade,
The bugles' stirring blast
The charge the dreadful cannonade
The shout and din are past.

ROTARIANS TO HOLD CARNIVAL ON JULY 16TH

Big Outdoor Community Event Expected to be Better Than Last Year.

PARADE LIKELY.

Peder Westbye Speaker at To-day's Shirt-Sleeve Luncheon.

The next big community event is to be the annual Rotary carnival, the date of which was announced by President John H. Seels at to-day's luncheon as Thursday, July 16th, with an afternoon and evening programme. President Seels at the same time suggested a big parade to open the event, and expressed his confidence in the merchants and manufacturers assisting with this feature. A committee composed of Rotarians Andrew Brown and Jack Gillespie was appointed to take charge of the parade arrangements.

In deference to the hot wave, the Rotarians lunched in their shirt sleeves to-day.

The speaker was Rotarian Peder Westbye, who gave a most interesting talk on personal relations in industry. His comparison of the conditions of the working man in Europe with those under which his American brother existed was full of interest. Rotarian Westbye said that twenty years ago, when a resident of Europe himself, he had investigated the question in England, France, Germany, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, and had found that the average mechanic, after working 30 or 35 years, had little to show for his exertions. He rarely owned his own house, and his children were denied the chance to be anything but workers themselves. On the other hand, after coming to America he had conducted a similar inquiry, and had discovered that the majority of the same class of workers he had investigated in Europe owned property and had children who were engaged in some profession or another.

Rotarian Westbye also stressed the difference in class relationship on this continent as compared with Europe.

CAR OVERTURNS; ONE MAN KILLED

Seven Others Injured in a Crash Near Long Branch Yesterday.

ONE SERIOUS.

TORONTO, June 8 (Canadian Press).—Cyril Bouey, aged 20 years, of Toronto, was instantly killed; Miss Marion Hopcroft suffered serious head injuries and six other passengers in an auto driven by Bouey sustained minor hurts as a result of the car grazing another auto near Long Branch yesterday. The other car was driven by Thomas Richardson.

It was not a crash, but a glancing blow, and the Bouey car swerved across the road about 85 feet, swept over a three-foot ditch, went 20 feet or more and struck a hydro pole, breaking it in two, then reeled on another 15 feet and overturned, pinning all eight occupants in the wreckage.

Six of the victims were able to go home after receiving medical treatment.

Zulu War Dance and Indaba Most Startling Event In All the Varied Experience of Prince of Wales

ESHOWE, Zululand, June 8.—Never in his varied experience has the Prince of Wales witnesse' such an extraordinary spectable as presented for his delectation Saturday. For days past Zulu warriors have been streaming hither from distant parts in seemingly endless lines for the greatest indaba and war dance in honor of the son of their king. The warriors were accompanied by many of their women folk to spur the dancers to excel themselves.

When the Prince's party took their seats on the parade ground the great gathering of varrior braves stretched as far as the eye could see, while 5,000 picked warriors of the finest physical proportioned lithe and naked except for sporrans of leopard skin, were drawn up in the foreground for half a mile—six men deep to perform the dance.

They formed a striking picture with enormous spreading headdresses of black feathers measuring a yard across. With strange gyrations and contortions, the dancers worked themselves into a complete frenzy, accompanied by terrifying yells and dirge-like singing of the women. The dance culminated in the advance of the whole line, with shields aloft covering the faces of the warriors who in an apparently open table mass rushed to within a yard of where the royal party sat.

SUNDAY BAND CONCERTS MAY BE GIVEN AT NICHOLLS OVAL FOR PLEASURE OF CITIZENS

Plan Will Be Brought Before the Trust By John Crane.

GOOD LOCATION.

Not to Cross Council, But to Correct a Palpable Error.

In view of the interest evinced by Peterboro citizens regarding the fate of the popular band concerts, considerable thought has been expended on the problem which may possibly result in providing a suitable solution. Slightly north-east of the more densely populated portion of the city lies Nichols Oval, one of the most beautiful parks in the precincts. Elevated, tree shaded and cool, spacious, and carpeted with greenery, this site would be most excellent for the presentation of Sunday concerts which have been so well attended in pre-blue law years. Should it be possible to secure this park for that purpose, true music-lovers would find a place of peace wherein to develop neglected aesthetic natures.

There is nothing more grand than music, nothing so soul-inspiring, nothing which will so effectively erase the thought of week-day drudgery—nothing which so elevates the plane of civilization. Music is a people's passion, a revelation of first instincts.

Music was incorporated with the earth and since its inception trees, birds and rivers have been singing, broadcasting, creating harmony.

And now that a body of "public servants" wills to refute and deprive a people of its birthright, the people are up in arms.

Concrete Plan.

Mr. John Crane, a member of the Nicholls Trust, is in favor of the move to have Sunday band concerts at the Oval, and stated to The Examiner to-day that he would bring the matter before the Board which administers for the Nicholls institutions.

While Mr. Crane disapproves of crossing the Council, he admits that when a representative body makes such a palpable error it would be justifiable to correct the offence by going beyond the jurisdiction of the city fathers and instituting the feature of concerts on property over which they have no control. Mr. Crane's object would not be that of defiance but merely that of any right-minded public-spirited citizen who has more than selfish interest at heart.

J. H. Burnham is also greatly in favor of the movement, and is willing to do everything possible to accomplish the fact of public band concerts on Sunday evenings throughout the summer months.

Plan Trip To Pole In 1927 Using Dirigible Airship

BERLIN, June 8.—Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, Arctic explorer and diplomat, and Commander Walter Bruns, German aeronautic authority, have evolved a plan to explore the North Pole region with a dirigible in 1927. The airship will have a capacity of 150,000 cubic metres, capable of carrying a party of fifty with provisions for ninety days. The plans call for a trip from Amsterdam to Yokohama by way of the Pole in five and a half days.

TRAIN WRECKS A BALLOON IN BENNETT RACE

British Entry Crashed To Tracks When Freight Caught Rope.

OTHERS LANDED.

Start Made Yestreday With Eighteen Balloons Entered —Reach France.

BRUSSELS, June 8 (Canadian Press).—The British balloon Elsie, participant in the Gordon Bennett Cup race was destroyed in landing near Boulogne, France, today when its guide rope caupt on a moving freight train. The balloon was crashed to the track slightly injuring Captain Dougall, a passenger. Lieut.-Col. Johnstone, pilot, was unhurt.

Word received here was to the effect that S-34, United States entrant, had also landed early this morning near Treport, France. Other cup entrants which are reported as having landed in France safely are: Ciampino, Italian; Marco, French; Duro, Spanish and an unnamed balloon piloted by a Spanish officer, Peneranda.

FIND PROFESSOR WITH FACE AND THROAT GASHED

Louisiana University Teacher Died Shortly After Being Found.

DONE WITH AXE

Weapon Lay Nearby—Victim's Valuables Undisturbed—Grudge Killing.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 8.—Oscar B. Turner, professor in agronomy at Louisana State University Satuday, was found lying at the foot of a flight of stairs in the university agronomy building with his throat and face gashed into unrecognizability, evidently with a small fire axe, which was found nearby. A blood-stained hand print on the handle was the only clue.

Professor Turner died shortly afterward without regaining consciousness.

The professor's face was hacked open from the forehead to the chin, with numerous gashes about the throat and chest. He was found by R. G. Markham, a senior agricultural student, who had been serving as an assistant instructor of Professor Turner.

Mr. Markham said that papers which were to be used in coming examinations had been missed from the agronomy building, and that he and Prof. Turner were to have instituted an inquiry on the missing papers this morning.

The victim's purse and contents were found intact on the body, and police believe the assailant was a student who bore a grudge against the professor.

Souvenirs Presented To University By Lipton

NEW YORK, June 8.—Sir Harry Armstrong, British Consul General, representing Sir Thomas Lipton, presented New York University with the mast of the yacht, Shamrock IV. A 12-inch mortar used by Farragut's fleet in the Civil War was presented by Admiral Plunkett as a memorial to the New York University men who died in the war.

Admiral Plunkett lauded the British rule of the waves, and attributed the avoidance of past wars to it. "Future peace," he said, 'lies in the adoption of a standard of eternal vigilance."

Bacteria and Poison Gas Are Forbidden in Warfare

GENEVA, June 8. (Canadian Press).—The use of bacteria in warfare was to-day outlawed by the International Arms Conference. An amendment offered by Poland was adopted placing bacteria with poison gas on the list of forbidden war methods.

The conference protocol has been returned to the committee for re-drafting in order to include bacteria and, pending the return of the committee's report, the general conference is indefinitely adjourned.

OTONABEE MAN WAS INJURED IN CAR CRASH ON SATURDAY

Willen Hutchinson Seriously Cut By Glass From Door.

ON AYLMER STREET.

Both Cars Damaged—Injured Man Is In Nicholls Hospital.

Willen Hutchinson, of Otonabee Township, is in Nichols Hospital, as the result of an automobile collision on Aylmer Street, just north of Wolfe Street, at 10.15 Saturday night. A coupe, No. 228-340, driven by G. H. Brown, 265 Sherbrooke Street, with Hutchinson as a passenger, and a touring car driven by Elmer Liddell, both sustained severe damages.

According to a witness, Garfield Hawkins, of Reaboro, the car driven by Liddell was turning around on Aylmer Street, when the car driven by Brown went to pass him, and Liddell's car struck the side of the coupe. The witness told the police that the touring car had been facing north on the east side of Aylmer and swung over to the west side in turning.

Apparently thinking that Liddell was turning into a laneway, Brown went to pass on the east side, but Liddell's car turned out again and struck the coupe about the middle of the right side.

Brown said that he had not seen Liddell's car until it turned west across Aylmer Street. He was going south about 15 miles an hour and, thinking Liddell intended to stop or enter a lane, he started past on the east side and was struck when the car swung out.

Liddell told the police that he was proceeding north on Aylmer and swung over to avoid Brown's car, which was coming south, but did not go far enough.

The front portion of the touring car was badly damaged, and it was necessary for a service truck with a derrick to lift up the front wheels and tow the car to the garage. There was no damage done to the front of the coupe, but the right side was stove in and a portion of the window, which was lowered, was driven through the side of the seat into Hutchinson' side. The right running board and fenders were badly damaged.

A piece of glass about 5 inches long pierced Hutchison's side, just below the ribs. Dr. Loudon was called and had the injured man removed to Nichols Hospital in Belleghem's ambulance. He was reported to-day to be making good progress toward recovery.

HEAT WAVE TOOK 400 LIVES DURING SPELL IN THE EAST BUT ENDS ITS TERROR TO-DAY

Boy Adrift On Lake In a Life Preserver

PORT HURON, Mich., June 8 (Canadian Press). — Somewhere on Lake Huron, James McCoy, a 13-year-old lad of Harbor Beach, has been drifting since Sunday afternoon when he was put into a life preserver and thrown from a sinking rowboat by his father, John McCoy. McCoy and two other children were rescued by a harbor beach coast guard, but "Jimmie" had not drifted ashore as his father expected.

Report of the boy's plight has been telephoned to the wireless station at Point Edward, Ontario, and messages have been wired to ships that might pass in the vicinity.

CRUSH RISING IN NORTHERN CHILE

Thirty Rebels, Including Leader, Were Killed by the Soldiers.

400 PRISONERS

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 8.—The uprising in nthe northern provinces has been crushed by the Chilean troops, an official communique issued yesterday announces.

"Owing to the resistance of subversives," the communique adds, "thirty of them were killed and a number wounded. The leader of the revolt is among the dead.

"Four hundred prisoners were taken to Iquique, capital of the province of Tarapaca. The troops sustained no casualties.

"A considerable quantity of exposives, including 75 cases of dynamite, was captured. Communist agitators will be severely punished."

BROTHER USMAR GOES ON TRIAL

"Horrible," Says Judge, of Treatment Given Boy in Orphanage.

FRENCH JURY.

MONTREAL, June 8 Canadian Press. — Brother Usmar, charged with manslaughter in connection with the fatal scalding at Huberdeau Orphanage, of sever year o' Hector Galarneau, an inmate, appeared for trial this morning in the court of King's Bench.

Some time was occupied with the choosing of a French speaking jury, after which the hearing of the testimony was started. Most of the witnesses are young inmates of the Home.

"Horrible!" was Mr. Justice Wilson's comment when Hector's elder brother Phillipe told the court of the dead boy's intestinal weakness and of the beatings he received because of it. "I can easily understand the condition of that boy in school, and I'm sure the jury can also," continued the judge.

Phillipe broke down and wept when he related how Hector had been whipped by Brother Usmar and by his own playmates.

The jury was empanelled within 15 minutes of the opening of the court.

In private life Brother Usmar's name was J .T. De Vleeschower.

The Crown announced, prior to the hearing of witnesses, that it would try to show that Hector Galarneau was scalded to death by the accused placing him in a bath of boiling water because he had soiled his clothes.

Twenty-seven thousand gallons of water are contained in one inch of rainfall over a acre of ground.

Death Toll Yesterday Alone Was 194—71 Victims in Philadelphia.

FORTY DROWNED.

Rush to Coney Island Jammed Subway—Woman's Neck Broken.

NEW YORK, June 8 (Canadian Press) — The backbone of the heat wave which lasted from 6 to 8 days in the Eastern States, was broken early today in practically all sections after claiming 140 lives yesterday, 71 in Philadelphia alone and more than four hundred during the spell in the east. The torrid weather gave way in front of a brisk northeast wind.

In addition to the heat fatalities about 40 lives were lost by drowning. Eleven persons died in the waters about New York ten in New England and at least 20 in other parts of the East. There were 30 deaths here from heat. It was estimated that 750,000 jammed Coney Island. The subways here were jammed to suffocaton. One woman's neck was fractured when she was knocked down in the mad rush to board a Coney Island train.

GIRLS INJURED; LADY ARRESTED

Car Jumped on Sidewalk and Knocked Children Down.

TORONTO, June 8 (Canadian Press). — Two little girls are in local hospitals, suffering from serious head injuries, probably fractured skulls, and two others are victims of slight injuries as a result of a motor car out of control jumping on the sidewalk last evening and knocking them down. Louis A. Glynn, aged 11, and Frances Miles, aged five, are the worst two sufferers, while Margaret Glynn, aged 22, and Albert A. Miles, aged 8, sustained painful injuries.

The oldest Glynn girl is unconscious. Mrs. Margaret Unwin, driver of the car which struck the girls, was taken into custody on a charge of criminal negligence. She says she lost control of the car in attempting to avoid a truck.

WEATHER

While last month was one of the coolest Mays we have ever experienced, this month has gone to the other extreme, and gives promise of being one of the warmest Junes. Saturday gave the high temperature of 90 degrees in the shade, while Sunday went to 91. These figures do not represent the scorching temperatures arising from the sun-baked cement sidewalk and asphalt pavement of George street, but rather that prevailing at the sylvan retreat of the local weather observer, surrounded by spreading maples and elms, on high land and fanned by the "cooling"(?) breezes from the open country. Here are the official figures of the highest and lowest temperatures each day for June:

June.	High.	Lowest
1	87	65
2	86	60
3	86	64
4	84	68
5	89	64
6	90	69
7	91	65

Last night was slightly cooler, the temperature going down to 62 degrees. The heated period will probably come to an end to the accompaniment of a severe thunderstorm. —W.P.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Wanderer of the North.

One of the most soul-thrilling ramifications of the daring Amundsen adventure into the Arctic is the story of the Maud and her crew. Somewhere up north, drifting in the emptiness of polar seas, are eight men aboard a sailing vessel. They have been there since 1922, when this same Amundsen made his first attempt to reach the pole by air. They h. ' instructions then to cruise around awaiting the leader's return. The planes were lost and Amundsen returned overland.

Now, after three years he has made a second attempt. Has he failed now, too, or has he found his companions of his previous attempt?

Or has the Maud, with her crew, joined the ghostly legions of ships that never return?

SAY!

When you are touring with the wife,
AS I WAS,
And you make a side trip,
AS WE DID,
And get back to the main road again,
AS WE DID,
And turn to the left, as you had jotted down in your mind you would have to, and the wife says: "You should have turned to the right,
AS SHE SAID,
And you ignored the suggestion, to show her that you knew a thing or two about the way to turn,
AS I DID,
And went about 17 miles out of your way, you found your wife was right,
AS I DID,
WHAT does a fellow say then
MARRIED MAN?

Pity the Headliner

The headline writer in his search for short words to fit big type in narrow columns, has been responsible for many outrages on the English language. But once in a while he enriches it also.

For instance the writer who, forced to say "Palmists, fortune tellers and clairvoyants" in ten letters, called them "Spook Fakes." That atones in part for "Hun," "flays" and "probe."

But incidentally, when you criticize the headline writer for not expressing all the conditions, exceptions and nuances, in his heading, count his letter and try saying it yourself in the same limit.

And remember, type is of solid lead and cannot be compressed like rubber.

Norma Talmadge in "The Lady"

At the CAPITOL—Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Scandal! Cat calls! Angry chasing about the garden!

For the love of mike, what's gone wrong out there?

This last question from the kind hearted lady who had led the cat bird all winter. Funny, isn't it to hear a kind hearted lady say "for the love of Mike," but things were so interesting that she couldn't help it.

It was early in the nesting season in June, and I had taken up a position in a blind, to watch the birds and take pictures of them. I managed to get a picture alright, but had a tough job getting it, for it seems that Dapper Dan, the catbird, was unfortunate in his choice of a wife. He was a handsome bird and had a lovely voice and a swanky dash about him that won him his wife, but now that she was won, she wanted him to give up golf and behave.

Whattalife! A fellow is likely to be blamed by his jealous wife, whether he is to blame or not. And Canadian Mockingbirds (or catbirds), are no exception.

It all started over the eternal triangle, only in birdland it is the "infernal" triangle, at least that is what I understood Dapper Dan the catbird to say, for Mrs. Cowbird went and laid a stray egg in Mrs. Catbird's nest. And then the row began.

I wish I had been there when the cowbird deposited her egg in the catbird nest, for I might have solved a great natural puzzle about whether the cowbird lays the egg in the nest or lays it on the ground and takes it in her beak to the home of the poor, unfortunate victims. Anyway, sometime when the catbirds were away from the nest and I was consequently off guard too, the sly Mrs. Cowbird sneaked through the underbrush and put one egg over on her neighbours.

The Cowbird is a dirty loafer. It never makes a nest of its own. It lives a care-free life, leaving all the family cares to other birds. This is done by laying eggs by stealth, in other birds nests, and leaving the care of the future, to the victims of the trick.

Dapper Dan was innocent, but Mrs. Catbird made things hot for him, as we shall soon see in Nature Lore.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

WHERE WE ARE NOW
(By J. H. Burnham)

It may not be out of place to give so far as I am able a summary of present day conditions, especially in view of the conditions, especially in view of the unusually violent eruptions in the protestant churches of the U.S. It will be seen that these eruptions are confined to New York, Boston, etc. But that is the case with all eruptions. The hidden forces rush to the tops of volcanoes and a few of the latter indicate fully what is going on within and when in full blast they carry death and destruction everywhere. The very recent explosions in the Presbyterian and Baptist Churches of New York are a case in point. They centre upon the Virgin birth and Immersion. The question of Immersion may be summed up in the words of a well-known Baptist modernist:—"What has a little water more or less got to do with religion. What does it matter?"

In the case of the Presbyterians, some of the leaders simply assert that the Virgin birth is incredible. It is beyond belief and a fairy tale. One would think that the Great First Cause could do that if He or It, which ever you wish to call that Cause, could make the Universe a thing whose inherent qualities are wholly beyond our comprehension. But no, these theologians, these leaders of the people who got into the pulpit because they pretended that they believed the Word of God but stay there to ridicule it and to draw their pay, are educating their people to the same conclusion. People it seems, are not to believe what does not appear wholly satisfactory to them, which, if we think for a moment makes revelation of God by God as an impossible thing since it must be subject to our approval. But then anything is silly enough for people who are so self-willed as to believe that the basis of nature and of our daily lives is in their hands—in the hands of people who have great difficulty often in keeping themselves from starving to death and whose knowledge is in inverse proportion to the size of their self-assurance. How does this all come about you will ask. Why have the clergy and their people gone off on this infidel cruise. The answer is beyond doubt their self-will. Ignorance is pardonable and we may all be excused for not knowing—if we do not assume that we know it all that supernationalism is an absurdity that miracles are impossible and that for the real cheese in the way of religion it is necessary to come to us. When people get the idea that they are sanctified and by the very manner born entitled to rule the world, what else in there to expect but explosions, infidelity and utter foolishness.

And when we have abandoned belief in Revelation and in the great fundamental principles of Reason for it as that if a being is to be a responsible moral being he must be free to be immoral we find where the whole trouble arises. The idea of the necessity of believing in responsiblity to God alone was passeed. People now insist on "responsibility" to mankind. Social Service as it is called, has become a cult and is crowding out all other beliefs and forms of worship. It is a much more lucrative form of "religion" than the old one. The old one was losing its hold on protestant people because they were losing their hold on it and coming to the conclusion that God was running the world in a very inefficient and slipshod manner. They decided to take it out of His hands and to straighten things out, not by the freedom of the responsible moral being, because that was the old way, but by Force. They wiped out by one stroke not only belief in God's revelation of Himself but the freedom of the responsible moral being and with all that, of course, the morality and religion of that Being since He must be free to be bad if he is to receive the reward of being good. Shutting people up in goals or dark closets or tying them to the posts we set up will keep them out of mischief perhaps, but is that Religion, Morality, Civilization the Gospel of Christ? It is Prohibition all right, whether it be of liquor or anything else, but it is not the freedom of a free moral agent. It is useless to pretend that it is. However, I started out to remark upon the condition things are in at present. The fight is between those who believe in God's overruling providence and those who believe that their plan of prevention is better than God's plan of temptation. Why let men be tempted, they cry? Why have a religion that is based on temptation, and whose whole final happiness and reward is dependent on resistance to temptation? Why? The answer you will give to that question will show whether you are a believer in the Old Religion or a Modernist, whether you have a belief in the immediate presence of God or in the necessity of drawing up a religion to suit yourself. It is the pseudo-Christian who is doing all the damage, the man, but usually the woman who regards herself as fit and proper to represent the right way of doing things whether it be god's way or or not. These people who are imposing their little wills on the western world are the real modernists, the real infidels and the real wreckers of other people's faith The proof of that lies in the terrible facts before us. Progress! you will say. Thou fool!

How can man make progress in the ways of God? He may learn more of the wonders of nature and he may call that knowlege, Science (scientific, meaning wisdom or knowlege), but how can be formed a new Religion upon his little knowledge of material things. What have they to do with the Spirit?

It is the mixing up of these two wholly different things by designing "leaders" and stupid followers that is destroying the faith of the people. We are losing faith in God and increasing it in ourselves and the end of the protestant religion is at hand. At present it is more like a football match than a thing to be seriously considered.

WHERE ELEPHANTS DIED

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Explorers of the Sumatra Islands have come upon a great heap of elephant bones, and they believe it is the spot where the animals went to die. Elephants are said to go to a lonely spot when they feel death approaching.

TO-NIGHT IS THE NIGHT

If you do not feel well there is some reason for it. In nine cases out of ten it is due to your liver. So start tonight and take two Tanol Calomel Tablets or take one before meals and a glass of hot water in the morning to wash all poisons from the system. Calomel, as you know, is the only drug known that acts upon the liver and that is why there has been such wonderful results from the use of it in the new form called Tanol Calomel. Just get a few of these sample tablets from F. C. Webber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and you will be surprised how effective they are. m.-w.s.

TWO BOARDS IN ACCORD ON NEED FOR NEW SCHOOL

Hastings Has 45 Pupils Going to High Schools in Other Towns.

FOR TWO PURPOSES

Proposed Building Will Replace Present Public School and Provide High School.

(By a Staff Reporter)

HASTINGS, June 8—A deputation consisting of members of the trustee boards of the Separate and Public Schools waited on the village council Friday night and asked that body to take steps to raise the sum of $30,000 with which to erect a new six room school building, three rooms for Public School purposes and three for continuation classes. The council desired more definite information before taking action. This the joint school boards will secure and submit at a special meeting to be called later.

The Proposition

The Separate School Board was represented on the deputation by J. F. McArthur and the Public School trustees present were: A. V. German (chairman), C. P. Doughty (secretary), R. N. Simpson and Harry Dodd. Secretary Doughty presented the case clearly to the council. The two Boards, he said, were unanimous the Separate School trustees agreeing to co-operate with the others in the erection and maintenance of that part of the building to be used for a continuation school this cost to be divided according to the assessment.

Mr. Doughty said that there was no doubt that a new public school building is required and that there are enough students from the village and district, about 45 in all attending high school in Campbellford and Norwood to make it advisable to provide secondary education here. He had no doubt that such a school at the start would have at least 60 students.

The two Boards, Mr. Doughty said, were anxious to begin the erection of a new building during the holidays so as to have it completed in time for the fall term and for that reason the council was asked to take prompt action.

Mr. McArthur on behalf of the Separate School Board supported the statements made by Mr. Doughty.

Old School Condemned

It was stated by Councillor Dodd, who is in favor of the proposition, that the present public school building has been condemned for the past five years and this statement was challenged by Reeve Hess who said that it lacked proof.

The majority of the councillors were opposed to disposing of the question without further consideration and the trustees were instructed to secure further data, including pans o the proopsed building, and to submit these at a special meeting.

Request Again Shelved

At the April session a request was received from the Public School Board asking that trustees be elected by ballot. This question was brought up again last night by Secretary Doughty but was once more tabled.

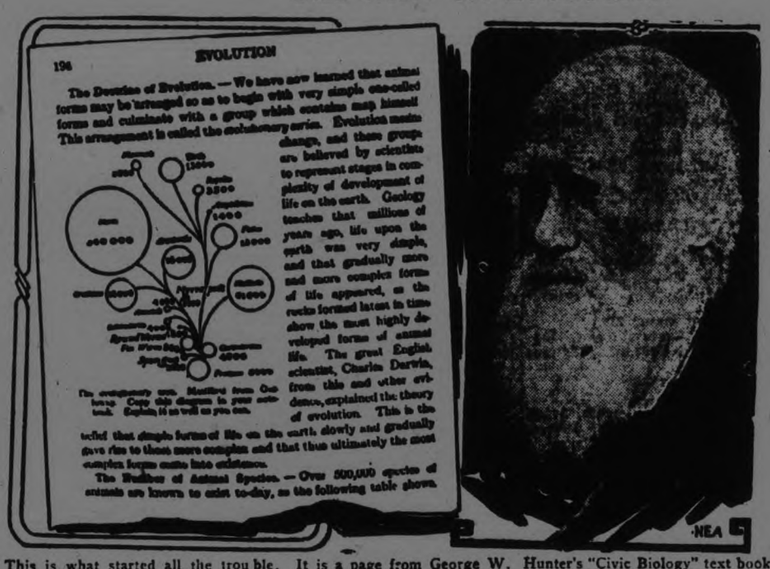
Talk of Water Works

No reference was made to the paving question as this matter is to be brought before the County Council at Cobourg next week.

In an informal discussion at the close of the session Clerk Wilson spoke in favor of a system of waterworks for the village calling attention to the high cost of insurance in Hastings he said that this excess charge would more than pay every property owner's assessment for waterworks. There is an excellent supply of drinking water available a short distance from the village and Mr. Wilson said that estimates of the cost of installing a water plant should be secured. Such a plant, he added, was one of the best paying investments in Campbellford.

This is another public question that is likely to remain a topic of discussion in Hastings for perhaps years to come.

PARAGRAPH THAT BEGAN THE WAR ON EVOLUTION



This is what started all the trouble. It is a page from George W. Hunter's "Civic Biology" text book, which John T. Scopes used in his classes at Dayton, Tenn., and for which he was indicted as a violator of the anti-evolution law. Accompanying is a picture of Charles Darwin

HERE'S THE LATEST—COD LIVER OIL IN TASTELESS TABLETS

Greatest Flesh Builder For Skinny, Weak, Run-Down People—Full of Vitamines

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups, who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of cough syrup.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor; another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child, aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months, and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, Bond's Drug Store, or any good druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 60 cents for 60 tablets—and don't forget that they are wonder workers for feeble old folks.

Get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and beware of imitations.

PRESENTATION TO ROSENEATH BRIDE

Miss Vera Varcoe Remembered by C.G.I.T. Group Before Her Marriage.

ROSENEATH, June 8. — On Wednesday evening the members of the C.G.I.T. group met at the home of Mrs. Ella Brown for their regular meeting.

During the course of the evening the following address was read and presented to Miss Vera Varcoe whose marriage is to take place in the near future.

Roseneath, June 3, 1925.

Dear Vera: Our C.G.I.T. group, "The King's Daughters," wish on this occasion of your approaching marriage to extend our best wishes.

You have been a member since our group was organized. We have always found you interested and very painstaking in your efforts to see our work prove a success.

We realize that the C.G.I.T. (the four-fold training) must have meant a great deal to you, as it does to all members. Although we will miss you from our meetings, we feel that your membership has been a decided benefit to the Group.

We ask you to accept this $5.00 as a parting token from the group; and join in wishing that you may enjoy many years of happiness.

On Saturday last there was laid to rest in the Macklin cemetery one of the oldest, and a most respected resident of Fenella, the late William Jewel.

He was born on the homestead, where his son now lives, 72 years ago. His wife predeceased him over 20 years ago. For the past year Mr. Jewel has been living a retired life, since the marriage of his son.

The service was conducted in the home by the Rev. J. N. Lovelace, assisted by Rev. T. McCord. Those who mourn the death of a loving father are Mrs. Andrew Brown of Roseneath; Mrs. Frank George of Fenella; Miss Ruby of Toronto; and Miss Ethel at home; also one son, Clark Jewel. One daughter, Mrs. Delbert Varcoe, predeceased him six years ago.

YOUTH KILLED.

Clifford Drinkwater Victim of Accident at Warkworth —Internally Hurt.

WARKWORTH, June 8—At a barn raising at T. W. Nelson's farm, Castleton, on Wednesday, Clifford Drinkwater, about twenty years of age, was accidentally wounded. Two doctors were called immediately, but no outward bruise could be found. The lad was taken to his home, and died Thursday morning.

FIRE THREATENS FRANKFORD MILL

Clipping Shed, Ten Feet from Main Building, Was Destroyed.

GOOD APPARATUS

FRANKFORD, June 8. — At the Canada Box Board Company's plant of this village, a fire broke out on Thursday evening. The fire, when first discovered, was small but soon spread through practically a whole shed filled with clippings which stood between the papermill and pulpmill. The company has an up-to-date fire protection, which, being well handled by the mill men, confined the fire to this one shed of clippings, which was within ten feet of the other building. The origin of the fire is yet unknown. The plant consists of a large pulpmill using about 1,500 electrical H.P., and a papermill which turns out about 80 tons of paper a day. There is also a large beaverboard plant in connection with the papermill. This plant employs about 75 hands, both day and night. The citizens of this place were very grateful that the fire was confined to only one shed, as the plant gives practically all the employment in the village.

The Frankford Band entertained many people on the Memorial Park Thursday night, with an open-air concert. The grounds were well lighted and the programme was splendid. Floyd Ketcheson is leader.

NO CHANGES AMONG DISTRICT PASTORS

First Draft of Stationing Committee of Conference Makes No Change.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 8.—The first draft of the Stationing Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference shows no changes of position in the Campbellford district, a list of the present ministers and their churches being all that is given. It is expected that there will be a number of changes when the final report is published.

Public Band Concerts.

The first open air band concert to be given by the Northumberland Regiment Band this season will be held on Monday evening next when a special programme will be rendered under the direction of William Pearson, the leader. The concerts will be given weekly during the warm weather.

Autos and Trucks.

Word has reached here that in the towns along the lake front farmers are being fined for using their autos for bringing produce to market, the authorities contending that such cars should be equipped with the higher-priced truck license. That is the report but Chief Brown says that he has received no official notice from the Department, and in his opinion there are at present sufficient auto regulations to enforce without making fine distinctions between the different classes of vehicles.

Garden Party June 22.

The annual garden party of St. Andrew's congregation will be held on the manse lawn Monday evening, June 22nd.

AIRPLANE WRECKED.

Pilot and Mechanic Reach Shore Unhurt After Striking Rock.

SAULT STE. MARIE, June 8 — Word reached here on Saturday that one of the Ontario Forestry Department's airplanes was partly sunk when it struck a rock while landing in a fog on the north shore of Lake Superior, some 12 miles from here. The pilot and mechanic were unhurt and reached shore.

GOOD ADVICE TO YOUNG CLERGY

Ordination Address by Professor Rose Contained Many Pointers.

A NEW VISION

BELLEVILE, June 8. — (Special.—Dr. Rose, Professor on Biblical History in Wesleyan College, Montreal, in addressing the young men being received into the Methodist ministry at the conference church on Friday evening, said: "A poor sermon brings reproach upon the ministry. It is a deadly easy thing to preach to please the people who pay. The ministry should be prophetic. It should be modern, evangelical, authorative and universal. Ministers should clothe their thoughts in the language of the people they address. Preach so that the people who listen will understand. The modern mind is the only mind the preacher has to deal with. A man is not preaching at all if he does not preach the glad tidings. The need of to-day is a vision of God that will satisfy the intellect and bring peace to the heart. Preaching should lead people to believe in a God who cares for them and who can come to their help. Outside the church is a sad, broken-hearted, shattered world. The biggest thing about the minister is himself. He should be pure in life and his preaching clear. The preacher has a friend in every man's conscience. His message should be sacrificial. He will find a man's job wherever he may toil.

Closing Address.

Dr. J. E. Hughson of Hamilton, in his closing address, given on Saturday morning, said, "We have a new vision of life, a new conception of time. We must live in the world that is. Higher criticism only deals with the garments in which religion may be unwrapped. "Life, love and service express the religious need of to-day. The future calls the church to new duties and new tasks. She must upward still and onward if she is to keep abreast with truth. Agitation is better than stagnation. The church that is not being disturbed by new issues and new undertakings is a dying, dead thing. The spirit of the past must measure itself against the spirit of progress. One of the two must win. In essentials there must be unity. In non-essentials there may be liberty. In all things there should be charity. To-day's conditions are the result of the force of circumstances and the logic of events. Not the weakness, but the strength of expansion of the three uniting denominations brought union. A vision of something bigger and better than denominationalism has led us forward. We are willing to start out with God in a great, new adventure. The church needs a greater spirit of adventure that she may wrestle from the future the things that never have been done, and to accomplish this she will need faith in God, in man and in the future. To suffer as ministers or a congregation for the sake of mankind is just a part of the day's work for those at the task. Approximately 1,000,000 Methodists in Canada are going into union.

GOOD PROGRAMME AT W.M.S. MEETING

Enjoyable Afternoon Spent by Ladies—Lakefield News of Interest.

LAKEFIELD, June 8. — The Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church held a very pleasant afternoon tea in the basement of the church on Thursday from 3 to 6 o'clock. In spite of the heat, a large number of ladies assembled and enjoyed the programme, which was given informally. Mesdames W. Millage, J. R. Hull and A. B. Burrows contributed solos and piano duets were given by Mrs. H. E. Moore and W. G. Payne, the Misses Northey and Misses Maud Nixon and Isobel Sutton. Mrs. Alan Hunter gave a humorous reading, "Father and the Radio." All the numbers were much appreciated.

Afternoon tea was served by a committee of ladies. The guests were received by Mrs. G. A. Welbourne and Mrs. Wesley Sherin.

Shower For Bride.

Miss Grace Bickell gave a surprise party and miscellaneous shower for Mrs. Gordon Davis (nee Elva Matthews) at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Matthews, recently. About one hundred were present and spent a delightful evening in music and games. The bride received a large number of beautiful presents from her friends in the shower which was a genuine surprise. Mrs. Davis thanked her friends for their expressions of goodwill in a graceful little speech.

Annual Excursion.

The annual excursion of the Lakefield business men will be held on Thursday, June 11, per steamer "Stoney Lake," and will include a boat trip to Buckhorn, baseball and other games, and dinner at the Windsor Hotel, and refreshments during the trip. This excursion has been an event marking the first half-holiday for years, and is very popular with the sterner sex, who make this day their own and enjoy themselves, unhampered by domestic cares. J. W. Ridpath is secretary of the committee, which consists of Messrs. H. G. FitzGerald, W. H. Casement, G. G. Connell, Chas. Thomson, Dr. S. J. Gibson and G. B. Hilliard.

The Lakefield business men observed Thursday afternoon as the first half-holiday of the season, and with the stores all shut, the village resembled the scene pictured by Goldsmith in his famous poem. A few shoppers, who had forgotten the annual custom, good humoredly announced their intention of getting their shopping done in season in future.

The weather man has been doing his best to prove that June is a summer month. The rains at night and the sun by day have done wonders for the growth of the field and garden crops. The farmers, who were becoming discouraged at the cold dry season, are greatly encouraged by this week's growth.

The Salvation Army Band gave an open-air concert on Wednesday evening, which drew large crowds, and was much enjoyed. The concert was in connection with self-denial week.

EARLE CLAN GATHERS HOME FOR JOLLY ANNUAL RE-UNION

Cavan Homesteads Scene of Celebration With Forty Present.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Eldest Daughter, Mrs. John C. Crawford, Celebrates 50th Anniversary.

Saturday saw the close of one of the jolliest family re-unions held in the Township of Cavan during many years past. It was the gathering of the Earle clan, at the home of John H. Earle on the old Earle homestead. Of a family of nine children, eight of whom are still living, six assembled for the sixth re-union of the Earle family. The first gathering was held at Port Perry in 1894, the second at Lindsay in 1898, the third at Creemore in 1905, the fourth at Hamilton in 1921, the fifth at Scugog Island in 1923.

Among those who came from a distance to take part in the merry-making which spread itself over an entire week, were the two brothers of John Earle, Alex. Earle, with his family, from Grimsby; W. E. Earle and family, of St. John's, N.B., and three sisters, Mrs. John Crawford, with her husband and family, from Hamilton; Mrs. A. W. Walker, of Toronto, and Mrs. J. I. Bemrose, with her husband and family from Toronto. One sister, Mrs. H. Fralick, died some years ago, and two others were unable to be present: Mrs. Hall of Alberta and Mrs. Taylor of Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan. Both sent telegrams, and the latter also sent a long distance telephone message to the assemblage which numbered about forty members of the family.

Other relatives present were Major G. W. Hall and family of Lindsay, J. Harry Earle and family of Grimsby; Hiram Fralick and family, and Clarence Fralick and family of Port Perry; Dr. Morley Day and family of Belleville; J. W. Morrison and famiy of Montreal; Ronald Earle of Toronto, and Richard Earle and family of Ida. The two Cavan homesteads sheltered the visitors, who were offered the hospitality of numerous neighbors, but preferred to remain together in the homes and barns of their kinsfolk.

An item of much interest in the week's programme was the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of the eldest daughter of the old Earle family, Mrs. John C. Crawford of Hamilton, who, with her husband, marked the fiftieth year of their wedded life during the past week. Her sister, Mrs. A. W. Walker of Toronto, led a procession of grandnieces and grandchildren bearing floral tributes, and made the presentation of fifty golden tulips and fifty roses, in memory of the two deceased children of Mr. and Mrs. Crawford. Twelve gold pieces were also included in the gifts. A dinner in honor of the celebration was held, with many speeches and toasts, one toast to the Earle Family, the tenor of which was "to make Canada a land to love and live in," being proposed by J. H. Earle and Ronald Earle, and replied to by W. E. Earle.

The father of the Earle Brothers, William Earle, was born in the County of Cavan, in Ireland, and was brought out, a small child, to this country by his parents, who settled in Cavan Township.

BOWLERS MEET.

Warkworth Rinks Visit Campbellford—Honors Were Even.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 8.—Two rinks from Warkworth came to Campbellford to try conclusions with local lawn bowlers, and honors were about even, the visitors losing one game but playing a draw in the other. The rinks were as follows:

VIPER KILLED IN FARM BARN

Ransom Young Startled By Giant Spotted Adder Yesterday.

PRESCOTT, June 8. — (C.P.) — While working in his barn yesterday Ransom Young, of Brier Hill, was fearfully startled when a giant spotted adder, four feet long, glared at him from its resting place on a low beam in a barn. Mr. Young grabbed a heavy stick and attacked the viper which was finally killed, after a battle of 10 or 15 minutes. Mr. Young intends to have the reptile skinned.

DO you want your child to have prettier teeth now, and better protection from tooth troubles in later life?

Mail the coupon then for a 10-day tube of Pepsodent, free. See what the world's leading dentists urge mothers to use as modern science's latest attainment in tooth care.

You will notice a film on your child's teeth. That's a frequent danger sign—an invitation for tooth troubles. The same stubborn film that you can feel by running your tongue across your own teeth. You must combat it. Ordinary dentrifices don't fight it successfully. Harsh, gritty substances are injurious to enamel.

Film is the greatest enemy of tooth health. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it. The acid that leads to early decay forms. Old type methods failed to combat it. Men of science engaged themselves in discovering an effective combatant.

Now in Pepsodent, two new combatants are embodied — combatants approved by highest dental authority. It curdles the film, then gently removes it. It keeps the teeth whiter, cleaner, more sparkling. It is the modern scientific method for better tooth protection Insist upon it. Get a tube today. Mail the coupon.

What is the Real Reason for the Mental Force and Physical Endurance of the "Go-getter"?

THE "go-getters" in business today—and in home and social life, too—have healthy, active minds and vigorous bodies because they have learned to carry out the most important law of living. They practise every day the law that doctors are stressing now more than ever before—the law of right eating.

The foods we eat have a tremendous influence on our mental and physical well-being. They have the power to build us up or to drag us down—to make us "go-getters" or to put us in that too-numerous class of people who suffer from tiredness, nervousness and a general low state of vitality.

Our daily foods, no matter how much nourishment they may contain, must come to us in the proper form for instant, easy assimilation.

One-half of all we eat should be the precious food elements called carbohydrates. Grape-Nuts, which is made from whole wheat and malted barley, is three-fourths carbohydrates in the form of dextrins. Twenty-two hours of slow baking has changed the carbohydrates into the most easily digested food substance known!

Try substituting Grape-Nuts for the principal dish which you now eat at either breakfast or lunch, or both. Notice the result!

Grape-Nuts is available from all grocers in wax-wrapped packages. Four heaping teaspoonfuls, sufficient for each helping, costs less than one cent. Serve with milk or cream just as it comes from the package.

Grape-Nuts is made of pure wheat and malted barley. More than three-fourths of the content of Grape-Nuts are the precious carbohydrates.

In Grape-Nuts the carbohydrates have been dextrinized, that is, scientifically broken down into the form your body most readily digests.

* * *

Grape-Nuts comes in crisp, golden kernels which you must chew. This starts the process of digestion where it should properly start—in the mouth.

THE NOVA SCOTIA ELECTIONS.

There seems to be unusual interest in the approaching Legislature election in Nova Scotia on the 25th of June, perhaps due to the possible effect of the result upon the Federal election question.

It is declared by some political students that should Nova Scotia go very strongly Liberal the verdict will hasten the date of the Dominion campaign.

Otherwise the interest is hard to explain, in view of the fact that the administration of the affairs of the Province have been in the hands of the Liberal party for 43 years, and that the House at present has 29 Liberal members out of a total membership of 43 and only 5 Farmer members, 4 Labour members, one Independent and two Conservatives, with two seats vacant.

The Conservative party has been campaigning vigorously for some time, and has gained considerable strength by the acceptance of the leadership by Hon. E. S. Rhodes, former Speaker of the House of Commons, but there is no evidence that the long Liberal tenure of office is to be terminated.

Nova Scotia reports indicate that the fight will be largely between the two old parties, the Farmer cause being on the decline. Labour, however, will in several constituencies prove a stumbling block for the old parties.

WHAT IS AT ISSUE.

The decision of the Council to close the civic bathing beaches on Sunday was based on moral rather than economic grounds, as the Examiner understands it.

The expense involved in keeping the dressrooms open and a caretaker at each beach is trifling, merely a matter of $6 per Sunday, or well under $100 for the season.

The city fathers—or those who voted against Sunday bathing—did so because they did not think that as a Council they should officially approve of bathing on the Lord's Day—the financial side of the question was not stressed.

That being the case, the issue will not be decided by covering the cost of maintaining the beaches on Sunday with a public subscription.

The whole controversy is a matter of principle and should be fought out on that line.

Is the Council to exercise a moral censorship over the actions of the citizens generally, and has it as the elected representatives of the people any right to refuse to provide what public opinion demands?

These are the points that are at issue, and they should be settled without delay.

Mr. Gordon's kindness in heading a subscription list to pay for Sunday caretakers will be appreciated and is eloquent of the feeling that exists in the community, but the Examiner maintains that the people want Sunday bathing and band concerts and that it is the duty of the Council to provide them.

THE NEW BEER.

There seems to be no let up in the flood of resolutions condemning the advent of 4.4 beer, but no matter what may be thought of the wisdom of the Ferguson Government in amending the Ontario Temperance Act, a study of the conditions existing since the new beverage was officially put on sale prompts the conclusion that the slightly stronger beer is just about what the Attorney-General said it would be, "A palatable, refreshing beverage."

It is difficult to see how any harm will be done by its sale at its present strength, for there is not the slightest evidence that it is intoxicating.

In fact, its effect is so much similar to that of its predecessor under the Ontario Temperance Act—although experts claim it is much more pleasant to drink—that it is a mystery how it is going to interfere very much with the activities of the bootleggers, seeing that if offers nothing for the individual who likes his beverage to have a "kick."

It has, however, satisfied many people who were looking for a refreshing hot weather drink, and who are unable to see why so much fuss is being made about the sale of such harmless stuff.

The trouble was that when Mr. Nickle declared that the new beer would be non-intoxicating the temperance forces feared and the extreme wets hoped that he was wrong.

Apparently only the wets have discovered that their hopes have been disappointed; the temperance forces show by their resolutions that they have not yet learned that their fears were groundless.

They evidently expected the streets to be full of drunken men every night, and have failed to realize so far that everything is about the same as usual.

THE FIRST BLUE SUNDAY.

A blisteringly hot Sunday, following a week of intense heat and great humidity, during which working became a torment to many.

A fiery sun beating down unmercifully upon buildings and pavement that reflected the heat back at suffering humanity.

A suggestion of breeze that seemed to emenate from the open door of an oven.

These were the conditions under which the city's blue law Sunday was ushered in yesterday.

To many citizens it did not mean very much.

Awakening from a sleep in a sun-porch or a room cooled by an electric fan and freshened by a cold tub or a shower, they were ready for a day by lake or river—some place where the breeze, water-cooled, would give them fresh life and vigour, where the water's cool depths would invite them to an invigorating plunge.

But others— and they who had toiled the hardest during the week—awakened, if indeed they had been able to sleep, in their stuffy rooms, with nothing ahead of them but a long day's effort to keep cool in surroundings that made the fight a losing one before it was well started.

Many defied convention and the Council and had their Sunday dip in spite of the edict, using any shelter that offered itself as a dressing-room—but the majority were forced to remain at home.

And the evening, bringing no relief from the heat and no entertainment in the form of a band concert, found them on the verandahs where they could watch their luckier fellow-citizens motoring gaily home from a day's outing.

Members of the City Council, is there any reason that will hold water why these families should have to endure such conditions on Sunday in weather such as we have been experiencing?

An error in judgment is only serious when persisted in.

Throw open the bathing beaches on Sunday, schedule a few band concerts for Sunday evening and Peterboro will be a happier place for a whole lot of people.

RAILWAY PROBLEMS.

Speaking to the members of the Kiwanis Club of Sherbrooke, Que., one day last week, M. Crepeau, member for that constituency in the Quebec Legislature, made a thoughtful contribution to the discussion of Canada's railway problems. He was careful to point out that the views he expressed were entirely his own; but at the same time he acknowledged his obligations to several "important citizens" with whom he had discussed the subject, including eminent authorities on railway matters, making special reference to Sir George Bury. The speaker first enumerated the various suggestions which had been made for the amelioration of the position, classifying them under three heads: Co-operation between the National system and the C.P.R., for the elimination of unnecessary competition; the assumption of control of the National lines by the C.P.R.; purchase and operation by the Canadian Government of all the railways in the country.

Dealing with the first suggestion, Mr. Crepeau agrees that great economies could be effected if the heads of the two systems would get together and decide upon measures of mutual advantage. But, with the best will in the world, he does not think it possible for the two administrations to come to perfect agreement on every issue, and for that reason suggests the advisability of putting into writing the various proposals for diminishing competition and improving the two services. These representations would be dealt with by the Railway Board and "disposed of in the best interest of all." The proposal to entrust the direction of the National system to the C.P.R. is viewed with disfavor by M. Crepeau. The time is recalled when the latter company had a virtual monopoly in the West, leading to a situation "almost the cause of a civil war." The speaker said he was not prepared to state that this feeling of hostility had entirely disappeared. Placing control of all the railways of the country in the hands of the Government is an expedient dismissed as impracticable by M. Crepeau. Such a system would be too vast and unwieldy, he says; it would mean the employment of approximately 200,000 persons, who, with their families, would represent about a ninth of the total population of the Dominion. "Imagine the purchasing power of such an organization, the patronage it would have at its disposal, the influence it would exercise on election results, etc.!"

Having rejected these alternatives, M. Crepeau offered some valuable suggestions of his own. He would give the Railway Commission absolute authority to fix rates, with the understanding that these rates should be such as to yield a reasonable return on invested capital, with due regard to efficient administration. The commission should include the most competent railway men procurable. It should take into consideration everything connected with the business of transport, and set up a rate schedule acceptable to all parts of the country, allowing for proper provision for maintenance and betterment of the railways and the service they rendered. The actual value of the National system should then be ascertained, on the same basis, per mile of railway, as that of the C.P.R., and everything remaining over, whether assets or liabilities, be expunged from the record. After this re-valuation, equal taxation for both systems should be imposed; a complete inspection carried out to discover where it would be advantageous to effect mutual economies through interchange of service, etc., both systems being granted facilities for entering the important centres of population and trade. After this, the National system should be offered for sale at the new valuation to any company desirous of purchasing it. Canada would then have two companies, operating on equal terms, in loyal competition, and would have escaped the inconvenience and risk associated with a monopoly.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Before condemning too bitterly the foibles of feminine fashion, take a look at the youths with the Oxford bags and the balloon rim straw hats.

"Well, they have a nice day for it," remarked the man who just heard yesterday that the Council had refused to open the swimming beaches on Sunday.

Congratulations to everybody concerned with the Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition. It was a huge success, despite the hottest week June has ever given us.

Perhaps some of those garrulous members of Parliament will be sorry now that they talked the session into the midst of a hot wave.

You have doubtless noticed that the fellow who has been complaining the most about the heat is the same chap who two weeks ago was growling that he was going to migrate to some country that had a summer.

A lot of people seem to be sorry that the fellow who said there wasn't going to be any hot weather this summer wasn't right.

The result of the Saskatchewan election has increased the crop of rumours in regard to a Federal election before the end of the year.

Well, anyway, what was left of next winter's coal supply seems to be safe for the present.

The Canadian Government's claim to the Arctic regions north of Canada to the Pole make good reading during the hot spell.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 8. — Oats abruptly advanced in price Saturday nearly four cents a bushel, and carried the wheat market also upgrade. Abnormal hot weather was asserted to have done more damage to oats than to any other grain, impairing the oats crop as a whole at least 25 per cent. Closing quotations on oats were unsettled, 2 1-4 to 3 3-8 cents net higher. Wheat finished firm at 3-8 to 1 1-2 cents gain, July 169 to 169 1-8, and September 165 5-8 to 166, with corn ranging from 3-8 cent decline to 1-4 cent rise, and provisions varying from 5 cents setback to an upturn of 20 cents.

Before the oats flurry became the centre of attraction, wheat was tending downward owing more or less to a forecast of scattered showers and of lower temperatures west of the Mississippi River. There were also indications that harvest yields in the southwest were turning out better than many traders had looked for.

Corn prices were influenced by the fact that despite lack of rain, crop news regarding corn continued favorable.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 8.—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market on Saturday was quiet. There was some demand from United Kingdom buyers for Canadian Western No. 4 barley and as the prices bid in some cases were in line with exporters' views here, sales of a few loads were made for June shipment. The only trade in cash grain in the domestic market was the sale of some lots of No. 4 barley on c.i.f. basis Montreal. The demand for oats was slow, but the tone of the market was firm.

The Spring wheat flour market was without any new feature to note, prices being maintained in sympathy with the continued strength in the market for the raw material. The volume of business in all directions was small, and the market was quiet. Winter wheat grades also met with a slow sale and prices were unchanged.

There was no change in the condition of the market for mill feed prices for all lines being steady on account of the continued limited supplies available and the steady demand for broken lots in mixed car orders for country account. The market for standard grades of oats was quiet and firm. The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 1,783 cases, as against 2,302 cases for the same day last week and 3,370 vases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending June 6, 1925, were 14,171 cases, as compared with 12,280 cases for the previous week, and 16,122 cases for the same week last year. The total receipts from May 1 to date were 82,558 cases, as against 105,410 cases for the same period a year ago. The receipts last week showed an increase of 1,891 cases as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 1,951 cases with the same week last year, while the total arrivals from May 1 to date have been 22,852 cases below the same period of 1924.

A feature of the trade has been the firmness of the market through the month of May and up to date, and there seems to be no signs of weakness, but it would seem reasonable to expect a reaction at an early date, as summer eggs have to be bought at lower prices than April and May to allow for the shrinkage. The production has been smaller, as supplies received here from May 1 to date showed a market falling off, as compared with last last year, and this coupled with the exceptionally good demand for immediate consumption, and the competition between buyers for storage purposes has tended to keep prices higher than last year. A number of enquiries have been received from British importers for cold storage eggs, but as there was a wide difference between buyers and sellers, no business of importance resulted. At the close of the week car lots of Western eggs were offered here on the basis of 30 1-2 for extras, 28 1-2 for firsts and 25 1-2 for seconds, f.o.b. Manitoba shipping points. Locally a fair amount of business was done during the week in a wholesale jobbing way.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending June 6, 1925, were 10,507 packages which shows an increase of 190 packages as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 6,167 pkgs. with the same week last year, while the total arrivals from May 1 to date have been 29,964 packages less than the corresponding period for 1924.

A feature of the trade was the stronger feeling that developed in the market early in the week and prices scored an advance of 1 3-8 cents to 1 1-2 cents per pound as compared with the closing figures of the previous week. This to a great extent was attributed to the strength that prevailed in the market for cheese as there were no other factors in the situation to warrant the higher prices for buttetr. Receipts have been larger and stocks on spot have accumulated owing to the fact that there has been practically no demand for supplies except from local wholesale jobbing houses and a fair amount of business was done in this respect.

The offerings of creamery butter at the Quebec Agricultural Co-operative Society auction sale, held on Monday, amounted to 2,525 packages, as compared with 1,400 packages for the previous week, and 3,225 packages for the same day last year. The bidding was keener and prices for all grades were advanced 5-8 cents per lb., No. 1 pasteuried creamery selling at 1-8 cent per lb., which prices were 3-4 cents per lb. higher than the corresponding date last year.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending June 6, 1925, were 39,113 boxes, which show an increase of 5,332 boxes as compared with the previous week and an increase of 1,912 boxes with the same week last year, while the total arrivals since May 1 to date have been 58,348 boxes in excess of the same period for 1924.

The strength which developed in the country markets last week was much more pronounced during the past one and prices scored advances ranging from 3-16 cent to 3-4 cent per lb, the highest figure paid up to Friday night being 18 cents per pound at Iroquois, but according to sorle in the trade, there was nothing in the situation to warrant the above as cable advices practically showed no improvement, but notwithstanding this fact a larger export business was done and the movement for the week was the heaviest of any previous week this season. A moderate amount of business was also done between houses and purchase of Western No. 1 white and colored were made at 18 1-4 cents per lb., and Eastern No. 1 white and colored at 18 cents per lb.

Beans were selling at $2.65 per bushel.

STERLING EXCHANGE

A THOUGHT.

THE SUNLIT CREST.

When you incline to court despair,
O'erburdened with perplexing care;
When things go wrong day after day,
And Trouble comes dressed up to stay;
When Fortune flees at every turn,
And coals of courage cease to burn,
Seek out some hopeful, smiling face,
And learn the meaning of its grace!

When you decline to throw your pack,
Because it chafes your chiding back;
When thinking complicates your brain,
And spirit, flesh and nerves complain;
When Fear rides on the passing wind,
Bent on o'erthrowing peace of mind,
Keep cool and all its onsets meet,
But never once admit defeat.

When you incline to quit the fight,
Or hide in weakness or affright;
When all the world impresses you,
And you know not just what to do:
When Hope lies prone upon the ground,
And darkness hovers all around—
Stretch out your hand to man unblest,
And scale with him the sunlit crest.

WOMEN SHOULD STAY AT HOME

May Smoke and Drink, But Should Stay Off the Platforms.

SAYS LADY BOLTON.

MONTREAL, June 8.—(Canadian Press)—"A woman may smoke her cigarette, not in a conspicious manner, and she may take her glass of wine occasionally and be, nevertheless, a womanly woman—so long as she keeps off the public platform and remembers her duties at home."

This is the opinion of Lady Bolton, wife of Sir Henry Bolton, who was created a Lady of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, for having founded the Queen Mary Hostels for nursing sisters during the great war.

Lady Bolton who is a guest at a local hotel while in the city for a few days with Sir Henry Bolton, who is in Canada on business, stated that she was so much an anti-feminist that she had cast only one vote in all her life.

"And that vote was cast in the last general election," said Lady Bolton, "I do not like a labor government for it is not fitted to rule."

Five women have been executed in England and Wales since 1901. The number of men paying the extreme penalty was 335.

Austen Chamberlain Left London For League of Nations Meeting.

LONDON, June 8.—(Canadian Press).—British Foreign Secretary, Austen Chamberlain left Saturday for Geneva to attend the council of the League of Nations.

REFUSE REQUEST TO SHARE PROPERTY

The Presbyterian Assembly Won't Let Anti-Unionists Share Prosperity.

TORONTO, June 8.—(Canadian Press).—A request from anti-unionists that they be permitted to share temporarily pending a report from the property commission which is to be named by the government, in the benefits of the church and manse board was not entertained by the Presbyterian General Assembly Saturday.

W. B. Wood of Montreal, said he thought the assembly could not legally adopt the suggestion.

EIGHT TO HANG FOR MURDER OF SIR LEE STACK

Distressing Scenes in Court as Prisoners Heard Sentence Read.

AGENT REWARDED

Ex-convict, Who Acted for Police, Received $49,400 for His Work.

CAIRO, June 8—Eight of the men convicted of participating in the assassination last November of Sir Lee Stack, Sirdar of the Egyptian Army, have been sentenced to death. The chauffeur Mahmud Saleh, who drove the car in which the assassins made their escape, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

Distressing scenes occurred in the courtroom when the sentences were read. Some of the prisoners were removed from the dock struggling and shrieking.

An ex-convict, Neguib Helbawi, who was the chief agent employed by the police in investigating the murder of the Sirdar and who was mainly responsible for the success of the police inqiry, has received a reward of 10,000 Egyptian pounds (about $49,000) which the government offered for the apprehension of the murderers.

RAINFALL USEFUL TO CAVAN FARMERS

Everything is Now Making Rapid Growth—Roadwork Starts Soon.

CAVAN, June 6.—The rainfall during the past few days has done a great amount of good. Everything is now making a rapid growth.

There is a profusion of bloom on the trees, both apples and plums. It is too soon to know yet whether the frost hurt the bloom or not.

Potato and corn planting is practically finished.

The road overseer for Cavan, L. Gibson has been looking over the road divisions to see how much work is required on each division.

He expects to have the stone-crusher in Matchett's pitt, Cavan Centre, in a couple of weeks, as the roads in this division are badly in need of some extra work.

Last Monday, T. J. Lang paid twelve cents in Millbrook for hogs.

Little pigs are still in great demand and a big price is being paid for them, varying in different localities, from fourteen dollars to seventeen dollars a pair.

A great many are looking for calves to veal, thinking that at the present price of butter, it does not pay for the work of milking the cows and making the butter.

They are adopting a way of disposing of the milk which will entail less work and probably bring in more money.

There have been so many severe electrical storms this season and so much damage done in different sections, that more than one farmer is contemplating placing lightning rods on his buildings.

95 YEARS OLD WALKS 8 MILES

Mrs. James McNarry Walks Into Frankford Once Every Week.

WON'T TAKE RIDE

(By a Staff Reporter.)

FRANKFORD, June 8.—One of the most regular business visitors to this village is Mrs. James McNarry, who comes here twice a week to buy her groceries, a fact that is worth remembering for the sole reason that Mrs. McNarry is 95 years old and walks the entire distance from her home, situated half way between Frankford and Stirling, these two places being eight miles apart. Mrs. McNarry makes the round trip in all kinds of weather without resting at the end of her journey.

This is another case of the remarkable vitality of men and women in Central Ontario, whose age exceeds 90 years. Mrs. McNarry has been a widow for over 40 years and has raised a large family, all of whom have married and left home. Since the marriage of her children the mother has preferred to live alone.

It is only a short time since Mrs. McNarry exceeded her record by walking to Stirling with a basket of butter which she disposed of and then went to Frankford, carrying from her home a large basket of eggs. That made a distance of 16 miles in one day by a woman over 90 years old.

Peterboro Man Scores.

There is no more familiar figure on the highway between the two towns. Those who know Mrs. McNarry have long ago abandoned all efforts to induce her to accept a ride. Autoists who are strangers to her, overtaking her on the road, stop their cars and offer her a lift. Without speaking she narrowly scans the face of the driver and then shaking her head, resumes her journey on foot.

Only once in the memory of man did the face of an autoist inspire confidence in the aged pedestrian and she rode into Frankford in the rear seat of his car. That autoist, who became a nine hour wonder in this village, was a travelling man from Peterborough, whose name in connection with this triumph has been lost to posterity.

HASTINGS PERSONALS.

HASTINGS, June 6.—Mrs. Rev. M. L. Hinton and Miss Hazel Macdonald have returned from Ashawa where they attended the Branch Convention of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Bay of Quinte Conference. The Convention was held in both the King street and Simcoe street churches. One pleasing feature of courtesy shown the delegates was the generosity of the Ontario Motors Company, who furnished automobiles to show the visitors the city.

The Women's Catholic League held a Progressive Euchre on Wednesday evening in the rooms. The prizes were won by Mrs. J. J. Collins and Wm. Lynch.

Leonard's Orchestra from Campbellford furnished the music at the weekly dance in Lynch's Hall on Thursday evening.

Miss Mayda Peterseil who has been ill is rapidly recovering.

Reg. Chapman of Keene spent Wednesday at his home here.

Mrs. P. M. Howard is in Ottawa attending the I.O.D.E. Convention.

Rev. M. L. Hinton is in Bellevilel attending Bay of Quinte Conference which convenes in that place during this week.

John English of Asphodel has purchased the farm located in Asphodel of the late Mr. Thos J. Myles.

An auction sale was held on Thursday at the above farm which was very successful.

OBITUARY.

MRS. WM. LINN

BURNBRAE, June 8.—Mrs. Wm. Linn, late of Campbellford, formerly a resident of Rawdon Township passed away at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hay, 8th Con. of Seymour, on Wednesday evening, June 3rd. Deceased who was forty-seven years of age, was a native of Burnbrae. In 1903 she became the wife of Mr. Wm. Linn, and for several years they resided upon the farm in 7th con. of Rawdon. About seven years ago they sold the farm and removed to Campbellford, where they resided until this spring. Mrs. Linn was taken seriously ill last November, and was thought to be slightly improved this spring. However, during the past week she became rapidly weaker and endured a great deal of sufferingbefore the end.

Besides her sorrowing husband and aged parents there remain two sisters, Mrs. Wm. Watson in the west and Miss Nettie at home and six brothers, Andrew of Hoards, Bert and Tom of Burnbrae, John of Campbellford, Kenneth of Niagara and Lorne at home.

Funeral services were held on Friday afternoon at St. Andrew's, Burnbrae. Revs. Hugh Shaw and D. A. McKenzie officiating. Interment in Burnbrae cemetery.

The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved husband and relatives.

Group To Show Friendship English-Speaking Nations

NEW YORK, June 8.—Unveiling of a sculptural group on the portico of Bush House, London, symbolizing the friendship of English-speaking people, will be the outsanding event of the July 4th programme in the British capital this year. Irving T. Bush, who commissioned Malvina Hoffman, the sculptress, to execute the work, will sail June 20 on the Adriatic to attend the ceremonies.

DECISION TO APPOINT CANADIAN AMBASSADOR TO WASHINGTON MEETS CRITICISM FROM ENGLAND

Morning Post Says Envoy of Whole Empire Would Get Better Results.

NAMES MENTIONED

Glasgow Herald Thinks King Will Send Larkin or Belcourt.

LONDON, June 8. (Canadian Press). — The Canadian Government's decision to appoint an Ambassador to Washington does not appeal to the Morning Post, and in an editorial it cites several reasons for taking such a stand. The paper, while it recognizes that on several historical occasions Canadian interests suffered owing to the traditional British policy of placating America at any price, it considers that an Ambassador representing the whole Empire would more likely obtain satisfactory at Washington when the occasion arises than an Ambassador of one section only. The Post points out that the Canadian Minister would be a British subject and His Majesty might consent, on the advice of the Canadian Government, to accredit him for Canada alone, but adds that if the paper interprets the American attitud, rightly, the United States would insist that what is binding on Canada binds the whole Empire, and what binds the Empire binds Canada.

The Post blames the Mother Country, in the first instance, for Canada's tendency along these lines because, it says, it arranged separate representation for herself and the Dominions on the League of Nations.

Anent the decision of the Canadian Government to appoint an Ambassador to Washington, the Glasgow Herald says that, while Premier King declares he is unable to find the right man he has long had in mind, Senator N. A. Belcourt and Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner. The appropriation of $60,000, the Herald says, would barely cover half the expenses connected with the office, and adds that Hon. P. C. Larkin could well afford to make the sacrifice but is fairly comfortable in London for the time being, and whenever he returns to Canada may look forward to a period of rest from his official duties.

VICTOR EMMANUEL CELEBRATES END OF QUARTER CENTURY OF REIGN OVER ITALIAN PEOPLE

Huge Demonstration of Loyalty Marked Anniversary of Accession.

FROM ALL PARTS

Thousands of Officials, Including African Chiefs, Paid Homage to King.

ROME, June 8. (Canadian Press). —Victor Emmanuel III. at the expiration of the first quarter of a century of his reign, received yesterday a popular demonstration which could leave no doubt that, whatever party differences may divide his subjects, they are still united in their satisfaction with the present monarchist form of government and with having that monarchy personified in the House of Savoy.

It was a day of patriotic festivities with a veritable riot of colors.

The participants were drawn from every nook and corner of the Empire. Eight thousand Mayors came from as many cities, towns and hamlets as spokesmen for the millions of subjects. There were also a dozen or more representatives from the various Italian African colonies, who spent the last fortnight on the way to Rome to bespeak the colonial sentiment of loyalty to "The Great White Chief." These representatives lent an Imperial and Oriental note to the demonstration.

Strenuous Day.

For the King the day's ceremonies were strenuous because the program extended almost from sunrise to sunset. The first demonstration began at seven o'clock, when troops assembled in the national stadium, a mile from the city, for the Royal review.

The King, accompanied by the Queen and members of the Royal Family, appeared in the reviewing stand at eight o'clock, and it required two full hours for all the units to file past. Others in the reviewing stand included Premier Mussolini and various members of his Cabinet, the Duke and Duchess of Aosta and members of the diplomatic corps.

The review was one of the most impressive features of the day's ceremonies.

In the afternoon a great parade took place; so many participated that the whole section of the Corso Umberto — a distance of nearly a mile—was given over to the formation of the line of march. Well over one hundred thousand people were in the procession, which might explain why there were so comparatively few onlookers skirting the sidewalks.

The parade was headed by a platoon of Royal Guards, mounted on snow white chargers, whose riders with long silver trumpets heralded the coming of mile on mile of loyal subjects desirous of paying tribute to their Sovereign and receiving his salute. For these expressions of fealty the King, with the members of the Royal family, waited on the balcony over the main entrance of the quirinal palace. As each unit marched across the spacious stone square and dipped the flag in salute, the King acknowledged it with a military salute.

Garibaldi's Veterans.

The scene was particularly touching as the dwindling group of Garibaldi veterans, now some fifty in number, wearing the quaintly shaped service cap and red shirt, marched proudly up to salute the descendant of the monarch they helped so valiantly to enthrone. Thunderous cheers went up, and mothers raised their babies so they might get a glimpse of the stirring sight, while tears welled up in the eyes of many of the older spectators.

The Garibaldians, all above the allotted three-score-years-and-ten, bore themselves vigorously. They were headed by Ezio Garibaldi, grandson of the patriot.

While the Fascist organization, as such, did not participate in the demonstration, it was noticeable that a large proportion of those in the parada were Fascisti, as the many delegations from towns and villages were composed of Fascisti and "Giovanezza" was the familiar marching tune. No unpleasant incident was reported from any district.

Scared, but unhurt, George Warfel of Erie, Pa., crawled out from under his auto when the roof of the Erieanna, a dance boat, came hurtling through the air and onto his car during a wind storm.

THREE KILLED COLORADO GALE

More Than Hundred Buildings Destroyed in 25-Mile Area.

TWENTY HURT

WRAY, Colo., June 8.—A gale of tornado-like proportions late Saturday swept through an area of about 25 miles in this section, demolishing more than a hundred buildings and injuring a score of persons, reports here yesterday indicated. The authorities here received unconfirmed reports of three fatalities in outlying farming communities.

WARKWORTH PERSONALS.

WARKWORTH, June 8.—Mr. and Mrs. H. Aylesworth accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Garbutt, spent Wednesday in Belleville.

Mr. R. Babcock of Frankford was in town Wednesday on business.

Mr. W. A. Baker of Hastings was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Shirley Jackson is spending a couple of days in Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Peterson were in Belleville, on Wednesday afternoon.

GREEK VESSELS SURROUND ISLE

Brigands Hold Samos and Demand Election of New Assembly.

SEIZED TREASURY.

ATHENS, June 8.—A Greek naval squadron yesterday surrounded the Island of Samos, lying off the west coast of Asia Minor, which is in the hands of two brigands, the Vafiades brothers, and their adherents.

Troops were to be landed on the island last night to put down the uprising.

The revolutionaries have demanded the resignation of the government and the election of a new assembly. They have liberated all prisoners, who have joined them in the revolt, and also have seized the funds of the treasury of the island.

The Island of Samos fell into the hands of the brigands, the Vafiades brothers and their followers Saturday. They took the authorities prisoners, occupied public buildings and cut off the lines of communication.

The Vafiades brothers, who, evading arrest had taken refuge on one of the Dodecanese Islands, succeeded in landing at Samos surreptiously ad according to meagre information available, their followers evidently were awaiting them. It is not known in Athens whether the movement is engineered by political reactionaries or is just an attempt by the Vafides to seize authority.

BISHOP WARREN DIED IN OTTAWA

Head of Holiness Movement Died After Short Illness.

AT CAMP MEETING.

KINGSTON, June 8.—(Special)—Word was received here Saturday to the effect that Bishop Warren of the Holiness Movement Church with headquarters at Ottawa who had been attending the camp meeting there was found dead in bed shortly after 8 o'clock that morning. Bishop Warren complained of feeling ill on Friday while in attendance at the meetings. The deceased was about 60 years of age and had been bishop of this order for the past eight years. It is believed that death was due to heart failure.

NO CHANGES IN ASSESSOR'S ROLL

Cavan Council Refused Appeals—Council Meeting Also Held.

PAID ACCOUNTS

MILLBROOK, June 8—Pursuant to statute the Cavan Council met recently as a court of revision to hear and determine appeals against the assessment roll of 1925.

The members were all present.

Having made and subscribed to the requisite oath, the Reeve was appointed chairman, on the motion of Deputy-Reeve Fallis and Councillor Hooton.

Messrs. H. McFee, J. W. Howson and S. Pritchard, appealed against the assessment of dogs. No action was taken by the Court in regard to these appeals.

Hooton—Fallis.—The assessment roll as revised is the assessment roll for the year 1925, and the clerk certifies it as being correct.

Council Meeting.

A regular meeting of the council was also held, with the members all present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A communication was read from F. C. Patterson, district representative of agriculture, asking for a grant for the annual school fairs.

On motion of Councillors Hooton and McKnight, the regular grant of $25 was voted to the school fairs.

CHURCH HISTORY IN THE MAKING AS VARIOUS BODIES WIND UP AFFAIRS BEFORE DAY OF UNION

Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists Are Making Final Settlements.

UNION WEDNESDAY

Non-Concurrents Will Form New General Assembly on Thursday.

TORONTO, June 8. (Canadian Press).—Church history is in the making in Toronto this week. The ensuing six days are to witness the conclusion of the last General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church as at present constituted, the last sessions of the Congregational Union in Canada, the last national gathering of Methodists, the consummation on Wednesday of Church Union, the first sessions of the United Church governing body, and the organization by anti-Unionist Presbyterians of what they term the continuing Presbyterian Church.

The Congregational Union meets on Monday and Tuesday to make final settlement of their affairs before entering Union. On Tuesday the 150 delegates from the Methodist Church to the United Church General Council, with an equal number chosen by the conferences, meet to hear officially of what has been done during the past year to make effective the plans for uniting the three denominations. On Wednesday eight thousand people are expected to fill the Arena when the new Church formally comes into corporate being. Business sessions of the General Council will be held Thursday and following days.

Non-Concurrents Meet.

Non - concurring Presbyterians from all parts of Canada meet in congress the first three days of the week to hear reports of what has been done and what it is hoped to do. Thursday, when Union will have become an accomplished fact, the non-concurrents meet to form a new General Assembly, to elect a new Moderator, and to organize for carrying on as an independent denomination.

The fifty-first General Assembly will conclude its work on Tuesday and will dissolve. Many of the commissioners on Saturday afternoon attended a garden party on the grounds of Knox College, and others visited the museum and University buildings. Sunday sermons were preached in the Assembly Church by Rev. R. K. Hanna, of Dublin, and Rev. Archibald Main, of Glasgow, and in the afternoon a special Communion service was conducted by the Moderator, Rev. Dr. George C. Pidgeon.

BETHANY PERSONALS

BETHANY, June 6.—Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Greenlaw, Dranoel Station are on a motor trip to Midland.

Dr. Louis Bigelow of Barrie has returned home after spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bigelow.

Rev. Jas. McMullen of Barrie has been spending a few holidays with relatives, on his way to Bay of Quinte Conference.

Mr. Claude Porteous is engaged with the garage business with Mr. S. Armstrong at Welcome.

Miss Gladys McKinley of Toronto is holidaying with her parents at Lifford.

Mr. Geo. Dawe, Roseneath is the guest of his brother, Mr. F. C. Dawe.

When the fire bells ring, and the hook and ladder comes tearing around the corner, goes flying by and turns another corner close at hand, what is a fellow going to do? Well, that's just what I did. I quit making notes about the cat bird scandal and pocketed my book and ran to the fire.

I had been sitting on the side walk in the small town, making notes of the comical doings in the garden owned by the kind lady, and will, of course, tell Nature Lore readers all about it, but a fire is a fire and this one was a surprise. It was no fire in the ordinary sense, but rather a lot of fireworks.

I had just left the catbirds, thinking that they were interesting, but listen—the ladders were not moved an inch when I got around that corner, the old hose wagon was there with the hose ready but the chief had his hat pushed back on his head and was towering over a little fussy old lady, his legs apart, his hands on his hips and his head down, almost poked into her face. She had put in a false alarm!

They argued back and forth. The chief was angry and the dear old lady was more than his match. There was something in the quiet determination of the old lady that made me think I was glad I was alive to see the fun.

I puahed my way right into the front, close to the chief and here is what the whole trouble was.

A pair of Robins had tried to build a next on almost every shutter of a big stone house near the sidewalk, and every time they started, the house owners tore down the nest. Finally the robins built the nest on a projection, where nobody could reach it, and took a chance on the young ones landing on the ground safely, for a forced landing from away up there meant injury.

So there they stayed. They had young ones and it was about time for the young to leave the nest.

Little Mrs. Murphy, belonging to the aristocracy of the town and beloved of all, was just passing the house when the first young robin tried to make a safe landing. Mrs. Murphy knew nothing about the nest but she saw the young one make a slithering sort of flight and land hard and lie still. She went over and picked it up and it seemed badly shaken up. The old birds raised a bad row and one thing led to another, until Mrs. Murphy was in the house having hot words with the people inside.

Mrs. Murphy could not persuade them to help the birds, as they considered the robins a muss and a nuisance. They even wouldn't let her use the phone to get the fire brigade to come, and declared that they wanted no ladders or crowd either.

Mrs. Murphy left the house in a flurry. She was alarmed, for the young ones still in the nest would possibly be killed in landing, so she pulled the fire alarm on the corner. I got there just as the chief was demanding explanations and Mrs. Murphy demanding action and the people in the house, demanding her arrest. Up the street came the chief of police. Sent for by the house owners. For a few minutes the robin nest was not noticed at all. It just so happened that the chief of police was Patrick Hogan, and when he saw Mrs. Murphy in the thick of the trouble and that he was expected to arrest her for sending in a false alarm, he scratched his head and did some thinking.

The crowd was clearly with Mrs. Murphy and some of the firemen already had ladders up.

"Why, Mrs. Murphy," said Pat, "Haven't I been after telling you these many years that if ever you were in trouble to just send for me? And here you go and send for me by ringing the red box in mistake for the blue police box—hey! boys, hold that ladder and I'll move that robin nest a little closer to the ground, so the poor little dears of young ones will not get hurt if they fall."

But the chief of the Fire Brigade took the hint and was up the ladder in a jiffy, doing exactly as Pat and Mrs. Murphy told him and the robin nest was placed on a safe ledge above the front door, with the three remaining young ones still in it and the first one close beside it. And the old birds fed them before the ladder was down.

So Mrs. Murphy got the robins out of trouble and Patrick Hogan's wits saved her, and when the people in the house learned that birds keep close to us for protection from their enemies, they too were pleased with the day's work and now let the robins do as they please.

So, after this strange fire was over I made some more notes in my book and here they are.

"ROBIN AT THE DOOR"

By Wallace Havelock Robb.

Dear old Robin Red-breast,
What ever would we do?
If all that mud and mussy nest,
Did not belong to you.

You're just a bossy thing;
You bully other birds:
We really like you when you sing,
But not your scoldish words.

You do not own this place!
You make an awful mess!
Your manners are a bird disgrace—
A nuisance—nothing less!

Our shutters now won't close,
Your nest is in the way;
You have your nerve, and goodness knows,
You have enough to say!

What ever will we do,
When all your family flies?
The lonliness will make us blue,
Without your anxious cries.

So stay here all you please,
With all your grassy nest,
The trouble—trash and such as these,
Belong to your red vest.

It's trash—but that's alright—
We wish we had you more.
O, Robin Red-breast, what delight,
To have you at our door.

TO TRY FARM HAND.

Committed For Manslaughter—Quarrel With Employer.

REGINA, Sask., June 8.—(Canadian Press).—A. S. Peterson, Danish farm hand, formerly in the employ of George Greenwood, of Alida, Sask., was sent up for trial here Friday on the charge of manslaughter of his employer. It was stated that in the course of an early morning affray on the farm, Greenwood threw heavy boards at the accused who retaliated by throwing a pitchfork. One prong of the fork entered Greenwood's head and pierced his skull and he died in hospital here.

MY EUROPEAN EXCURSIONS

By Edwin Robert Petre

THE LAST PRIMITIVES IN EUROPE.

Lapland is in a sense the wonderland of Sweden. It is there that the sun in summer may be seen due north at midnight and due south at noon. Then nature blooms with a supreme effort, as if to make up for the long winter night six months later, when, for several weeks, the sun will not rise at all.

Travel and you will find the Lapps, mysterious nomads of the North. They are the last primitives in Europe. They live in tents of the type that has not been improved for centuries, and follow their herds of reindeer back and forth, up the mountain plateaus in the summer, down in the valleys in the winter. They are perfectly harmless, and the tourist can wander among them almost at will, bartering for curious reindeer skin shoes or horn objects which are the products of their handicraft.

I was interested in seeing the marvelous iron mines. The one at Kiruna is easily accessible to the tourist, and there he will see how a whole mountain is carved away from the top, slice after slice, and virtually all the material obtained is hauled away in freight cars, because it contains 60 to 70 per cent pure iron.

THE GROTTO OF HAN.

No tourist takes a holiday in Belgium without paying a visit to the famous Grotto of Han, one of the most beautiful spectacles in Europe, which is visited every year by hundreds and thousands of sightseers. The nearest rail point is Rochefort.

After making the ascent from the village of Han-sur-Lesse by tram to the Faule Rocks, whence is obtained a magnificent view of the Ardennes, the traveler enters the Grotto, and for two hours can contemplate fresh wonders at every step, wonders which have been fashioned at the caprices of centuries of time. The magnitude and the ornamentation of the halls, and the gigantic and curious forms of the stalactites and stalagmites, are beyond all description. The exit from the grotto, in a canoe, which forms the culminating point of the famous excursion and the sudden reappearance of daylight, framed in verdure, which so strikingly cuts across the absolute obscurity whence one emerges, leaves upon the mind an indefinable impression of coming to the last page of Arabian Nights.

MAHARAJAH DEAD.

Gwaleor Prince Passed Away Suddenly—Cremated in Modern Style.

PARIS, June 8—(Canadian Press) The Maharajah of Gwalior one of India's richest and the most powerful prince died suddenly Friday. He was cremated in modern style Saturday wearing his royal robes and with all his jewels, after efforts had failed to have his body burned on a great open air funeral pyre in Paris in accordance with his religious rites.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burto

Gloria took the news of Wayburn's marriage as she might have taken the news of his death—standing very straight and still. Too hurt to cry! Too shocked to say a word!

So he had married Sonya Chotek yesterday . . . .

There was a strained look in her eyes as she turned them from Sonya's broken photograph to Wayburn's face. They searched it as if it could tell her all she wanted to know.

At last she found her voice. "How long have you been in love with her?

Wayburn smiled. For quite a long time, if you must know," he said. "Months."

It began to dawn upon Gloria that she had been treated shamefully by Wayburn.

He had made love to her when he had really been in love with Sonya Chotek. And he had borrowed money from her to follow Sonya Chotek here and marry her!

Gloria groaned aloud. Oh, what a fool she had made of herself! For deep in her heart, she had always known that Stan truly didn't care about her . . . .

Perhaps if she had scorned him, laughed at him, he would be on his knees to her still! For that was the way with men: they wanted most what they couldn't have! . . They spent their lives wishing for the moon. The fruit that hung highest on the tree . . . that was the fruit they craved. The woman who belonged to somebody else was the woman they desired above all other women!

. . . She had been too easy for Wayburn. She had always been at his beck and call, just as she was here now, this very minute!

"You coward!" she flared up at him, "all the time you were telling me how crazy you were about me you knew you were going to marry another woman! . . . Why, you're nothing but a crook!"

Wayburn's smile widened.

And all the time you were letting me make love to you, you were married to another man!" he said. "You were doing a little double-crossing, yourself, I'd say!"

Gloria couldn't find a word to say. She knew that he was telling the truth . . . unvarnished, and unpleasant to listen to!

"The wonder to me is that Gregory ever married you," Wayburn went on "I can't understand any man ever taking you seriously, Gloria. . . . I never did, you know. Not for a minute. I had the low-down on you right from the start.

"The low-down on me?" Gloria asked him, "what do you mean?"

"Oh, I'd seen your kind of woman before. The world's full of them," Wayburn went on insolently. "Lightweights . . . that's the way men size you up! Dollas to play around with for a while. . . ."

Gloria picked up her hat and began to put it on. She didn't have to stay here to be insulted any longer.

Wayburn spoke again. "You're a member of the great sisterhood that takes everything and gives nothing in return," he said.

"You say that! You!" she cried. "What have I ever taken from you, I'd like to know! Nothing but a lot of applesauce!"

"I wasn't talking about myself. I was speaking of your husband," Wayburn said clearly. "You've never made him any decent return for what he's given you. Have you?"

"You're a great one to talk!" Gloria answered. "You were glad enough to ride around in the car he'd given me, weren't you? You didn't mind spoiling my life with him just for the fun of the thing, did you? . . . And now you have the nerve to pull this holier-than-thou stuff on me!—Oh, it's too funny . . . ."

Her voice rose shrilly on a high wave of hysteria. She laughed and laughed, until she was weak. She lay limply in her chair, with her arms hanging at her sides. She was beyond tears, done for.

She heard the door of the room open. She looked up. Wayburn was going out She stood up then and laid one hand on his arm. But he pulled away from her. "No," he said. The door closed on him.

Moments ticked by. After a while she pulled herself together, and got up to go.

Gloria had no feeling in her as she left Stanley Wayburn's boarding house. She was so terribly hurt that she was numb to her own pain.

She walked along block after block without knowing what she was doing. She stopped sometimes, to look into shop windows—but only because she had always loved to look into shop windows.

It was after seven when she got back to her hotel. She walked past the open door of the dining-room. Her own room was dark.

Without turning on the lights, she flung herself down on the hard hotel bed. The best thing that could have happened would have been to cry herself to sleep. But she could neither cry nor sleep.

An hour passed. She got up and undressed. Her movements were slow, and she moved without a sound. She felt as if the person she loved had died, and that the body was in the next room—just beyond the wall. She must be very still. . . .

Toward morning she feel asleep.

When she awoke the sun was high.

Gloria lay in bed trying to make up her mind whether to go home or to go and hunt a job in New York.

She looked into the mirror. Her face showed no sign of the strain she had been through.

And Gloria was sure she had never been prettier in her whole life than she was that May morning, when she rang the doorbell of Kit Cameron's apartment in Fifty-Ninth street.

Kit was having breakfast in bed. She was in black satin pajamas. A green ribbon banded her hair that was like black satin above her black eyes. Her smooth skin was the color of cream.

"Why, it's little Glory Gordon!" she exclaimed, when the elderly maid led Gloria into the big, airy bedroom.

"Bring another cup and some fresh coffee for Miss Gordon, please Elsie," Then she turned to Gloria.

"What in the world are you doing here?" she asked.

"Hunting a job," Gloria answered briefly.

"A job! What do you want with a job?" Kit asked in surprise. "I thought you'd married a millionaire back home."

"So did I." Gloria laughed. "But I got stung."

Kit took her hand sympathetically.

"Poor Glory! You found out he didn't have one cent to rub up against another, I suppose," she said. "That's the way with fellows, nowadays. . . . They all look as if they have a bank account, and a house-boat at Palm Beach But there's nothing to most of them but a line of talk and a fur overcoat that ain't even paid for! . . Buttonshoe boys I call 'em!"

Gloria frowned a little. She didn't want Kit to think that Dick was that kind of a man. Buttonshoe boy, indeed!

"Oh, it wasn't the money that made the trouble, Kit," she said quickly. "We just didn't hit it off. . . Don't get it into your head that I married him for nothing but money. I thought I was pretty keen about him at first."

Kit sighed, as she sugared her grapefruit.

"That's the way with love. It wears out too soon," she said. "A girl ought to marry for money."

"Only, it's so hard to find," she went on wistfully. "Most of these 'heavy-sugar papas' with real money are tied up to some hatchet-faced wife who's hanging on to 'em like grim death! . . . A girl has a hard time these days, especially in the show business."

The show business! Ah, now they were getting down to brass tacks!

"Kit," Gloria began. "I came to ask you to help me get a job on the stage. Do you suppose you would introduce me to Ginfield?"

Kit widened her green eyes.

"Well, you sure have your nerve!" she said. "Ginfield's girls are supposed to be the best-looking girls in the world!"

Gloria narrowed her eyes. Could it be that Kit didn't think she was pretty enough for a Ginfield chorus girl?

"You used to say I was better looking than you, Kit," she said at last.

"I know. But I'm a type! Pure Spanish! Ginfield says so," Kit said with pride. "And . . . aren't you getting the least bit too fat, dear?"

She looked across the room into the mirror above the dressing-table. She ran a hand down her own exquisite flatness.

"I'll tell you what!" she said suddenly. "I'm going down to the shop for rehearsal in a little while. I'll take you along, Glory. And if Ginfield is there, I'll introduce you to him. That's the best I can do for you. . . . And after all, some girls spend years just trying to see Ginfield."

Gloria was delighted.

* * *

The Gloria who walked into Herman Ginfield's office was sure of her own charm.

She was confident that Ginfield world jump at the chance to put her in his chorus of beauties.

"Let's see," Ginfield began. "You're the girl that Cameron told me about. Gloria Gordon?"

"Yes," Gloria answered, seating herself beside his desk.

"Stand up," he said sharply. Gloria stood.

Ginfield leaned back, and stuck his thumbs in the armholes of his vest. He looked her over from head to foot.

"Take off your hat," he ordered.

Gloria took it off, and shook her head to fluff out her hair.

"Dance?" he asked. "Sing?"

"A little of both, thanks," Gloria answered. She knew that it was not dancing or singing, but her looks, that counted with Ginfield!

She waited breathlessly while he clapped a brown derby hat on his bald head, and stood up. He looked at her indifferently.

"We're putting on a summer show pretty soon," he said, after a moment. "If we can use you in it, I'll let you know. . . . Thanks for coming in."

A summer show! A bum summer show! . . . Gloria could have wept with disappointment. Her heart was as heavy as a lump of lead.

She knew that she had not made a "hit" with Ginfield!

She knew that she would never be in the famous "Gayeties" chorus! . . . That dream was smashed forever!

She was ashamed to go out into the dusty hallway and face Kit, who was waiting there for her.

"He didn't want me," she said hopelessly.

"Don't take it too hard, Glory," Lit comforted her. "You just don't happen to be the type Ginfield wants. Try the other managers."

ENGLISH WOMEN ARE POOR COOKS

Regard Cooking as Boring, Says Famous Physician in Denunciation.

NOT AS AN ART

LONDON, June 8.—(Associated Press).—Announcement was made recently that the London County Council had arranged to start three special centres where girls would be taught to cook. This news was made known simultaneously with the denunciation of middle-class cookery by Sir Alfred Fripp, surgeon-in-ordinary to the King, who aroused the ire of many women by his assertion that most of it was nothing short of "abominable."

Sir Alfred said publicly: "If there is one thing which makes for the commonness, dullness, and even boringness of an ordinary middle-class table more than the abominable cooking of the English women, I would be glad to know what it is."

But there were some women here who agreed with the celebrated surgeon. Lady Nott-Bower said: "A very large proportion of English women are frightfully bored with cooking, while French, Italian and German women are always interested in it. The consequence is that, in this country, cooking is looked upon as a rather irksome duty, while in France and Italy it is regarded as a fine art."

C. Herman Senn, of the Food Association, asserts that one of the failings of the middle-class housewives of England is that they are in the habit of buying the best and most expensive cuts of meats, as is also the custom in the United States, while in France, Germany and Italy the women know how to make the least expensive pieces into nourishing and tempting dishes.

Lady Trustram Eve, one of the leaders in the movement to teach young women the art of cooking, said recently: "The trouble is that at the present time we have too few trained cooks. Owing to the servant problem, many persons are now doing cooking who have really had no instruction in it. In the London City Council we have been considering how many thousand persons a year we will be able to train as cooks. That there is a demand for their services has been shown by the number of housewives who already have applied for our young women graduates.

"There is very little variety in what is served in the English middle-class homes, and the average housewife has no idea what is meant by vitamins and other food values. Much of the housekeeping money is spent in buying what is believed to be good food, but what is in reality of little value from the point of view of building up bone and muscle. Menus are monotonous, and the housewife clings with almost pathetic faith to the English tradition of roast beef and leg of mutton. It is all nonsense to say that a man should have a pound of grilled steak."

Lessons designed to remedy the monotonous meals in the average home will be one of the aims of the newly operated municipal courses in domestic science, says Lady Trustram, who avers that if necessary she will roll up her sleeves, don an apron and teach a class herself.

ARM WEATHER BOTHERS NORTH

Five Days in a Row Thermometer Wzent Aove 85 at North Bay.

HIGHEST SATURDAY.

NORTH BAY, Ont., June 8. Canadian Press. — For the fifth consecutive day northern Ontario experienced a temperature above 85, which is hot for this part of the province.

While Tuesday last was oppressive due to the great humidity, the highest temperature of the warm spell was reached Saturday. One point 20 miles tast of here reported 94 at four o'clock on Saturday and 92 at 2 Sunday.

Temperatures in the nineties were reported from practically all points between Sturgeon Falls and Mattawa. Cobalt on Sunday afternoon was "extremely hot," according to a report from there. Citizens of North Bay flocked to the bathing peaches yesterday and there were very few persons seen on the streets in the afternoon.

FLOWERING SHRUBS.

June is the month of flowers among the shrubs and in them we find endless variety in form and color. At this season therefore is the time to study shrubs at first hand, rather than buy them later on, from the nurseryman's catalogue description or that of his agent who has a gift of eloquence. We have been planting Spiraea Van Houttei and Japanese Barberry too frequently. Not that there is anything against them as they are splendid shrubs but that they are becoming too common and consequently not appreciated, so lack individuality.

Why not investigate some of the other equally satisfactory spireas. There are a great many from the low Anthony Waterer, bumalda, tomentosa, lemoineii, albiflora and latifolia; the medium growing as salicifolia, sorbifolia and henryii to Spirea arguta, prunifolia, alba and douglasii.

The Philadelphus or Mock Orange is a shrub that has been much improved. Instead of the old-fashioned "Syringa" we have many new forms with larger single flowers and those in clusters. Some have greater fragrance. Of the best varieties are Voie Lactee, and the Lemoine hybrids, erectus, Avalanche, Bouquet Blanc, Candelebre, Mont Blanc (very Fragrant), Manteau d'Hermine, Pavillon Blanc (Fragrant) Gerbe de Neige (double), Virginal (double) and Mer de Glace (double).

The old lilac also has been superceded by many fine named varieties that are well worth studying. For variety in foliage we have Syringa josikae, persica, vulgaris (common) and the very tall Japanese Lilac which blooms much later than the others. Of the newer varieties of lilac there are singles and doubles in many shades. A good list is as follows: Singles, white-Frau Bertha Dammann, Marie Legraye Purplish Lilac—Goliath. Dark Red—Charles X. Dark purple—Ludwig spaeth Negro and Congo. Double Flowered.—White—Mme. Abel Chatenay, Mme. Casimir-Perier, Mme. Lemoine;—Blue,—President Carnot.—Lilac pink,—Lemoine Purple — Charles Joly.

There are several Caraganas to choose from and yet the arborescens is practically the only one used. Caragana microphylla, fruticosa, chamlagu and grandiflora are equally good and one can thus obtain variety in height. C. Pygmea (erecta) would be splendid used as a low formal hedge and would require no more clipping than the Japanese Barberry.

The Japanese Roses contain some very fine doubles in varying shades as (white) Blanche Double de Coubert; (light pink) Nova Zembla; (dark pink) Conrad Ferdinand Meyer and (deep red) Charles Frederick Worth.

Though not a complete list, the shrubs mentioned will serve to suggest a line of thought and investigation. But how is this to be accomplished you will ask. One must make a start and there are many places to look for them. Your neighbor or those along your street may have something new to you and when you see an unfamiliar shrub, enquire the name. The local nurseryman's establishment is a splendid place if the visits are rightly timed. If possible study the work of some good Landscape Architect. By browsing around a surprising amount of information can be gained.

Do not stop, however, at gaining a knowledge of the bloom. Study the height (final height if possible), the habit and location of the shrubs as well. So many beginners do not know what to place in a shady corner or the shady side of the house and many failures result. Also little is known of the ultimate spread of a shrub and its height, so that many shrubs are crowded into a small space and have to be badly mutilated to keep them from encroaching on the space outside or covering windows. Suitability of combinations of shrubs is a worthwhile study but requires a good deal of experience.

WOMEN FINISH A WEEK'S WORK

Made in Peterborough Fair Successful Largely Through Women's Efforts.

CLOSING NIGHT.

The Made-in-Peterborough Fair wound up on Saturday night, with a good closing crowd for a very successful week. Patrons of the various attractions were as numerous as ever, and the refreshment booths in particular did a rushing business, with plenty of patronage for the Cafe Chantant and the busy fortune-tellers, members of the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League.

In the Cafe Chantant, the programme consisted of a repetition of the Spanish dance by four members of Miss Littlefield's dancing class; the Misses Myrtle and Elda Bradley, Florence Waudby and Lily Gregory, with piano accompaniment by Miss Gwen Donley; a Spanish dance by Miss Jessie Hodgson, accompanied by Mrs. Hodgson; songs by the Misses Ellen Eagleson and Georgia Cuffe, the latter with violin obligato by Jerry Collins, and Mr. N. Staples, accompanied by the Misses Cora Smith and Marjorie Turner, and selections by the Juvenile Jazz Orchestra.

The orchestra, under direction of Professor Gliddon, dispensed music from the orchestra stand.

The evening's entertainment wound up with an adjournment of many of the Fair patrons and those taking part in the various attractions, to the Pavilion at Chemong, where a well-attended dance was held under the patronage of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., with Miss Geraldine Glover in charge.

EASTERN STAR HELD A SOCIAL

Members of L.O.B.A. Lodge Spent Pleasant Evening in Hall.

GAMES AND DANCES.

The members and friends of the Eastern Star, L.O.B.A. Lodge No 325 spent a very enjoyable time in Victoria Hall Friday evening. Despite the intense heat of the day the hall was very comfortable and prettily decorated with flowers.

The evening's entertainment was conducted by W. Berturn as chairman, assisted by Brother Geo. Reynolds, Brother Thos. Sproats, and Brother J. Brown. The prize winners were as follows for cards—1st prize for Ladies won by Mrs. Hartman; 1st prize for Gentleman won by J. Brown. Prize won for best speech lasting five minutes by Fred Burnham; prize won for best joke, Robt. Guthery; prizes won for dancing The Irish Jig by Miss Verna Huffman and Miss Jeane Maconomy. Prizes won for dancing the Soldier's Sweetheart won by Miss Leeta Staples and Miss Jeane Crowe.

Excellent music for the dancers was supplied by Mrs. J. Foster. Vocal selections was rendered by Mr. Ridgarde, accompanied by Miss Ridgarde and which was much enjoyed by all. A very dainty lunch was then served under the supervision of Mrs. Ada Huffman as Convenor, assisted by Miss Myrtle Frost and Mrs. Berturn. Much appreciation and credit is due to the Brothers of Eastern Star, L.O.B.A. Lodge for their kindness and loyalty to their lodge in making the evening event such an enjoyable time and also to the Social Committee for their dainty lunch. The Worthy Mistress then extended a very hearty vote of thanks to all those whom so kindly assisted in anyway and the evening events came to a close by singing "God Save The King."

L.O.B.A. VISIT.

Vimy Ridge Ladies at Havelock—New Banner Presented.

The Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. paid a visit to Havelock to celebrate with them their third anniversary.

A very pleasant feature of the evening was the unveiling of a splendid banner by Brothre Porter, Past Grand Preceptor, from Ontario East, and a splendid address by Sister Cancard, Worthy Mistress of Almonte and formerly of Ireland, which was enjoyed by all.

After two degrees were exemplified by the officers of Vimy Ridge all sat down to an excellent banquet prepared by the sisters of Havelock. Everyone returned to Peterborough, reporting a good time. Havelock L.O.B.A. will make a return visit to Vimy Ridge on June 16.

After the presentation of "The Right Word," the one-act comedy given at the Made-in-Peterboro Fair last Friday evening, the cast entertained their friends at the Capitol Theatre. Mr. A. G. Crowe made a splendid host, and an enjoyable evening was spent in dancing and an impromptu concert, during which Mr. J. M. Gaiger provided some very much appreciated original readings. Excellent music was supplied by Harold Armstrong's orchestra.

Weddings

The marriage of Miss Kathrine Hayes to Frank Guerin took place at Holy Angel's Church, Buffalo, on June 2. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Gorman and Mr. Arthur Shannon was best man. After the ceremony a breakfast was served at the Hotel Touraine, and the couple left for a visit in Cleve- they will reside at 191 Auburn Avenue, Buffalo.

SISSON—NURSE.

A quiet June wedding was solemnized on Friday morning at Christ Church, Omemee, when Luella, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. S. Nurse, Fowler's Corners, was united in marriage to Karl Deavit son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Sisson Bethany, Ont. Rev. Mr. Weir officiated.

The bride wore a navy blue silk autumn-cord ensemble suit with hat to match.

After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, the happy couple left for Montreal, where they embarked on the "Regina" for European points. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Sisson will reside in Bethany.

WAR WITH MRS. VANDERBILT.

There's blood in the moon, in London, and Mrs. Harry Brown (above) is doing battle. Her antagonist is Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Sr., and both want to be known as London's most popular hostess. Mrs. Brown, widow of a rich Pittsburg coal baron, gave a party from midnight to 5 a.m. on Derby night.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

Something a little out of the ordinary is the recipe for charlotte russe, from the recipe book of Mrs. H. W. Morphet, 458 Hunter street west:

Soak one-quarter box gelatine in one-half cup milk, for twenty minutes. When dissolved, set the cup in hot water, using the gelatine lukewarm.

Into one pint of whipped cream, add onehalf cup pulverized sugar, a little salt and the well-beaten whites of two eggs. Flavor with vanilla. Add gelatine and strain while pouring in. Stir until the gelatine is well mixed with the cream, and when nearly stiff enough to drop, turn into a mould with lady fingers or narrow slices of sponge cake.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

COVER WHILE SWEEPING

Always before you sweep see that no food is left uncovered in the room.

ALWAYS MEASURE

Measure all ingredienst for pastry. Most of the failures are due to incorrect measuring and hence improper proportions.

USE LITTLE AMMONIA

Wash out the bathtub frequently in water to which a few drops of household ammonia has been added. Wipe dry with a cotth.

COMES IN HANDY

Always keep cheese on hand in the ice box during the summer. With crackers it makes the ideal dessert after a light meal.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

MONDAY, JUNE 8—Persons born today usually are clever with their hands. They might be able to draw well or make a skillful surgeon. If they follow trade, they will make a good watchmaker, sign painter or interior decorator. If a woman, the chances are favorable for unusual success as a stenographer, or modiste. Most people born today have a good business head, although they are a little too inclined to trust others. They are fond of home life and should marry young.

A telescope has been invented which, although only five inches long, will magnify four and a half times.

Hedda Hoyt Talks About Things That Interest The Busy Woman Of 1925

"Smart" Women

NEW YORK, June 8 (United Press). —Fashion writers are forever referring to what "smart women" are wearing! "Smart" doesn't seem a correct word to describe a well-dressed woman. Many of us are smart in the true sense of the word, although our clothes are not sufficently good-looking to cause comment.

"Smart" as popularly used in fashions, refers to women of the Four Hundred and many of these are actually dowdier than their husbands' stenographers. According to the dictionary, smart means "sharp:clever, brilliant, witty, vivacious, etc. A social celebrity may be all of these, but so also may be a chorus girl, a stenographer or the wife of a fish monger.

A smartly dressed woman is one who is cleverly dressed, in perfect taste and in the current style. "A smart woman" on the other hand, may be a perfect dowd. Somehow "smart," as applying to the elite, acts as an insult to the mentalities of the rest of us.

A New York newspaper stated that "smart women were not wearing very short skirts." This meant that the staid members of New York's aristocracy were not wearing short skirts. And if one dared to tell the truth, one would say that many of them have ungainly ankles and realize that their legs are best when under cover.

Women who really look smartly dressed these days wear short skirts. Those with brains govern their skirt lengths by their size, age and by the shapeliness of their ankles. Smartness in dress never means extremes. A ridiculous style is never a smart style.

From now on when we use the word "smart" in reference to well dressed femininity we shall mean a woman who, regardless of her station in life, wears both the ordinary and unusual gown in a distinctive manner, one whose bearing and grooming places her above the average. The elite may slide under another adjective!

STRAIGHT TALK TO JUNE BRIDES

Solid Basis is Needed to Make Marriage a Real Success.

BY CYNTHIA GREY

This is a straight talk to June brides . . . to you thousands of girls who are marrying in this month of moonlight and magic and mating.

You are sure that nothing in the world really matters but love, aren't you?

And you are more than certain that marriage is just love, aren't you?

But it isn't. It is love . . . plus a good many things!

Love is sweet, but it wouldn't do for a steady diet any more than chocolate or sugar or any other cloying sweet. It's like the frosting on the cake. There must be something solid and wholesome underneath to give it substance.

There must be understanding and sympathy and teamwork.

Love doesn't bring absolute understanding of the loved one. Men and women belong to two wholly different sexes. They live in two totally different worlds.

It's not easy for a wife to understand her husband.

When yours telephones you a couple of months from now to tell you he's going to stay downtown for supper with "the boys," the chances are that you will be hurt.

You will think that your husband no longer loves you, or else that he is a gay dog and you are just finding him out.

Neither is the case. Your husband is only returning to his normal life that was interrupted by his honeymoon with you.

And this return is inevitable. A normal man needs his men friends just as you need your girl chums to go shopping with.

So don't "bawl out" your husband when he spends all Sunday afternoon playing golf with that bore, Jim Biffer. If you have tried to understand his preference for Jim and can't, let it go a that.

Be Practical.

Then, suppose that some night when you are all dressed up in your raspberry crepe to go out dancing with the Browns, your very own husband comes home with a headache. . . . They often do this. And usually the headache is a real one!

But it's not easy to sympathize with a husband on an occasion like this. Very often the bride will doubt that her best-beloved really has a headache.

Don't make this mistake. Once a man thinks that you don't believe him, you have destroyed your greatest power over him: and that is your touching confidence in him.

The thing for you to do in a case like this is to bring out the ice-bag and the hot-water bottle. Put the one on his fevered brow, the other at his feet . . . and telephone the Browns that you'll have to go dancing with them some night next week instead of this one!

Money is another important part of married life, as many a June bride discovers along about October when it's time to lay in the Winter Coal and pick out the Fall suit!

She knows that Benedict loves her votedly, and that he'll pay her bills cheerfully for that very good reason. But has she stopped to wonder how many georgette dresses and chiffon stockings he can buy after the rent is paid, and the grocer and butcher have been appeased?

Then there is the all-important question of privacy. Because you are a man's wife, you have no right to be with him like his shadow . . . at all times.

There are men who cannot shave when anyone else is in the room with them.

There are men who do not like to be disturbed by chatter while they are reading the morning paper. As an old popular song once pointed out: "There are times when one wants to be alone."

Respect your husband's rights as a person. Give him time to himself. Do not open his letters. And if he doesn't tell you all about his affairs, do not cross-question him about them.

There are things concerning a man's business that he very often doesn't care to discuss with anyone . . . not even with you! Remember that his thoughts are his own, at all times!

And keep yourself attractive and interesting.

A man can love a woman who has crows' feet and wrinkles, so long as the wrinkles are the upward tilting ones that come from laughter.

He cannot fail to be interested in a woman who is interested in him and in the things that interest him.

Last of all there is the question of children. No woman has a right to marry unless she intends to have her babies. Bluntly speaking, that is what marriage is for . . . for the onward march of the race.

The woman who has her family is helping civilization. And not only that, but she is binding her husband to her with ropes of steel. Only the abnormal man feels anything but pride in the woman who has made him the head of a family of healthy, wholesome babies.

Cynthia Grey Says

AN UNANSWERED QUESTION

An old question this. It has been asked for ages. Which is harder to raise—a boy or a girl?

Many have been the answers. But the question remains.

That must mean that the answers have been of little value.

Few parents with daughters will say that their girls have been a trouble to them.

And the same is true with the parents of sons.

Exceptions only go to prove the rule.

Human love cannot pierce the frailties. And most of all, parental love.

I will not add a new answer to the question, although the same old question has taken on considerable significance in this day and age of topsy-turned standards.

Then, too, it is not the answer which counts. It is the result. And the result lies with parents.

Being a good parent is difficult. Love rules and guides the way.

And there is much need for love today—more than an answer to the old question. Nothing is difficult to Love.

Dear Miss Grey—A young man has asked me to marry him and I have consented, for I love him dearly. That was about two months ago, but he has not yet given me a ring. I'm worried about it.—Katherine.

Why worry? Possibly the young man is not making a large salary and is waiting until he can save up enough money to buy you a larger diamond. But it isn't the ring that makes you engaged. It's a question of whether you two really love each other and want to be married. Two of the happiest wives I know have not received rings and they have been married five years. They took the $300 the young man would have to put into a ring and bought more comforts for their home. If you can't have a big diamond and home comforts after you are married, I really prefer to pass up the solitaire.

Dear Miss Grey: What can I do for lines around my eyes and for frowning wrinkles between my brows? Would an astringent lotion help? I am using cold cream now.—Mrs. G. L. C.

There are several good muscle oils on the market that are used exclusively for wrinkles around the eyes. An astringent lotion would not be good for you, since it would only make the skin more dry and inclined to wrinkle. Cold cream is good for lines if it is very, very greasy.

BANISH TRACES OF SUMMER SUN

Decollette Gowns Reveal Ravages of Open on Athletic Girl.

MAKE ARMS SMOOTH

A soft down over the skin is in some countries considered a sign of beauty. Continental women are considered more beautiful if they possess this mark of distinction.

And, from the point of view of beauty judges in this country, a very imperceptile down on the cheek is not considered a detriment to beauty.

However, most women want the tiny hairs about the corners of their mouths or on their legs and arms to be as inconspicuous as possible. It is, of course, perfectly natural to have hairs upon your arms and legs, and many women have a few hairs on the upper lip just at the corners of their mouths.

If these latter hairs are so nearly the color of the skin that they really do not show I should not advise taking any precautions to remove them or change the color.

If they are fairly dark, though, and because of this are more conspicuous as they are contrasted against the background of your skin, you can easily bleach the hairs with peroxide of hydrogen, which will make them very much less noticeable.

The way to do this is simply to apply the peroxide of hydrogen every night or oftener if you have a chance and let it gradually take the color from the hairs.

After prolonged exposure to the sun and wind the woman who has spent much time about in the sun and water in a bathing suit may find that the hairs upon her arms and legs have flourished with the unaccustomed sunlight and have grown longer and much more conspicuous.

She will want her arms to appear as smooth and white as possible after the Summer season is over, for tanned arms that look well enough on the beach when one is wearing a bathing suit often appear a bit incongruous when the Summer season is over and one goes to a dinner party in a decollette dinner gown. The Summer dance frock of chiffon revealed arms and neck upon which vacation activities were making their mark, it is true but in the care-free Summer season no one minds this. It is quite the thing to be the athletic Summer girl.

However, this makes things a bit difficult when the later Fall season comes on and browned, hairy arms become a bit passe.

I'm going to give you a good, old-fashioned treatment for hair on the arms. The only article you need buy from the druggist is—

A cake of pumice stone.

Rub your arms with this and the hairs will be worn off. Be very careful, however, not to irritate the skin, for it you are to heroic in your treatment the skin will become red and irritated. Apply a good cold cream to your arms after the treatment.

Babies and Aged Persons Are Among Victims of Fatal Strokes.

TORONTO, June 8. (Canadian Press.) — The heat wave, now entering upon the second week, caused seven fatalities, and also a number of prostrations during the week-end in Ontario.

Victims of the heat wave were: William R. Wills, aged 85, Toronto; Mrs. Jennie Armstrong of Hamilton; a Belgian boy of unknown name at Exeter, two babes at Milton Heights, Mrs. Hoskins, of Chatham; and Michael Cramer of Tillsonburg.

In addition to these deaths prostrations from heat were reported from many places, particularly in the vicinity of London and Chatham, where the mercury soared to 98.

RUSHING HELP.

ABOARD S.S. INGERTRE (By Wireless), June 8 (Canadian Press) —At 9.30 this morning the Ingertre, carrying the Norwegian Government's Amundsen relief expedition, was proceeding toward Spitzbergen at her maximum speed of 10½ knots per hour. Seaplanes F-18 and F-22 were slung across the deck ready for instant service whenever needed. They will be used in searching for the missing explorers, who started for the North Pole from Spitzbergen in two flying boats on May 21.

Make for Land.

Lieut. Lutzow Holm, leader of the aviators, said today that his intention is to reconnoitre along the edge of the arctic ice pack to the Northeast of Danes Island. Lieut. Holm's assumption is that if Amundsen is returning to foot toward his original base, he will naturally make for the nearest land, which would be the so-called Northeast land or Spitzbergen archipelago.

YOUTH DROWNED.

Kenneth Blacklock Lost When Canoe Capsized—Companions Saved.

SUDBURY, June 8.—(Canadian Press.)— Kenneth Blacklock, 21, was drowned in Lake Ramsay, here yesterday afternoon, while canoeing with two other youths. The boys were preparing to land on the shore of C.P.R. bay for a swim when their canoe capsized. Blacklock sank and did not rise to the surface. The other boys, Brown and Johnson by name, clung to the upturned craft until rescued by a man on shore, who witnessed the accident. Blacklock's body was recovered.

A REFUGE AWAITS AMUNDSEN

By BOB DORMAN.

NEW YORK, June 8. — Should Amundsen, reading the North Pole in safety, find that weather conditions rendered a safe return to Spitzbergen difficult or impossible, it is probable that he may have decided to pass up the long hazardous flight across unknown territory to Alaska and make for one of the Canadian Mounted Police posts on Ellsmere Island.

Major Logan

At least such is the opinion advanced by Major R. A. Logan, formerly of the Canadian Air Forces and now connected with the Fairchild Aerial Survey Co.

Major Logan was the navigating officer of the Canadian expedition to Ellsmere Island in 1922 which established Canadian Mounted Police posts in that far northern land.

The farthest north post was established at Cape Sabine, 680 miles from the Pole.

"It would be fairly easy for Amunsden to reach Cape Columbia on the northern end of Ellsmere Island," says Major Logan. "The Cape is only about 359 miles from the Pole.

"From there it is 330 miles airline to Cape Sabine where he would find a permanent police post with food supplies and in all probability a supply of gasoline.

"Should his planes be disabled at Cape Columbia he could march overland to Cape Sabine through a country where he would find enough game to keep him and his party alive. And the march overland is far easier than across the open sea, the ice being much smoother.

"Then he could wait at Cape Sabine until such time as a patrol could take him into Craig Harbor at the southern end of Ellsmere Island, the headquarters post of the police.

"At Craig Harbor the S. A. Arctic will arrive about the middle of July on her annual trip to supply the northern police post with provisions for the year. And through her radio, Amundsen would be able to communicate with the outside world.

"Should he arrive by plane at Craig Harbor he would find a suitable landing place which I surveyed there for the Canadian government in 1922. There is also a large supply of gasoline kept there the year around.

"From Craig Harbor he would have an easy hop of 150 miles to Dundas Harbor, on North Devon Island, then to Pond's Inlet on the northernmost coast of Baffin Land and the most northerly post of the Hudson Bay Co. and where I laid out another air landing field. This is but 180 miles.

"Then would come a long and hard jump. From Pond's Inlet to Cumberland Sound, the next post, is about 600 miles of barren and ice-covered land.

"Then he would have a jump of 250 miles to Lake Harbor on Hudson Strait, at which point he would be able to get a ship almost any time at this period of the year.

"Of course, Amundsen may have suffered disaster to his planes in landing them in open water. Floating ice, transparent and almost invisible to a fast-moving airplane seeking a landing, might have stove in his craft and caused them to sink instantly.

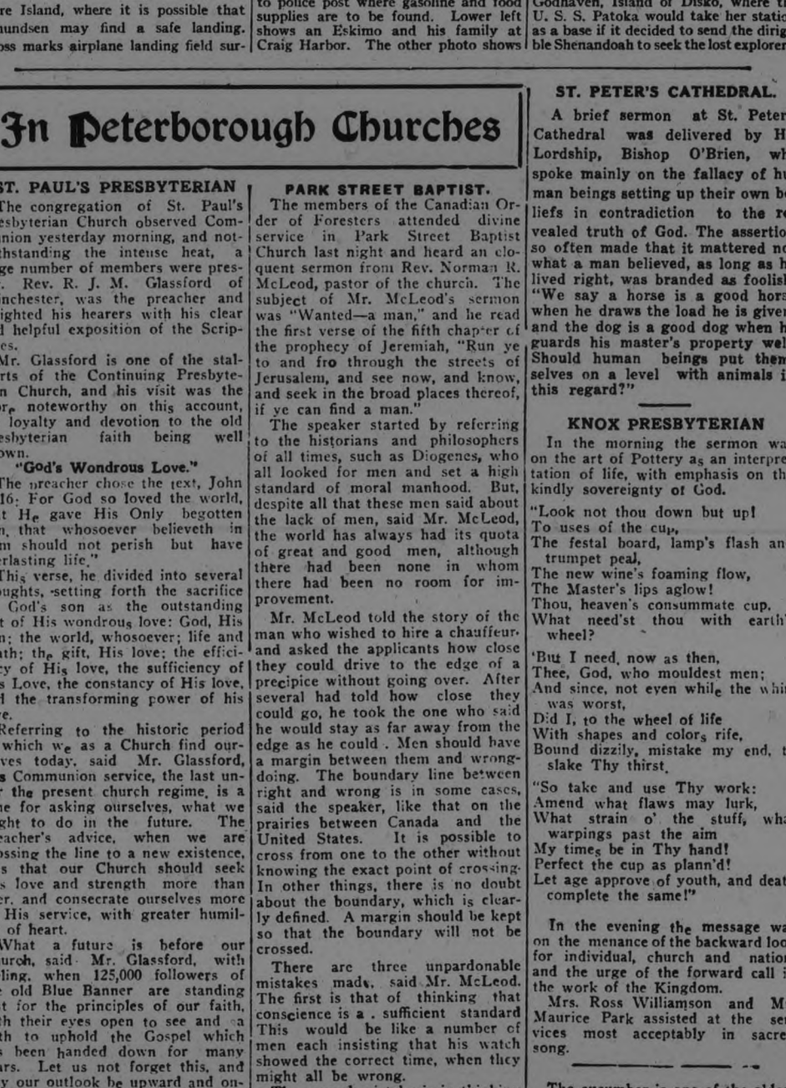
"Then, too, it is very difficult to land on shore from the open sea due to the fact that the ice piles high in ridges on the high water line. It would be also very difficult to taxi a plane to shore on account of the floating ice and because most of the bays are shallow and full of rocks.

"Another danger is from fogs. Frequently they come in without warning and before they lift the ice drifts in, crushing all in its path.

"It is much safer to land on smooth ice or snow. Rough ice is readily indicated by the shadows since the sun is always low. Many landing places are available on the tops of hills which are usually flat plateaus, or on glaciers which are generally smooth before they are broken up as they near the coast.

"And it is much easier to climb down from the hills that it is to get ashore through the coast ridges.

"Judging all the factors entering into Amundsen's problem it seems to me extremely likely that he will sooner or later turn up in Ellsmere Island, providing that he has not met with complete disaster."



Above is a view of Craig Harbor, Ellsmere Island, where it is possible that Amundsen may find a safe landing. Cross marks airplane landing field surveyed by Major Logan. Arrow points to police post where gasoline and food supplies are to be found. Lower left shows an Eskimo and his family at Craig Harbor. The other photo shows Major Logan with two girls, natives of Godhaven, Island of Disko, where the U. S. S. Patoka would take her station as a base if it decided to send the dirigible Shenandoah to seek the lost explorers.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN

The congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church observed Communion yesterday morning, and notwithstanding the intense heat, a large number of members were present. Rev. R. J. M. Glassford of Winchester, was the preacher and delighted his hearers with his clear and helpful exposition of the Scriptures.

Mr. Glassford is one of the stalwarts of the Continuing Presbyterian Church, and his visit was the more noteworthy on this account, his loyalty and devotion to the old Presbyterian faith being well known.

"God's Wondrous Love."

The preacher chose the text, John 3, 16: For God so loved the world, that He gave His Only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life."

This verse, he divided into several thoughts, setting forth the sacrifice of God's son as the outstanding gift of His wondrous love: God, His Son; the world, whosoever; life and death; the gift, His love; the efficiency of His love, the sufficiency of His Love, the constancy of His love, and the transforming power of his love.

Referring to the historic period in which we as a Church find ourselves today, said Mr. Glassford, this Communion service, the last under the present church regime, is a time for asking ourselves, what we ought to do in the future. The preacher's advice, when we are crossing the line to a new existence, was that our Church should seek His love and strength more than ever, and consecrate ourselves more to His service, with greater humility of heart.

What a future is before our Church, said Mr. Glassford, with feeling, when 125,000 followers of the old Blue Banner are standing fast for the principles of our faith, with their eyes open to see and a faith to uphold the Gospel which has been handed down for many years. Let us not forget this, and may our outlook be upward and onward. Thus shall we be faithful to the cause for which God's Son died on the Cross.

The Evening Service.

The service in the evening was another helpful period; and the heat did not deter many from hearing Mr. Glassford once more. His text was: "A bruised reed will he not break, and the smoking flax will he not quench," the subject being "Christ's Gracious Encouragement."

The point of emphasis throughout Mr. Glassford's sermon was God's care of His own people, who are taught the religion of gentleness and of helpful service to mankind. Our Lord sees something in us all, our weakness in knowledge, in temptation, in witnessing for Him are the channels through which He can and does help those who are willing to be assisted by Him. His wondrous salvation is freely offered. We are all as dear to Him as were the Saints and Apostles of old.

As our leader and pilot of our salvation He is supreme. The Throttle in His hand means a safe journey; He will not seek to lead us home, and when half way leave us to the mercies of the sin of the world. We are taken to His home—never will Christ leave us nor forsake us. Even in our present Church crisis He will be with us, to strengthen our faith and hands in the great work which is ahead of us, which will redound to His Glory according to how we strive to do the will of the Master.

PARK STREET BAPTIST.

The members of the Canadian Order of Foresters attended divine service in Park Street Baptist Church last night and heard an eloquent sermon from Rev. Norman R. McLeod, pastor of the church. The subject of Mr. McLeod's sermon was "Wanted—a man," and he read the first verse of the fifth chapter of the prophecy of Jeremiah, "Run ye to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem, and see now, and know, and seek in the broad places thereof, if ye can find a man."

The speaker started by referring to the historians and philosophers of all times, such as Diogenes, who all looked for men and set a high standard of moral manhood. But, despite all that these men said about the lack of men, said Mr. McLeod, the world has always had its quota of great and good men, although there had been none in whom there had been no room for improvement.

Mr. McLeod told the story of the man who wished to hire a chauffeur, and asked the applicants how close they could drive to the edge of a precipice without going over. After several had told how close they could go, he took the one who said he would stay as far away from the edge as he could. Men should have a margin between them and wrongdoing. The boundary line between right and wrong is in some cases, said the speaker, like that on the prairies between Canada and the United States. It is possible to cross from one to the other without knowing the exact point of crossing. In other things, there is no doubt about the boundary, which is clearly defined. A margin should be kept so that the boundary will not be crossed.

There are three unpardonable mistakes made, said Mr. McLeod. The first is that of thinking that conscience is a sufficient standard This would be like a number of men each insisting that his watch showed the correct time, when they might all be wrong.

The second mistake is in thinking that the group conscience is right. What is needed, said the speaker, is men who have backbone enough to do what is right instead of following the crowd.

The third unpardonable mistake is in thinking that a tender conscience is effemiate. It must be living and have feeling. People sometimes set their consciences by each other, thinking that what some particular person does is right.

What is wanted is a man with a will who choose right with an unchangeable and unalterable decision.

"As your will is, so are you," said Mr. McLeod. If the wil is weak, the man is weak; if the will is strong, the man is strong.

The greatest thing in the world is character and the greatest part of character is purity. Purity in the attitude toward evil. There should be ignorance of evil, as it is not necessary to commit evil as a test to find out what it is and there should be indignation towards evil. People indulge evil for two reasons; they are either afraid to say "No" or they want to do what is wrong. It is only by the help of the Lord Jesus that people can resist evil and be strong men such as are hard to find.

The choir of the church rendered suitable music for the occasion and there was a good congregation present although the weather was uncomfortably hot.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

A brief sermon at St. Peter's Cathedral was delivered by His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, who spoke mainly on the fallacy of human beings setting up their own beliefs in contradiction to the revealed truth of God. The assertion so often made that it mattered not what a man believed, as long as he lived right, was branded as foolish. "We say a horse is a good horse when he draws the load he is given, and the dog is a good dog when he guards his master's property well. Should human beings put themselves on a level with animals in this regard?"

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN

In the morning the sermon was on the art of Pottery as an interpretation of life, with emphasis on the kindly sovereignty of God.

"Look not thou down but up!
To uses of the cup,
The festal board, lamp's flash and trumpet peal,
The new wine's foaming flow,
The Master's lips aglow!
Thou, heaven's consummate cup,
What need'st thou with earth's wheel?

'But I need, now as then,
Thee, God, who mouldest men;
And since, not even while the whirl was worst,
Did I, to the wheel of life
With shapes and colors rife,
Bound dizzily, mistake my end, to slake Thy thirst.

"So take and use Thy work:
Amend what flaws may lurk,
What strain o' the stuff, what warpings past the aim
My times be in Thy hand!
Perfect the cup as plann'd!
Let age approve of youth, and death complete the same!"

In the evening the message was on the menance of the backward look for individual, church and nation, and the urge of the forward call in the work of the Kingdom.

Mrs. Ross Williamson and Mr. Maurice Park assisted at the services most acceptably in sacred song.

The cucumber is one of the oldest of the garden vegetables. Some 3,000 years ago in the Far East, probably in India, it had its origin.

Considerable attention is being given the Trent Waterway System, in "Motorboating" as in the recent June issue two articles descriptive of that canal have been noticed. One is titled "Through the Trent Canal' by R. H. Combs, and the other, one of a series, "By Waterways to Gotham" by Lewis R. Freeman.

R. H. Combs says: "After having travelled thousands of miles through the waters of the Mississippi River and tributaries, as well as Lake Michigan and the Detroit River, to say nothing of Eastern waterways, near the Atlantic Coast, I think that a trip through this inland waterway of Canada is one of the finest trips, especially for the moderate size cruiser, that can be found anywhere in North America.

This year John Edwin Hoag is coming from Los Angeles in a small outboard motorboat and will pass through Georgian Bay, thence through the Trent Canal System, on July 15. The trip will cover 5,000 miles.

Hoag was attracted to this system through notices appearing in "Motorboating," and says that previous to seeing them he was not aware of the existence of such a canal.

The Trent Waterway is not listed with the cruises published in the above mentioned magazine.

OPEN DATES AT THE ROTARY CAMP

Pretty Spot at Clear Lake Promises to be Popular as Ever.

The Rotary camp at Clear Lake promises to enjoy its usual popularity this summer. The camp equipment is cvomplete with four boats, plenty of blankets, cooking utensils, etc., and the plant s loaned by the Rotary Club to responsible organizations under certain conditions, one of which is that at least 30 boys must be in the party. There is accommodation for 60 boys. The schedule for the summer is as follows there being still two fortnights available or use by local organizations:

June 29-July 11—Y. M. C. A.
July 13-July 25—Leaders, Brotherhood of St. Andrew's.
July 27-Aug. 8—Available
Aug. 10-Aug. 22—Rotary Club
Aug. 24-Sept. 5—Available.

BRIGHTON COUNCIL ORDERS BILLS PAID

Only Routine Business at June Meeting of Village Solons.

BRIGHTON, June 8.—The regular meeting of Brighton Village Council was held recently. Present: Reeve Carman Baker, Councillors F. R. Whitton, E. C. McKee, Jay Mills and Jas. McCann.

The following accounts were presented and orders drawn on the treasurer for the respective amounts:

Hydro-Electric Power Commission	$113.30
Hydro-Electric Power Commission	13.61
C. N. R., Prince Ed.	57.45
Dauncey and Carther	7.05
Craig's Livery	3.75
Jas. Snider	1.63
Ray Sandford	.97
R. J. Taylor	38.10
G. H. Post	8.00
J. J. McNabb	55.40
O. L. Morrow	52.90
Bell Telephone Co.	2.41
Provincial Treasurer	42.50
Mrs. R. Hewitt	20.84

A letter was received from Rev. W. A. Bremner, Cobourg, asking the Council for the use of the Town Hall gratis on the evening of June 23, 1925, for the purpose of entertaining Rev. A. K. McLeod on his fortieth anniversary as pastor of St. Andrew's Church and the clerk was instructed to answer and say that the hall was at their disposal for the above purpose.

An invitation was received from the mayor and citizens of Belleville through their courier to attend the celebration to be held in Belleville in August. The invitation was accepted and the clerk was instructed to write and thank the mayor of Belleville for it.

It was moved that the Provincial Treasurer be paid the sum of $42.50 for Town Hall license for the year 1925-26. Carried.

Court of Revision.

A Court of Revision was held in the Council Chambers at 9. p.m. Present: Reeve Carman Baker, Councillors. F. R. Whitton, E. C. McKee, Jay Mills and Jas. McCann.

Messrs. Whitton and McCann moved that the Reeve, Carman Baker, act as Chairman of the Court of Revision. Carried.

There were two complaints entered as follows:—C. N. Railway, buildings assessed too high; Edward Freeman, assessment too high.

The Board took up the matter of the assessment of the C. N. R. and found that the assessment was the same as had been for years when all other property was assessed much higher, and as the buildings had been improved and therefor the value had not decreased, they did not see fit to lower same and decided to let assessment stand as it was.

Edward Freeman's appeal was next dealt with and it was decided to lower same $100.00.

The weather for the most part during last month was clear, enabling the farmers to accomplish a great deal of work on the land and this warm weather hastened the growth. Indications for fall wheat and rye are for a good crop. The outlook for small fruits is promising and the blossom of the early apple varieties is also good with favorable indications for the later varieties.

AIRPLANE ROBBERY FIRST ON RECORD

Jeweler Chloroformed and Thrown Overboard—Precious Stones Taken.

BERLIN, June 8 (By United Press)—The first airplane robbery on record has been reported from Vienna. The victim is a jeweler named Lasker, who flew with a consignment of precious stones and 20,000 francs from Vienna, en route to Budapest. The only other passenger was the jeweler's secretary, a man named Savis.

Lasker's smashed body has been ound in a field between the two cites. Examination of the plane indicated that a bottle of chlorooform had been emptied in Lasker's face. He was then robbed and his body thrown over board. The secretary has disappeared though hel ived under his right name after arriving in Budapest for a week after the murder.

ONLY SEVEN OUT OF CHURCH UNION

Congregational Churches in Canada Entering Union Almost Intact.

TORONTO, June 8 (Canadian Press)—That out of 150 Congregational Churches in Canada only seven wil not enter the United Church of Canada when it is constituted on Wednesday next, was the statement of the statistical report presented to the general conference of the Congregational Church in session here today, by Rev. W. J. Gibson. His report showed that the church has a membership in the Dominion of 12,000 with 31,000 under pastoral care. The value of church property is given at $2,250,000 with a debt of under $197,000. Receipts for the year were $321,000.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

YESTERDAY'S HEAT

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir.—Many little children escaped the prostrating heat yesterday by bathing at Inverlea. Grown-ups had no place to dress and went sadly away. One poor lady fainted from the heat.

Our aldermen, however, should not be too severely judged. Where would they learn the difference when they possibly have never been away from their own little backyard. Unless they and many others are allowed to create a sensation by making others miserable, they would never be heard of.

SWIMMER.

WANDERER OF THE NORTHLAND.

THE [illegible]

Somewhere, drifting about the great emptiness of the polar seas, is a little three-masted vessel that is slowly covering its annointed course on a voyage to nowhere.

There are eight men aboard. They have been there for three years. They are waiting—waiting for their leader to drop down from the air and chart their course for them.

The ship is the Maud, mother ship for Roald Amundsen's first attempt to fly to the Pole.

This attempt was made in 1922. Amundsen flew north from Alaska, with the ship drifting about below as a sort of roving base.

But the planes were wrecked and Amundsen came back overland. He left the Maud up there, to wait for further orders.

It has been there ever since. It is there now—Amundsen hoped when he left Spitzbergen on his flight of May 21.

The men were prepared to stay eight years. Supplies are sufficient and the boat is sturdy.

So when Amundsen left Spitzbergen he hoped to visit the ship.

"I must find the Maud," he said. "There are eight men drifting in the polar sea. They trusted me. They know I'll come back somehow, in some way.

"And they were prepared to spend eight years there. Perhaps I can visit them on this trip."

But there is no word from Amundsen.

Has his plane crashed and have he and his companions met the fate of so many Arctic explorers—death in the vast white silences?

Or has he found the Maud, floating somewhere among the ice fields, waiting for word from the sky?

Or—is the Maud lost forever her decks manned by eight frozen shadows, doomed to sail the northern sea like a ghostly Flying Dutchman of the Arctic, while the captain circles the gray sky looking for a sail that will never take the southern breeze again?

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

CARE IN EVERY DETAIL IS THE MAIN FEATURE OF SUCCESSFUL POULTRY FARM AT MILLBROOK

M. McDowell Runs Only Commercial Chicken Business in Vicinity.

TWO VARIETIES

Proper Food and Sanitation Are Necessary for Healthy Birds.

MILLBROOU, June 8.—M. McDowell, who has the only commercial poultry farm in this vicinity, and has successfully followed this line of business for the past two years, recently increased his stock by the purchase of one thousand baby chicks from the Hendrick farm at Hanover, Ontario.

White Leghorns are the type of fowl with which Mr. McDowell originally stocked his farm, and this season about three hundred Barred Rocks have been included, the two strains to be propogated separately, and results compared.

Previous to coming to Millbrook, Mr. McDowell had a number of Silver Laced Wyandottes, not on a commercial basis, however, though he exhibited some of these fowl at the first Royal Fair held in Toronto, with a view to sale, and had the satisfaction of seeing several prizes awarded his birds. At present only one pair of Silver Laced is among the fowl on the McDowell property.

Usually the plan of hatching his own chicks, using two incubators with a canacity of about five hundred each, has been followed, but, to avoid having several flocks of varying ages, with the resultant work and anxiety of raising these successfully unduly prolonged,the decision was arrived at to purchase all of the same age, when weather conditions seemed at their best, and "have all the trouble over at once."

House is Important.

The poultry house is essentially an important factor in determining success or failure, in this business. Three colony, or rearing houses, are used on the McDowell farm, the portable type being a distinct advantage as it enables the chicks to have fresh ground each year A coal-burning, brooder stove keeps an even temperature, and the chicks from pens of a special laying strain are kept together in one house. The chicks, which were shipped in corrugated, cardboard containers, when only one day old, arrived in good condition, with a loss of probably not more than half a dozen in the entire thousand.

Apparently from digestive trouble, the result, the owner thinks, of a slight delay in supplying sour milk with the ration, the flock has been decreased by a small percentage of mortality. Automatically-feeding, drinking vessels of water and sour milk, are in each brooder house, the custom being to give water, slightly warmed, from the first, but not the buttermilk for three or four days. Asked whether he found the information in the Government bulletins of much value, Mr. McDowell states his personal experience is "they fail to emphasize the 'don'ts' enough."

Leghorns are noted for being good broilers, and good roasters, and when the cockerels of the flock weigh a pound, or a pound and one-half, they will be shipped to the city for the former purpose.

Coal-burning Brooders.

When the chicks are old enough to roost, the colony houses, which are on skids, will be moved to the rear of the property nearer to the main plant. The houses are so constructed that they can be easily cleaned, and the ventilation readily controlled. Coal-burning brooders lessen the danger of fire, and of variations of temperature which are fatal to young chicks, as Mr. McDowell found by personal experience last season when one of the brooder stoves, of a different type to the other two in use, burned itself out during the night, though stoked at the usual time, with a consequent loss of over sixty chicks.

Extra attention to the fires about 2 a.m. was necessitated by this unfortunate occurance, and no further trouble was experienced. Practical experiment showed that the chicks were comfortable when they circle the edge of the hover, while too much heat causes them to bunch in corners, and smother one another. Too little heat may do the same, the surprising thing being that the stronger fowl, burrowing their way in from the outside of the bunch, are suffocated first.

Proper Ration.

Many fail to rear chicks because of a faulty ration, but in this particular, Mr. McDowell has so far experienced but small loss. The usual custom of giving no food until the chicks are three days old is followed, though grit, in small containers, is placed in the rearing houses, and if one of the tiny chicks is picked up, it is surprising to find a considerable quantity of this in the crop.

A dry ration, composed of a properly balanced mixture of cornmeal, and middlings,with a smaller percentage of pearl grit, bone meal, and salt, is used, and the danger carefully avoided of overfeeding at the start. Putting the chicks on clean, tender grass, as soon as weather conditions will permit, is the plan followed. This is especially valuable if leg weakness is to be avoided. Rearing the chicks on fresh ground each season keeps away troubles due to land infection.

Clean shavings are used for litter on the floors of the colony houses, and when this gets soiled, or dirty, it is removed and replacedwith a fresh supply.

The main plant on the McDowell farm is the style of the long, continuous house, with the front a combination of glass and cotton, and a southern exposure. The roof is of the slanting type, with a straw loft. It is divided into six pens, with one entrance door only, making it necessary to pass through one pen to reach the others.

Seven hundred fowl were carried through the winter, and this stock has been reduced to five hundred at present. Last winter Mr. McDowell tried the plan of lighting two of his pens with gasoline lanterns, and found this practically doubled production during the months when prices were highest. The lanterns were lighted about 9 p.m., and [illegible] the

Frozen Eggs Kept Good For Over Nine Years

Eggs kept in cold storage in a frozen condition for nearly nine years have been found to retain practically their original vitamin potency. From the results of the experimental work it seems that freezing eggs and keeping them for long periods in cold storage causes but little, if any, deterioration with respect to this vitamin. The eggs were tested by feeding experiments with rats which had been kept on a vitamin free diet until they developed unmistakable symptoms of xetophtalmia, a diseased condition of the eyes which results from the lack of this constituent in the food supply. Daily doses of only 0.1 gram of the frozen egg produced noticeable improvement in the condition of the eyes, while 0.25 gram doses in most cases, cured the disease. The daily feeding of this small quantity of egg also caused the animals to resume growth which had stopped on the vitamin free diet. Rats in similar condition improved at a slightly greater rate when fed on strictly fresh eggs.

HOLD WATER BY MULCHING SOIL

This Prevents Moisture From Evaporating and Helps Crops.

MULCH IS TRAP

One hears a great deal about the importance of water in crop growth. Often, as you know, crops entirely fail because there is not enough water in the soil for the plants to drink. The plant really gets all its water through its roots. For this reason a generous supply down where the roots grow during hot, dry weather is assurance that plants will not get thirsty. If, however, the surface of the soil is not protected, this moisture or water will rapidly escape into the atmosphere in the hot, dry days of summer.

If we want to keep this water for our cultivated crops we must prepare a trap to hold it. Nature has shown us how this can be done. Pick up a board lying on the ground. Under the board the woil is wet, while the soil not covered by the board is dry. Why? Capillary action brought the water to the surface. The board, however, keeping away wind and warmth, acted as a trap to hold the moisture. Now, of course, the farmer or village gardener cannot set a trap of boards over his fields or garden, but he can make a trap of dry earth, and that will do just as well.

Water falls as snow or rain and sinks down into the subsoil or water reservoir. After the rains are over and the top soil drys, this water is pulled upward by capillary action and when it reaches the surface of the ground evaporates into the air. But if a mulch is made by cultivating tools, the water is caught by this soil trap of dry surface earth and is held in the soil until the plant roots use it up. Frequent cultivation, then, is one of the best possible ways of saving moisture.

only. A partial feeding was made at five o'clock, and an extra meal given when the artificial light was introduced.

Use Electric Lights.

This fall Mr. McDowell hopes to have the electric light on his farm, the fact that he is just outside the corporation limits increasing the difficulty of installing this important convenience. Two pens of a special laying strain were the ones experimented with, by using the lanterns, during the winter months.

Trap-nests, a necessary evil where pedigree breeding is to be conducted, or Record of Production tests kept track of, are not used by Mr. McDowell, but he follows the plan of having all nests raised two feet or more from the floor, thus leaving the entire floor space free for scratching purposes.

Slanting dropping-boards, admitting of easy cleaning, with canvas-covered frames which may be lowered in case of severe weather, in front of all the roosts, the upper edges of the latter being slightly rounde,d are other features of this up-to-date plant.

Drinking utensils, and automatic feed-hoppers, are of the proper type, and large run yards are provided. The front curtains are made to tilt at the top, so they may be adjusted to meet varying weather conditions.

Must Be Healthy.

Birds that are not healthy will not lay and as production is of primary importance, constant, and well-informed attention is given to such details as proper sanitation, plenty of sunlight, (the best germicidal agent in existence), regular removal of droppings, frequent change of litter, and a ration which experience has proved contains the proper mixture of green and animal feed, grit, and shell-forming material.

Good pure water, in clean dishes is within easy reach of the fowl at all times, and sour milk is also supplied, it having been found good practice to keep both water and buttermilk before the birds continually.

Added to his duties in the commercial poultry line, Mr. McDowell is in charge of the store opened this spring by the Millbrook Produce Association, being appointed manager of the organization.

Merchants and producers are co-operating in the handling of eggs and poultry, this being the object in view in forming the Association which has functioned successfully since its inception abo t two months, or more, ago.

His practical experienc in handling eggs, and his knowledge of the poultry business, which is of a very thorough character, led to the choice of Mr. McDowell as manager of the local Associa-

Egg Production On Farms Is Steadily Increasing

The steady growth in the production of eggs on other than poultry farms in Canada is further emphasized by the figures issued by the federal department of agriculture, which show that the output in 1924 totalled 212,648,685, dozen, of the value of $50,322,439, as compared with 202,186,508 dozen, of the value of $48,770,780, in 1923.

There are still thousands of mixed farms neglecting poultry as a very profitable sideline where feed is home grown.

SAVE THE YOUNG FARM ANIMALS

Death Rate Among Young Beasts is Problem That Bothers Farmers.

CROSS BREEDS HARDY

Cutting down the high and costly deathrate among infant livestock is one of the farm problems for which the farmer must apply the solution himself. It was recently declared by a high authority on rural matters that less than 10 per cent of the farmers' problems can be remedied by legislation; the remaining 90 per cent can best be solved or approached for solution through the business of farming. The prevention of the high mortality among young stock is among the latter.

Before birth the young animal is in an environment where it is fairly well protected from shock, injury and infection. It has practically a uniform temperature, and under normal conditions has an adequate and suitable food supply. But once launched into the world for itself it is surrounded with danger—infectious organisms; changing temperature, with storms, wind, snow, hail, rain, and extreme heat; the possibilities of inadequate or improper foods, overfeeding, and the presence of actu al poisons of various. The threat against an animal's life is greatest at birth.

Breeding from good stock is fundamental. But it is not practical to put off the problem until all the livestock in the country is pure bread. And the tremendous losses amongst our livestock infants are due only to a very limited extent to faulty breeding, according to Dr. Maurice C. Hall.

Crosses Are Hardy.

"Whatever the objection to scrubs, mongrels and similar animals of cross breeds and no breeds at all may be a lack of toughness is hardly their leading characteristic. The highest infant mortality, all other things being equal, would probably be among our purebreds, not our scrubs and mongrels. Of course, all other things are not equal. Our purebreds receive better care because they are more valuable, and they are usually the property of the more intelligent stockmen. Equally good care in general, regardless of whether they are purebred. The bulk of our livestock today is not purebred, and the protection of that livestock industry is our business. We must drop our attitude of fatalism and indifference toward the deaths of young animals and challenge every death to show cause why it occurred. We will usually find the answer to be misunderstanding and lack of proper care and sanitation."

Causes of Early Death.

1. Conditions little influenced by treatment: Malformation, extreme feebleness or extreme prematurity, certain accidents during birth.

2. Those capable of considerable reduction, chiefly through proper hygiene, sanitary isolation and medical treatment: Tuberculosis, acute respiratory diseases, certain acute contagious diseases, some forms of animal parasitism.

3. Those capable of a very great reduction through proper feeding, care and sanitation: Acute gastro-intestinal diseases, goitre troubles, prematurity (if not extreme), many forms of animal parasitism. The last is of first im portance.

Precautions.

In the case of swine, the system worked out for saving the lives of young pigs is simple in practice. The farrowing pen should be thoroughly cleaned and scrubbed to remove all worm eggs that may be present. The sow should then be thoroughly cleaned up, paying special attention to the udders, to remove all worm eggs. Within 10 days after farrowing, the sow and pigs are removed to a field sown to forage crops and not pastured to swine since it was sown. The pigs are provided a good supply of water and shade and kept in this field for at least four months, after which time they are reasonably safe from severe or injurious worm infections. Experience shows that these measures also prevent bulinose, mange, dietary deficiencies, cholera and other ailments to a large extent, as might be expected from cleanliness, the separation of young animals from groups of older animals and their infected surroundings, and the provision of safe and adequate food and water supplies and the necessary shelter and shade.

Grazing Animals.

The case of grazing animals presents certain special difficulties. They habitually soil their table with manure, insuring the prompt return to the body of the bacteria, worm eggs and larvæ and other infectious agents passed in the manure. With sheep, experiments have shown that rotation of pastures or of different kinds of stock on the same pasture is only an aid in the control of stomach worms, but it is far from being the effective control measure hoped for. Control of parasite diseases would go a long way toward solving the problem of losses among lambs. So far as sanitation is concerned, lambs should be given special preference in the matter of pasture. They should be placed on dry hillsides, away from wethers and all older sheep except the mothers, wherever possible, and the mothers should be treated for worms.

The problem of calves is more complicated. In addition to parasites, they are subject to tuberculosis bacterial diseases of the digestive tract and other diseases. Control of parasites, however, gives an animal more vitality and more resistance to other diseases.

In the case of horses the fact that in this country they are usually handled in large numbers only in parts of the West where conditions are not so favorable for parasites as they are in the Middle West, South and East may simplify the control of infant mortality among colts. With only a few horses on a farm, pasture and rotation, safe quarters for colts and similar control measures would appear to be feasible. Specific measures for the control of infectious joint diseases and related conditions will be necessary.

With dogs the problem of parasite control is a serious one with certain complications which have only recently been ascertained. For one thing it is now known that prenatal infection with ascarids may occur and it seems reasonably likely at present that such infection may prove to be of rather common occurrence. To prevent this will involve the treatment of the bitch before breeding and the provision of sanitary surroundings in the yards and kennels.

Sanitation in the houses and runs aids in the control of certain diseases among poultry. Since only young chicks are subject to gapes, one of the most serious causes of infant mortality and since turkeys of all ages may be carriers of this parasite chicks should be kept away from turkeys and premises used by hem.

DODGE WEALTH UNABLE TO BUY LITTLE FARM WHERE AGED FARMER HAS FOUND HAPPINESS

By Herbert Walker.

ROHESTER, Mich., June 8.—There are some things in this world that even a check for $146,000,000 can't buy.

Mrs. John F. Dodge, one of the world's wealthiest women and recipient of half of the huge check paid for the Dodge Motor plant by New York bankers, has found this to be true.

Situated in the center of her beautiful 2100-acre estate, three miles south-west of here, is the 220-acre farm of Thomas Barnett.

While tiny in comparison with the vast holdings of the wealthy widow, Barnett's land has many natural advantages—a beautiful wooded hill which is an ideal site for a big country home, a babblingbrook that poets might write about and green pastures that could be turned into a golf course.

Mrs. Dodge has bought several adjacent farms, offering the farmers higher prices than they ever expected to get. All quickly accepted.

Barnett Refuses to Sell.

But Mrs. Dodge, with all her millions, so far has failed to induce Barnett to sell his home. At first, a much higher price than the land was worth was offered. But the aged farmer, now in his 82nd year, promptly refused it.

Believing that he was holding out for money, the offer was increased until it is saidto have been at least $150,000.

Still Barnett declined to sell. Others claiming they did not represent Mrs. Dodge sought to buy it, but all have failed.

"It's our old home," says Barnett, "and a quiet, peaceful home, means more to us than wealth.

"I've lived here for 60 years and I have everything just like I wanted it. It's a realization of my boyhood dream

"I know I'd be rich beyond the wildest dreams of my youth if I sold it, but here I have peace & happiness and no amount of money can ever induce me to sell it."

When the Barnett family, to its amazement, received the first rich offer for their farm, a family conference was called by the father, his son, Byron, who operates it, relates.

The family not only decided to refuse all offers for the farm while the father lived, but the two sons and three daughters agreed to keep "the old home place" after his death.

"Mother died here 26 years ago," says Byron. "It was her home and it has been ours. We raise fine Angus cattle and Cheviot sheep, some of which took prizes at the state fair. We're afraid, after the family has been here 60 years, we wouldn't be contented anywhere else. So why should we disturb outselves."

Little Knoll a Mystery.

Just back of the Barnettt home on a little knoll is a fenced-in plot about six feet square. In the center of it is a small tree.

It resembles one of the burial plots which dotted the country in pioneer days. But Barnett, and friends who have known him for half a century, say no member of the family is buried there.

But the manner in which it is carefully fenced in seems to indicate that the little plot typifies some never-to-be-forgotten memory.

Years ago it might have been the spot of a flower bed of Barnett's wife or the spot where the young couple sat and dreamed of the future.

The son is reluctant to talk about it, saying only, "I guess it's a flower bed."

Is it the real reason why the Dodge millions can't obtain the Barnett farm?

MORTALITY RATE HIGH FOR PIGS

From Ten to Forty Per Cent. Die Before Weaning—A Serious Loss.

ROUND WORM HELPS

The number of pigs lost between farrowing and weaning varies from 10 to 40 per cent. An enormous loss, that takes all or much of the profit on the season's operations.

One cause for this great loss is the common intestinal round worm (ascaris lumbricoides).

Life History.

The ascaris eggs are deposited in the small intestine of the infested pig by the adult worm and pass out of the body in the excreta, contaminating pastures and feed lots. In this stage the eggs are not infectious, but in a few weeks if temperature and moisture conditions are favorable, the eggs become infectious. These eggs lying in the pasture or hog yard are swallowed by pigs grazing, rooting or feeding, and reach the stomach of the pig in the ordinary course of events, hatching on reaching the small intestine. After hatching in the small intestine they migrate by way of the blood stream to the liver, heart and lungs, into the lung tissue, through to the bronchioles and up the trachea to the pharynx. At this stage the worms are tiny thread-like creatures, they may be coughed out or swallowed, generally swallowed, go down the oesophagus and again reach the stomach and intestine. This round trip from the intestine back to the intestine takes about ten days. In passing through the lungs the young worms cause small hemorrhages which may result in pneumonia. Pigs that survive generally fail to develop properly and remain stunted. Frequently the young worms invade the gall bladder and ducts of the liver, causing a serious condition of unthrift or perhaps death.

Sanitation.

Clean farrowing pens, clean sow, clean pig yard, clean pasture, will give excellent resultsin reducing this preventable loss. Dirty yards and pens are generally loaded with worm eggs. When one female worm may produce 80,000,000 eggs, it is easy to realize how impossible it is for the young sucking pigs to escape infestation.

Profits in hog-feeding can only come by preventing losses. This enemy does its work unnoticed until it is frequently too late. Oil of chenopodium and castor oil are proving most satisfactory in the destruction of ascaris.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O.A. College.

Farm Reports

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:—

The rain which fell over the week end has been very much welcomed by the farmers as crops generally were more or less at a standstill. With warm weather, crops will be given a wonderful stimulus. Pastures, other than Sweet Clover, were nothing to brag about. Alfalfa, the King of forage crops, seems to have suffered less than other hay crops which may be short in certain districts.

Algoma—Wheat looks fairly well, but growth is slow. Clover fields are improving in appearance. There is an abundance of fruit buds on the apple trees, this spring and indications are for a good set of fruit.

Bruce—Fall Wheat and alfalfa crops have made apparently satisfactory growth, in spite of having so many frosty nights. Red Clover and timothy crops are very backward and have suffered severely from the heavy frosts.

Dundas—Fall wheat is making excellent growth. Apples are in full bloom, the bloom being the heaviest in years. Cherries, plums and strawberries suffered some damage from frost. Milk production is increasing rapidly. Cattle are all on pasture. Sweet cream 46 to 47c. per lb. butter fat. Cheese 17c.

Elgin—Beans are being planted, acreage will be larger. Sweet clover is a very popular pasture on many farms, especially With dairy cattle.

Frontenac—A very keen interest has been in evidence among farmers in securing a better type of brood sows. There should be a gradual improvement in number of selects produced in the district. Small pigs are still selling around $12.00 per pair. The cheese factories are running at full capacity. The makers state that milk is of good quality. This will raise the standard of quality of cheese produced. The local cheese Board has not been very active market for the disposal of cheese. Only 170 were boarded on Thursday, whereas for the same period five years ago there would be five or six hundred. Cheese sold at 17-1-8c. per lb.

Huron—Cold weather and frosty nights along with the dry weather have been bad for the grains. Planting potatoes, roots and corn is going on apace.

Kent—Fall wheat looks healthy but is making rather slow growth. Re ent frosts have retarded the groth of all crops The fruit growers have been hit very hard. Early sweet cherries have been practically ruined in the Blenheim district. Strawberries have been badly damaged. All early varieties were in blossom and were frozen. In the Blenheim district where over 30,000 early tomato plants were set out heavy damage from frost has resulted. Many thousands of plants were completely ruined, others damaged. Early potatoes and sweet corn were frozen to the ground. This will mean a loss of many thousands of dollars to the market gardeners as these early crops where not ruined will be set back two weeks. Onion growers on the marsh report very little damage from frost. Present Bros. at Belnheim report damage to 6,000 to 9,000 tomato plants set out and a loss of approximately $1,000 through frost injury to sweet cherries. Farmers in most districts are preparing the ground for beans. The acreage of this crop will be considerably increased this year due to the decreased acreage of corn. Tobacco planting is general throughout the county.

Lanark—Farm chunks are selling from $60 to $100, heavy drafters running as high as $300.

Leeds.—Most varieties of apples are now in full bloom and there is every appearance of an abundance of fruit this year where orchards aer sprayed. Strawberries and raspberries are in good condition generally, the former showing full bloom at present.

Lennon and Addington—Hogs are up in price this week, selling at $13.00 locally. Young pigs are scarce.

Northumberland—Tomato planting is general this week and in most instances the plants set are good. The weather has been fairly favorable for this work all week. General impression is that the acreage in peas and tomatoes has been decidedly increased this year.

Prince Edward—Farmers in the district are in the midst of planting, particularly tomatoes. Several millions of tomato plants have been delivered to the farmers during the past few days. About ten per cent. of the acreage is planted.

HARVESTING THE WOOL CROP

Many Changes Have Been Made in Handling the Fleeces.

DON'T WASH SHEEP

There have been many changes in the operations of securing the wool crop. It has not been many years since it was considered necessary to clean the wool before it was taken from the sheep. This used to be done by driving the flock to a lake or stream where each animal was thoroughly washed. Modern methods of wool scouring have made sheep-washing unnecessary, altough even today, a very dirty fleece is discriminated against by the buyer.

There are certain precautions observed by successful sheep owners at shearing time which have been found to increase the value of the clip. For example, bright days are selected on which to shear, as this will avoid obtaining fleeces wet with dew or rain. Do not shear sheep on the ground, but rather use a clean platform upon which to do the shearing operation. Keep the fleece in one piece, and clip off some of the inferior tags.

Changes have taken place in the method of removing the fleece from the sheep's body. Shearing sheep now is easy and simple compared with the old days of hand blades. Mechanics has done wonders towards solving many of the farm labor problems. Today, the automatic shearer, either hand or power operated, provides a quick and efficient method of harvesting the wool crop on the average farm as well as on the large sheep ranches. Machine shearing leaves no ridges and secures the maximum amount of fleece which is very important with wool at present prices.

For tying up each fleece, use, if possible, a paper twine. If binder twine is used, experience has shown that the fibres of the twine get into the wool, and as they cannot be removed they are a damage to the resulting manufactured woolen goods. In preparing wool for shipment, large sacks which will hold several fleeces are used.

The programme of sheep owners should include plans for most effectively harvesting a quality wool.! The wool crop will be a large source of income this year, as it will be for years to come. High prices are being offered for the 1925 clip, and extremely satisfactory returns are assured. The changes that have taken place in the methods of harvesting wool are of great value to the sheep industry.

Where real partners do the farming—wife and husband—the greatest success follows in happiness, material prosperity and influence in community welfare. Truly, it takes two to farm, and not the leass important is the work of the woman. Some part of the material reward surely belongs to her. Don't you think so?

SWAT THE ROOSTERS

Fertile Eggs Do Not Keep Well in Warm Weather.

When the last lot of hatching eggs has been delivered the male birds should be removed from the flock,disposed of, or kept by themselves. Fertile eggs are an uncertain article in warm weather, so the aim should be the production of infertile eggs for domestic use. Germ development will start in a fertile egg at any temperature above 68 degrees Fahrenheit. At low temperature the development of the germ is very slow, but it may reach a point in embryo development where decomposition is likely to set in and thereby produce a condition not desired. Any factor likely to cause spoilage in eggs will be more serious in the fertile eggs than in the infertile. No one wants fertile eggs for domestic use. The removal of the male, is the one sure way of preventing trouble.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O.A.C.

YOUNG CATTLE DIE OF DISEASE

Blackleg is Common Name for Malady From Soil Germ.

IN LOW PASTURES

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Black Leg, Black Water, Quarter II and Quarter Evil are common names applied to a disease that takes its toll in young cattle from many herds each year. From July to October fatalities are most numerous. Vigorous young animals, physically in good condition one day may be found lying stiff and cold the next. When post mortem is performed and the swellings opened the affected tissues present a dirty brown or dark red color and a frothy liquid with a peculiar sickly odor is exuded. The tissue surrounding the swellings show a straw-colored appearance and the lymph glands are congested. Previous to death the swellings occurring in the region of the hind quarters or over the shoul ers or along the neck are very painful and the animal manifests severe lameness.

The Disease.

Black Leg is caused by the Bacillus Chauvei, an organism that inhabits the soil, and is most troublesome on low lying, poorly drained pasture lands. Fields with small areas of swamp, and scrubby shrub growth seem to harbor the organism in greatest abundance and to create conditions for its destructive work.

Animals Attacked.

Susceptibility under natural pasture conditions is confined to cattle from three months to three years old. Yearlings are most affected. Calves fed on milk and not allowed to graze are rarely affected. Sheep are susceptible but not as much so as cattle. Humans, horses and pigs are virtually immune. Stabled cattle are rarely affected. The bacillus gains entrance into the animal body through a small wound or scratch or by ingestion with feed.

Symptoms.

Once the organism gains entrance nto the tissues and successfully establiishes itself it develops the diseased condition very rapidly. The course and duration are very short, death occurring in from one-half to three days. The first noticed symptom is the animal standing away from the rest of the herd. If moved it shows a severe lameness. Soon after lameness appears, swellings develop in the region of the thigh and shoulders and over the neck. Swellings may develop anywhere, but usually where the muscles are large. At first the swellings are hot and painful, but subsequently become less tender. The skin in the centre of the swollen area becomes cold, dark colored and dry like a piece of leather. These swellings when pressed give a crackling sound, due to the air or gas present. Swellings may form on the internal or thorasic wall or may be confined to the head and throat. In addition to the characteristic swellings, systematic disturbances, as loud beating of the heart, labored breathing, high fever and abdominal pain may be noticeable. Finally the affected animal becomes prostrated, lies on its side and appears greatly bloated. Once prostrated, death usually follows in a few hours.

When young cattle die suddenly at pasture, one should be suspicious of black leg.

Once an animal is infected, treatment is unsuccessful, because the disease is so rapidly fatal. Many stock owners, especially those that have suffered loss, have learned the value of protective vaccination and practice this method of protective immunization on all cattle under three years of age, every spring before the animals are turned out to pasture. The vaccination of a herd with a reliable Black Leg vaccine can be done at a very small cost, and it gives perfect protection during the pasture season. Immunization against the Black Leg bacillus is strongly recommended to all stock owners living in districts where young cattle have died, as it were overnight, while at pasture.

Methods of Vaccination in Use.

(1) Pellet, Cord and Powder forms of vaccine.
(2) Standardized liquid vaccine.
(3) Natural Black Leg agressin.
(4) Black Leg Filtrate—or artificial agressin.

All are effective. The pellet form is convenient, but the Natural Black Leg Agressin is most favored for its higher efficiency.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. College.

Spraying potato vines with poisoned Bordeaux mixture on an experiment farm in North Carolina brought a yield of 144 bushels of potatoes an acre. Where the vines were unsprayed, the yield was olny 70 bushels an acre.

Farmers' co-operative livestock selling agencies in the U.S. and Canada, 27 in number, last year handled a business amounting to $235,000,000. Savings to farmers in commission charges alone were estimated at about $1,000,000.

WHEN TURKEYS GET SICK THEY CAUSE LOSSES

Pneumonia, Roup and Blackhead Cause Trouble in Flocks.

SOME REMEDIES

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Three diseases, pneumonia, roup and blackhead are responsible for the greater part of the losses in turkey rearing.

Pneumonia.

Nature has not clothed the young turkey with a thick coat of down or baby feathers sufficiently to protect it from the cold rains that are quite common during May and June. Hence many young birds perish, dying of inflammation of the lungs shortly after experiencing the first cold rain. Little can be done to effect a cure. Everything lies in the direction of prevention. Do not let the young birds get wet, provide suitable shelter, and do not let them get to far away so that they may be quickly rounded up and protected from cold and wet until they are well-feathered.

Roup.

The trouble is due to an infectious organism gaining entrance to the nasal passages of the victim an setting up a catarrhal condition usually easily recognized by clogged nostrils, inflamed mucous membrane of mouth, very offensive odor and swellings on sides of the head Housing young turkeys in unsanitary poorly ventilated or draughty quarters creates conditions which make the bird very susceptible to the infectious organism causing roup. If the disease gains a grip on young birds, it is best to kill them off at once and correct the hygienic conditions for any that remain apparently normal. Exposed birds that are to be kept should be given good nourishing food and a physic of salts once a week. Birds showing symptoms may be treated, if so desired, as follows: Massage as much of the material as possible out of the nostrils, clean out the eyes and if swellings exist open with a sharp knife. Use Boracic Acid solution or potassium permanganate solution or argyrol solution (10 per cent.) as a wash for the nostrils and eyes. Such can be applied with a medicine dropper or the birds head may be dipped in the solution. If birds do not make good recovery in a reasonable time it is best to destroy them as they will carry the infection along and may be the cause of more roup.

Blackhead.

This disease is the most common and destructive pest affecting turkeys. It has been the cause of mnay a farm giving up turkey raising. The cause has been attributed to a protozoan parasite, that is taken up by the bird in its feed and water. Soils become infested, breeding birds become carriers, so the young have little chance of escaping infection if feeding over ground that has previously supported turkeys. The young birds show signs of distress in the late summer or early autumn, become listless, drowsy, stop feeding, feathers become ruffled, wings droop, and they hang behind the flock. The droppings are yellowish in color and more fluid than normal. The head may become dark purple in color The after-death symptoms generally noticed in blackhead cases are as follows: Liver spotted on surface with whitish yellow to faded green spots, the cecum, either one or both are thickened and distended with a gray cheesy mass. Treatment for blackhead has not been successful and its control lies in prevention. If troubled now, clean out the entire flock and give up turkeys for three years. When starting again, secure eggs from healthy birds, wipe them with cloth moistened with 80 per cent. denatured alcohol to remove any possible contagion, then hatch in the incubator. When the young poults are ready to leave the incubator place them in a brooder or enclosed ground and protect from other poultry or agents likely to carry the infection to the pen. Keep the house and its equipment clean and disinfected. Use sour milk or buttermilk liberally in the ration. Keep the birds confined all the time that infection may be prevented and treatment applied. Powdered ipecac administered in the mash, twice a week, at the rate of two teaspoonsful per 20 birds is considered a useful preventative. The use of ipecac should start when the birds are two weeks old and continue for three months. —L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O.A. College.

CULL POULTRY ON ENGLISH LINE

Professor J. F. Francis, of O.A.C., Will Direct the Work.

TRAIN POULTRYMEN.

A representative of the Department of Agriculture will be at the English Line, Seymour Township, putting on a poultry culling campaign, under the auspices of the English Line Egg Circle. The first two days of the campaign, June 15 and 16, some of the men will be trained in the work and during the rest of the week the actual work of culling the flocks will take place. The work will be in charge of Walter H. Smith, agricultural representative of Brighton, and Professor J. F. Francis, of the Ontario Agricultural College, and will not be confined to members of the egg circle but will be open to all poultry men of the district.

The kinds of flowers one can grow are almost countless. You can hardly make a mistake, however, as all are interesting. Start this summer with a few and gradually increase the number under your care year by year, aiming always to make your plants the most choice and perfect of their kind

PETES POUND PONIES' PITCHERS WINNING FOURTH SUCCESSIVE VICTORY BY FOURTEEN TALLIES

Three Kingston Hurlers Worked Against Petes During Batting Spree.

FINAL COUNT 15-1

Was Sweet Revenge for the Game Lost on Breaks in Kingston.

(By F. D. C.)

Extending their winning streak to four straight victories Manager Shiner Johnston's Petes, playing bang up ball in all departments behind clever pitching by Frank Whitehouse won a ridiculously soft triumph over the hitherto unbeaten Kingston Ponies at Riverside Park Saturday, the home talent finishing in front 15 runs to 1.

The victory put the Johnstonites on even terms with Kingston at the top of the Central Ontario ladder and the teams will decide the issue for the time being at Kingston on Wednesday evening when they tie into each other again.

As a contest Saturday's game was a "bust."

The Petes started and finished like champions, showing strength at the bat, on the bases and in the field while the Ponies loked like every ball club does when it cannot hit and its own pitchers are being murdered.

Whitehouse In Form.

Whitehouse, cleverly handled by Max Swanston gave a fine exhibition of smart left-handed twirling and he was rarely in danger of being scored upon and never, of course, of being beaten. The youngster, using a drop to great advantage, varied with plenty of steam on his fast ball and showing nice control, held the Ponies to five hits, no two of which came in the one frame and only seven of the invaders reached first base during the game while Teepel who scored the Ponies' only run was the sole visitor to get as far as third. Whitehouse struck out eight of the visitors and gave by long odds his best performance of the season.

The Petes played almost perfect ball behind him, the only error being a dropped foul fly by Scotty McPherson which had no bearing on the play.

Manager Daley selected the veteran Teddy Gallagher, who usually works like a well-oiled machine on a hot day, to southpaw the Petes into subjection Evidently Saturday wasn't hot enough for the ancient left-hander lasted little more than an inning, yielding four runs in the first frame and departing for the bench after the Petes had registered two more runs and had the cushions all populated without a hand out in the second.

He was succeeded by the much-heralded Young but the only difference noted between the two Pony hurlers on the day's work was that Young threw them in with his right hand. By the aid of a double play he succeeded in getting out of the hole Gallagher had dug for him in the second but from then on it was merely a case of fire and fall back while the base hits screamed to all parts of the park and the Petes ran themselves dizzy around the base paths.

Del Cherry came in from centre field in the eighth and escaped without a hit or run being registered of his twirling but by that time the homesters were leg-weary from circling the runways.

Fine For Home Fans.

For the fan who likes to see a neck-and-neck finish Saturday's game had not as much kick as a bottle of4-4, but it was a great day for the fellow who enjoys watching the home foks smearing it all over the opposition.

Manager Johnston had the Petes on their toes and hustling all the way and they gave a fine all round exhibition, showing unusual speed on the bases, bunting so cleverly that they turned four intended sacrifices into hits and hitting in vigorous and timely fashion. Red Legon with three hits in the same number of times up and Herb Wolfe with three out of four had the best percentage but the swats delivered by Hap Harrison and Max Swanston had a big share in demoralizing the opposition. The big first baseman tripled with the bases full in the first and Swanston after doubling with the sacks loaded in the second, drove in another pair of runs in with a single with the runways crowded in the fifth.

In spite of the bad beating they received the feature fielding plays were mostly furnished by the Ponies. Batstone made a jumping glove-hand catch of a smash from Swanston, Halbert the corpulent short stop tore over and scooped up Ross's fast roller with his gloved-hand and threw the batter out at first and Scott in left field also robbed Ross of a double by a running catch of his drive to deep left.

McPherson had the Petes fielding feature when he froze to Scott's screaming liner in the fifth, the hardest hit ball off Whitehouse during the engagement.

The Story of the Play.

Teepel, first up for Kingston, led off with what should have been a double to centre but was called out for not touching first base. Halbert fanned and Batstone was thrown out by Holyman.

The Petes had a lot of fun. Legon walked and Rose bunted safely down the first base line. Then the pair pulled off a neat double steal. The plate was swinging for Gallagher, and he walked Swanston, setting the stage for Hap Harrison who drove a beautiful triple to the wide open spaces in deep right, scoring three runs. Gallagher wild pitched Harrison home with the fourth run of the frame. Hall flied out to Halbert - Holyman was hit but Whitehouse flied to Somerville and McPherson struck out.

Whitehouse did his stuff beautifully in the second by fanning Somerville, Cherry and Purvis, three of the Ponies best hitters in a row.

Then the Petes got busy again. Wolfe beat out a bounder to Halbert Legon bunted safely past Gallagher for a hit and the runners advanced to second and third on Somervilles' wide throw to first. Rose walked, the sacks and Swanston poled a long double to right, scoring Wolfe and Legon. Harrison walked and so did Gallagher -to the bench. Young, a right-hander was sent in to stop the slaughter. He got out of a tight hole when Hall hit into a double play on a hard rap to Batstone who threw Rose out at the plate while Swanston was nipped at third. Holyman was tossed out by Young.

In the third Scott flied to Wolfe, and Quinn and Young struck out.

Whitehouse Doubled.

For the home talent, Whitehouse led off with a ringing double to right and took third on Young's balk, scoring when McPherson singled to right. Wolfe bunted safely down the first base line but McPherson was extinguished trying to go to third on the play. Wolfe stole second and scored on Legon's double to left. Rose was tossed out by Somerville and Batstone made a gloved-hand catch of Swanston' drive which started like a sure hit.

The Ponies got their only counter in the fourth. Teepel walked and went to second while Rose was throwing out Halbert- Batstone singled on the ground into right, scoring Teepel. Somerville flied to Legon and Cherry, after McPherson had dropped his foul fly for the only Peterboro error of the day, flied to Holyman.

For the first time the Petes failed to score. Harrison fouled to Purvis. Hall singled to short, going to second on Halbert's high throw. Holyman struck out and Whitehouse grounded to Purvis.

Purvis fanned to start Kingston's fifth. McPherson made a sparkling catch of Scott's hard hit liner and Quinn missed three.

Still More Runs.

For the Petes McPherson singled to left. Wolfe hit to Batstone, who threw to second but Halbert was off the bag. Everbody safe. Legon bunted past Young for his third hit. Rose hit to Batstone, forcing McPherson at the plate but Swanston singled over second scoring Wolfe and Legon. Harrison flied to Teepel the runners advancing after the catch- Hall grounded to Halbert.

Ross replaced Legon in the Petes' outfield at this stage, the left fielder having hurt his leg. Young flied to Hall, now playing left, Teepel singled but was forced at second on Halberts' roller to Holyman. Batstone flied to Ross in right.

For the Petes Holyman drew a pass and Whitehouse's sacrifice bunt was fumbled by Young. The runners advanced on Quinn's bad throw to second. McPherson hit to Young and Holyman beat the throw to the plate. Wolfe's sacrifice fly to Scott scored Whitehouse. Halbert picked up Ross's roller on the run with his gloved-hand cutting the batter out of a hit. Rose was thrown out by Young.

In the seventh Somerville rolled to Rose. Cherry singled to third but was forced at second on Purvis' roller to Holyman. Purvis died stealing, Swanston to Rose.

In the home team's half Swanston fouled to Purvis- Harrison was hit and Hall crashed a single through short. Holyman singled over second, sending Harrison in. White house slammed a single to right, scoring Hall and Holyman. McPherson flied to Scott. Wolfe hit over Cherry's head for three bases, and was nipped at the plate. Whitehouse crossed the plate ahead of him but was called out for not touching third so the Petes lost a most unnecessary run.

To start the eighth Scott fouled to McPherson. Quinn singled to right and went to second when Whitehouse was tossing out Young. Whitehouse and Holyman picked Quinn off second.

Cherry Finishes It.

Cherry was on the tiring line for the Ponies when the Petes went to bat. Ross flied to Scott a nice catch by the left fielder. Rose walked. Swanston rolled a fast one to Somervile for an out at first and Rose was trapped between second and third for a double play.

In the ninth Teepel led off with a liner to left. The ball bounced over Hall's head and was nearly lost in the long grass for a homer. Hall recovered it in time to nip Teepel at the plate via a relay by Ray Rose. Halbert bunted to Whitehouse for an easy out and after Batstone had been hit, Somerville flied to Ross who made a nice running catch for the final out.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

With four wins in a row and tied for the leadership with the Ponies, the Petes are in the position that is picturesquely, if somewhat puzzlingly, described as "Sittin' pretty."

* * * * * * * * *

When Gallagher and Whitehouse were announced as the opposing pitchers on Saturday there was more than one fan who thought that Manager Johnston was asking too much of his young southpaw to expect him to "take" the unbeaten Ponies with the wily old left-hander working under his favourite conditions. "Shiner's" judgment was triumphantly vindicated, however, for the ninth inning found the youngster still baffling the invaders, while the weather-beaten Gallagher had from the second inning on been communing with Manager Joe Daley in the stuffy obscurity of the Ponies' bench. And there are more pleasant places than alongside the Kingston pilot on a hot day when his club is being murdered.

* * * * * * * * *

Legon, Swanston and Harrison have all hit safely in all five games played by the Petes this season. Legon with the high average of .526, is leading the Johnstonites in hitting, and also in run-getting, while Wolfe is second with a .500 mark for three games. Swanston with .407 and Harrison with .333 are the other leading Peterboro hitters.

* * * * * * * * *

Hap Harrison's triple would have been an easy homer on any other park in the league. So, too, would have been Whitehouse's sharp hit double to right field.

* * * * * * * * *

A number of fans have asked about Teepel's drive to centre field in the first inning on which he reached second base, only to be called out for not touching first. Teepel, of course, could not be credited with a hit on this rap, for he had technically been put out before reaching first base.

* * * * * * * * *

A funny mix-up followed Wolfe's rap over Cherry's head in the seventh. The blow came with two out and Whitehouse on first and the pitcher took his time in running out the hit until the flying Wolfe almost overhauled him. They came down the third base line close together, Whitehouse crossing the plate, while Wolfe was tagged out. Then it was discovered that Whitehouse had overlooked the formality of touching third, and the ball was played there and he was called out, cutting the Petes out of a run.

* * * * * * * * *

Belleville, after taking a two-run lead in the ninth on Wicky Ross' home run, were nosed out when Oshawa scored three in their half, the Motorists winning Saturday afternoon's game at Oshawa 15 to 14. It was a real slugging bee, featured by five home runs, of which Oshawa collected four. Breckenridge and Dainty pitched for Oshawa and Keon, Jeffrey and Goyer for Belleville, Dainty getting credit for the win and Goyer for the loss.

* * * * * * * * *

Belleville's offensive strength seems to be as potent as ever, although the Quinte crew have lost five games in a row. They have amassed a total of 39 runs in five starts, an average of almost 8 per game, and have yet to win, while the Petes with the same number of runs have hung up four victories out of five fixtures.

The Petes play in Kingston on Wednesday and are back home on Saturday with Belleville as their guests. The tailenders always play good ball here, and judging by their last appearance at Riverside Park, will give the local talent plenty of trouble.

Babe Ruth's presence in the Yanks' line-up is for box-office purposes rather than in the hope that the biffing Bimbo is in shape to show his old-time form. It is asking a lot of Ruth, whose gameness has never been questioned.

The Examiner ball team, a fan somewhat caustically remarks, is nothing more or less than a bunch of typographical errors. We understand that the proofreader is to get a place on the line-up henceforth in order to keep down the errors.

NEW SCHEDULE FOR MERCANTILE

Dates Re-arranged in Accordance With Parks Committee's Allotments

Owing to the Parks' Committee changing the dates the Mercantile League has had to re-arrange its schedule. The Examiner-Lock Works game scheduled for Tuesday night has been set back to Monday so these two teams will clash on Monday night instead of Tuesday.

The Lock Works All Stars boast a great team, in fact, they look to have the strongest team in the league. They have most of last year's team, with Irving Bailey and Cox as a couple of strong additions. The latter of the two is one of the new additions to the 1926 Petes' hockey team. The Lock Works have two good southpaw heavers in Donnely and Connors and are well reinforced all around.

The Examiner, after their poor showing Thursday night, have made several changes in their line up and will present a more formidable team on Monday night. The game will start at 6.00 p.m. sharp and will be played at Riverside Park.

The following is the revised schedule:

June 8—Examiner vs Lock Works
June 13—Victorias vs Bankers.
June 18—Lock Works vs Victorias
June 22—Victorias vs Examiner.
June 27—Bankers vs Lock Works.
July 2—Examiner vs Bankers.
July 6—Lock Works vs Victorias.
July 11—Examiner vs Lockworks.
July 16—Victorias vs Bankers.

DELORO MINERS PLAY GOOD BALL

Team is in Good Shape For Quinte League Schedule Contests.

BEAT EXCELSIORS.

MARMORA, June 8. — Some good play was witnessed at the trial game of the Deloro ball team on Friday evening when their regular team under the captaincy of Walter Schultz played the Excelsiors, captained by Charles McInory. Eight innings were played, and until the fourth the Excelsiors, who were strengthened by the inclusion of Shea and Leal as pitchers, held the upper hand in the play. The regulars got warmed up and eventually won a splendid game by 6 to 2. R. A. Elliott and Vaughan Jack as umpires, gave entire satisfaction. Line-ups were as follows:

Deloro Team—Ada, c.f.; Villeneuve, 2b., p.; Schultz, 1b.; Boudreau, r.f.; Johnston, s.s.; Brown, l.f., 2b.; Quinn, c.; Lamontague, l.f., p.; Regan, 3b.

CENTRE DOURO WON IN SOFTBALL GAME

Defeated Indian River 8-6 in Opening Game of the League Schedule.

One of the largest crowds that has turned out to see a ball game in Douro for some years witnessed the opening game of the North Peterborough County Softball League last evening, on the O'Connor Diamond between Indian River and Centre Douro. Both teams played good ball for the beginning of the season. Centre Douro won out by the score of 8 to 6 in eight innngs.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER THORON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The swing of the golf club, whether wood or iron, must never be a free and suashing proposition. The correct swing is kept close, even with the longest wood. When you watch the good player you note that from the top of his back swing he appears to dive the clubhead directly down at the ball. And that is about what he does too—never any free and wide open slashing of the body. The body stays in its place, so that at the finish the body is on a line with where the ball was, with the right shoulder pointing to the tee spot. One way to accomplish this is to "hit against the left leg." The left leg must absorb the whole forward action in the hitting swing, and arrest it. If it lets the body move forward the clubhead will cross the ball and cause it to hook Keeping the swing close this way may feel awkward at first, but it is what yields the fine ball.

RENAULT BEATEN BY NEGRO FIGHTER

Canadian Boxer Lost Decision to Godfrey in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8. — George Godfrey, negro heavyweight, won a referee's decision over Jack Renault, of Canada, here Saturday, after ten rounds of fighting that was marked by much clinching.

There were many heavy things apart from the poundage of the principals. Heavy clinching and a bit of heavy wrestling were featured. Heavy hitting, however, was lacking. The gate receipts were estimated at $30,000.

The critics were agreed in declaring the fight was the poorest heavyweight set-to of any consequence ever staged in San Francisco. It was a slow, cumbersome battle.

CRICKET FAILS TO HOLD FANS CRITICS THINK

Vain Attempt by English to Take Laurels in Australia Cited.

NURSERIES OPEN

Youthful Players Brought Along by County Clubs in Revival.

LONDON, Eng., June 8.—(By Canadian Press).—England's vain attempt to wrest the cricket laurels from Australia in the test matches last winter has brought out considerable criticism from numerous sportsmen, many of whom express the opinion that the national game has not the hold on the British public that once was the case. The necessity of fostering the spirit of the game is put forward by representatives of practically all the country clubs and many have established 'nurseries' where youthful aspirants to first class honors are given every opportunity to attain proficiency in all branches of sport.

In an article published recently 'The Field,' England's leading sporting journal, adds its voice to the demand pointing out that opportunities for youthful cricketers to realize their ambition of one day playing for "the county" are decreasing as the years pass.

"How far have we drifted since the days of the all Eangland elevens may easily be discovered from a brief examination of the history of the game," says the writer of the article.

"With very few county matches the All England Eleven, the United All England Eleven and, later, the United South of England Eleven, were able to oppose various provincial twenty-twos, who all took their places in the field. These matches gave chances of distinction to innumerable local players who would otherwise never been heard of, and many men became famous first gained attention by a good bowling or batting performance against the greatest players of the day. With the continued increase of county matches these elevens gradually dropped out. But the M.C.C. sent strong teams to each of the Universities, who were also visited by still stronger Gentlemen of England teams, organized firstly by Mr. C. I. Thornton, secondly by Mr. A. J. Webbe. Furthermore, there were desperately keen matches between North and South and Gentlemen v Players, as well as encounters between Gentlemen and Players of the South, and the M.C.C. and the counties at Lords. Thus in ever so many ways there were chances for young players of the day. All these matches, except Gentlemen v Players at Lord's and the Oval, have died out entirely, and the match at Lord's is alone representative.

"To replace the lost matches we have nothing—absolutely nothing. Even the match at Lord's seems to be regarded as a reward for past excellence rather than for present ability. In fact, our cricket has now become subservient to the county championship. So much is this the case that unless a player is especially qualified for a first-class county he has practically no earthly chance of playing in first-class cricket at all."

The writer deplores the tendency to allow promising young players to abandon the game for one reason or another and points to the interest taken in advancement of Australian youths where "everything is made subservient to the test matches." Means are found whereby an opportunity is provided for a player to take part in first class cricket if only he is good enough no matter what his vocation.

"To suggest a remedy for England in the present state of the game is not easy," the article reads. "But surely it cannot be impossible to discover means by which promising young players, hitherto debarred from playing regularly in first-class cricket, may be able to play if they can spare the time. Surely also it would not be impossible to find some other method in club cricket than the closure rule which beyond a shadow of doubt, is losing us thousands of young cricketers every year. It is notorious that golf and lawn tennis are enticing large numbers of young cricketers away, not because they prefer these games to cricket, but because at cricket they so often fail to get an innings. It is all very well to say that fielding and looking on ought to be sufficient for his souls good, but the simple truth is that no matter how much a young man may like bowling or fielding his greatest pleasure in the game is to have a knock. A year or two ago a still young player who had recently been a great success as a bowler for his University and his county was, on account of business, obliged to give up first-class cricket. He then played for a good club and took many wickets. Suddenly he gave up the game and took up golf. On being reproached for his desertion he said, "I can only get away on Saturdays. My side contains several good batsmen who always make enough runs to declare, and in six matches following I did not get an innings. So I play golf, which treats everybody alike. The case of this 'Varsity Blue' is the case of multitudes of young cricketers. Yet although by the closure rule in club cricket we take away millions of individual innings every year, we, oddly enough, take immense trouble to teach youngsters how to bat. In these days boys begin to go through a course of coaching as soon as they can hold a bat; they are coached at their preparatory school until many of them have lost all originality they are coached even more assiduously when they go to a public school, but being a little older they often regain some of their originality, only too often to lose it again when they go to the University. As far as we have seen, boys are not properly coached in bowling but simply drift into a run which, with very few exceptions, is like the run of every other bowler of their pace. The mischief is that young professional bowlers of parts are not forthcoming in numbers worth speaking of, and it is a question whether the time has not come to set our house in order. The policy of drifting has by no means answered well; would it not be judicious to adopt a policy of action?"

WOOLLENS GAIN 2 MORE POINTS FROM QUAKERS

Two Well-Balanced Teams—Griffine's Goal-Keeping a Brilliant Feature.

QUAKERS UNLUCKY

Scott Scored From Penalty—Clark's Two Spectacular Goals Near End.

OH, That Odd Goal! For the third successive Saturday, the Quakers had to bow to the inevitable defeat to the Woollens. Both teams played excellent football and the losers were far more brilliant in midfield, but lacking the necessary training that the successful team had in reserve to grasp the opportunities. Clark's two goals were well merited against Scott's lightning penalty kick. 'Tis hard luck on a well-balanced Quaker eleven.

Features of the Play.

Woollens won the toss and compelled the Quakers to face the broiling sun. In the first few minutes, the whole forward line of the Quakers missed opportunities galore right in front of goal, while Griffine took no chances when he made very clever saves from the attacking forwards, who lacked the necessary sting to count. Then the Woollens came into the picture through their half back line that carried the sphere into Quakers' shooting proximity, but only obtained two corner kicks that were cleared by S. Maker.

Good Defence; Weak Shooting.

Scott transferred to the other end. Willshaw trapped quickly, crossed like a flash, Gardner and Smith dribbled too much, instead of shooting quick and fast, thereby letting the defence redeem themselves from sudden attacks. On one occasion, Williams beat the defence, then centered into the goal mouth, where three Quaker forwards had the situation all their own way, until Chambers' foot nullified a counter. On mid-field tussle, the Woollens gained the superiority through James and Co. swinging the ball from wing to wing. The close combination between Mitchell and Burgess resulting a severe test to Curtis who was compelled to first clear as the forwards closed in upon him. Logan cleared along the wing to his forwards. Blowers failing to offset the right wing's intentions that ultimately awarded the Quakers a penalty, when Jack Chambers fell and handled.

Scott Scored from Penalty.

There was no mistake in Scott's parting shot from the penalty spot, it hit the rigging far out of Griffine's reach. The reverse gave the Woollens a new life of activity in the goal area, where they were held outside shooting distance by the Quakers' half and full backs. Just before half time, Mitchell initiated a smart move that was frustrated by Logan in the bud.

Half Time—Quakers, 1; Woollens, 0.

Half Time.

After a long respite, a continuous bombardment by the Woollens opened up the second moiety agains the Quakers. At this point, it was gratifying to view the clean tackle of the oppressed to relieve the pressure and credit must be awarded in the right place to W. Logan, who held the Woollens' left wing by anticipation and intercepting tactics. Not only that, but he backed it up by well-placed and offensive tactics.

Griffine Brilliant.

His team-mates carried the sphere right inside the defence pair. Smith in particular breaking through on his own, tried to get inside the upright, but witnessed Griffine make a spectacular one-fisted clearance for a fruitless flag-kick. Play was interesting as the players stlled down to nice soccer. Although Fate again played the deterient factor upon the Porridge Boys, who tried hard to increase their score, but Griffine did not let them, in spite of the fact, that Luck was not in their camp, but came to their opponents' in he next fifteen minutes.

Two Goals in 15 Minutes.

Blowers time and again used his favorite left, but this time he sent Burgess along the wing. Logan tackled, Burgess back-headed, then moved along the wing. He drew Maker to him, then lifted into the goal, where Clark's waiting foot evened up the score. The Quakers' teresting as the players settled Griffine's charge, who punted, fisted and grasped all kinds of shots to his opponents' discouragement. With only six minutes to go, Clark on his own individuality beat the defence about ten yards out, and without hesitation sent a high shot into the net over Curtis' head. The remaining moments were full of thrills when the Quarkers' attack led the winners a merry dance around the goal. Gardner dribbled inside the defence to rattle the goal-keeper with a stinging drive; but, Oh! Griffine's outstretched arms, saved the two points just before full time.

FISH CULTURE VOTE $370,000

Government Adopting Biological Board's Advice in Restocking Lakes and Streams.

PASSED COMMONS.

OTTAWA, June 8 (By Canadian Press)—An estimate of $370,000 for fish culture was the cause of some debate in the House of Commons when estimates of the Department of Marine and Fisheries were under consideration Friday.

General A. K. Ross (Conservative-Kingston) gave numerous instances where fry and fingerlings had been released by the fisheries branch in small streams of Ontario, only to be destroyed by the larger fish, or to perish from lack of suitable food. He thought that the time had come for the department to take hold of the business of restocking these streams with fish in a sensible and practical manner. He suggested that the federal government should co-operate with provincial governments ,that certain lakes should be agreed upon as suitable for the propogation of desirable fish. That the destructive fish in these lakes should be removed, and that the food supply should be adequate before the restocking was carried on. He advised the Minister of Marine to follow the recommendations of the Biological Board and also to profit by the experience of practical fishermen in this work.

Follow Advice

Hon. F. J. A. Cardin, minister if Finance, the department was anxious to follow the advice of the Biological Board. The Board had been asked to appoint men to go into this business of restocking depleted waters. Resolutions adopted by the Board had been agreed to and were being acted on by the department.

The vote carried in addition to a number of other items in respect to the fisheries branch of the department, including $30,000 for the building of fishways and clearing waters, $95,000 to assist in the conservation and development of deep sea fisheries, $2,000 for the maintenance of the Fisheries Intelligence Bureau, and $10,000 to provide for investigators into practical and economic problems connected with fisheries.

LACROSSE NOTES.

Lacrosse practices this week will be at Central Park on Monday and Friday evenings, and at Riverside on Wednesday evening. All the players are requested to turn out as promptly as possible at 6 o'clock, especially on Wednesday evening, when it is intended to line up two teams for a full game.

Any youngsters who would like to learn the game are invited to report at any of these practices. There may be enough material in town for a junior team, and George Mein will give them any time he can spare.

"Pete" King, the former Havelock flash, is living here and is talked of as a prospect for the intermediate team. The Havelock-Norwood combination have been expecting him for their home field, and if he really purposes playing with the eastern team the local management will not likely prevent him, although according to the O.A.L.A. resident rule he might be ineligible for the Havelock-Norwood amalgams.

King, with Irvin Bailey, Wilfred Ranger, Doug. Miller, Ira Dundas, Jack O'Toole and three or four others, would provide the sweetest home field Peterboro has produced in years with fairly good subs for relief work. Thoughts of that group in action send George Mein and Johnnie Sutherland into ecstacies. Every time they think of the team that might be lined up here this summer, these two faithful boosters start talking to themselves as if the dog days had deeply bitten them.

Bert McLeod, McKinnon and Taylor would make the nucleus of a strong defense, with Lou and Jack LeBarr, Murdock, Johnny Ward and several others to fill in. And this is overlooking the White boys, who have been shaping up in great style.

McKinnon and McLeod are newcomers to local lacrosse. McKinnon has been takirg a lot of interest in the team and Bert McLeod has turned out a number of times.

A little substantial support from the old lacrosse fans and from those who would like to see the game reestablished here would be greatly appreciated before the season opens. The 1925 Petes look strong enough on paper to give their old rivals in the district a real argument this season. They have too long been a doormat for Havelock, Hastings and Campbellford, and Johnn Sutherland already has visions of winning the group.

Andy McGee, captain of the Toronto University team, now completing the most successful tour across the border in the records of the Varsity squad, will likely be with the H. and N. team, with Weir, Pete King's side-kick down in Wallaceburg, last season.

McGee, Weir and King are half a team in themselves, and Havelock has more than enough well-seasoned men to fill out the other places with several remaining as substitutes.

Alex. Kempt is handling the Norwood juniors. He took charge this spring and has attracted considerable support among the townspeople.

GIRLS' GAMES TO BE HARD FOUGHT

Old Rivals at Softball Meet at Central Park Tonight and Tomorrow.

CALLED FOR 6.30.

Fast games are promised the followers of the ladies' softball games for the first two days of this week. To-night, Otonabees and Thistles will battle and a hard contest should be put on for the pleasure of the Central Park habitues as these are two of the fastest teams in the league.

For those who miss to-night's game an equally good encounter will be staged on Tuesday evening when the old rivals, Canadian Generals and Canadian Woollens will meet. Any game between these two fast teams is a fight from the first to the last play and the fans would be well advised to be on hand when "His Umps" yells play ball.

Both these games will be played on the Central Park at 6.30 p.m., giving time for players and fans to enjoy their favorite indoor sport (eating) before the game starts.

One thing is certain: Alex. will not only give the youngsters a thorough training in the game, but he will also insist upon sound sportsmanship.

FALCONS HAVE LOST A VALUABLE PLAYER

Homer Lundy, For Six Years Manager of the Team, Leaving the City.

The Fire Hall Falcons A. C. lose another valuable member from its roster, in the person of Manager Homer Lundy who leaves the city in the near future.

Lundy has been with the Falcons for 9 years, joining them in 1916. He played ball with them in 1916-17-18 and then became captain and in 1919 succeeded to the manager's position which he still held till the time of his departure.

Lundy's going will be a hard shock to the team because they re-recently lost their captain, Melville McNeely, and with Manager Lundy leaving it leaves two holes in the Falcons' roster that will be hard to fill up.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

HOLLYWOOD'S THRILLS ARE TAME IN COMPARISON.

Out of the living hell of two-and-a-half years in Darkest Africa come H. A. and Sidney Snow bearing a wonderful record of life on the Dark Continent that is already established as a classic of the screen. "Hunting Big Game in Africa with Gun and Camera," is its name—this attraction will be presented at the Grand next Friday and Saturday, following twelve crowded weeks at the Lyric Theatre, New York, and long runs in other cities. Spectators will then realize the drama, thrill, romance and comedy of real achievement that dwarfs play-emotions and makes even actors and actresses of the theatric boards seem hollow and unreal.

"THE DUMBELLS" COMING TO-NIGHT

The world-famous "Dumbells Company," under the personal direction of Captain Mert. Plunkett, will offer their latest and most successful revue, "Oh, Yes" at the Grand Opera House, for an engagement of two nights only, starting to-night.

Among the oustanding features of this new revue are Al. Plunkett's songs, "Do Shrimps Make Good Mothers?" "Cross-Words," and a new "fly" song. Ross Hamilton sings "Lips I have Kissed," and "I Love Them All"; "Red" Newman has two great songs, "Let's Keep the Money in the Country," and "How Does Milk Get Into Cocoanuts" Another great comedy hit is Pat Rafferty's "Lips That Touch Kippers Shall Never Touch Mine." Stan. Bennett has a couple of delightful songs, one of them being "Colonel Lipstick of the Coldstream Guards." "Jock" Holland leads the beautuy chorus in "Where Are the Girls of the Old Brigade"

There are two great comedies, one called "Red Justice" and the other "A Home from Home." In these humorous travesties "Red" Newman, Pat Rafferty, Morley Plunkett, Stan. Bennett and "Jock" Holland are afforded ample scope for their individual characterizations, which are so well known and liked by the 'Dumbells" patrons.

Captain Plunkett and his "Dumbells Orchestra" provide a half hour of harmony and syncopation, including in their repertoire a bit of everything from jazz to classical selections.

"Oh, Yes!" is a splendid successor to "Ace High," which broke all Canadian records in its twenty-six weeks on the road. The company remains exactly the same, but the revue is entirely new from start to finish—not a line, song or setting of 'Oh, Yes!" ever having been used before.

AT THE CAPITOL

SILENT DRAMA STAR HAS SINGING VOICE.

Norma Talmadge Demonstrates Vocal Charms During Filming of "The Lady."

Norma Talmadge has turned cabaret artist in her latest photoplay "The Lady," to be shown at the Capital Theatre to-day.

And as premiere chanteuse of an Apach restaurant in Paris, the star sings the latest American songs.

Frank Borzage, directing Norma in "The Lady," learned for the first time during the making of the photoplay that Norma has an exquisite voice, which, although not strong, is delightfully sweet and ideally suited to singing.

Norma sings to a strange collection of humanity. Chinese, Japanese, Tonkinoise, Anamite, Algerian, Moroccan Tunisian, Italian, French, Spanish, Maltese, dark-eyed beauties from the South Seas—all are included in the underworld denizens who were gathered together for the cafe scenes.

Norma's new photoplay is a story of a wife who lost both husband and baby through one of life's strange twists of circumstance. The picture is a First National attraction produced by Joseph M. Schenck. The special supporting cast includes Wallace MacDonald, Norma's leading man; Alf Goulding, Brandon Hurst, Emily Fitzroy, George Hackathorne, Walter Long, Marc MacDermott, Dorris Lloyd, John Fox, Jr., Paulette Duval, Edwin Hubbell, Loro Bara, John Herman, Margaret Seddon, Miles McCarthay and Charles O'Malley.

All of Norma's beautiful gowns were prepared by Clare West.

AT THE ROYAL

"COUNTRY STORE NITE" TONIGHT AT THE ROYAL.

Worth while prize and lots of them will be given away at the Royal tonight. It's "Country Store Nite" again.

BRILLIANT COMEDY OF MARRIAGE, "WORLDLY GOODS" AT ROYAL.

Love sure is a wonderful thing, but try to live on it!

If you ever laughed at a married life farce in your life, you're going to laugh at Agnes Ayres' latest production for Paramount, "Worldly Goods," now showing at the Royal Theatre, for it's a genuine comedy in every sense of the word, with just enough drama and loads of heart-appeal.

Sophie Kerr wrote the story from which the picture was adapted by A. P. Younger. It first ran serially in the Ladies' Home Journal and was later published in novel form. To say that the book was successful is putting it mildly, and to say that the picture is the book brought to life just about describes the screen version of the story to a "T."

Pat O'Malley plays opposite the star, and Victor Varconi and Edythe Chapman are others prominent in support. O'Malley's role in the picture is that of an automobile salesman whose ideas are just about as high as the price of his cars. He wins over Eleanor Lawson (Miss Ayres) with his "line," and married life looks like one sweet song to them until the bills start rolling in and the collectors begin arriving in groups, and they just won't take a smile and soft words for payment.

Such is newly-married life! But all's well that ends well!

Four "Follies" Beauties In "Worldly Goods" Cast.

"If Flo Ziegfeld considered them good enough for his "Follies" they ought to be good enough for any modiste scene."

Thus spoke Paul Bern, director of the Paramount picture "Worldly Goods."

The modiste shop scene, one of the many high lights of the picture, necessitated the use of a score of beautiful models. A list of more than a hundred applicants was considered. Four of the girls selected were formerly of the Ziegfeld "Follies."

Jocelyn Leigh, Charlotte Morgan, Jean Laverty and Gwendolyn Lee comprised the quartet and their beauty, grace, charm and wondrous gowns were material aids in making the fashion show one of the most beautiful ever shown on the screen.

"Worldly Goods," adapted from the Ladies' Home Journal serial and novel by Sophie Kerr, stars Agnes Ayres. There's a big cast playing in support. The picture opens today at the Royal.

AT THE REGENT

"EXCUSE ME" TURNS OUT TO BE RIOT OF LAUGHTER.

Rupert Hughes' Farce One of the Season's Funniest Productions.

Somebody once said that laughing makes you fat, but that very heart convulsions are thinning. Considering this premise, all thin people had better stay away from 'Excuse Me,' which comes to the Regent to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday, for this picture is just about the most girth reducing entertainment of the year.

Maybe the familiarity of the audience for experiences on a Pullman car made the misfortunes of the characters seem especially funny, but certain it is that the locale of the story—a train speeding across the continent—seemed very lucrative for developing comedy, and it must be said that neither Mr. Hughes nor Director Alf Goulding have overlooked any opportunities for collecting laughs.

"Excuse Me" is swift, joyous farce, and it is deftly acted by an excellent cast. Norma Shearer played Marjorie Newton, a society girl who is persuaded by her fiance, Harry Mallory (Conrad Nagel), to take a chance of finding a minister on the train, so that she can accompany him as his wife to his new Navy post in the Philippines.

Bert Roach appears as a bibulous travelling salesman, and his acting is excruciatingly funny. Walter Hiers was never before as amusing as he is in the role of the long-suffering and over-curious porter. Others in the cast include William V. Mong, John Boles, Edith Yorke and Eugene Cameron. John Boyle was photographer.

WOMAN HANGS HERSELF.

Oshawa Tragedy Recalls Previous One Very Similar .. —Victim Was 48.

OSHAWA, June 8. (Canadian Press.) — Mising his wife for a period of time, Charles Pilkey later discovered her body hanging from a beam in the attic on Saturday evenday. The late Mrs. Pilkey was 48 years of age. She had been in ill-health. Besides her husband she leaves a son 18 years of age.

This is the second suicide in this house in less than a year, another woman hanging herself from a beam not two feet from where the body of Mrs. Pilkey was found.

See-sawing up and down George street, I met G. N. Gordon, returned from Ottawa for the week-end. He professed himself unable to fathom the action of the City Council in stopping Sunday bathing. If this astute lawyer and parliamentarian cannot understand the motive there would seem little chance for the man in the street to make sense out of it.....Saw Rev. Dr. C. W. Rose, popular pastor of Murray street church, who expressed his appreciation of the daily telegraph articles by Rev. R. E. Knowles now appearing in The Examiner..... Saw ex-Alderman Robert Morrison, who looks as hearty now as when he sat with the city solons in the Council chamber, and he says, referring to Sunday bathing, he is glad not to be taking a leading part in the controversy.... Saw Harry Gainey, another ex-Alderman, who gave the Council its first report on Suburban Area Commission doings last week.....Saw Sam Butcher from Otonabee, who reports the hot wind is destroying his parsnips and remarked on the aptness of the old proverb: "It's an ill wind."....

News travels slowly. One of the first tourists when told King Edward, Sir John A. MacDonald and Hon. Peter Robinson had travelled these roads, said he didn't even know they were coming to Ontario this summer....

A boy in the west end was knocked down by a car while playing on the street, because he was not permitted to play on the lawn. The loving parents of the lawn nearly had the chance to go on and bring it up without interference.

There is a suggestion that the by-laws of the city be codified and the ancient and more modern but useless ones weeded out. Anyone knowing of a by-law he would like to have preserved is asked to notify the committee at once.

A suit involving $6.30 has already cost a northern township $250. We should instruct our next legislature to spent a day or two at a cost of several thousand dollars to introduce, discuss, and lay on the table a law to prevent losses like that .....

W. M. S. PRAYER SERVICE.

At the close of the evening service the W.M.S. of Knox and St. Andrew's held a prayer service in Knox church to usher in the new day of union with intercession and thanksgiving.

Mrs. M. C. MacKinnon was in the chair and opened the meeting with the hymn "Breathe on me, Breath of God."

Mrs. Kerr led in prayer for personal reconstruction, followed by a prayer of thanksgiving by Miss M. Dickson, for the new spirit of fellowship and unity amongst Christians, and for all who had labored in the cause of union.

Intercession followed for an outpouring of God's spirit on the inaugural meetings in Toronto, led by Mrs. A. Mackenzie; for a quickening of the spritual life of our country, led by Mrs. W. W. Yale; for guidance of our Christian leaders and for new laborers in the harvest, led by Mrs. J. John; for the upbuilding of the United Church as a witness to the saving power of Christ, led by Mrs. M. C. MacKinnon.

The meeting then closed with the Lord's Prayer.

OBITUARY.

ELIZABETH HATLEY

The funeral of the late Elizabeth ("Lila") Hatley was attendedby many friends among whom were the girls of the Bible Class of which she was a member. The choral funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. D. Paterson who in beautiful words expressed the sympathy of all present saying that to know her was to love her and those who are now bereft of her friendship will want to strive more sincerely to be worthy of that friendship, knowing that she is still near them. "To-day we lay her earthly remains away—but it is not Lila, she is now in the nearer presence of her Lord," for which reward it would seem that in a strange way she has been preparing for just over one year, having been made a member of Christ by Holy Baptism and a member of the church, only a few weeks ago, by the laying on of hands. She has now passed from things temporal to things eternal and she leaves the church to-day for the last time where she has so devoutly been in her place always. In closing Rev. Mr. Paterson said that Lila left all a fine example to live up to and closed with the words—"Father, in Thy gracious keeping leave we now Thy servant sleeping."

The church was beautifully decorated with floral tributes from her many friends. Upon leaving the church the "Dead March in Saul" was played by Miss M. Flowers, who presided at the organ.

RICHARD SHEEHY.

One of the largest funerals in the history of St. Peter's Cathedral was that held yesterday afternoon, when the final services were held for the late Richard Sheehy, previous to his interment in St. Peter's cemetery. The lafge church was filled almost to capacity, members of the Knights of Columbus, numbering nearly one hundred and fifty, attended in a body, and the cortege following the casket to the cemetery held nearly one hundred motor cars.

The funeral services were conducted by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, attended by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, of the Sacred Heart church, Rev. Michael O'Brien, of Huntsville, Rev. Peter McGuire, Rev. J. McAuley of Ennismore Rev. P. Costello Rev. J. Moloney and Rev. K. Corkery of Cobourg.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. Frank O'Connor of Toronto Wm. Merrell John Crane Frank Fairen, James Lynch, V. Eastwood, Senior, John Carroll and Dr. F. P. McNulty.

His Lordship commented on the awful suddenness of death, coming "like a thief in the night," and taking so many of the citizens of Peterborough within recent weeks.

"We should serve God faithfully in life so that we may have a happy death. Faith is the touchstone which should animate our lives. Of Richard Sheehy, his honesty, manliness and straightforward business methods were a credit to himself and will be a joy to those he has left behind."

"What a tragedy it is for him who makes a success in life and forgets things eternal. It will be a consolation and happiness to the wife and family of Richard Sheehy that while he was busy with material affairs, in making a success of his business, he was also concerned with spiritual matters, and never forgot those things which have their end in a future life."

COL. GEORGE TAYLOR DENNISON, TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 8.—(Canadian Press.) — Following a period of failing health, extending over the past twelve months, terminating in an illness which commenced two weeks ago, Col. George Taylor Denison, one of Toronto's grand old men, passed peacefully away at Heydon Villa, on Saturday evening, in his 86th year. Deceased had a very serious breakdown some two years ago from which he recovered and enjoyed fairly good health until within the last year when it was noticeable he suffered from physical weakness necessitating his avoiding exertion of all kinds.

Advertisements on its gay sides front and back, include those of "The Examiner," properly styled as "the brightest paper in the district," the A. and T. Young Central Bakery, Stock's Bread, Frank Dawson's tasty ad with an energetic biddy on a nest of pure white eggs, G. J. Jopling's meats, Pringle's fruits, marked by a luscious orange, Maher and Wesley and the Canadian Packing Company's red roses.

Mr. Gordon Mein, the owner and driver, makes his first Westclox trip tonight at five o'clock, with a Chemong schedule at 6 a.m., 7 a.m., 5.40 p.m., 8.30 p.m. The 2.30 afternoon trip will commence Wednesday of this week or next Monday, and will be announced later. advt.

CLUB HONORS W. H. DUNSFORD

Former Manager Bank of Commerce is Recipient of Presentation.

14 YEARS HERE.

A very pleasant informal gathering of members of the Peterboro Club took place on Saturday evening to meet W. H. Dunsford former manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here, and now resident in Toronto.

The chairman, W. R. Morris, referred briefly to Mr Dunsford's 14 years in Peterboro, which included the war years 1914-18, and to the active part Mr. Dunsford took in all patriotic work at that time; also to the fact that two of Mr. Dunsford's sons took their part overseas and, fortunately both returned, are now married and following their father's chosen profesion of banking.

E. H. D. Hall, as senior member of the club, then in a few well chosen words, presented Mr. Dunsford with a handsome gold watch on behalf of his friends and fellow-members.

Brief addresses were made by R. B. Rogers and E. G. Patterson, referring to many years of pleasant association with Mr. Dunsford, and regrets at his departure.

Mr. Dunsford, who was completely taken by surprise, replied feelingly, thanking the members, and regretting that his duties had called him away from Peterboro where he had hoped to retire when his services were no longer required by the bank.

H. W. Morphet contributed several songs which were heartily enjoyed, to which John Crane's accompaniment, and with music, story and cards an evening was enjoyed that will remain long in the memory of all present.

HAND PRINT STUDENTS.

Effort Being Made to Trace Slayer of Professor Turner.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 8 (United Press).—The hand prints of every student at Louisiana University will be taken today in an effort to solve the murder of Professor Oscar B. Turner, whose mutilated body was found yesterday in the Agronomy Building of the University.

On the handle of a small axe found near the body was an imprint in blood of the palm of a hand and this forms the chief clue.

Because Professor Turner was searching for a list of examination questions that had been stolen from his desk, when he was slain, the police believe that a student may have committed the crime.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Toronto Market Languid With Few Gains Recorded

TORONTO, June 8 (Canadian Press).—Dominion Canners and Brazilian practically monopolized the market on the Toronto exchange this morning, Canners being run special 3 points to 113, from which it eased off to 111 1-2 at noon for a net gain of 1 1-2 points, and Brazilian advancing 3-4 to 54 1-2. Outside these issues trading was desultory but a firm tone was maintained. Provincial paper sold up 3 1-4 points at 111 1-4, and British Columbia Fishing improved half a point at 39 1-2. Dealings in Canners common approached the thousand share mark.

Preferred was also active, but closed unchanged.

Speculators Unload Pets On Wall Street To-day

NEW YORK, June 8 Canadian Press).—Professional selling was resumed later in the morning in Wall Street following the marking up of call money renewal rate to 4 per cent. Finding that buying support was lacking for standard shares, speculators quickly threw overboard most of their pet specialties, causing a number of sharp recessions. Weakness was most pronounced in the public utility group depite the buoyancy of Electric power issues. General Electric was hammered down 3 1-2 points and Western Union and International Telephone 2 points each before noon. American Can, Gulf States Steel, International Paper, Radio, Cast Iron Pipe and Maxwell B certificates lost 2 to 3 points. Oil shares, however, continued to offer stiff resistance to selling pressure, with Pan American, Marland, Phillips and Houston joining the upward procession.

Hattie Preferred Active With 250,000 Shares Moved

TORONTO, June 8. (Canadian Press).—More than 250,000 shares of Hattie Preferred changed hands on the Standard Exchange this morning a big turnover indicating success in the effort to get new money into the concern or success in development at the mine.

Buyers on 30-day terms ran the price up to 9 cents.

Con West Dome Lake was active but steady, but Teck Hughes improved two points at 136. Vipond also was firm, gaining a point at 104. Ophir was in demand, selling an eighth higher.

The turnover was heavy for the summer session.

Cooler Weather Set Back Wheat Prices At Chicago

CHICAGO, June 8.— (Canadian Press.)—Cooler weather and rains led to an early setback in wheat prices to-day.

On the down turns, however, active buying developed and rallies ensued. Buying was largely based on assertions that irreparable crop damage had already been wrought. Opening quotations, 1 to 2 3-4c. lower. July 167 to 168 and Sept. 163 3-4 to 164 1-2 were followed by some additional decline and then by a reaction of about 1 1-4c. from the early bottom figures.

Rains brought about lower prices for corn and oats as well as for wheat. After opening at 3-4 to 1 7-8c. off, Sept. 115 to 115 3-4, the corn market sagged a little more and then recovered to a moderate extent.

Oats started 1-2 to 1 3-8c. down. Sept. 53 to 53 3-4. Slight rallies ensued.

Y.W.C.A. WEEK'S ACTIVITIES

All girls who are interested in a Y.W.C.A. Outdoor Club are asked to meet at the "Y" on Tuesday evening at 7.30. A croquet tournament and Badminton games have been arranged for the evening program and each girl is asked to bring 10c. Plans for each Tuesday evening through the summer season will be arranged and will include boating, tennis, swimming hikes and picnics and outdoor sports. Come Tuesday and enjoy a good time and help plan more good times.

The Y.W.C.A. will not have a camp this summer but the Association has particulars about several other real good camps which are quite near. The Provincial "Y" Camp is at Camperdown on Georgian Bay and already several girls are planning to spend their holidays there. All who would like to go to camp are asked to enquire at the office.

The swimming pool has proved a very popular and cool place to spend these hot days. Come and enjoy a cool swim.

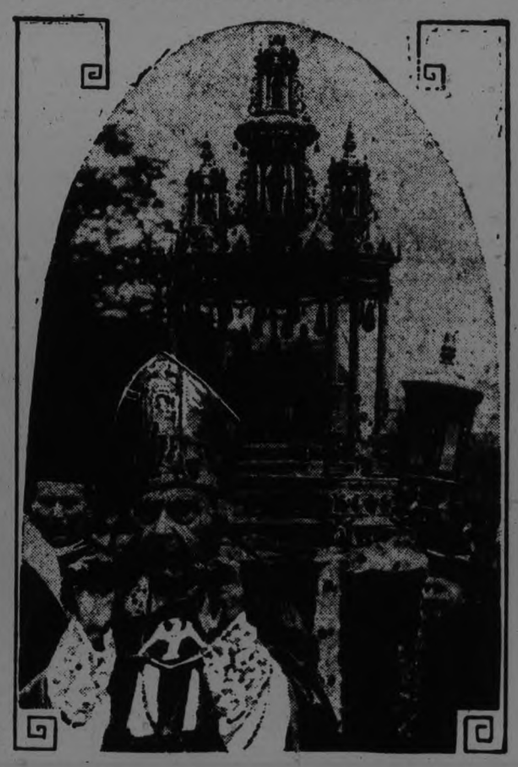
WOMAN SHOT.

Revolver Near Body—Accidental Shooting is Claimed at Exeter.

EXETER, Ont., June 8 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Leslie Rutherford, wife of the accountant of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was found dead on the floor of her home on Saturday with a bullet wound in the chest. A revolver was near the body and it is said the weapon had been accidentally discharged. Deceased was in her 35th year and was formerly Miss Letitia Elealeh Broadfoot of Guelph.

HOLY RELIC ON EXHIBIT



The Bishop of Bruges himself bears the sacred coffer, believed to contain a cloth stained with the blood of Christ, in the old Belgian town's annual procession of the Sant Sang.

HOT WEATHER DID NOT KEEP PEOPLE AWAY

It was very easy seen at the Brass Store, 345 George Street, Friday and Saturday, that the heat certainly did not keep the people from buying the great Hudson Bay Co., Ltd.'s stocks which Brass bought by auction. From early Friday morning until late Saturday night crowds kept coming to share in the wonderful values that this sale is offering.

Mr. Caldwell, who has just finished selling the Art Silk Co.'s stock, which so many people have shared in the wonderful values, has been retained to conduct this sale.

A word to the wise is sufficient, so come early Tuesday for Greater Bargains.—Adv. 1d-134-985

DROWNED YESTERDAY.

Toronto Man Supposed Victim of Sunstroke—Companion Rescued.

TORONTO, June 8. (Canadian Press).—Joseph Henry Eeles, aged 25, of Toronto, was drowned in Lake Couchiching yesterday and his companion, Walter Hammond, was rescued in an exhausted condition when the canoe in which they were out, capsized suddenly. It is thought that Eeles, a travelling salesman, was a victim of sunstroke while in the canoe.

NEW PARK FLOWERS.

Hardier Plants Take Places of Beautiful But Delicate Tulips.

D. Hayward, park gardener, is supplanting the tulips with plants which are longer lived and hardier, calculated to withstand our torrid summer climate.

In the long beds, bordering the path, there will be two rows of canna flanked by geraniums and silver leaf.

In the large central area there there will be castor beans and bronze cannas as well as foliage.

In the smaller beds marking the diverging paths alternating beds of St. Helena and foliage will be planted

The plants, which are from the Peterboro Floral Co., were cared for by Mr. Hayward in the winter months.

FACTS ABOUT OPTOMETRY
No One Can Tell The Condition of His Eyes
Without undergoing an examination. No one in the world can tell anything about the eyes merely by looking at them. They must be examined by instruments that detect the slightest deviation from normal. So there is very little use asking any one if his eyes are normal. He doesn't know. But our examination would tell him. Then we could correct the defects we found.
